Easter was fittingly observed at the Baptist Church last Sunday evening. The Sunday School gave a concert consisting of a special service arranged for Easter Sunday. Both music and recitations were finely rendered and the large congregation present was well entertained.

Puck of April 1st contains a capital cartoon by Joseph Keppler, entitled, "The Biggest Joke of the Season." According to the New York Tribune, President Harrison is Mr. Blaine's candidate for 1892. This is certainly a very good joke, as every one knows that Mr. Blaine will leave no stone unturned to secure the nomination for himself.

Whew! What a crowd? Every seat and every available inch of standing room was occupied last evening and fully one thousand people turned away. Howorth's Hibernica Comedy and Specialty Company was the attraction, and the combination was greeted with great favor. The Comedy of Blunders, was cleverly presented and provoked much laughter and applause. The various specialties were gracefully introduced, the songs and dances noticeably excellent. The two "Dans" will be the attraction for to-day and to-morrow, afternoon and evening.—Rochester Herald.

Appropriate Easter services were held at St. Peters Church last Sunday. The early service at 6 o'clock was participated in by a large congregation, filling the Church to repletion. The morning sun, sending its rays through the east window and toning the light within, seemed to proclaim the glorious truth that "Christ is risen." The music was elaborate and fitting to the day and hour. The restor entered into the spirit of the occasion and recited the service very finely. In fact the whole exercises were very impressive. Services wer also held at four o'clock in the afternoon.

We were forcibly reminded yesterday was all Fool's day by receiving a big fat letter in the morning mail, large enough to contain a thousand dollars in $5.00 greenbacks, but which actually did contain—but we forbear. Life is too short to tell the whole story.

Programme of Mother's Meeting to be held in the W. C. T. U. Parlors April 3d. 3 p. m. Singing, reading, and prayer by the Superintendent. Subject, The value of Phrenology in the choice of pursuits. Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Codington will lead in the discussion. All mothers are cordially invited to be present and join in the discussions.

At the M. E. Church ast Sunday services were held appropriate to Easter. A Mission service was held in the morning and the Sunday School gave a concert in the evening. The pulpit platform was neatly decorated with potted plants and flowers and the exercises throughout were deeply impressive and appropriate.

The maple sugar social at the M. E. Church Monday evening struck an awful streak of weather. Although the attendance was small, those present did all in their power to equalize matters by disposing of a double course of eatables. The syrup was extra, the coffee was superb, the doughnuts were prime, and those pancakes; well, we should remark.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman has just replenished her stock of millinery with a large line of goods expressly adapted to the spring trade. Notwithstanding she has received many fine lots of goods during her long business career in Tecumseh, she can say without boasting that her present assortment surpasses them all. The ladies of Tecumseh should call and inspect it.

We doubt whether Tecumseh Lodge No. 69 F. & A. M. ever held a better meeting than the special of last Thursday evening. The third degree work was admirably rendered and the Lodge had a fine subject to work upon. We venture to say that the goat was never more skillfully managed in that hall. Many visitors were present from Adrian, Clinton and Manchester. The exercises closed with a banquet.

An Easter Concert was given by the Presbyterian Sunday School Sunday evening, the exercises beginning promptly at six o'clock, to avoid conflicting with similar services at the other Churches. The floral decorations were quite elaborate, the music was excellent as it always is under Mr. Strong's leadership, and the recitations were finely rendered. The service was a special one prepared for the Easter occasion. The Church was filled with a large congregation.

Chas. Bell, of Ypsilanti, was in Tecumseh over Easter.

Geo. Field spent Easter Sunday with Manchester friends.

Mrs. Joe Emery, of Adrian, visited Tecumseh friends last week.

Lucius Lilley has fitted out his residence with incandescent electric lights. They worked like a charm the first evening they were tried.

Prof. Martin Palmer, of Wyandotte, was shaking hands with his Tecumseh friends yesterday. He is much pleased with his present location and prospects.

Miss Florence Burlingame has been obliged to give up her school in Cadillac, on account of poor eyesight, and will spend the remainder of the year with her parents in Tecumseh.

P. J. Welling's new tricycle has enabled him to take daily exercise in the open air, and he is so much improved in health that he is able to do light work. He will sharpen shears, razors, knives, etc., and would be glad to receive a share of the people's patronage.

Charley Breen, who has been at work for several months down in Indiana, started for home last week to make a visit, and while waiting for a train at Elkhart he met with an accident which caused his death. While trying to cross the track by going between the cars the train started and he was thrown down and his back broken. He only lived from five o'clock, p. m. until two o'clock the next morning. The remains were brought here and the funeral services were held at the residence of Mr. Chas. Heck on Friday afternoon, Rev. Frank Arnold officiating.

Brig Gen. Lothrop of Detroit came up from Adrian yesterday noon and he gave his official attention to Co. C. in the evening. He was assisted in the inspection by Brig Gen. Wood, and it was very thorough in every detail. Co C. presented a splendid appearance and Gen. Lothrop complimented the boys very highly upon the excellent condition of their uniforms and accouterments and the efficiency of their drill. Their lack of room interfered sadly with their drill, but as a whole, the inspector was highly satisfied and the officers feel much elated over the result. A large number of our citizens witnessed the affair.

Mr. Travis has sold his interest in the Tecumseh Electric Co. and the stock is now owned entirely by Tecumseh parties. The following persons were elected officers:

Last Saturday, March 28th, was the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Griffith. A few of their friends and neighbors conceived the happy thought that a surprise upon the aged couple would not be amiss on that day. The word was quietly passed around, and shortly after dinner the guests began to present themselves. Refreshments had been provided in abundance by the self constituted committee on invitation, so that nothing was lacking to make it an enjoyable occasion. Over seventy guests were present to offer their congratulations. Gifts were bestowed amounting in value to $55 00, about $30.00 being in gold and silver coin. The occasion will long be cherished in remembrance by them and will brighten their declining years, as they journey down life's pathway together.

A BARK WRECKED.

Eight Lives Lost Off the Coast of Virginia.

A Vessel Wrecked, and Despite the Efforts of Life-savers Six Sailors and the Captain's Wife and Child Are Drowned.

FOUND WATERY GRAVES.

NORFOLK, Va., March 28.—The Norwegian bark Dictator, from Pensacola, Fla., to West Hartlepool, Eng., laden with pine lumber, with a crew of fifteen and the captain's young wife and little boy of 3 years came ashore in a strong easterly gale Friday morning four miles south of Cape Henry and two miles north of Virginia Beach hotel. Full crews from two life-saving stations were promptly on hand and began firing lines to the ill-fated bark. The guns could not deliver the lines so far, though they were repeatedly fired. The ship finally succeeded in getting a line ashore tied to a barrel, which the surf carried to the life-savers. The breeches buoy was quickly rigged and sent to the vessel, but unfortunately the bark's crew was ignorant of its use, and the rescue was life-saving station, wrote instructions, put them in a bottle and sent it to the Dictator by the line connecting the vessel with the shore. The first man was delivered ashore in eight minutes and seven others were rescued before sunset. During the entire day the ship rolled and pitched terribly and made the work of rescuing the unhappy sailors exceedingly difficult. At nightfall there were still nine persons on the bark and among the number the captain, his wife and little child. The captain had urged his wife all during the day to take the buoy and come ashore, but she steadily refused, as she would not leave her husband and child, and only one could take the buoy at a time. The bark went to pieces Friday night and the seven that remained on her have been lost, including the wife of the captain. The captain, just before the ship went to pieces, sprang into the sea with his son strapped to his back and reached the shore alive, but the boy was lost, making a total loss of eight lives.

The Dictator was trying to make Hampton roads, having been disabled by hurricanes since the 12th inst. All that could be gathered from the half-dead sailors as to the cause of the stranding of the vessel was that they did not know where they were, the sun not having been seen for four days and the weather so thick that they struck the breakers before they could see the coast. The life-savers worked all day with great heroism. The apparently slow progress of the work of rescue is due to the fact that a lifeboat could not live in the surf.

STOLE HIS LAST CHICKEN.

A Poultry Thief Loses His Life in the Effort to Fill His Sacks.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 28.—For a number of weeks farmers in the vicinity of Rosedale have been considerably troubled with chicken thieves. The farmers set trap-guns so aimed that anyone entering the poultry house would discharge and receive the contents of the gun. Thursday night an unknown man attempted to enter the poultry house of S. S. Hogue, half a mile of Rosedale, and fell a victim of these deadly machines. The whole of his left side was blown away. He had in his possession two large coffee sacks, keys to all kinds of padlocks and in short all the tools of a professional. His body has not been identified.

A Big Shipment of Whisky.

PEORIA, Ill., March 30.—There was sent out Saturday from the Woolner distillery the largest shipment of spirits ever made, beating the world's record. There were fifteen carloads or 10,000 barrels of spirits, containing 82,490 taxable gallons. The tax collected by the government on this single shipment was $74,244, and the entire day's business represented a deal of $100,000. The goods went to New York, Cincinnati and Philadelphia.

Charged with Misuse of Trust Funds.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 30.—A suit of great importance to the persons who lost money by the defalcation of county clerk John E. Sullivan has been filed against the Meridian national bank of this city. The demand is for $55,000, being the amount of trust funds, with interest from January 1, 1880, which, it is charged, Sullivan used to pay off his individual debts to the bank.

Cost of the Croton Aqueduct.

NEW YORK, March 30.—The detailed figures of the cost of the new Croton aqueduct just published show a total of $24,767,417. The legal expenses consequent upon the litigation with contractors will amount to $500,000 a year.

Twenty-Five Years for Murder.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 28.—John Brennan, who killed Minnie Martleson, his mistress, last December, and whose trial has been in progress for two days, was found guilty, and the penalty fixed at twenty-five years in the penitentiary.

Women Getting Tired of Voting.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 30.—Reports from numerous cities and towns in Kansas show a falling off in the registration of women voters. In Topeka, however, 25 per cent. of the 9,000 voters registered are women.

Death of John Plankinton.

MILWAUKEE, March 30.—John Plankinton, aged 70 years, the millionaire packer, died of pneumonia at his home in this city yesterday after an illness of five days. His fortune was estimated at $10,000,000.

Lowlands Under Water.

CARLISLE, Ill., March 30.—The Kaskaskia river is rising rapidly. It is overflowing the lowlands near here. A great many large rafts of logs have been washed away, causing heavy damage.

LOUISVILLE'S CYCLONE.

Its Anniversary Observed by Appropriate Meetings.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 28.—Friday was the anniversary of the great cyclone in this city a year ago. Three large meetings were held in commemoration of the event. The principal one was at the Warren Memorial church, and Gov. Buckner presided. Short speeches appropriate to the occasion were made by leading citizens. At the close it was proposed that the children's hospital, which has been talked of for some time, and for which $15,000 had been subscribed, should be made a memorial charity and the fund necessary for its erection should be completed at the meeting. Subscriptions were called for, and in a short time over $15,000 additional had been pledged. The amount is sufficient to secure the immediate erection of the hospital. In an enumeration of the damages by the storm it was shown that in Louisville five churches, a railroad depot, two public schools, 260 stores, thirty-two factories, ten tobacco warehouses and 532 residences were wrecked. The money value of these as given by Dunn's agency was $2,150,000. Seventy-six lives were lost.

WILL TALK ON COMMERCE.

List of Speakers for the Congress to Be Held at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 30.—At the meeting of the executive committee of the commercial congress of the western states the following speakers and subjects for discussion were agreed upon: "Improvement of Waterways," Gen. T. J. Henderson, of Illinois, and Newton C. Blanchard, of Louisiana; "Reciprocity," Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, Ben Butterworth and J. B. Burrows, of Michigan; "The Coinage Question," Gen. A. J. Warner, of Ohio; "Agricultural Depression and the Remedy," J. J. Ingalls, of Kansas; "The Promotion of Manufacturing Interests," Major William J. McKinley, of Ohio; "Taxation," C. R. Breckinridge, of Arkansas, J. H. Gear, of Iowa, and C. Stewart, of Texas; "Immigration and Settlement of Unoccupied Lands," G. A. Pierce, of North Dakota, and H. M. Thurston; "Union Commercial Laws," Judge J. L. Torrey, of St. Louis, author of the Torrey bankrupt bill; "Railway Transportation," George R. Peck, of Topeka; "Legislation as Effecting Commerce," Gen. Wheeler, of Alabama; "Irrigation of Arid Lands," T. C. Henry, of Denver, and John Jay, of Junction City, Kan.

IN GREAT DISTRESS.

Starving Kansas Farmers Seeking for Assistance.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 27.—A committee reached here from Wallace county, Kan., Thursday afternoon in search of aid for the starving and freezing farmers of that region. When it was decided to send a committee here a mass meeting was called to raise money to defray the expenses of the delegates. Twenty dollars was needed, but that sum could not be secured out of the 200 men in the gathering. One of the committee took his horse to Sharon Springs and mortgaged it for the sum. The 2,400 people of Wallace county are hovering about fires made of buffalo and cow chips, and their daily fare is not enough to suffice a child for one meal. Last year was the fourth successive crop failure in western Kansas.

SHOT TWO ACTRESSES.

Jealousy Causes a Double Murder and Suicide at Spokane Falls, Wash.

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., March 28.—A double murder and suicide occurred early Friday morning at the Casino variety theater. Charles Elliott, a faro dealer, who was occupying a box near the stage, drew a pistol and fired several shots at the people on the stage. One bullet took effect in the left breast of Mabel Debabian, killing her almost instantly. Another bullet lodged in the back of Carrie Smith, also a variety actress, inflicting a fatal wound. Elliott then placed the muzzle of his revolver in his mouth and blew his own brains out. His shots were intended for an actress named Lulu Durand, who was on the stage at the time, and of whom Elliott was insanely jealous.

A Colored Man's Bequest.

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—John D. Lewis, a colored lawyer of this city who recently died, bequeaths $100,000 as a fund for the "Lewis Protective Bureau of Civil Rights," the object of which is "to protect and to secure to colored persons in the United States their civil rights as applicable to all other classes of American citizens, how and wherever the same may be denied one or more of them by reason of race, color or condition."

Davis Displaces Washington.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 27.—The life-sized portrait of Jefferson Davis, which the clerk of the house was authorized during the early part of the session to have painted, was received Thursday and placed over the speaker's desk. It took the place of the portrait of George Washington, that has been hanging in the hall for the last twenty years.

Died While on His Wedding Tour.

MADISON, Wis., March 30.—Mr. and Mrs. August Telly, of Caledonia, Ill., came to this city a week ago on their wedding trip. Friday the groom was taken seriously ill with a heart difficulty and on Saturday died. The bride of a week is prostrated with grief. The remains will be taken to the home of the deceased in Caledonia.

Sued for Millions.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Brown, Howard & Co. and other contractors have taken preliminary steps to bring suit against New York city for $10,000,000, which sum they claim was wrongfully withheld from them on false pleas of poor work on the new Croton aqueduct.

Three Burned to Death.

AUSTIN, Pa., March 28.—A $5,000 fire in the Commercial hotel and boarding house of R. Henry totally destroyed the building. Three lives were lost: Lizzie McGarisk, a domestic; Jack McCarty, a boarder, and an unknown man. Adjoining property was badly damaged.

Death of a Noted Divine.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby died at his home in this city of pneumonia, aged 65 years. He was one of the most prominent Presbyterian ministers in this country.

ALMOST A PANIC.

The Courthouse in Cork, Ireland, Set on Fire.

All the Occupants of the Building Escape Without Injury—Many Documents, Some of Them Centuries Old, Were Destroyed.

SET ON FIRE.

CORK, March 28.—While the judge was summing up Friday in the courthouse here in the case of the government against Mr. Michael O'Brien, Dalton and others, charged with assaulting the police and with rioting at Tipperary at the time of the trial of Messrs. William O'Brien and John Dillon, the courthouse was suddenly set on fire and a scene of alarm and confusion followed. All the occupants of the building managed to make their way safely into the street. The police are investigating the affair. The fire was discovered by a barrister, who noticed the reflection of the flames on the glass dome of the roof. The court was packed at the time and only the coolness of the judge and the police prevented a panic. Despite all efforts to extinguish the fire the flames spread rapidly and the building was soon all ablaze. The courthouse, including the municipal council chamber and the city and county offices, was totally destroyed. The intense heat melted the lead on the roof of the building and the molten metal poured to the ground in streams, hindering the work of the firemen. During the height of the fire the roof of the courthouse suddenly fell in with a crash and the walls collapsed, to the imminent peril of a large number of bystanders who had ventured dangerously near to the burning building. Some of the archives were saved but many documents, some of them dating back for centuries, were destroyed. When the flagstaff which surmounted the building was burned away and the union jack fell into the flames the onlookers set up a great cheer. The trial which was so disturbed will be resumed at a later date.

PAYMENT STOPPED.

Indiana Has Already Received a Part of Her Share in the Direct Tax Fund.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 30.—Gov. Hovey is in receipt of a telegram from Secretary Foster stating that payment of the draft for $769,144.03, direct tax money, had been stopped pending an investigation of the discovery that some $46,000 of the money had already been paid to the state during Gov. Gray's administration. The governor thinks that the secretary is mistaken, as the money referred to was returned under the swamp land act and had no connection with the direct tax. The stopping of payment on the draft complicates matters considerably, as there is no money in the state treasury.

Twenty-One Years in Prison.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., March 27.—The jury in the Charles Coombs murder trial, after being out fourteen hours, brought in a verdict of manslaughter and fixed his imprisonment in the state prison for twenty-one years. The verdict gave general satisfaction, though some felt the punishment was a little light. Coombs shot and killed a college student who was pounding on his fence while going home with a party of fellow-students some months ago.

Killed a Peddler Through a Mistake.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 30.—Last Wednesday a peddler entered the house of a farmer near Bethesda, in Williamson county, and the farmer's wife being startled at his appearance fainted away. As the peddler was attempting to restore her to consciousness the farmer entered, and seeing his wife in a stranger's arms, brained the peddler with a club. The woman stated on her recovery that she did not think the stranger intended her any harm.

Guilty of Murder.

MILWAUKEE, March 28.—At Baraboo the jury returned a verdict in the case of Adam Volk, charged with the murder of Daniel Ahearn, of murder in the second degree. The jury deliberated about three hours. He was sentenced to fourteen years at hard labor. The convicted man is about 45 years old and has a wife and six children living. The crime was the result of a drunken row July 4 last. It was claimed the killing was in self-defense.

Death of a Prominent Mason.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Norman T. Gassette, an old citizen of Chicago, and well known in masonic circles throughout the country, died at his home in this city, aged 52 years. He was a prominent member of the Immanuel Baptist church, and at one time held the office of recorder of Cook county.

Acquitted of Murder.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 27.—Capt. Daniel Drew was acquitted of the murder of John McKessy, August 3, 1887, Thursday. The crime was committed at Drew's home during a drunken debauch. Drew was convicted of the crime and given a life sentence, but the supreme court gave him a new trial.

Took Her Own Life.

FOUNDRYVILLE, Pa., March 27.—Millie Capece, aged 16, committed suicide at her home here Thursday. The girl's parents wanted her to marry an aged suitor, and Millie, who was in love with a young man, took the matter so much to heart that in desperation she took her life.

The Failure Record.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 256, as compared with a total of 275 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 243.

Will Prevent Intimidation.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 27.—The state legislature has passed a bill providing for $500 fine or two years' imprisonment for preventing by intimidation or force any person from entering or remaining in any man's employ.

A FEW IDEAS ABOUT MONEY.

In your issue of January 29 a correspondent of Licking county, O., contends that grave doubts exist as to the advisability of many demands made by farmers. He argues that the national banking system is considered good by the people. The system may be somewhat better than pre-existing ones, but no power known to civilization has been more effective in the conscienceless hands of the money Shylocks for the depression of rural industries, for the enslavement of the toiling millions, for the erection of gilded thrones for the few honored because of their plundered millions, and permitted to rule the country and legislate the masses slaves.

This correspondent objects to the government loaning money direct to farmers at 2 per cent. per annum to save their cherished homes from the sheriff's hammer, but considers it statesmanship for the government to loan money to banks according to law at one per cent., and at the same time pay the banks 4 to 6 per cent. interest on security given, and allow these corporations to loan this identical money to the people at such exorbitant rates as the securities of the public will permit, varying in localities from 8 to 36 per cent. per annum. The government could bustle around a few weeks ago when a few gamblers in New York City were in danger of financial panic, and empty the coin from the treasury vaults into the banks; but when relief for legitimate business is asked, we have hurled in our teeth "Unconstitutional."

These are bare facts. Oh no! We are made to believe an earthquake, pestilence, or something worse, would spread like a conflagration over the country should the government venture the irreverence of loaning to the people at 2 per cent. on land security (the best known security); but it is wisdom supreme to loan to banks at 1 per cent. that they may fleece the dear people out of 8 to 36 per cent. per annum. We have had enough of this sanctified statesmanship which holds up hands in holy horror at the suggestion of a change in banking laws.

The wisdom of this writer further finds that it is class legislation to loan to farmers; but he never dreams that this self-same class legislation has been extended to the banks, for lo! these many years, till they have grown Croesus rich, exercising these precious privileges of government donations, and liberty combined with power to rob the industrial classes because of their necessities and dependence. Not these alone, but by a concerted action of these organized financiers the volume of currency is reduced by a withdrawl of bank notes, making money scarce and valuable; consequently all commodities cheap and valueless.

This writer still further discovers that "the money circulation cannot be increased unless by the government borrowing the money, or by taxing the people." Songs of Galand! The government might borrow the banks empty, tax the people for an eternity till they had not a penny left, and then the circulating medium would not be augmented a single dollar. We have been taxed enough, if that would make increase of currency.

Money is a creature of the government, its authority stamped on wood, stone, paper, mineral, gold, silver, or any substance under the sun, establishing a certain measure in business transactions, the exchange of commodities in the commercial world. In 1865 the currency outstanding was over nineteen hundred millions of dollars; in 1889 the currency outstanding was slightly over fourteen hundred million dollars. Thus while the population had doubled five hundred million dollars had been taken away from the people's money.

In 1865 business was brisk, and likewise the interchange of commodities. Debts were contracted which would have been promptly canceled but for the reduction of currency volume in 1867 of $57 per capita to $22 per capita in 1889. Money bonds were made valuable far above par, while the people's commodities, their debt-paying power, were made almost a cipher as to the market value. Wall street owned the bonds, and while annually drawing 4 to 6 per cent. per annum their face has appreciated in market value all the way to 30 per cent. Wall street and her allies held the people's mortagages, and so manipulated legislation that the people could barely pay the interest with the annual production of wealth. Under existing conditions these debts are as perpetual as the eternal hills.

For a sample illustration of the manner in which finance has been run, take two neighbors, each with $1.000 in money in 1865; one locks his money in a safe till 1890. The other goes in the wheat growing region in 1865, and invests in wheat, getting 400 bushels at $2.50 per bushel which he holds until 1890. What is the result? If the man with his money buys wheat he gets 1,666 bushels at 60c per bushel. A has 1,666 bushels wheat and B has 400 bushels wheat. If B converts his wheat into money he has $240. A has $1,000 and B has $240.

The great factor, the all potent force in depreciation of farm values and products, the demoralization of labor, is the contraction of the currency. The per capita circulation should be established adequate for the free transaction of the business of the country on a cash basis, and uniformly maintained with the growth of the country.

BOGUS M'KINLEY PRICES.

A Protectionist Attempt to Show That the McKinley Law Has Reduced Prices—A "Cheap and Nasty" Humbug to Deceive the Ignorant.

The American protective tariff league is circulating in the newspapers of the country some price lists taken from the St. Paul Journal of Commerce, to show that prices are lower now than a year ago. About half of these lists are devoted to cotton cloths of various kinds. The price of each kind in January 1890 and 1891, is given in parallel columns. But this comparison is a very cheap dodge. The items in the comparison of cotton cloth prices are only forty-eight in all; whereas a full report of the cotton cloth market, as printed in the New York Commercial Bulletin, contains some 1,500 separate items. Naturally in a market report covering so many articles and so many different grades there will be found forty-eight or even more cases where prices are lower now.

An actual examination of two such reports in the Commercial Bulletin, one for February 28, 1890, and the other for February 13, 1891, shows that most brands of cotton goods are sold at the same prices now as last year, also that some are lower, but that others are higher. Among the forty-eight brands which this bogus protectionist comparison represents as lower, some are found to be the same as last year.

But why should not cotton cloth be cheaper now than last year? Middling upland cotton is now quoted in New York at 9¼ cents per pound, while a year ago the price was 11 5-16 cents. Cotton being more than two cents a pound lower, cotton cloth ought to be considerably lower all around; but it is not so. Most prices are unchanged, while some are actually higher.

This bogus comparison is printed under the heading, "McKinley Prices." But the McKinley law does not make a great change in the duties on cotton cloth. Many are unchanged. Some are lower and some are higner. To claim that the increase of duty on some kinds of cloth has already produced competition and thus lowered prices, according to the orthodox protection doctrine, is in the highest degree absurd. As a simple matter of fact this has not occurred.

A part of this blundering comparison of "McKinley prices" is devoted to drugs and paints. Here sulphate of quinine is given at 42 to 47 cents an ounce last year, and 37 to 42 cents this year. But how can this be a "McKinley price," as quinine has been on the free list since 1880? It is rather a free trade price. Another item is castor oil, on which a reduction in price of from five to ten cents a gallon is claimed. But the McKinley duty on castor oil is precisely the same as the old duty. That duty is 80 cents a gallon, which is equal to 200 per cent. ad valorem on the oil imported. Where the McKinley law does not change a duty it is only a piece of cheap humbug to claim that any change in price is a "McKinley price."

Another part of this list is given to groceries. The only two commodities on which a comparison is attempted here are sugar and soap. Thirteen different makers of soap are given, and a slight reduction is claimed on each. But how can this be a "McKinley price," since McKinley left the duty on soap unchanged, except a very slight increase on castile soap? The reduction in the price of sugar is undoubtedly due to the fact that the McKinley law removes the sugar duty on April 1. The fall in price before duty is actually removed only emphasizes the truth that the tariff is a tax. The "McKinley price" in this case is another free trade price.

But why should this protective tariff league claim that lower prices are "McKinley prices?" Does it not know that this same McKinley is going about the country trying to persuade the people that cheapness is an evil which we must struggle against—that cheap and nasty go together?

A TARIFF COMPARISON.

A Comparison of the Old Tariff, the Mills Bill, and the McKinley Law—McKinleyism Reduced to Ad Valorems—Compound Duties Simplified—A Tariff Study For Tariff Inquirers.

The average of duties under a tariff law is a much simpler matter to calculate than many people suppose. The average is not gotten by taking the duty on each separate article, adding these up, and dividing the result by the number of articles. It is a much shorter process. The total value of all dutiable articles imported being known, the total amount of duties collected upon them is simply calculated as a certain percentage of that value. In this way we reach the result, so often stated, that under the old tariff tax the average duty was 47 per cent. This was the average for 1887; for 1889 the average was somewhat above 45 per cent., the dutiable imports for that year being valued at $181,956,769, and the duties collected being $220,576,989. What the average is under the McKinley law nobody knows or can know until the figures of imports and of duties for a given time are known. Senator Carlisle has ventured to predict that the average will be about 60 per cent.

The main difficulty in understanding just how high a duty is, arises from the fact that when a duty is given as so much per pound or per yard we must first know the price of the pound or the yard before we can know whether the duty is high or low. For example, when we read in the tariff law that tin bars are to pay a duty of 4 cents a pound after July 1, 1893, we do not know whether to regard this as a high duty or as a low one, unless we know the price of tin. When we find that the price of our imports in 1890 was 19.7 cents per pound we easily determine that the duty of 4 cents is equal to 20 per cent. ad valorem, or 20 cents on the dollar, which is certainly not a high duty as duties go.

Such a calculation of all the articles under the tariff schedules has been made by Mr. J. A. Lindquist and has been published by the Reform Club, of New York. This pamphlet serves as a sort of tariff dictionary in which one can find the ad valorem equivalents of the duties on all the articles where a specific or a compound duty is laid. The pamphlet is called "Comparison—Item by Item." It gives in parallel columns the duty on each article under the old law, the same as proposed by the Mills bill, the present McKinley duty, and the ad valorem equivalent of each. The articles in each schedule are given together and the duties are given in adjoining columns.

The way this comparison seems to bring out the iniquities of the McKinley tariff law may be seen from an extract from the tobacco schedule. In the following table the column for the Mills bill is omitted, the duties being the same in it as in the old law. Here is the extract:

Leaf tobacco, of which 85 per cent. is of the requisite size and of the necessary fineness and texture to be suitable for cigar wrappers, and of which more than 100 leaves are required to weigh a pound:

	Tariff of 1883		McKinley Tariff.
	Specific.	Ad val. per cent.	Specific.	Ad val. per cent.
If not stemmed, per pound	75	84	$2 00	222
If stemmed, per pound	$1,00	171	2 75	481
All other tobacco in leaf, unmanufactured
If not stemmed, per pound	35	68	35	68
If stemmed, per pound	40	72	50	89

The transformation of the specific duties into their equivalent ad valorem duties gives the following results in the case of a few articles.

Article.	Specific Duty.	Equivalent ad Valorem.
Tin plates	2 2-10c. per ℔	76
Cotton ties	1 3-10c. per ℔	104
Steel rails	6-10c. per ℔	48
Common window glass not exceeding 10x15	1 ⅝c. per ℔	66
Above that and not exceeding 16x.4	1 ⅝c. per ℔	115
Above that and not exceeding 24x30	2 ⅝c. per ℔	129
Above that and not exceeding 24x36	3 ⅝c. per ℔	182
All above that	5 ⅝c. per ℔
Cleaned rice	2c. per ℔	104
Corn starch	2c. per ℔	92
Binder twine	7-10c per ℔	6

One excellent thing that this comparison does is to give the equivalent of the compound duties. As these duties are so much per yard or pound and so much per cent., they are less readily understood by the average reader. Here are a few McKinley compound duties on woolen goods reduced to a single ad valorem equivalent:

	Compound duty.	Equivalent ad valorem.
Woolen cloth valued at 80c per lb.	88c and 40 %	150
Valued at 40c	88½c and 40 %	186
Valued at 80c	44c and 50 %	119

On blankets the ad valorem equivalent ranges from 91 to 119 per cent.; on hats, from 66 to 112 per cent.; on flannels, 75 to 130 per cent.; on women's and children's dress goods, from 75 to 123 per cent.

Any one who wishes to make a study of the tariff would do well to get this pamphlet.

A Trick in Teeth.

Under the old tariff law artificial teeth paid a duty of 20 per cent. In the Mckinley law teeth are not mentioned; and they are therefore taxed under "manufactures of porcelain" at 50 per cent.

This way of increasing duties is one of the old tricks of the tariff makers. An article is simply not mentioned, and then it falls under the general clause which places a duty upon articles made from the material of which it is composed.

There is no reason why a duty should be imposed on teeth at all, for our dentists have led the world in the department of dental science, and our manufacturers of teeth have supplied nearly the whole world and are said to have grown rich at the business. The probable reason for this increase of the duty on teeth may be seen from the following words taken from the Dental Journal: "A demand has grown up in recent years for the product of an English manufacturer, for the reason that these teeth possessed some advantages for certain kinds of dentures, especially that of "bridge-work. This demand evidently began to assume disagreeable proportions, or no one would have heard of an increase of duty. The situation is now such that it will be impossible to procure these teeth without great difficulty and serious additional expense. The latter is not of so much momens as the fact that they will probably not be obtainable here at any price."

Protection's Promise.

The oft-repeated promise of protection to raise wages and guarantee steady employment for labor is found to be extremely ridiculous in the light of facts and history. Statistics expose the hollowness and humbug of that promise without mercy. The third annual report of United States Labor Commissioner Carrol D. Wright is devoted entirely to strikes and lock-outs for the years 1881-86; and the figures given in this volume ought to kill whatever life is left in the superstition that protection insures satisfactory wages and steady employment to labor.

In the whole country there were during these six years 22,304 strikes and 2,214 lock-outs. Of the strikes, 9,439 were for increase of wages, 4,344 for reduction of hours, 1,734 against reduction of wages, 1,692 for increase of wages and reduction of hours, and so on to the smaller classes in which some special form of the wage question was under dispute. Of the 2,214 lock-outs, 314 were against demand for increase of wages and 229 to enforce reduction of wages.

And yet to this day the belated McKinley has the effrontery to get up and try to defend his high tariff law in the interests of labor!

—The net earnings of the Illinois steel company, employed in making steel rails, for the first eleven months of last year were $1,718,000. And yet there was not long ago a strike of the 500 furnace men of this company, and the temporary idleness of 4,000 other employes. The price of steel rails has just been fixed by the trust at $31 for Chicago.

A WONDER WORKER.

Mr. Frank Huffman, a young man of Burlington, Ohio, states that he had been under the care of two prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be Consumption and incurable. He was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds and at that time was not able to walk across the street without resting. He found, before he had used half of a dollar bottle, that he was much better; he continued to use it and is to-day enjoying good health. If you have any Throat, Lung or Chest Trouble try it. We guarantee satisfaction. Trial bottle free at J. J. Orr's Drugstore.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

PROGRESS.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY,

Dr. Brown Sequard's elixir of youth may be an important discovery, but every one knows that Dr. Franklin Miles' New Heart Cure certainly is. It has given thousands afflicted serious heart disease a New Lease of Life. Druggists who can observe its effects on many costomers everywhere speak very highly of it. Mr. John Weaver, Knightstown Ind., says: "I have sold much of Dr. Miles New Cure and have received many good reports." O. Monroe, of Dunkirk, N. Y., reports large sales. "And the best part of it is every bottle has given satisfaction. Sold and guaranteed by Baker & Hall.

ONE DOLLAR WELL INVESTED.

If you have bad breath, constipation, pain in the small of the back, discolored skin, nervousness, or dizziness your only wise course is to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. It will cleanse the blood of all impurities, regulates the Kidneys and Liver, and thus restore a healthy glow to your checks again. All druggists; one dollar a bottle.

The Voice

Is easily injured—the slightest irritation of the throat or larynx at once affecting its tone, flexibility, or power. All efforts to sing or speak in public, under such conditions, become not only painful but dangerous, and should be strictly avoided until every symptom is removed. To effect a speedy cure no other medicine is equal to

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

The best of anodynes, this preparation rapidly soothes irritation, strengthens the delicate organs of speech, and restores the voice to its tone and power. No singer or public speaker should be without it. Lydia Thompson, the famous actress, certifies: "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been of very great service to me. It improves and strengthens the voice, and is always effective for the cure of colds and coughs."

"Upon several occasions I have suffered from colds, causing hoarseness and entire loss of voice. In my profession of an auctioneer any affection of the voice or throat is a serious matter, but at each attack, I have been relieved by a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. This remedy, with ordinary care, has worked such a that I have suffered very little inconvenience. I have also used it in my family, with excellent results, in coughs, colds, &c."—Wm. H. Quartly, Minlaton, Australia.

"In the spring of 1853, at Portsmouth, Va., I was prostrated by a severe attack of typhoid pneumonia. My physicians exhausted their remedies, and for one year I was not able to even articulate a word. By the advice of Dr. Shaw I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and to my surprise and great joy, in less than one month I could converse easily, in a natural tone of voice. I continued to improve and have become since a well man. I have often recommended the Pectoral, and have never known it to fail."—George R. Lawrence, Valparaiso, Ind.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich. March 24.—When the senate convened last evening Senator Park introduced a resolution reciting the charges of attempted bribery in connection with the redistricting bill and providing for the appointment of a committee of five to make a searching investigation of the matter. The resolution was adopted.

LANSING, Mich., March 25.—In the senate yesterday President Strong announced as a committee under the bribery investigation resolution adopted Senators Park, Crocker, Mugford, democrats and Wheeler and Prindle, republicans. Senator Bastone's uniformity of text books bill was passed. It provides that in June, 1892, there shall go into use in all the public schools of the state, except those in towns of over 5,000 inhabitants, a uniform series of text books printed only in the English language. These books are to be selected by the state board of education, and the series will not be changed in ten years. Bills also passed abolishing the fee system in Kent county; for compensation of clerks of the courts register of deeds and county treasurer, leaving it with county boards of supervisors, who may fix salaries at not less than $1,600 or in excess of $2,500, and all interest on county funds to be for the benefit of the county, instead of the treasurer, as heretofore. A joint resolution was favorably reported proposing an amendment to the constitution providing for the election of president and vice president by a direct vote of the people, and that of United States senator on a general ticket.

LANSING, Mich., March 26.—The Brown bill, making it a felony for a member of the legislature to use a railroad pass or accept transportation at a lesser rate than paid by the general public, was considered by the senate in committee of the whole yesterday. A motion to kill the bill by striking out all after the enacting clause was lost by a vote of 5 to 12, many of the senators dodging the vote.

LANSING, Mich., March 27.—Only business of minor importance was transacted in the senate yesterday.

LANSING, Mich., March 28.—The senate yesterday killed the Doran bill fixing the amount of specific taxes to be paid by the mining companies during the next two years, and in its place was introduced a substitute bill requiring that all mining and smelting companies shall come under the general taxation law.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., March 24.—The house convened yesterday afternoon, but no business was transacted.

LANSING, Mich., March 25.—In the house yesterday the bill appropriating $185,000 for the support of the university for the ensuing two years was passed. The committee on fisheries reported in favor of turning over the whitefish hatcheries of the state to the federal government.

LANSING, Mich., March 26.—The committee on state affairs reported favorably to the house yesterday the bill which reduces rates on telegraph messages to twenty cents on the first ten words and one cent a word for all in excess to all points in this state. All of the bills before the house authorizing cities to incur a bonded indebtedness to maintain an electric light plant were reported without recommendation. The committee suggests that it is becoming a dangerous and expensive practice and needs a check. The committee on state affairs reported without recommendation a bill appropriating $15,000 in swamp lands for the survey of a ship canal route across the state.

LANSING, Mich., March 27.—The house yesterday passed the soldiers' home appropriation bill, amounting to $175,750, for 1891-2. This amount is to cover the entire expenses of the home, and the amount received from the national soldiers' home fund will be turned into the state treasury and credited to the general fund. Not much other business except of local importance was transacted.

LANSING, Mich., March 28.—In the house yesterday no business of importance was transacted.

ALMOST A PANIC AT CORK.

The Courthouse Where Dalton's Trial Is in Progress Set on Fire.

CORK, March 28.—While the judge was summing up Friday in the courthouse here in the case of the government against Mr. Michael O'Brien, Dalton and others, charged with assaulting the police and with rioting at Tipperary at the time of the trial of Messrs. William O'Brien and John Dillon, the courthouse was suddenly set on fire and a scene of alarm and confusion followed. All the occupants of the building managed to make their way safely into the street. The police are investigating the affair. The fire was discovered by a barrister, who noticed the reflection of the flames on the glass dome of the roof. The court was packed at the time and only the coolness of the judge and the police prevented a panic. Despite all efforts to extinguish the fire the flames spread rapidly and the building was soon all ablaze. The courthouse, including the municipal council chamber and the city and county offices, was totally destroyed. The intense heat melted the lead on the roof of the building and the molten metal poured to the ground in streams, hindering the work of the firemen. During the height of the fire the roof of the courthouse suddenly fell in with a crash and the walls collapsed, to the imminent peril of a large number of bystanders who had ventured dangerously near to the burning building. Some of the archives were saved but many documents, some of them dating back for centuries, were destroyed. When the flagstaff which surmounted the building was burned away and the union jack fell into the flames the onlookers set up a great cheer. The trial which was so disturbed will be resumed at a later date.

STOLE HIS LAST CHICKEN.

A Poultry Thief Loses His Life in the Effort to Fill His Sacks.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 28.—For a number of weeks farmers in the vicinity of Rosedale have been considerably troubled with chicken thieves. The farmers set trap-guns so aimed that anyone entering the poultry house would discharge and receive the contents of the gun. Thursday night an unknown man attempted to enter the poultry house of S. S. Hogue, half a mile of Rosedale, and fell a victim of these deadly machines. The whole of his left side was blown away. He had in his possession two large coffee sacks, keys to all kinds of padlocks and in short all the tools of a professional. His body has not been identified.

THE present winter has been severe on country parsons in Maine. One preacher in Knox county, after working hard all the evening breaking through the drifts, arrived in sight of the church just in time to see the lights blown out. The people had given him up and gone home.

THE salmon fishermen of Maine are in earnest in their war against the seals that seem to be multiplying along the coast. They say a bounty of two dollars a head must be offered by the state on seals or ere long there'll be no salmon.

HARPER'S PERIODICALS.

Whether treated, each one as an individual production or generally as a class, HARPER'S PERIODICALS represent the highest types of American literary and illustrative work. When on the part of many whose profession it is to cater to the reading public there is a tendency to meet more than half-way a taste which is by no means healthy, and coarse matter is provided, garnished with bad pictures, the blunting of the artistic sense is of small moment when compared with the abasement of the moral one. Never have the publishers of the MAGAZINE, the WEEKLY, the BAZAR, or YOUNG PEOPLE lowered that high standard which was assumed in their first numbers. Modifications and improvements have, of course, followed, and to-day it is difficult to conceive how they could be bettered. Looking at the literary side alone, the best-known writers at home and abroad contribute to these publications. For the proper presentation of subject, pictorially, leading artists furnish their designs to be translated by wood-cuts, or process, whichever method shows better the illustrative idea. A column eulogistic of these publications might be written, and would barely suffice to specify their many singular merits. It must be at least satisfactory to the publishers to know that wherever English is the language in use, there a MAGAZINE, a WEEKLY, a BAZAR, or a YOUNG PEOPLE, bearing the imprint of HARPER & BROTHERS, is read. There are other triumphs than "the drum beats" which circle the world.—New York Times.

DO YOU WANT A PENSION?
Do You Want Your Pension Increased.

There is a New Pension Law and nearly every soldier is now entitled to a pension.

DR. J. H. REYNOLDS

Late a member of the Board of Examining Surgeons at Adrian, Mich., and who has examined over two thousand soldiers for pensions, will hereafter devote two hours each day to

PENSION BUSINESS

The Doctor was a soldier and is a pensioner, and with his five years' experience as Examining Surgeon for Pensions, believes he can make it PAY YOU to come and see him.

He knows the RATE on every known disability

Knows what Diseases or Disabilities are the results of any other.

Knows (as every EXAMINING SURGEON will tell you) that many men do not draw what the law allows them, because their claims are not presented in proper shape.

Knows how to put your claim in such shape that you will get pay for ALL results of the disease or wound for which you are pensioned.

Knows all the recent decisions made by Commissioner and how to give you the advantage of them in dollars.

Knows that some recent rulings are of vital importance to many pensioners, if their claims are only properly presented.

Knows whether you are entitled to Rerating, and how to get it.

I charge just the legal fees because I earn them

ALWAYS BRING YOUR CERTIFICATE WITH YOU.

If you want the benefit of a Pension while you live go and see Dr. Reynolds.

I can get you from $2 to $6 more per month under the new law than other agents.

To any person examined by the board, at Adrian, before Aug. 1, 1889, I have something of importance to tell you.

Come and let us examine you (no charge) and will tell you all about it. About one-third of all the soldiers examined while I was on the board were rated for disabilities not claimed. You had better come and see me about it.

Correspondence solicited, with stamp for reply

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness to that I had serious fears of permanent disability.

"Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

BRITTON BUDGET.

Quite a snow storm Monday.

Town meeting passed off very quietly.

Hugh McDougall is suffering from sore eyes.

F. Brown & Son, are having their new store put in shape.

William Underwood has been on the sick list, but is now better.

Osgood Bros. have moved into their new store west of the railroad.

Jesse Coller of Macon was visiting friends in Britton last Monday.

There are now three or four new cases of Diphtheria in our village.

Dr. Hendershot has moved his office and will now be found at the Exelby House.

Dont forget Millie the Quadroon, April 17 and 18th. at Exelby Opera House.

The post office has been moved to the store of Lenardson and son, and the east side of Britton is now deserted.

The Dramatic club is now busy rehearsing for "Millie the Quadroon," to be played next week. Dont miss the show.

One of the mustangs at the Hotel barn was taken seriously sick last Sunday evening. Dr. Smith was sent for and by careful treatment affected a speedy cure, "Doc's a good one."

We regret to say that Mr. James Cheever died last Monday morning about noon, from that dread disease consumption. The parents and friends of the deceased have the deepest sympathy from our villagers in this the hour of their berevement.

In memory of Carl R. Wiggins, who died March 15th, 1891, aged 4 years, 11 months and 13 days:

Oh, we shall miss our darling,
His parents' hope and joy,
The world seems dark and lonesome,
Without our precious boy.

We sit and think in sorrow,
And drop a silent tear,
As we look on the toys and play things,
That pleased our darling here.

His childish voice will never Again be heard on earth;
How happy home was with him,
How it rang with his joyous mirth.

Take comfort, thou broken hearted ones,
Take comfort and look above,
Thy child is in the arms of Him,
The Saviour, the God of Love.

Christ loved the little children
When here on earth below;
He spoke to his Deciples,
Who would have bade them go.

He is not dead but sleepth,
His body is at rest;
You ne'er will see his face on earth,
But Christ, the Lord, knows best.

He will not leave the ecomfortless,
His arms around thee cast,
And in a whisper comes a voice:
Thou shall see thy child at last.

He's only crossed the river,
You can meet on the other shore
Where trouble and pain and sorrow,
Shall have vanished forever more.

Oh, Lord do thou help thy servants
In this the hour of their pain,
Keep them safe till the morrow,
When they shall meet their boy again.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. Richard Wiggins and family desire to thank the friends of Britton for all their kindness and sympathy in the hour of their deep bereavement and they wish particularly to thank the members of the Floral committee for the beautiful flowers furnished by them.

RAISIN RACKET.

Mrs. Prof. Kelly is visiting her relatives in Indiana.

School commenced in Dist No. 6, with Miss Alma Howes as teacher.

Election passed off very quiet and the Democrats elected their ticket straight.

Prof. Robert Kelly is a little under the weather, it is presumable that it is LaGrippe.

As spring opens, new additions are made to the already very complete C. T. Telegraph system.

Dr. Richard Mead and wife of Manistee made his brother T. G. Mead a hasty visit one day last week.

Mrs. David Lewis and son are visiting at Mrs Jane Satterthwaite's while the meetings are being held in Tecumseh.

Mr. Hill the new superintendent at the Seminary, arrived last Thursday and will be on hand to fil the place so creditably filled by his predecessor, W. K. Green, who has moved on the farm west of the quaker church.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

It is school inspector D. W. Smith now.

C. O. Hiscock returned to Albion Tuesday.

Everything Democratic in this township—from 5 to 65 majority.

The village school began Monday for the spring term.

Dora Grayson, of Tecumseh, called on friends Saturday evening.

Mrs. Frank Allen and son Harry, of Toledo, visited her parents a part of last week.

Miss Mattie Rappleye began the spring term of school in the Baker district Monday.

Mrs. W. R. Wilson, Lelia Sutton and Eugene Pilbeam were la grippe's victims last week.

Millie Kelley, of Holloway, is visiting her brother, Morris Kelley, and family at present.

Albert Palmer and son Arthur, of Hillsdale, made a flying visit with his parents Thursday night.

Mrs. G. P. Waring and daughter Ruth visited Adrian Saturday, returning with Mr. Waring.

Clara Temple left on the noon train Monday for Albion, where she will attend college during the spring term.

Mrs. Fannie Hiscock Allen, of Moscow, after a few days' stay with her parents, returned to her home Tuesday.

Morris Kelley and daughter Marcie attended the funeral of Miss Mary Thompson, at Holloway, Tuesday afternoon.

The next meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Sarah Rappleye on Thursday afternoon of next week.

Mrs. Jacob Arner was called to Detroit Thursday of last week by the sickness of her son-in-law, Ed. Anderson, and children, with the measles.

The attendance at the sugar social given by the L. C. S. at Mrs. T. H. Temple's on Friday evening was unusually small, but those present spent a very pleasant evening. The proceeds amounted to nearly $5.00

W. F. Clack was the first to supply his customers with sugar on Democratic principles, and it is amusing to see how our Republican friends blush when they meet a Democrat. They can hardly lug home the amount of sugar a dollar will buy, and yet they can't see where the tariff is a tax.

Several of the friends of the village, through Mrs. Hall's scheming, made Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jones a surprise on Wednesday night of last week and spent the evening very pleasantly. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hall. As Mrs. Jones had urgent business in Tecumseh that day the plot was planned and the baking done.

The Ship Social, that was adjourned, will be held on Wednesday evening of next week, April 15th. The Ship will lie at anchor at the home of Mrs. G. P. Waring, at 7:30 p. m. Signals—Red and green lights forward and white aft.

"MESS."

Mess will be served between two and four bells in second dog watch, to be furnished by the Union. Richard K. Tarbox, Steward.

"LOG."

Shanty—"Sailing"—Sailors.

Billow—"By the Blue Sea"—The Pilot.
Yarn—"Story of a Whale"—The Boatswain.
Chorus—Passengers and crew.
Devotional—Chaplain.

Cabin passage, 15c; children, 10c.

Thomas Chink, Purser; Mrs. Ella Waring, Captain; Sarah Pocklington, 1st Mate; Elizabeth Linn, Chaplain.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Mrs. Jacob Slater is seriously ill.

Bessie Preston is the last victim of the measles.

Election passed off quietly, the Republicans winning the day.

School commenced at the center Monday, Hollis Taylor welding the rod.

Rev. Mr. Patchen has been engaged by the Congregational society to preside in that Church another year.

MACON MUSIC.

Mud served five ways.

There is talk of organizing a White Rose Club here soon.

Meeting at the Reformed church this month in the evening, instead of the morning.

A house not a hundred miles from here was set on fire several nights ago but the flames were so quickly conquered that public curiosity is naturally aroused. The less said about the affair the better for all directly concerned, as some parties who were out late that night and were driving home from Tecumseh may surprise the prosecution by telling just whom they saw fixing up the job.

The leading social event of the season was the marriage of Mr. Willis McClue and Miss Nellie Robinson, which happy event occurred at the residence of the bride's parents Thursday evening, April 2d. Only the immediate relatives and friends were invited. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. I. Gulick, while a delicious repast and many nice presents contributed additional enjoyment to the happy occasion. Mr. and Mrs. McClue have hosts of friends who will unite in wishing them a long and prosperous journey through life.

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

F. F. Tucker has rented the A. K Clark farm near Saline.

Miss Emma Coon started for Syracuse, N. Y., on Saturday.

Will M. Hough, of New Era, Indiana, is visiting his parents in town.

Two agents in town last week, representing the Home Comfort steel range.

Mrs. Douglass Baldwin and Miss Nettie English were in Tecumseh on Wednesday of last week.

The friends of Willard Gage, of Long Beach, California, will be pained to hear of his serious illness.

Next Sunday quarterly meeting services will be held at the M. E. church. Love feast at 9:30, sermon at 10:30.

The ladies of the F. B. church society will give a maple syrup festival at the residence of W. E. Pease, on Friday evening, April 10th.

The residence of Harvey Squier, four miles west of town, took fire on last Monday morning, but was very fortunately extinguished before serious damage was done.

EAST TECUMSEH.

Mrs. Hannah Hendershot has been seriously sick for a number of weeks with rheumatism. Her daughter, Mrs. Waldron, has been caring for her.

People who saw a troop of boys sauntering along last Sunday wondered what they could have been gathering, as there are no nuts on the trees, but they don't carry maple molasses on their backs. It was a bag full of horse-radish.

A good many changes have taken place in this vicinity this spring. Hugh Hendershot has moved in with his mother and will run her farm in connection with his own. Will Schreder has moved on Jacob G. Robert's place, while William Hendershot has taken temporary possession of Jim Aten's farm, which Mr. Schreder has run for seven years. John Murphy has bought the late Charles Culbertson's farm and will soon take possession. Mr. Bond has rented the Eagan farm near Clinton and relinquished the late Rufus Hall farm to its new owner, Rice Hendershot, who took possession last week. Everybody moved right through the mud but did considerable thinking out loud about "stone roads."

THE NEXT BOARD.

The next Board of Supervisors will stand fifteen Democrats to eleven Republicans. Following are the names and politics of the successful candidates:

Adrian city—
First ward—Joseph Michaels, D.
Second ward—Edwin Crane, D.
Third ward—E. Leroy Mills, R.
Fourth ward—S. M. Babcock, R.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

An Essay Read at a Meeting of the Farmers' Union.

MR. PRESIDENT:—Women, when they enter into political contests, will lose that delicacy of manner which cannot be kept pure, for they will pander to the low and degrading to secure votes just as men do.

We have no reason to believe the "Right of Suffrage" would elevate us, for we have seen men whom it failed to elevate to a very high standard, and why should it have a different effect upon women? Neither will her condition be bettered nor her labor lightened.

The better class of women care very little for the ballot or political honors, for they realize that "the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world."

Another class of women there are, who will neglect home, children and duties, to give ear to those who know not the meaning of home. Among this class we find the women who wish to manage their neighbors' affairs, and those who think their judgment indispensable to the success of any undertaking in the church or community. How we despise such persons!

Man has given woman equal rights superior to those of the ballot.

Women cannot wield the purifying influence at the polls that suffragists claim. What man is there who would not feel a thrill of disgust at the thought of meeting mother, wife and sister, those emblems of purity, at the polls, and of their being contaminated with politics?

If women vote it would naturally follow that they must hold office, for there are some who would not be able to rest well unless they have some office. They would rather sit on jury over a dog fight than nothing.

We find a great many women who are not able to take proper care of their houses without an assistant, and if an officer she would need one or more assistants, who, of course, must be paid large salaries, thus increasing the number of officers. As officers women would find no time to instruct their children in the temperance principles they advocate. Her husband would be left to take care of home, while she takes care of the nation, and "what is home without a mother?"

When she comes home from her office cross and tired she will not feel like preparing a tempting meal, but will eat what her husband has prepared, then grumble just as men do under like circumstances.

I do not wish to infer that women should know nothing of the political issues. There are many sensible women who read and are interested in politics, and are able to give good, logical definitions of the Force bill, McKinley bill, and others of like character.

By leading their children to noble man and womanhood, women can benefit their country, state and community more than if they deposited their votes in the ballot box, for this reason: The sentiment of a country has more to do with the governing of that country than any single power of man.

HETTIE E. CADMUS.

The problem of building good turnpike roads cheaply has been pretty well solved in the Texas county of Travis. The County Judge was in Austin the other day and assured a Statesman reporter that last year the county expended some $45,000 for dirt roads of which wear and weather have left little to show. This year the farmers and road workers of the Montopolis neighborhood have made three miles of macadam road eighteen feet wide, with the macadam and gravel eighteen inches thick in the center, and substantial bridges whenever needed. The money cost has been less than $1,000 a mile, and the road once built in this thorough fashion can be maintained in serviceable repair at a much lower annual cost than the common dirty roads many of which have to be practically made over every year. Good macadam road is estimated to cost two or three times $1,000 a mile, but with the hearty co-operation of the farmers in furnishing teams and hands, as was given by these Travis County farmers, the boon of solid turnpike roads may be obtained in almost any neighborhood at a comparatively small outlay of cash. Even though the first cost be greater than that of a good dirt road, the latter costs so much more in repairs that in a few years the turnpike kept in perfect repair costs less than the dirt road. The diminished wear upon vehicles and teams is an item that, in addition to its other advantages, makes the turnpike vastly the cheaper road.

For all forms of nasal catarrh where there is dryness of the air passages with what is commonly called "stuffing up," especially when going to bed, Ely's Cream Balm gives immediate relief. Its benefit to me has been priceless.—A. G. Case, M. D., Millwood, Kas.

If the tariff is not a tax, then what's the matter with sugar?

The members of the Michigan legislature are respectfully admonished that a good highway law should be enacted during the present session.

Before this paper reaches our readers the great five-cornered contest in Chicago will have been decided. Chicago does everything on a big scale and this city election has been no exception to the rule.

The science of good road-making does not consist in simply scraping the dirt out of the gutters into the middle of the highway once each year. Something more is necessary and the people are beginning to find it out.

Not even the government officers at Washington are exempt from the prevailing curse of the times. Cards, containing this notice, have been tacked up in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing: "Sickness induced by drunkeness will not be considered a sufficient excuse for absence."

The legislatures of Kansas, Arkansas and Tennessee have refused to appropriate money for state exhibits at the World's Fair. But there is not a member of those legislatures who will not take it as a slight upon his greatness if he is not invited to visit the Fair, and at the expense of the directors.

If the removal of the tax on raw sugar reduces its price, then the tariff must have kept up its price. If the removal of the tax does not reduce the price, then the government has thrown away a revenue of fifty-six millions a year, without helping the consumer a single dollar. Twist it any way you choose, gentlemen; the tariff is still a tax.

Maj. McKinley told his hearers at Worcester the other night that all revenue needed for the maintenance of the government must be raised by some sort of taxation at home. "You cannot tax any other nation in the world," he said. "A tax gatherer cannot reach the property of the citizen of any other country in the world. The foreigner is absolutely exempt from every civil and military obligation of our government." If this be true, and it certainly is true, will Maj. McKinley now kindly inform us how it comes that the foreigner pays the tax on goods that are subjected to tariff duties?

The following memoranda of the average tariff rate at different periods will be found useful if preserved:

	Per Cent.
From 1791 to 1812	19.58
From 1812 to 1817	32.73
From 1817 to 1825	26.52
From 1825 to 1829	47.17
From 1829 to 1832	47.81
From 1832 to 1834	28.90
From 1834 to 1843	19.25
From 1843 to 1847	26.92
From 1847 to 1858	23.20
From 1858 to 1862	15.66
From 1862 to 1884	34.16
From 1884 to 1890	45.50
From 1890 to ——	55 to 60

The McKinley rate is already 10 per cent higher than the highest average rate of the highest preceding tariff, but owing to its multiplication of specific duties and its compounding them with ad valorem, its average percentage of taxation or value will increase as invention cheapens price in free markets.

That tariff is a tax and conversely, that no tariff is no tax is true, is forcefully illustrated in the price of sugar. A prominent grocer in Toledo advertises in the BEE to-day that in consequence of the removal of the tariff he will sell 20 pounds of granulated sugar for one dollar, after the first of April. The tax is removed from the article, the refiner is able to sell cheaper, the retailer is able to reduce his price, and the consumer is directly benefited. The final saving is in the pockets of the person who buys the sugar for use. This is free trade, pure and simple. People will rejoice at the sugar reduction, and many people will wonder why, if free trade in sugar is so beneficial, we do not have more free trade. So we will have, some day. The campaign of education is doing wonders in this country. Fair play, fair trade, free trade. That's the issue that is bound to win.—Toledo Bee.

COUNTRY ROADS

For some time past the subject of roads has elicited much attention through the press, at farmers' institutes etc. One plan that has been advocated by some good man is to collect all the road tax in cash, and hire a gang of men to work the roads in each district under the supervision of an officer elected for that purpose. This is not a new plan, but was tried years ago in some of the counties of Pennsylvania, and perhaps in other places. Many would object to the additional (money) tax just at the present time when one great subject seems to be to lighten the burden by wholesome retrenchment.

If this would really be the best plan to furnish us good roads we believe the farmers (for the most part) would be willing to shoulder the increased load, but there are other objections to this system which it would be well to consider. If the district were large some sections of the roads would not be put in repair till late in the season, too late, perhaps, for them to become compact before the fall rains. Summer is the only time we can count on dry roads and most persons would prefer not to travel all summer over the ruts and holes that had been made during the previous winter, and then have them stirred up late in the season to make a bed of mud that would get deeper and deeper as the winter remained open.

What we want is a plan not only to make the roads, but also to keep them. There is no time when roads are so easily injured by heavy rains as just after they have been worked, and are in an unsettled condition. Just at this time they need some one to look after them, to fill up the incipient gully and keep the water in its proper channel. And what about the officer with his gang of men? Will he come back over the roads a second time? Not much. At least we have never known him to do anything of the kind.

I think there is a plan by which the roads can be put in repair and also watched and taken care of, and that without the collection of a money tax. In California and other places where irrigation is necessary every man is required to keep up the aqua through his own farm. In this way the stream is continuous, furnishing all the needed water. Now why cannot we have our roads kept up in a similar way? Let every farmer keep up his share of public road within the bounds of his own farm or as near to it as possible. Let this arrangement be permanent, with the exception of slight changes that might be necessary owing to change of location in roads etc. Now let us note some of the advantages of this system. A farmer could work on the roads near his own home any time it suited him. He could use his plow in the spring before the ground became hard. He could work as many hours as he pleased, often putting in an hour or two after finishing some job on his farm. In removing loose stones from his fields and meadows he could often unload them upon his section about as easily as anywhere else, thus furnishing material at a much less expense than where teams have to be hired for that purpose.

It would be to the farmer's interest to watch the water courses after a summer rain or winter thaw, and remove any obstructions. Often one hand with a hoe or a shovel by removing sand or slush may in one-half hour save damage that would have cost many dollars to repair, had the water not been kept in its proper channel.

We all know how soon a farm gets out of repair if there is no one to keep watch over it; so it is with roads. Any enterprising farmer would know that if he put his road in good shape and kept the water in its proper place his yearly task would be comparatively light. Now why should the farmer not feel as much satisfaction in having his part of the road in good repair as in having good fences, buildings, stock, etc.? A spirit of emulation would get up among farmers, each trying to have the best work. The roads should be inspected in the latter part of June, and if any contractor had failed to give satisfaction he should be notified, and if he did not respond in a reasonable time the supervisor should have power to employ men and complete the work at the expense the contractor. In Ohio young men are required to work two days on the road in lieu of the poll tax or military duty which was required in former times. Some might think that our plan would cut us out of this help; not so. This labor could be used in opening new roads, on bridges, etc. Or the supervisors could keep back a few sections on which this labor could be expended.

In some places the roads are sold out in half-mile sections to the lowest bidder. We claim that the permanent arrangement is much better. If under the former at the end of three years a man had his section in good order it is only a temptation for some one to bid it away from him, and then he could not always get a section near his own home. A farmer with a three-years' claim could not feel the interest he would if it were a permanent thing. The three-years claim would be something like a rented farm, the interest would only be of a temporary nature. W. H. BARR, in National Stockman.

What a debt of gratitude the world owes to such men as Drs. Ayer and Jenner—the latter for the great discovery of vaccination, and the former for his Extract of Sarsaparilla—the best of blood purifiers! Who can estimate how much these descoveries have benefited the race!

TAKING THE BREAD.

The total direct appropriations from the Treasury made by the Billion Dollar Congress—not including debts saddled on the country for fifty years to come—were $1,009,000,000.

The report of the Department of Agriculture for 1890 estimates the average value of the corn crop of the United states for the past eleven years at $676,714,286, and of the wheat crop at $368,442,611.

It will take both the corn and the wheat crops combined to pay for the luxury of having a Republican Congress—which represented only a minority of the voters.

The Billion dollar Congress has literally taken the bread out of the mouths of the American people, for every bushel of corn or barrel of flour produced in this country last year represented merely the taxes to be paid to meet the expense imposed by it.—N. Y. World.

GOV. WINANS ON BALLOT REFORM.

All are agreed as to the desirability of ballot reform, and our new election law is generally approved as a step in the right direction. The booth features gives every voter an opportunity to be alone with his ballot, and absolute secrecy is the best guarantee for purity in elections. A practical test of our law has shown that some amendments are needed to render it entirely efficient and satisfactory. I suggest the following:

1. Let the law apply to all elections.

2. Let the distribution or using of ballots outside the booths be prohibited under the severest penalties.

3. Let the ballots be printed by the County Clerks under the supervision of the party committees, and be delivered by the county Clerks to the inspectors of election. Let the ballots be paid for by the state in all state elections, and by the townships and cities in township and municipal elections.

4. A more expeditious method of counting should be adopted.

5. I favor the Australian system, or some modification which would render unnecessary the use of slips or pasters.

THE SUGAR SITUATION.

It is reported that the Havemeyers and Claus Spreckels have reached an agreement by virtue of which the long-standing fight for the latter with the Sugar trust will soon be ended. Spreckles is quoted as saying that, though the immediate effect of the new law will be to reduce the price of sugar about 1 cent per pound, yet it will soon be brought back to the old price as a result of the combination among the big producers. To attain this pitiable result the government of the United States has voluntarily thrown away $56,000,000 of revenue, in addition to incurring an expense of $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 for the payment of sugnar bounties.—Tribune.

Will not the Tribune go farther now and tell its readers the whole truth? That the removal of the sugar duties was made by Reed's congress at the demand of the Sugar trust, in order to place it in a position to compel Spreckels to combine with it, and not for the benefit of the people, as such republican organs as the Inter Ocean assert; that substantially the whole benefit of that removal of the duties is reaped by the sugar refiners, who may or may not reduce the price of refined suguar as it appears to be for their interest to give a sop to the people; that the sugar schedule as every other part of the infamous bill is a fraud committed upon the people by a republican congress, and that to secure these "blessings" the people have surrendered $56,000,000 of revenue, and will be called upon to pay millions more in bounties to a favored class of producers.—Chicago Times.

A MOST UNWISE POLICY.

Congressman Ben Butterworth saw the storm coming and declined a renomination. Since the election he has thus expressed himself on the result:

"In my opinion no man could have made a successful race for the presidency of the United States standing upon the issue of the McKinley bill, and I think the high tariff path the rockiest one to travel for public office at the present time.

"The people of this country are in such a state that not even the most prosperous class will stand the addition of another feather's weight of tax. It was the most unwise policy any party could pursue to take the stand of favoring any increase in the tariff when it is and has been apparent that a reduction is what has been needed and is wanted. I think I saw what was coming, at least my actions show that I pursued a wise course, and other Republicans knew only too well the inevitable consequence of the McKinley bill's adoption. I received a letter from a Minnesota Congressman this morning which read: "How terrible was the slaughter. You saw the trouble and slid out, but I stayed in like a lamb and was butchered beautifully. The McKinley bill and the Farmers' Alliance were too much for me.'

"I do not think that the actions of Speaker Reed antagonized public feeling to the extent the newspapers make out, and nearly everyone knows that Democratic gains were made because the mass of Republicans are becoming more and more disgusted with high tariff teachings. Now that the prophet has spoken, and a lesson been taught, I have no doubt that proper adjustments will immediately follow."

THE BOOK TRUST KNOCKED OUT.

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

Some six months ago we began the publication of our reprint of the famous Encyclopædia Britannica in 25 Volumes, which we issued at $1.50 per volume. The price of the English edition always has been and still is $8.00 per volume, and the Scribner edition $5.00 per volume in the cheapest binding.

That the public appreciate so great a bargain is shown by the fact that over half a million volumes of this reprint have been sold in less than six months.

This elegant new edition we still offer at the same price, $1.50 per volume. This is the greatest bargain ever known in books.

Better still, we will deliver the set complete on small easy payments, to suit the convenience of customers.

Remember this is not an abridgement, but the great Edinburgh ninth edition, reproduced page for page, with important articles on American subjects rewritten to date by eminent American authors, and new maps, later and better than in any other edition.

We further announce that we have in preparation three volumes of "American Additions and Revisions," thoroughly supplementing the original work. With these supplemental volumes you will have at small cost an Encyclopædia unapproachable in completeness; a thorough "digest of the libraries of the world," and a complete record of current progress and events.

SPECIAL OFFER.—We claim that our reprint compares favorably with the high priced editions in every respect, and in respect to maps, and strength and beauty of bindings is superior to them. In order that this claim may be tested by a personal inspection we make the following proposition: We will furnish volume I. at 60 cts.—a fraction of actual cost—if sent by express. Add 40 cts. postage if wanted by mail. Amount paid for Volume I. will be credited on price of set when ordered.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

SINGLE TAX MOVEMENT IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

W. A. Wilson, of Vancouver, in a letter concerning the progress of the single tax movement in British Columbia, says:

The work that has been going on for some time in Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and other towns throughout the Province has had very encouraging results, and we have abundant evidence to show that public opinion is being slowly, but none the less surely, molded in our favor. This new country, like most others, has been and is now handicapped in its development by land grabbing and speculation. To such an extent had this evil become manifest that the Provincial Government last August withdrew all that remained of the public lands under its jurisdiction from sale, pending legislation on the subject. As several good single tax men have lately been elected to the Provincial Legislature, we hope that their influence, backed up by the pressure that will be brought to bear on the outside, will have the effect of procuring legislation in accord with our principles.

In municipal matters, too, there is a steady movement towards the final abolition of taxing improvements. In the city of New Westminster a petition was presented to the city council last week containing over four hundred signatures of the most influential citizens there, praying that body to enact a by-law exempting improvements from taxation. The indications are that the petitions will be successful and score a victory. Victoria has also been moving in this direction, and Single Tax men there are active in spreading the light. They have a well-attended club, which has been a powerful factor in directing public attention to needful reforms, and that the single tax idea is not a mere "fad," but has come to stay and grow up with the country.

In Vancouver we have several out and out single taxers in the newly elected city council, and some others more or less favorable to our views, so that we feel confident of good results to the city generally and the single tax cause in particular. Some of our ministers have been interesting themselves in the movement, and alluding to it in their sermons as being worthy of consideration; but, like some of our Eastern professors, they are not anxious to accept its teachings and forsake the moss-covered fallacies concerning our social and economic conditions that have played their part so long in the world's history. We believe, however, that their conversion, inwardly if not outwardly, is only a question of time.

On the 10th inst. the single tax men of this province held a convention in Vancouver. Delegates attended from the principal cities and towns, and altogether it was most successful in the results attained. An organization was formed to be known as the "British Columbia Tax Reform Association," and the following officers were elected: David Evans, Vancouver, president; Alexander Hamilton, New Westminster, vice-president; W. A. Wilson, Vancouver, secretary, with an executive committee having one or more members in each city. The following platform and resolutions were adopted:

We hold that all men born into the world have an equal right to life and the means of living. The earth is the only source from which the physical wants of mankind can be supplied. Therefore, man's right to the use of the earth, the common gift of the Creator to the race, is the one essential condition of his existence. With a reasonable amount of labor the earth is capable of producing abundantly for the support of its population, and it becomes the duty of all citizens to use every reasonable effort to secure to capital and labor free access to the land which is the source of all wealth.

To carry out these principles we are in favor of raising all revenues for governmental purposes by a direct tax on land values, irrespective of improvements.

The adoption of this method of taxation would be of an untold benefit to all classes of the community. It would stimulate industry, reward enterprise, and secure to every man a just and equitable return for his labor, and at the same time would render it unprofitable to hold valuable land for merely speculative purposes.

With respect to monopolies other than the monopoly of land, we hold that where free competition becomes impossible, such monopolies are then a proper social function, and should be controlled and managed by and for the whole people concerned.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That this Association would impress upon every voter in the Province who believes in the views advocated by Single Tax men, to take a careful interest in the matters discussed by the local Legislature, and especially the action taken thereon by their representatives in that body, in order that they may be prepared at the next Provincial election to select candidates who will work for the adoption of laws in accord with the principles of the Single Tax.

The conference adjourned to meet in Victoria on the second Saturday in January, 1892. Last Saturday we had a spirited debate in the city Market Hall on the Single Tax, in which delegates took part, and much interest was taken in both the convention and debate by both the press and the general public.

In Hawkes' Bay, New Zealand, there are 2,950,000 acres of land, of which 2,000,000 are occupied—that is, owned. Of the occupied land, 1,170,000 acres belong to forty-seven people. The land question is coming to the front out there. Hawkes' Bay is one of the places where the Single Tax agitation in the Antipodes was first vigorously pushed. Mr. Arthur J. Desmond was a leading and active worker for the cause in that region back in 1884.

One of the great evils of our methods of raising taxes to-day is that they tax conscience, that they make men lie and perjure and bribe and corrupt.

The Greatest of Monopolies.

But all other monopolies are trivial in extent as compared with the monopoly of land. And the value of land expressing a monopoly, pure and simple, is in every respect fitted for taxation. That is to say, while the value of a railroad or telegraph line, the price of gas or of a patent medicine, may express the price of monopoly, it also expresses the exertion of labor and capital, but the value of land, or economic rent, as we have seen, is in no part made up from these factors, and expresses nothing but the advantage of appropriation. Taxes levied upon the value of land can not check production in the slightest degree, until they exceed rent, or the value of land taken annually, for unlike taxes upon commodities, or exchange, or capital, or any of the tools or processes of production, they do not bear upon production. The value of land does not express the reward of production, as does the value of crops, of cattle, of buildings, or any of the things which are styled personal property and improvements. It expresses the exchange value of monopoly. It is not in any case the creation of the individual who owns the land; it is created by the growth of the community. Hence the community can take it all without in any way lessening the incentive to improvement or in the slightest degree lessening the production of wealth. Taxes may be imposed upon the value of land until all rent is taken by the State, without reducing the wages of labor or the reward of capital one iota; without increasing the price of a single commodity, or making production in any way more difficult.

But more than this. Taxes on the value of land not only do not check production as do most other taxes, but they tend to increase production, by destroying speculative rent. How speculative rent checks production may be seen not only in the valuable land withheld from use, but in the paroxysms of industrial depressions, which, originating in the speculative advance in land values, propagate themselves over the whole civilized world everywhere paralyzing industry, and causing more waste and probably more suffering than would a general war. Taxation which would take rent for public uses would prevent this, while if land were taxed to anything near its rental value, no one could afford to hold land that he is not using, and, consequently, land not in use would be thrown open to those who would use it. Settlement would be closer, and, consequently, labor and capital would be able to produce much more with the same exertion. The dog in the manger, who, in this country especially, so wastes productive power would be chocked off.—Progress and Poverty.

A Case of Unearned Increment.

New London, Ct., Jan. 22.—At the outbreak of the civil war there was located in Augusta, Ga., a business man named Daniel Hand. He was the son of a New England farmer and had been settled in Augusta for many years. Not sympathizing with the Southern cause, he found it profitable and advisable to sell his stock of goods, real estate and other property and return to his old home in Guilford, Ct. But there was one piece of property—a tract of Georgia pine land—which he did not sell, for the reason that he looked on it as practically unsalable and valueless. This pine land he left in the care of his partner, a Mr. Williams.

As the war progressed Mr. Hand was in his quiet home in the little New England village, away from the sounds of strife and scenes of bloodshed, and took no concern for the Georgia pine lands. With the return of peace came renewed prosperity and an influx of Northern capital to the South. The value of land in Georgia began to rise, and pine land proved no exception to the rule. Still Mr. Hand was careless and ignorant of what was going on. He had made plenty of money to live on and did not have to trouble himself about his pine lands in the South.

If my memory serves me, it was some time in 1885, twenty-five years or so after he had left his Georgia store, that Mr. Hand received a letter from his former partner, Mr. Williams, stating that he had succeeded in finding a purchaser for that tract of pine land that they had considered valueless. Mr. Williams also stated that as a sale had been effected, and that on account of such sale Mr. Hand had standing to his credit in bank and subject to his order the nice little sum of seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

This appears to me to be a pretty clear case of the pocketing of an unearned increment. As far as Mr. Hand personally was concerned that tract of land had practically ceased to exist. His whole interest in it had gone out of his mind entirely.

And yet while he was at his home in Guilford, Ct., passing his old age peacefully and happily, utterly oblivious of the whole matter, $750,000 were accumulating for his special benefit.

To Mr. Hand's credit it ought to be said—which, however, in no way breaks the force of the story—that he has invested the whole sum and placed it in the hands of trustees to be used as a perpetual fund for to defray the educational expenses of worthy colored students in the Southern States; but this only shows how much the community could have for public use and benefits if no individual were allowed to pocket what he did not create.—W. C. Miner.

Whatever other causes there may be in existence, it is indisputable that the general system of taxation which prevails in this country and which has prevailed for a hundred years, is such as to take very much more largely from the pockets of the poor than it does from the pockets of the rich.

Increase of land values simply means that the owners, by virtue of their appropriation of something that existed before man was, have the power of taking a larger share of the wealth produced by other people's labor.—Social Problems.

GOOD AND EVIL IN JEHU.

LESSON II, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, APRIL 12.

Text of the Lesson, II Kings x, 18-31. Commit Verses, 26-29 — Golden Text, I Sam. xvi, 7—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

18. "And Jehu gathered all the people together."

We find this man's name nearly forty times in this and the preceding chapter, and not over a dozen times elsewhere. He is evidently the Lord's minister of judgment upon sin and sinners, but does not appear to have been a true worshiper of the true God.

19. "I have a great sacrifice to do Baal."

Thus said Jehu as he commanded to be gathered together all the prophets, priests and servants of Baal that he might destroy them. Baal was the chief male deity of the Phoenicians and Canaanites. The word signifies master or possessor, and is used fifteen times in this chapter, which is more often than it is found in any other chapter in the Bible. The worship of Baal meant the forsaking of the only true God, the God of Israel, and an identification with the false religions of the nations, and was a great provocation of Jehovah.

20. "And Jehu said, Proclaim a solemn assembly for Baal."

His purpose is stated in the previous verse to have been that he might destroy the worshipers of Baal, but he is doing it deceitfully, and a God of truth cannot deceive nor authorize deceit.

21. "And Jehu sent through all Israel; and all the worshipers of Baal came, so that there was not a man left that came not."

And we read that the house of Baal was full from one end to the other. Here is a devotion worthy of a better cause, but it is even so to this present day.

22. "Bring forth vestments for all the worshipers of Baal. And he brought them forth vestments."

Thus while outwardly honoring them and seemingly encouraging them he was robing them for slaughter. Death, not life, was before them, and it was death leading to the second death. The separation of soul and body is not to be dreaded if we are clothed with Christ's righteousness.

23. "Jehu and Jehonadab the son of Rechab."

See in verse 15 the greeting and union of these two, and if not familiar with the story of the descendants of Jonadab, read it in Jer. xxxv, and mark the blessings of obedience.

"Search and look that there be here with you none of the servants of the Lord, but the worshipers of Baal only."

How would such a proclamation affect the people who gather at the popular places of amusement in our day?

24. "And when they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings."

Here is Jehu officiating as a priest of Baal, while at the same time he instructs eighty men that on penalty of death they are not to allow one of those present to escape with his life. Compare Elijah proving before all the people that Jehovah is God, as he offered sacrifice unto Him, and then slew the prophets of Baal after showing them their folly. With Elijah all was open and righteous. The way of Jehu is not so. God commissioned him to destroy Baal, but God did not commission him to practice deceit or to worship Baal.

25. "Go in and slay them; let none come forth."

This is the obedient part, as when the Levites went in and out throughout the camp and slew every man, his brother and companion and neighbor, because of their sin against God. Thus will everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord some day overtake all who know not God and obey not the gospel (II Thess. i, 8, 9).

26. "And they brought forth the images out of the house of Baal and burned them."

Not only the idolaters but their idols does He destroy.

27. "And they brake down the image of Baal, and brake down the house of Baal, and made it a draught house unto this day."

The whole house of Satan, for he is the prince of idols and idolaters, shall yet find itself without the city and completely broken down.

28. "Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel."

It was a sore evil, and required severe treatment and received it. It seems to have been Jehu's special mission to put away this iniquity; but he did not win Israel back to God, as we shall see. It is one thing to put away evil, but quite another to make people righteous.

29. "Howbeit, from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin, Jehu departed not from after them."

Surely, if we believed that our sins might reach to many generations, as did the sins of this man, the most ungodly might be led to ponder well their ways. It is a fearful thing to depart from the living God or lead others so to do.

30. "And the Lord said unto Jehu, Because thou hast done well in executing that which is right in mine eyes."

He is commended for his thorough judgment upon the house of Ahab. Contrast the lack of thoroughness in Saul when sent to destroy Amalek (I Sam. xv, 9-11). The Lord does not commend Jehu's deceit. While He commends the faith of Rahab of Jericho He does not commend her deceit either. He cannot commend what is wrong in any one. In the parable of the unjust steward (Luke xvi) it is not the Lord Jesus who commends his fraudulent treatment of his master, but it is his own lord or master who considers him a shrewd fellow to thus make provision for his future.

"Thy children of the fourth generation shall sit on the throne of Israel."

And so it came to pass (chap. xv, 12). His thoroughness brought him and his children a temporal kingdom for four generations. If we who believe in Jesus are faithful to Him we shall sit with Him on His throne (Rev. iii, 21), and in bodies like His (Phil. iii, 21) reign with Him over this whole earth (Rev. v, 9, 10; Dan. vii, 27).

31. "But Jehu took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel with all his heart."

The chief thing was neglected. Let any one read in Deuteronomy, and notice how often in that one book Israel is commanded to observe and do the commandments of the Lord, and this statement will make Jehu's goodness seem very questionable. He showed no mercy to the house of Ahab, nor to the worshipers of Baal, but he worshiped the golden calves, and transgressed the law of the Lord. Where then is his righteousness? He stands before us identified with Jeroboam, a sinful man whom God saw fit to use and reward with some temporal favors. Remember Heb. xii, 14; Rom. x, 4; viii, 4; and not only turn from idols but turn to God and serve Him (I Thess. i, 9, 10).

A DYSPEPTIC'S ARGUMENT
Is a growl, and that growl marks the limit of argument with him. The best way to get him to try a medicine would be to advise against it—but notice how different his tone after using Burdock Blood Bitters.
"I have suffered with Dyspepsia for the last two years. Not long ago I commenced taking B. B. B. I am now on the second bottle and feel like a new man. G. KNOX,

REPEATED TESTS WITH UNIFORM SUCCESS prove the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters will cure d The reason is plain, it tones the stomach to natural action and keeps the sluice ways of the system free from clogging impurities.
"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and heart disease for nine years, and found no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. Now I am well after taking two bottles.

THE FIGURE "9".
The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.
There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.
The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889, where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.
The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

DR. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.
Over 40 Years.
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

MY TWO FRIENDS.

I lived alone within a mighty city,
The crowds that come and go;
'Mid all its throngs, the foolish and the witty,
I had no friend or foe.

There were two men, within that mighty city,
Came to me from the throng;
One loved me with a love akin to pity,
The other's hate was strong.

The lover and the hater dwelt beside me,
Passed through the selfsame gate;
And neither, in their passing by, denied me
The look of love or hate.

So many months within that mighty city
I loved my friend full well;
But him, my foe, for him I felt no pity—
But the deep hate of hell.

One morning, in the twilight, o'er the city
There came an icy breath;
My friend had passed beyond my love and pity,
The border land of death.

Then was I lonely, and the way grew dreary;
I grimly fought with fate,
And cherished, with my loneliness aweary,
Dead love and living hate.

I sought his grave to whom my heart was mated—
My friend, the good and brave;
And there I saw the form of him I hated,
Bent, weeping, o'er his grave.

And then he told me that, in all the city,
But me and him below,
From all the throngs that needed God's sweet pity,
He had no friend or foe.

And now we live within the selfsame city,
No other friends we crave;
Our love is strong that sprang from human pity,
Above the dead man's grave.

AN OLD LADY'S STORY.

It Is About Her True Love and the Noble Squire.

I sat spinning at my little wheel, in the sun, for the autumn day was cold, when I heard some one whistling, and, looking up, there was young Squire Turner, with his arms folded on the gate, looking over. When he caught my eye he laughed, I blushed, and I arose and made him a courtesy.

He was a handsome gentleman, the squire, and the hand from which he pulled the glove shimmered in the sun with pearls and diamonds; and he was bonny to look at, with his hair like spun gold in the October sunlight.

When I courtesied he bowed, making his curls dance over his shoulders, and said he: "I've spoiled one pretty picture that I could have looked at all day, but I've made another as pretty, so I'll not grieve. May I come in?"

"And welcome, sir," said I, and I set a chair for him, for he was my grandfather's landlord; but for all that I felt uncomfortable, for I was not used to fine company.

He talked away, paying me more compliments than I was used to, for grandmother, who brought me up, said: "Handsome is as handsome does," and "Beauty is but skin deep."

Since I'm telling the story I'll tell the truth. I had done wrong about one thing. Neither of the old folks knew that I wore Evan Locke's ring in my bosom or that we'd taken a vow to each other beside the hawthorn that grew in the church lane. I never meant to deceive, but grannie was old and a little hard, and that love of mine was such a sweet secret. Besides, money seems to outweigh all else when people have struggled all their lives through to turn a penny, and they knew Evan was a poor, struggling young surgeon. I thought I'd wait awhile until I could sweeten the news with the fact that he'd begun to make his fortune.

Grannie came in from the dairy five minutes after the squire was gone and heard he had been there. I didn't tell her of his fine speeches, but there was a keyhole to the door she came through and I have a guess she heard them.

That night we had something else to think of. Misfortunes had come upon grandfather, but I didn't foresee that when the half-year's rent should come due not a penny to pay it with would be found.

All this time Evan Locke and I had been as fond as ever of each other, and he came as often as before to talk with grandpa on the winter nights, and still every little while our young landlord, Squire Turner, would drop in and sit in his lazy way, watching me knit or spin. Once or twice he was flushed with wine and overbold, for he tried to kiss me. But, squire or no, I boxed his ears for his pains, and no softer than I could help, either.

I could not help his coming, nor help seeing him when he came, and I did not deserve that Evan should be angry with me [illegible] he was. Eh, so high and mighty, and spoke as though one like the squire could mean no good by coming to so poor a place as the schoolmaster's.

He made me angry, and I spoke up.

"For that matter, the squire would be glad to have me promise to marry him," said I. "He thinks more of me than—"

"May be you like him better!"

"I don't say that," replied I. "But bad temper and jealousy scarce make me overfond of another. I pray I may never have a husband who will scold me."

For he had been scolding me. No other name for it.

Well, Evan was wroth with me and I with him—not heart-deep though, I thought—and I did not see him for more than a week. I was troubled much, though. I knew he would come round again, and mayhap ask my pardon. For before you are wed you can bring your lover to his senses.

So I did not fret after Evan's absence, nor quite snub Squire Turner, who liked me more than ever. But one night grandfather came in, and, shutting the door, stood between grandmamma and me, looking at me, and so strangely that we both grew frightened. At last he spoke:

"I've been to the squire's," said he. "For the first time I had to tell him that I could not pay the rent when due."

I opened my lips. Grandmamma's hand covered them. Grandpa drew me to him.

"Thou'rt young, lass," said he, "and they are right to call thee pretty. Child, could'st like the squire well enough to wed him?"

"Eh!" cried grandma. "Sure, you're not wandering?"

"Squire Turner asked me for this lass of ours to-night. Of all women in the world there is but one he loves as he should his wife, and that is our Agatha."

"I dreamt of golden rings and white roses on Christmas eve," cried grannie. "I knew the lass would be lucky."

But I put my head on grandfather's shoulder and hid my face. The truth must out, I knew.

"Wilt have him and be a rich lady?" said grandpa.

And when he had waited for an answer I burst out with "No" and a sob together.

"She's frightened," said grandmamma. "Nay, we must all wed once in our lives, my child."

Then grandpapa talked to me. He told me how poor they had grown, and how kind the squire was, and I had but to marry him to make my grandparents free from debt and poverty their lives through. If I refused and vexed the squire, Heaven only knew what might happen.

"She'll never ruin us," sobbed grandmamma.

Ah! it was hard to bear—bitter, hard; but now there was no help for it. I took the ring from my bosom and laid it on my palm, and told them it was Evan Locke's, and that I had plighted my troth to him. And grandmamma called me a deceiful wench, and grandfather looked as though his heart would break.

Oh, I would have done any thing for them—any thing but give up my true love.

That night I kissed his ring and prayed Heaven that he might love me always. In the morning it was gone, ribbon and all, from my neck. I looked for it high and low, but found no sign of it. And I began to fear the loss of that dear ring was a sign that I would never marry Evan Locke.

The days passed on, and he never came near me.

"Oh, it was cruel in him," I thought, "to hold such anger for a hasty word he had provoked, when I spoke it that he must know I loved him so."

And grandma would scarcely look at me (I know why now), and grandpa sighed, and moaned, and talked of the work-house. And I thought I should die of grief among them.

One day grandma said to me: "It seems that your sweetheart is not overfond of you, nor over-anxious to see you."

"Why not?" said I.

"Where has he been this month back?"

"Busy, doubtless," said I, with a smile, though I thought my heart would burst.

"You're going with him, may be?"

"Where?" said I.

She went to the kitchen door and beckoned in a woman who sat there—Dame Coombs, who had come over with eggs.

"I heard you rightly," she said. "You told me Evan Locke and his mother were making ready for a voyage."

"They're going to Canada. My son, a carpenter—and a good one, though I say it—made the doctor a box for his things. The old lady dreads the new country, but she goes for the doctor's sake. There's money to be made there."

"I told you so," said grandmother.

"I don't believe it," said I.

"They've sold the house, and gone to Liverpool to take ship; and you may find the truth for yourself, if you choose to make trouble," said Dame Coombs. "I'm no chatterbox, to tell falsehoods about my neighbors."

And still I would not believe it until I had walked across the moor, and had seen the shutters fast closed and the door barred, and not a sign of life about the place. Then I gave up hope. I went home all pale and trembling, and sat down at grandmamma's knee.

"It's true," said I.

"And for the sake of so false a lad you'll see your grandfather ruined and break his heart, and leave me, that have nursed you from a babe, a widow."

I looked at her as she sobbed, and I found strength to say:

"Give me to whom you will, then, since my own love does not want me."

And then I crept upstairs and sat down on my bedside, weak as though I had fainted. I would have thanked Heaven for forgetfulness just then, but it wouldn't come.

The next day Squire Turner was in the parlor as my accepted lover. How pleased he was, and how the color came back into grandfather's old face! And grannie grew so proud and kind, and all the house was aglow, and only I sad. But I couldn't forget Evan—Evan, whom I had loved so—sailing away from me without a word.

I suppose they all saw I looked sad. The squire talked of my health, and would make me ride with him over the moors for strength.

The old folks said nothing. They knew what ailed me; only our little Scotch maid seemed to think there was aught wrong. Once she said to me:

"What ails ye, miss? Your eye is dull and your cheek is pale, and your braw grand lover canna make ye smile; ye're na that ill, either."

"No, I am well enough," said I.

She looked at me wistfully.

"Gin ye'd tell me your ail, I might tell ye a cure," she said.

But there was no cure for me in this world, and I couldn't open my heart to simple Jennie. So the days rolled by, and I was close on my marriage eve, and grannie and Dorothy Plume were busy with my wedding robes. I wished it were my shroud they were working at instead.

And one night the pain in my heart grew too great, and I went out among the purple heather on the moor and there knelt down under the stars and prayed to be taken from the world. "For how can I live without Evan?" I said.

I spoke the words aloud, and then started up in affright, for there at my side was an elfish little figure, and I heard a cry that at first I scarce thought earthly. Yet it was but Scotch Jennie, who had followed me.

"Why do ye call for your true love now?" she said; "ye sent him fra ye for sake o' the young squire."

"How dare you follow and watch me?"

But she caught my sleeve.

"Dinna be vexed," she said. "Just bide a wee, and answer what I speer. It's for love of you, for I've seen ye waste like the snaw wreath in the sun sin the squire woed ye. Was it your will the lad that loved the ground ye trod on should have his ring again?"

"What do you mean?" said I.

"I'll speak gin I lose my place," said Jennie. "I rode with the mistress to young Dr. Locke's place past the moor, and there she lighted and gave him a ring, and what she said I know not, but it turned him the tint o' death, and said he: 'There's na a drop o' true bluid in a woman gin she is false.' And he turned to the wall and covered his eyes, and your grannie rode home. There, 'tis all I ken—wull it do?"

"Ay, Jennie," said I; "Heaven bless you!"

And had I wings on my feet I could not have come to the cottage door sooner.

I stood before my grandmother, trembling and white, and said: "Oh, don't tell me, grannie, you have cheated me and robbed me of my true love by a lie. Did you steal the troth-ring from my neck and give it back to Evan, as if from me? You I've loved and honored my life-long!"

"True love!" said she; "you've but one true love now—Squire Turner."

"You have done it!" I cried. "It's written in your face."

And she looked down at that and fell to weeping.

"My own true love was breaking his heart," she said. "My husband and I had loved for forty years. I did it to save him. Could I let a girl's fancy, worth nothing, stand in my way and see him a beggar in his old age? Oh, girl, girl!"

And then I fell down at her feet like a stone. I knew nothing for an hour or more, but then, when I was better and they left me with Jennie, I bade her fetch my hood and cloak and her own and come with me, and away I went across the moor in the starlight to where the hall windows were ablaze with light and asked the housekeeper to let me see the squire.

She stared at me for my boldness—no wonder—but called him. So in a moment he stood before me in his evening dress, with his cheeks flushed and his eyes bright, and let me into a little room and seated me.

"Agatha, my love, I hope no mischance brings you here." But I stopped him.

"Not your love, Squire Turner," I said. "I thank you for thinking so well of me, but after all that has passed, I—"

I could say no more. He took my hand.

"Have I offended you, Agatha?" he said.

"Not you. The offense—the guilt—oh, I have been sorely cheated!" and all I could do was to sob.

At last strength came to me. I went back to the first and told him all—how we had been plighted to each other, waiting only for better prospects to be wed, and how, when he honored me by an offer of his hand, I angered my grandmother by owning to the truth, and of the ring grannie had stolen from my breast, and the false message that had been sent my promised husband from me.

"And though I never see Evan Locke again," said I, "still I can never be another man's true love, for I am his until I die."

Then, as I looked, all the rich color faded out of the squire's face, and I saw the sight we seldom see more than once in a lifetime—a strong young man in tears.

At last he arose and came to me.

"My little Agatha never loved me," he said. "Ah me! The news is bad—I thought she did. This comes of vanity."

"Many a higher and a fairer have hearts to give," I said. "Mine was gone ere you saw me."

And then, kind and gentle as though I had not grieved him, he gave me his arm and saw me across the moor, and at the gate paused and whispered:

"Be at rest, Agatha. The Golden George has not sailed yet."

I liked him better than I had ever done before that night when I told grannie that I would never wed him.

Eh! but he was fit to be a king—the grandest, kindest, best of living men; who rode away with the break of the morrow and never stopped till he reached Liverpool, and found Evan Locke just ready to set foot on the Golden George and told him a tale that made his heart light and sent him back to me. Heaven bless him!

And who was it that sent old grandfather the deed of gift that made the cottage his own, and who spoke a kind word to the gentry for young Dr. Locke that helped him into practice? Still no one but Squire Turner, whom we taught our children to pray for every night. For we were married, and in a few years had boys and girls at our knees; and when the eldest was nigh two the thing I needed to make me quite happy happened, and from far over the sea, where he had been three twelvemonths, came our squire with the bonniest lady that ever blushed beside him, and the hall had a mistress at last—a mistress who loved the squire as I loved Evan.

Eh! but it's an old story. She that I remembered a girl I saw in her coffin, withered and old. And then they opened the vault where the squire had slept ten years to put her beside him; and I've nothing left of Evan, my life and my love, but his memory, and it seems as if every hope and dream of joy I ever had were put away under tombstones. And even the Golden George, the great, strong ship that would have borne my dear from me, has moldered away at the bottom of the sea. And I think my wedding-ring is like to outlast us all, for I have it yet, and I shall be ninety to-morrow.

Ninety! It's a good old age, and it can't be long now before I meet Evan and the rest in Heaven.—Gentleman's Magazine.

THE TOWNSHIP ELECTION.

THE ELECTION IN OTHER TOWNS.

Below we give the result of the election in the other townships of Northeastern Lenawee. All the towns in this section of the county went about as usual excepting Cambridge which elects a Republican Supervisor.

CLINTON.

The following is the result in this township, the entire ticket being Democratic, and the figures showing their majorities:

Supervisor, Keyser, 62; clerk, Kishpaugh, 40; treasurer, Davis, 54; justice, Smith, 50; highway commissioner, Keusch, 20; drain commissioner, Brown, 20; school inspector, Burroughs, 24; board of review, Bradner, 2; constables, Goodrich, Noon, Wallace, Schreder, 29.

RAISIN.

The Democratic ticket was elected in this township by the following majorities:

Supervisor, Horace Holdridge, 45; clerk, Charles A. Chase, 41; treasurer, James N. Simonds, 18; justice peace, full term, Willis Chatfield, 30; school inspector, Edward L. Russel, 28; highway commissioner, Charles Kayner, 31; member board of review, John Rainey, 30; constables, Floyd G. Florence, 32; Frank Cutler, 30; Ernest Daisher, 147; Nathaniel Graham, 147.

MACON.

The Republican state ticket in this township went to the front with a majority of 60. The Republican township ticket also prevailed with the good round majorities indicated below:

Supervisor, Humbolt Pennington, 66; clerk, Mark B. Mills, 63; treasurer, Thomas Murphy, 64; justice, Samuel Stewart, 60; school inspector, Spencer Morgan, 70; to fill vacancy, James F. Gilmore, 60 highway commissioner, Samuel Gibson, 70; drain commissioner, George East, 39; board of review, Granville Mills, 61. The constables received each a majority of about 60.

RIDGEWAY.

The Democratic candidates were chosen by the majorities given:

Supervisor, H. F. Barnes, 5; clerk, Joseph Hunter, 24; treasurer, Geo Witt, 24; justice, Geo Oliver, 37; school inspector, Darius Smith, 67; highway commissioner, Frederick Morrill, 39; board of review, Erastus Rappleye, 30; constables, average majority, 32.

FRANKLIN.

In this reliable precinct the Republican vote varied from 150 to 158, that of the Democrats ranging from 120 down 111. Mr. Bradley was elected supervisor over J. E. Osborn, his Democrat opponent, by a majority of 30, the strongest fight having been made on the head of the ticket. The successful Republicans are.

Supervisor, F. E. Bradley; clerk, W. F. Smith; treasurer, D. J. Preston; justice, Charles Davis; commissioner, C. W. Luce; school inspector, C. H. Bramble; board of review, W. M. Alexander; constables, W. B. Germain Jewett Whelan, Orson J. Pawson, S. J. Love.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Our March weather still continues.

Monday was an orthodox election day.

Joe Wilson is in town a day or two this week.

C. S. Burroughs, of Clinton, was in town last Friday.

Will F. Baker was home from Detroit over Sunday.

Monday proved to be a good Democratic day in this town.

Remember the last entertainment of the course to-morrow evening.

The Ariel Concert will be a fitting close of our entertainment course.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Phipps, of Holly, are visiting at Dolph Heesen's.

C. O. Hiscock left Tuesday noon for Albion College after a vacation of ten days.

J. F. N. Bowen and family spent last week with friends at North Adams.

We understand that J. W. Benedict has purchased the Dr. House property.

Mrs. Henry Nyland, Mrs. Dudley Macham and Albert Vedder are all quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Heck are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Munn, at Toledo, this week.

The counterfeit $2.00 silver certificate is causing the treasury officials a good deal of trouble.

J. D. Shull is on the sick list. He was unable to return to Lansing on Tuesday as he expected.

Harris & Hiteshu swing out a new spring card this week, which people should read and ponder.

Mrs. Thomas Smith went to Ann Arbor Tuesday to have an operation performed upon her eye.

Mrs. Elsie Rowland went to Toledo last Saturday to attend the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. Ballard.

P. C. Temple and wife, of Bay City, were shaking hands with their many Tecumseh friends last week.

Mrs. Bert Tate, who has been sick for the past two weeks, is somewhat improved but is still unable to be out.

Mrs. Nellie Adams went to Cleveland Tuesday last. Her sister, Mrs. Jennie Record, who resides there, is very sick.

The Farmers' Picnic committee will meet again on the 25th of April, to perfect their arrangements for the annual picnic.

Stove Stacy will hardly poke fun at the victims of the grip any more. He has been wrestling with the "creetur" himself since last Friday.

We call attention to Mr. Ladd's local elsewhere in regard to the canning industry. Remember the meeting at the Council Building next Saturday.

Capt. Chilson went to Detroit Tuesday to see about fitting his steamer for the coming season. Charlie Montgomery also went to put the engines in running order.

Mrs. Eri H. Button died at Perkins, a suburb of Sacramento, Cal., March 8th, 1891. She was an old resident of Tecumseh, going to California with her husband twenty-eight years ago.

H. Brewer & Co., have nineteen orders for tile machines now on their books that have not yet been started. The orders they have received since January have exceeded all precedent.

The S. of V. Party on Thursday evening last proved to be a very pleasant occasion to the participants. Socially there was nothing lacking and the receipts were sufficient to pay expenses.

W. G. Blymyer went to Defiance, Ohio, last Saturday to pack up his household effects, returning on Tuesday. He has rented Mrs. Clark's house on Union street and expects to get settled in his new home the last of next week.

E. Cora DePuy contributed a most valuable and instructive article to the Detroit Sunday News, of March 29th, entitled "Some Curious Wills." The documents described were over two hundred years old, and included the will of the great-great-grand father of the late Senator Zach. Chandler.

Something new at Mr. Chilson's for 15 cents.

Shall Tecumseh have a canning factory? If not, why not?

Find time at Find Social at Mr. Chilson's. Find 15 cents and go.

Frank Bice has a brand new oven at the lower bakery, which is a dandy.

Find 15 cents to go to the "Find" Social at Mr. Chilson's, Friday evening April 17th.

The "Kid Band" will soon be rigged out with new uniforms. The measures were left with an agent this morning.

Harris and Hiteshu came to the front this week with a new spring card. They propose taking spring trade by the forelock.

Frank Bice is now making the old fashioned salt rising bread. It is a prime article too. We know for we have tried it.

M. J. Tremaine has cured 800 hams and shoulders at the Creamery during the past season. Buy one before they are all gone.

We invite attention to the new card of W. P. Cotton which appears this week. Our Macon friends will find it to their advantage.

You will find your Ice Cream and Cake free at the Find Social at Mr. Chilson's, Friday evening April 17th. Admission 15 cents.

One hundred acres of tomatoes raised in this vicinity during the present season would put thousands of dollars into the farmer's pockets.

Please find time to spend the evening of Friday, April 17th with the Kings Daughters, at Mr. E. D. Chilson's. Admission 15 cents and Ice Cream and Cake free.

H. W. Conkling has returned from his trip to Englewood. On Wednesday, April 1st, his brother, S. L., had his eye operated upon and he is doing finely, the operation resulting very successfully.

The Aid Society of the M. E. church will meet in the church parlors on Wednesday afternoon, April 15. Business meeting at 4 o'clock, Tea served from half-past 5 to 7 o'clock by Mrs. W. J. Ide's committee.

We have received the announcement of the Commencement Exercises of the Medical Department at Howard University, Washington City, D. C., which will take place Apr. 15th. Our friend Ob. Tefft will take his diploma at that time.

The state election is still in doubt, and the actual result may not be known until the official canvass shall have been made. The majority is likely to be under 500 either way. Both parties are still claiming the state ticket.

Rev. J. M. Getchell took his departure last week for his new home at Marshall, where he begins his duties at once as pastor of the Universalist Church. May the relationship thus formed prove a happy and congenial one to both pastor and people.

We hope to see Mr. Ladd greeted with a large attendance of farmers next Saturday, as it may result in starting a canning factory here. An industry of this kind ought to be liberally sustained in Tecumseh, and when once started it would become a permanent institution.

A canning factory, using the product of one hundred acres of tomatoes would employ about one hundred hands during the canning season. Besides the special crops contracted for, a large amount of apples, pears and small fruits would be purchased for canning during the fruit season.

Mrs. Irving Vescelius, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Shutt, died very suddenly at her home in Milan last Sunday, after a sickness of only three days. The remains were brought home for interment and the obsequies were held from her father's residence Tuesday afternoon.

The Tecumseh Chapter Royal Arch Masons held a special convocation last Thursday evening, for work in the Royal Arch degree. There was a large attendance and many visiting brethren were here from Adrian, Clinton and Manchester. The meeting closed with a banquet.

A quiet wedding occurred April 6th, at the home of Mrs. E. G. Savage, in Adrian township. Mr. Emory A. Webber, of Niles, and Nellie Cecelia Beebe, formerly of Franklin, were united in marriage by Rev. Kerridge. Mr. and Mrs. Webber left on the 10:58 train for Niles, where they will reside in the future.

The Triple Reception of Mrs. Horatio Keyser, M. E. and Myron Conklin given at the home of Mrs. Keyser was a fitting opening of the Reception season of the Society Ladies of old Tecumseh. Although the weather was lowry and bad, no one seemed to mind it for every body was there, and all enjoyed the genial greetings of the "Hostesses" and went home saying what a good time we had, what a fine plan for these ladies to deceive their mutual friends together.

The fame of the Ariel Quartet had preceded them. Rarely, if ever, has a concern received such hearty and prolonged applause. Every piece was encored, and in several cases the ladies were obliged to appear a third time. Our critics say it was the best concert ever given here.—Worcester Telegram.

MACON GRANGE.

The next regular meeting of Macon Grange will be held on Friday evening Apr. 17, at which time the following program will be rendered:

Music—Grange Choir.
Rec.—Ella Southard.
Essay—Georgia Baker.
Inst. music—Fannie Miller.
Dec.—Lilburn Burlison.
Reading—Mettie Miller.
Address—Rev. J. W. Gulick.
Song—Mrs. J. W. Osborne.

At the regular meeting of May 1st, the following question will be discussed: Resolved—That we, as a nation, are to an alarming extent departing from the principles of the constitution, to the detriment of ourselves and posterity.

NOTES FROM THE W. C. T. U.

The Demorest Medal Contests have spread to Great Britain, the third contest for the gold medal, having been recently given in Glasgow, Scotland.

"The one chief reason for my becoming an abstainer," says Archdeacon Farrar, "was because I saw on all sides the waste, the ruin, the misery, the degradation, the disease, the wretchedness of homes, the destruction of human bodies, the human faculties and human souls; the national disgrace, the cruel extermination of the weaker races of mankind in our colonies, which are caused by drink."

It has been estimated that it requires $90,000 every week to support the liquor traffic in the District of Columbia, or $4,680,000 per year, all of which is a direct tax upon the people.

If the mothers of Tecumseh know the information they could receive by attending the Mothers' Meetings, which are held the first Friday of each month, there would be a larger attendance. All are welcome and invited.

The humorous is always acceptable, and it is not strange that Mr. Thomas was recalled three times to answer demands made for meritorious renderings. He is certainly very able in his line, and may well feel proud that nature gave him so plain a set of features competent to be worked and distorted to such an extent as to provoke the favor of a laughing public. He is a good actor withal, self-composed, apt, and efficient.—Brooklyn Eagle.

All farmers, and others interested in growing tomatoes, peas and beans for a canning factory, are requested to meet in the Council Chambers, Tecumseh, on Saturday, April 11, 1891, at 2 p. m. I am prepared to contract and furnish seeds for these crops, to be delivered at Tecumseh, and, if a proper appreciation is shown, and enough crops contracted, a factory will probably be built. L. LADD.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

If a price can be placed on pain, "Mother's Friend" is worth its weight in gold as an alleviator. My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did all together with her last, having previously used four bottles of "Mother's Friend." It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a mother, says a customer of mine.

ITALY BACKS DOWN.

No Trace Left of the War Scare Aroused by Her Action.

Future Diplomatic Negotiations to Proceed with Deliberation—Premier Rudini Says His Demands Will Not Be Pushed.

THERE WILL BE NO WAR.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Italian war clouds roll by. Marquis Rudini has cabled Marquis Imperiali, "in charge of current business," explaining the various things which the Italian government didn't mean when it formulated its two demands. In view of the explicit statements made in Minister Fava's letter of recall the explanation is a little queer. It won't be possible, however, to charge the misunderstanding on the ex-minister, because Marquis Rudini gave out the substance of the correspondence in Rome before a line of Baron Fava's letter to Secretary Blaine had been made public. The cable dispatches authorized by the Rudini ministry correspond exactly as to the two demands. But since Marquis Rudini instructs the remnant of the Italian legation in Washington that the Italian government did not mean to demand that the federal government of the United States guarantee in advance the verdict of a state jury it is presumed hereafter King Humbert's advisers will be less hasty.

The news of Marquis Rudini's pacific retreat was received with good-natured comment in official and diplomatic circles. The president and secretary of state were pleased that the determination of the United States not to lose its temper was meeting with a gratifying response so early. It is probable that private advices from Minister Porter at Rome confirmed the belief they entertained when Secretary Blaine addressed his note to Marquis Imperiali that what the Italian government most needed in the crisis was a little time for reflection.

The evidence that public sentiment in the United States thoroughly upheld the stand taken by the administration was no less pleasing than the knowledge that the negotiations between Italy and the United States could now go forward without danger of a diplomatic rupture. This was the interpretation placed upon the assurances contained in Marquis Rudini's dispatch. Practically the status of the case remains where it was before Baron Fava's recall. Diplomatic intercourse is not interrupted and the usual correspondence will go forward on all the bearings of the case.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The excitement over the Italian affair has almost completely subsided and it is not a topic of sufficient live interest to engage attention in fashionable drawing-rooms. Secretary Blaine is not yet prepared to make public anything throwing additional light on the situation, and unless there should be, contrary to all expectations, another bombshell as sudden and startling as the recall of Baron Fava, it is probable that the Italian entanglement will not again be a subject of all-engrossing public interest and that it will take the usual tedious course of diplomacy

RUDINI'S PRIVATE OPINION.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The Mail and Express' Rome correspondent has had an interview with an intimate friend of Marquis di Rudini. The marquis was asked by this friend how he felt toward the United States at this moment. The prime minister's reply was that he harbored none but the most friendly sentiments toward the United States government, and these had not really been disturbed by the action which he felt called upon to take as the representative of the Italian people upon being officially made acquainted with the New Orleans affair and the position which Blaine was obliged to take in the matter. He said that he had no intention of pushing any demands, and was content with having taken one positive step as a protest against what he was led to believe at the time was neglect on the part of the United States government to protect the lives of Italian citizens in America under the provisions of the treaty. He expressed himself as aware that to do anything more at this juncture would be a grave error on his part, as he has perfect confidence in the sincerity and justice of the United States government. Finally he said:

"I shall now simply wait for further details of the New Orleans affair, of the characters of the slain men, of the action of the Louisiana authorities, and of the intentions of the United States government; but, whatever these may be, I am quite sure that a settlement thoroughly satisfactory to both parties will be found, and that the friendship which binds the two nations will remain unalterable and secure."

All in the Family.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The national congress of Salvador has counted the election returns and finds that President Ezeta, who obtained control of the government by the revolution, has been almost unanimously elected for a term of four years. His brother, Antonio Ezeta, was elected vice president.

A Blaze in Michigan.

VERMONTVILLE, Mich., April 6.—At an early hour Sunday morning Browning's mammoth furniture factory, including the electric light plant, was burned to the ground; nothing was saved. The loss is from $18,000 to $20,000 and the insurance about $5,000.

A 10-Year-Old Robber.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 6.—Andrew Nolan, 10 years old, has been arrested for stealing $11,000 in bank checks from the post office. He had a knack of opening the bank's post office drawer and collecting the mail.

Eighty Miles an Hour.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 6.—F. Budd, a workman employed at the Erie railway shops in this city, has invented a locomotive which, it is expected, will make over eighty miles an hour.

Lost His Eyes.

OWENSVILLE, Ind., April 6.—Dr. P. Bird, of this place, had both his eyes destroyed by the explosion of a bottle of medicine he was shaking up.

THEY DIED GAME.

The Law Takes the Lives of Joseph and David Nicely.

SOMERSET, Pa., April 3.—The Nicely brothers were hanged at 1:43 o'clock p. m. Thursday. They died game and protesting their innocence. Death resulted from strangulation. The bodies were cut down about nineteen minutes after the trap was sprung.

[On Wednesday evening, February 27, 1889, Herman Umberger, aged 71, a wealthy farmer living on the Johnstown pike, about 2 miles from Jennertown, was shot and instantly killed and robbed of about $16,000 by two men. Joseph Nicely, aged 37, and David Nicely, aged 25, both men of families, sons of well-to-do parents, and living about 15 miles from the tragedy, were arrested, tried and found guilty of the murder. The evidence was sensational and the testimony very contradictory. The efforts of the counsel for the Nicelys to obtain a commutation of sentence from the pardon board were sadly handicapped, and probably frustrated, by the attempts of the prisoners to escape. Twice the condemned men broke out of jail; once they were discovered while at work on the inside, and not long ago they were found in possession of an assortment of very fine files. When they escaped the first time Turnkey McMillan was shot and seriously wounded. The condemned men were captured two hours after their escape. In getting away the second time Joe broke his ankle and Dave was also injured. This time they surrendered to farmers in whose barns they had been hiding for several days. Several alleged confessions of the crime were received from different parts of the country, but they were generally discredited and Gov. Beaver, a few days before the expiration of his term, fixed today as the time for execution. The condition of Joseph Nicely recently attracted great attention, opinions being divided as to whether he was really deranged or feigning insanity. A few days ago Dr. Orth, after a careful examination, said that Joe was undoubtedly insane. Appeals were made to Gov. Pattison to grant a reprieve, but he declined to interfere.]

A TUG GOES DOWN.

Three Men Drowned by an Accident on Lake Erie.

CLEVELAND, O., April 4.—The tug Tempest ran out into the outer harbor Saturday afternoon to tow in a raft to the Cleveland Lumber Company's mill. While attempting to turn the raft at the mouth of the harbor a big wave struck the tug broadside on and rolled her over and she sank like a stone. Two tugs and the life-saving crew were on the spot in a few moments and picked up Captain Murray and one of the crew. Howard Lewis, engineer, William Hughes, fireman, and Harry Hersey, deck hand, were in the engine-room and were drowned. The bodies were recovered by a diver.

CALIFORNIA'S POPULATION.

The Result of a Special Count by Races Made Public.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Superintendent Porter has made public the result of a special count by races of the state of California as follows: White, 1,111,550; colored, 11,437; Chinese, 71,681; Japanese, 1,099; Indians, 12,355; total, 1,208,130. The statement further shows that while the Chinese population of the state as a whole has decrease by 3,451 since 1880, there has been an increase in the Chinese population of the county of San Francisco since that time of 4,125.

The Monetary Conference Ended.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The international American monetary commission which organized here last January in pursuance of a resolution adopted by the late international American conference, closed its session Friday by the adoption of a preamble reciting that the fixing of a ratio between gold and silver and the adoption of a common monetary unit does not seem at present feasible. A resolution was passed ending the work of the commission.

Many Houses Flooded.

WAPAKONETA, O., April 4.—The west bank of the St. Mary's reservoir is nearly washed away and houses for miles around are flooded. A large gang of men are at work repairing the break. The Lake Erie & Western railroad track is under water for some distance and business at the oil wells is almost entirely suspended. The loss to property has already reached $250,000.

Three Counterfeiters Caught.

PEORIA, Ill., April 6.—Three young men living in Minier, Tazwell county, just across the river, giving their names as Edward Patterson, John Woods and Grant Shouf, were arrested here Saturday night and lodged in jail charged with uttering counterfeit nickles. A half bushel of counterfeit nickels and the dies for their manufacture were captured.

Fired on the Flag.

KINGSTON, N. Y., April 6.—Italian quarry laborers near here, after adopting some denunciatory resolutions concerning the New Orleans lynching, hoisted an American flag and then riddled it with bullets. The quarry owners discharged the foreigners.

Lived to a Good Old Age.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Catharine Seton, mother superior of the Convent of Mercy in this city, died yesterday at the age of 91 years. She was the daughter of Elizabeth Bagley, the founder of the Sisters of Charity in this country.

Murdered for Fifty Cents.

GOSHEN, Ind., April 6.—Alexander Snyder, aged 70, was murdered while asleep in a factory office here Saturday night. His head was split open with a club. The murderers got less than fifty cents for their trouble.

Held to Answer.

NEW ORLEANS, April 4.—Detective O'Malley, who was charged with packing the jury in the Mafia cases, surrendered himself to the authorities yesterday and gave bail for appearance when wanted.

Immigration in March.

NEW YORK, April 4.—During the month of March 42,767 immigrants arrived at this port, or 13,343 more than in March, 1889. Italy leads the list with 7,869.

Direct Tax Claims Paid.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The direct tax claims of New Jersey, $382,614, and of Ohio, $1,332,025, have been paid by the treasury department.

The president has issued a proclamation setting apart for a public forest certain lands in Wyoming under the act repealing the timber culture law.

AN AWFUL DEED.

An Indiana Mother Slain by Her Crazy Son.

The Young Man Also Commits Suicide—A Telegraph Operator Beats His Aged Mother and Kills Himself at Anderson, Ind.

MURDERED BY HER BOY.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 4.—Ward Demaree, 22 years of age, living with his father and mother and two sisters and two brothers on Sixth street in this city, on Friday afternoon cut the throat of his aged mother, who lay sick in bed with the grip, and then cut his own throat from ear to ear, each dying instantly. At the moment when the young man sent his mother's and his own soul into eternity there was in an adjoining room a Miss Green, a boarding student of the State university, and the 8-year-old sister of the matricide and suicide, but they didn't hear a sound of the shocking deed going on so near them. Upon going into the sickroom they were horrified to see Mrs. Demaree with her head nearly severed from her body lying dead in a pool of blood and Ward Demaree in a like condition on the floor.

Demaree had been a college student for some time and had been studying languages preparatory to attending Princeton college. At the time of the tragedy an older daughter was absent at school and the mother lay upon the bed sick. Two smaller children were about the house. The mother, seeing that her son had a razor in his hand as he approached her bedside, motioned the children from the room. Ward approached his mother's bedside and with one slash of the razor nearly severed her head from her body. The son, after looking at his fiendish work a minute or more, knelt on the floor and with the same bloody weapon cut his own throat. The bed and floor presented a ghastly spectacle to the excited people who soon crowded into the room. The tragedy was enacted in the heart of the city. All parties are highly connected. The family knew of the son's aberration of mind, but had kept the matter a profound secret.

TERRIBLE RESULT OF A SPREE.

ANDERSON, Ind., April 4.—Friday at noon Ed Alexander, a telegraph operator, beat his aged mother into insensibility, and, under the impression that he had killed her, swallowed a lot of poison and then shot himself inflicting a slight wound. He died at 5 o clock from the effects of the poison. He was to have been married next Wednesday.

LITTLE RHODY'S ELECTION.

Republicans Hold the Legislature—No Choice for General Officers.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 3.—Returns indicate conclusively that there has been no choice by the voters of any of the candidates on the general ticket. Enough towns have been carried by the republicans to give them 55 on joint ballot in the legislature. The total vote for governor is as follows: Davis (dem.), 22,249; Ladd (rep.), 21,895; Larry (pro.), 1,829; Burton (nationalist), 884. The new general assembly will stand as follows: Senate—republicans, 21; democrats, 9, with 6 members yet to be chosen. The house will consist of 34 republicans and 23 democrats. Nineteen members have yet to be chosen.

Bayard's Daughter Weds.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 3.—The marriage of Count R. A. Lewenhaupt to Miss Ellen Bayard, oldest daughter of ex-Secretary of State Thomas F. Bayard, was solemnized in the old Swedish Episcopal church in this city at high noon. Count Lewenhaupt is a Swedish nobleman and is employed at the works of the Harlan & Hollingsworth company. He is a skillful and industrious workman, and is known as one of the best draughtsmen in the world.

Can't Meet Its Obligations.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 4.—The Columbia Iron & Steel Company of Uniontown, Pa., has made an assignment in favor of its creditors. The liabilities are supposed to be $800,000. The Pennsylvania Construction Company is forced to go with it, being an adjunct. Its liabilities are $200,000, with assets of $150,000. The assignment is attributed to bad management, high freight tariff, etc.

Increase of Circulation.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—A statement prepared by the treasury department shows that there was a net increase of $11,614,415 in the circulation during the month of March, principally in silver certificates, of treasury notes and United States notes. During the same period there was a net decrease of $4,984,530 in the treasury holdings, principally in United States notes.

To Be Hanged at the End of a Year.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., April 6.—David E. Davis smothered his wife, who was forty-six years his senior, in order to gain possession of her property. He has been sentenced to one year in the penitentiary and to be hanged at the end of that time. The case has been appealed to the supreme court.

Gold-Bearing Quartz.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 6.—Gold-bearing quartz has been discovered in the quarry now being operated by the Housatonic Water Company for the repairing of its dam at Birmingham. It is believed the stone will pay $10 to the ton.

Favor Blaine.

BOSTON, April 6.—A canvass of the republican members of the legislature on the presidential question shows that Blaine is the first choice of 104, Harrison of 24, Sherman of 6, Reed of 5 and Alger of 2.

A Cold Day for Parnell.

LONDON, April 3.—The election occurred in Sligo on Thursday. The Parnellites admit they are defeated and the nationalists expect a majority of about 1,000.

Still They Come.

NEW YORK, April 6.—The steamer Hecla reached this city yesterday with 500 Scandinavian immigrants bound for Chicago.

Last April she was taken down with Measles, followed with a with a dreadful Cough and turning into a Fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones".—Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at J. J. Orr's drug store.

MARVELOUS ENDURANCE.

The vast amount of labor performed by the heart in keeping all portions of the body supplied with blood is not generally known. It beats 100,000 times and forces the blood at the rate of 164 miles a day, which is 3,000,000,000 times and 5,150,880 miles in a life time. No wonder there are so many HEART FAILURES. The first symptoms are shortness of breath when exercising, pain in the side or stomach, fluttering choking in throat, oppression, then follow weak, hungry or smothering spells, swolen ankles, etc. Dr. Franklen Miles' NEW HEART CURE is the only relirabler emedy. Sold by Baker & Hall.

A BLUE RIBBON.

A ribbon of the softest blue,
The sweet June sky's most lovely hue,
When youth and hope made all things fair—
I bought it to bind up my hair—
To all my life it held the key,
Yet never was it worn by me.

"My own! my own!" I thought him then,
The handsome, blithe young sailor Ben.
His last "good-bye" on leaving shore,
His gladdest greeting home once more,
Were always mine. 'Twas with a thought
Of him that ribbon first was bought.

My heart beat high. I always knew
Just when the Beany Bride was due.
"With foot on land you sail the sea."
Light laughed my cousin Jane at me,
Oh, shallow-hearted, weak and vain,
But full of arts, was Cousin Jane.

She spied my ribbon fresh and new,
She snatched the length of shining blue,
And knotted it upon her breast.
"It is the shade that suits me best;
Oh, let me wear it once," she said.
I bit my lip, but bowed my head.

When looking up, within the door
Stood Ben, my Ben, at home once more;
But, oh! his gaze—why should it be?—
Was turned on Jane instead of me!
She never looked so fair before;
'Twas that blue ribbon that she wore!

With jealous pang I knew it then—
Forever lost to me was Ben.
When Love attempts his wings to try,
'Tis vain to stay him; let him fly!
But, oh! I knew I need not mourn
Had I myself that ribbon worn!

Well, let it go. Sore Heaven's grace
Needs she who is not fair of face.
But 'tis its red robe makes the rose;
The garments charm for beauty goes;
And that blue ribbon held the key
Of all my lonely life for me!

—Marian Douglas, in Harper's Bazar.

JIM AND DOLLY.

A Sketch from Life on the Western Prairies.

Dolly and he were friends. How or why the friendship was struck up is unknown. But this much is certain, that the first advances must have come from Dolly herself. For a friendship of any kind, much less a friendship with a chubby, dimpled little maiden was not much in Jim's line.

There was nothing attractive about Jim—quite the reverse. A great hulking fellow, with a sullen face and evil eyes, who, young as he was, had dipped more freely into life's book than is well for any man to dip. And Jim had not come out of the ordeal unsoiled. It was a rough place, that little Western mining camp in which he worked—a rough place, full of rough men, with whom, moreover, he was no favorite.

"I calc'late," said Judge Remis, who was taking his ease outside after a hard day's work, and blowing in a gentle, meditative sort of way the curling smoke from his pipe—"I calc'late that a more thorough-paced young scoundrel than that Jim don't walk the earth—darned if he do!"

This sentiment, as fully embodying the views of the camp, was received with nods of assent. "And yet," said the judge, taking the pipe from his mouth, the better to enforce the remark, "Dolly there seems sort o' struck with him."

"That's so," said Big Ben, thoughtfully.

The camp uttered a growl or two of protest. What did Dolly see in him? was what the camp wanted to know—a question more easily asked than answered.

Pretty baby Dolly! with her dimpled face and brown eyes—darling baby Dolly! the God-given bit of childhood which was blossoming in the midst of that band of wild, hard-living, hard-drinking fellows, not one of whom at his wildest and worst would have done aught to harm her.

"Jest look at 'em," said the judge, raising himself up on his elbow from the soft grass.

The men followed his gaze; and about twenty yards away, appearing over the prairie ridge, they saw the two; Dolly seated on Jim's beautiful horse, Red Mustang, one of Jim's strong arms thrown protectingly around her; the other carrying her basket of berries, full to an extent that showed that Dolly's chubby, little hands had never gathered them alone.

Dolly herself was regarding the luscious fruit admiringly. "Daddy'll yike 'em, Dim, won't he?" they heard her remark.

"Well!" said Jim, savagely, "seein' as it is daddy, I've no doubt he will. Daddy's ready for most all he can get."

There was a sufficient amount of truth in the statement to cause a smothered laugh of amusement amongst the listeners, in which daddy, otherwise the judge, good-humoredly joined.

Dolly did not laugh; instead her brown eyes grew troubled. Jim's remark had savored of disloyalty to daddy and loyalty to daddy was part of Dolly's simple creed. Suddenly she brightened. "So am I," she announced.

"Are yer, now?" asked Jim.

"Iss," said Dolly. "Aren't you?"

Jim did not reply. Catching sight of the spectators, he lifted Dolly and the berries roughly to the ground, and went on his way in his customary moody silence.

Dolly, apparently quite used to such treatment from her strange friend, picked up her basket and trotted contentedly to her father's side.

"Who've you been with, Dolly?" said Big Ben, catching her up in his arms and tossing her to the sky.

"Dim," said Dolly from Ben's shoulder.

The men laughed.

"Well, I am surprised," said Big Ben, loftily—"a little gell like you taking up with such as him. I wonder at you, Dolly."

For answer, Dolly buried her hands in Big Ben's curls, laughing gleefully. Whereupon a glorious game of romps ensued.

However, it so happened that Jim was to give a practical answer to Dolly's question as to whether he was ready for all he could get, by committing a theft—a daring theft, and by no means his first, although for the first time discovered.

"Caught red-handed," said Big Ben, his hand tightening ominously on his heavy stock-whip.

The camp was soon ablaze with the news, and from every side there flocked angry, fierce-eyed men. They made short work of such sinners in those days. A few yards of rope and the nearest tree used to settle the business effectually. A man might gamble or swear or use his pistol as freely as he pleased, but in such a community theft was necessarily the unpardonable crime.

"To the right about!" said Big Ben, sternly.

Jim scowled at him. He did not ask for mercy, knowing that it would be useless. He would have been the last to offer it in such a case himself.

Suddenly, attracted by the tumult, appeared Dolly, looking out at the world from her great sun-bonnet.

"Run away!" said the judge, sharply; "this 'ere ain't no place for little gells."

Dolly was an obedient little soul, and in an ordinary case would have obeyed. But, baby as she was, something of the significance of the scene came home to her; Jim standing alone amidst that ring of cruel faces.

She gazed pitifully at him.

"Go away, Dolly," said Big Ben; "you've nothing to do with him. He's a thief."

Dolly's eyes sought Jim's for a denial.

As he met them with his own reckless, defiant ones a something else flashed into them, and then and there he uttered a downright lie: "Don't you believe 'em, Dolly; I ain't nothing of the sort." And half involuntarily he threw a wistful glance at Big Ben.

Spite of his roughness, Big Ben must have had a soft spot somewhere, for, bending down to Dolly, he said, gently: "There, you see, Dolly, I must have been mistook. This 'ere fellow, instead of being a thief, is a wirtuous youth, a innicent angel, in fact. Now, run away."

So Dolly departed, satisfied.

After she left, silence and hesitation fell upon the men. The little scene had touched them. After a whispered consultation the judge, stepping forward, cut the cord round Jim's wrist, saying, curtly: "Here, you young scoundrel, we'll let you off this time! But clear out of this; we don't want no thieves here."

Without a word Jim turned on his heel. Some men would have left the place at once; Jim was made of different stuff. Expelled from the camp, he built himself a cabin on the outskirts, not trying to live the disgrace down, but enduring it with the dogged obstinacy which was part of his nature. The miners, even Big Ben, ignored him completely; for Ben, for all that instant of softness, had certain rugged fibers of pride about him which led him to treat a thief with merciless justice.

But there came a time when Jim and Red Mustang between them were to do a fine work—a time when a sudden danger loomed out, and Jim rose to it like the brave man that he was—when with clenched teeth he subdued the demon within him, and proved that on occasion he was ready—not for all he could get, but to give up all that he had. For a savage "whoop" rang out one night on the unsuspecting camp. Men knew what it was, and sprang to their feet with a snarl of rage. Rifle in hand they rushed out.

"Injin," said the judge, coolly loading his rifle; and in the moonlight gleamed the dusky painted figures. There was little love lost between Injun and white man. The "man-and-a-brother" theory had not been propounded on either side. It was war to the knife on both. "Steady! boys, steady!" said the judge, to whom such scenes were by no means new. "Ready there? Now—at 'em!"

And "at 'em" it was. Down swung the muskets, out flashed the shot, and with a look that was not good to see upon their faces, the boys began their work—sharp work—butchery. The savages swarmed into the camp only to be cut down. It was soon over. But the Indians had fought bravely, and, old tried hand as he was, an uneasy light had leapt to the judge's eye. "It was a close shave," he muttered, wiping the great drops of sweat from his brow as he watched the fleeing band—"a close shave. A little more and"— The pause was suggestive.

The day was already breaking when the judge turned in home. "Hope the little lass hasn't been scared," he thought; and involuntarily a queer, tender gleam passed over the weather-beaten face as he thought of his "little lass."

"Dolly," he said, opening the cabin door. There was no answer. "Dolly!" and then again a little quicker: "Dolly!"

Again that night the men were aroused by a cry—an awful cry, wrung from a strong man in pain; and when they hurried forward it was to find the judge with the fashion of his face all changed, pointing to the empty cabin, on whose floor shone the gleam of a tomahawk. That and the confusion of the place told its tale all too plainly; Dolly had been carried off by the Indians!

In the dazed silence Jim stepped forward—Jim, with his shoulders well squared and a resolute look on his face. He eyed the group rather scornfully. "Going to stop here all day?" he asked. "Bein' as this is just the right time to give your horses a rest! I'm off!" And so he was, he and Red Mustang together, racing over the plain. But not before he had seized the judge's hand in a fierce grip, saying with a totally unexpected catch in his voice: "Judge, if I can, I'll bring her back." Not much, but it meant a great deal.

Thoroughly roused, the rest followed his example—not one hung back. All that fleet horses and brave hearts could do would be done for the little one.

Over the prairie the little cavalcade started, Red Mustang, with that easy swinging stride of hers, taking the lead and keeping it. But Jim pulled her up sharply as there came a triumphant shout from behind: "Here's a trail!"

Riding up, Jim looked at it with his keen eyes. "That's no trail!" he said, contemptuously.

Now, the rest of the men having stated that it was a trail, and being at least as well able to judge as Jim, did not receive his remark in the pleasantest spirit.

"It are the trail," said Daryl Dash, in a quietly conclusive way, as if that settled it.

"But it aren't!" said Jim, squarely.

Now Daryl Dash was one of the most trusted hands in the camp, and, being backed by Big Ben, the rest naturally took his side.

"This ain't no time for foolin'," they said, very sternly. "Here's the trail, plain as can be; and we're goin' to follow it up."

"I'm not foolin'," retorted Jim with a kind of desperate earnestness. "That trail's too plain for Injins to have left, unless they done it a' purpose. I can find the trail right enough if you let me. Trust me, boys."

"Take it, or leave it," the men had said, as they galloped off upon their trail.

Away in the East the sun was touching the sky with red-gold light. Great crimson bars, flecked with orange, gleamed out broadly and then melted into the softer harmony around, and before one knew it, the whole shining mass united and out flashed the sun. But before it did that, Jim had made up his mind to do a very risky thing—to rescue Dolly single-handed. Who else was there to do it? The others had ridden away in a direction which was every moment taking them farther away from the right track.

"My God!" he said, wildly. "Was it a prayer from those rough lips?—a prayer which the Good Shepherd heard and answered? For Jim played a hero's part that day. He found the trail. For the sun gliding downwards caught the light of a small pink object on the brushwood, and rested there lovingly. Nothing much—just the torn string from a little child's sun-bonnet. But at the sight Jim broke into a suppressed whistle of triumph, and raced Red Mustang forward as she had never been raced before. I never like to think about that ride. Enough, that Red Mustang responded loyally to the situation. From "noon to dewy eve" she carried Jim steadily. But when, trembling, foam-flecked, and parched with thirst, he stopped her as the Indian camp loomed in sight, he knew that his work was cut out.

"Quiet! old lass! quiet!" he said, cautiously, dismounting and patting her with a look on his face that few but Dolly or Red Mustang had ever seen there.

The gallant beast seemed to understand, and, suppressing a whinny, rubbed her nose wistfully against the caressing hand.

Half gliding, half creeping forward, Jim took in the situation at a glance. The Indians had evidently only just stopped, and were hastily improvising a sort of camp. But unsuspicious as they were of being followed so soon, Jim knew that this first careless bustle of arrival would not last long, but that sentries would be set to guard against any approach. Suddenly his blood thrilled; for there before him, not a dozen yards away, lay Dolly reposing on an old blanket in the healthy sleep of childhood.

It was a foolish thing to do, perhaps, considering the state Red Mustang was in; but then Jim was desperate. How he crawled forward, seized Dolly, and got back with her to Red Mustang unperceived, he could never have told himself. But get back with her he did, and in a flash the three were off.

"Dim!" said Dolly, clinging in blissful content to the rough red-shirted arms.

"Ay," Jim answered, glancing down at her as he tightened Red Mustang's girth; "you go to sleep, Dolly."

So Dolly's little brown head nestled down, and Jim and Red Mustang made what speed they could, which was not a very great speed, although there came sounds from behind which made the mare tear forward and turned Jim white. The Indians were in pursuit!

Mile by mile, hour after hour, that fearful race went on. The rugged line of hills which marked the camp were in sight now. But could Red Mustang hold out? She was already trembling ominously, and Jim knew that the time was come. If she were to reach the camp at all, it must be without his weight on her back.

"Dolly!" he said, with a shake which made Dolly open her sleepy eyes. "I want you to do somethin' for me," he went on persuasively; "I want to get down here, I've—I've—a partic'ler reason for wanting to get down here"—and the arm holding Dolly as gently as a woman's kept her head turned well forward: "Red Mustang'll take you to the camp all right, if you'll be a brave little gell and go alone."

"Oh!" and Dolly's frightened clutch was very firm.

"Will you, Dolly?" said Jim feverishly. "Dolly! Dolly! Little lass! Will you? For me."

"Iss, Dim," said Dolly, with quivering lips.

Dismounting, Jim fastened her swiftly and firmly to the saddle, and gave Red Mustang the word. "Good-bye, Dolly;" and Jim's mustache brushed the rosy lips.

"Dood-bye, Dim," said Dolly.

Red Mustang whinnied uneasily. But her master had told her to go, and she went.

"She'll do it," said Jim, with a great sigh of relief.

The Indians were very close now.

In a curious, concentrated kind of way, Jim gazed at the plain, which the moonlight was kindling into peaceful beauty. Then, with an ugly light in his eye, he drew out his bowie-knife and turned to face what was before him.

"Whoso giveth a cup of cold water to one of these little ones, he giveth it unto me." And Jim had given more than that—he had given his life, for the next day Big Ben and the rest found him on the plain—scalped.—Chambers' Journal.

—In speaking of the minute parasites which are found in the hairy part of the tiger's foot, a scientist says: "They constitute one of the most wonderful curiosities I know of in the animal world. The parasites are so small as to be almost invisible to the naked eye, and yet each is a perfect counterpart of the tiger: head, ears, jaw, legs, claws, body, tail, all are there. You may think this a big story, but look the subject up and see if this is not so."

THE FIRST STEP.

Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think, can't do anything to your satisfaction, and you wonder what ails you. You should heed the warning, you are taking the first step into Nervous Prostration. You need a Nerve Tonic and in Electric Bitters you will find the exact remedy for restoring your nervous system to its normal, healthy condition. "Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is a sure cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor Enquirer, McArthur, Ohio.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

PROGRESS.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY,

Dr. Brown Sequard's elixir of youth may be an important discovery, but every one knows that Dr. Franklin Miles' New Heart Cure certainly is. It has given thousands afflicted serious heart disease a New Lease of Life. Druggists who can observe its effects on many costomers everywhere speak very highly of it. Mr. John Weaver, Knightstown Ind., says: "I have sold much of Dr. Miles New Cure and have received many good reports.", O. Monroe, of Dunkirk, N. Y., report large sales. "And the best part of it is every bottle has given satisfaction. Sold and guaranteed by Baker & Hall.

ONE DOLLAR WELL INVESTED.

If you have bad breath, constipation, pain in the small of the back, discolored skin, nervousness, or dizziness your only wise course is to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. It will cleanse the blood of all impurities, regulates the Kidneys and Liver, and thus restore a healthy glow to your checks again. All druggists; one dollar a bottle.

PUBLIC SAFETY

DEMANDS

That only honest and reliable medicines should be placed upon the market. It cannot, therefore, be stated too emphatically, nor repeated too often, that all who are in need of a genuine Blood-purifier should be sure and ask for

Ayer's

Sarsaparilla. Your life, or that of some one near and dear to you, may depend on the use of this well-approved remedy in preference to any other preparation of similar name. It is compounded of Honduras sarsaparilla (the variety most rich in curative properties), stillingia, mandrake, yellow dock, and the iodides. The process of manufacture is original, skilful, scrupulously clean, and such as to secure the very best medicinal qualities of each ingredient. This medicine is not boiled nor heated, and is, therefore, not a decoction; but it is a compound extract, obtained by a method exclusively our own, of the best and most powerful alteratives, tonics, and diuretics known to pharmacy. For the last forty years, Ayer's has been the standard blood-purifier of the world—no other approaching it in popular confidence or universal demand. Its formula is approved by the leading physicians and druggists. Being pure and highly concentrated, it is the most economical of any possible blood medicine. Every purchaser of Sarsaparilla should insist upon having this preparation and see that each bottle bears the well-known name of

Sarsaparilla

J. C. Ayer & Co.,
Lowell, Mass.

In every quarter of the globe Ayer's Sarsaparilla is proved to be the best remedy for all diseases of the blood. Lowell druggists unite in testifying to the superior excellence of this medicine and to its great popularity in the city of its manufacture.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH. AHRIL 9, 1891

Mrs. George Wier is quite sick.

Mrs. Levi Richmond is very sick.

Mrs. Frank Kirchgessner is seriously ill.

Miss Lou McDermott is home from Detroit.

J. T. Clark made a trip to Detroit last Friday.

Fred Marble is receiving congratulations this week.

M. L. Calkins, of East Toledo, was in town Tuesday.

Mrs. B. F. Thompson is very sick with lung trouble.

Mrs. Hattie Johnston was quite sick the first of the week.

Frank Morey, of Monroe, visited friends here last week.

We are glad to see that Mrs. A. W. Stalker is again able to be out.

Mrs. Elsie Rowland, of Tecumseh, called on Clinton friends last Friday.

Miss Ettie Rowland, of Tecumseh, is at her sister's, Mrs. Frank Thompson's.

Miss Anna Kirchgessner is absent from Clark's store, a victim of la grippe.

Dan O'Reilly came home from Lansing Monday to vote and returned Tuesday noon.

Mrs. Kate Fox, of Manchester, came down Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Starr.

William Price was taken suddenly worse Sunday, the result of over-exercising. He is still very low.

Will Hall expects to leave here the 21st of this month for a two months' visit with friends in Scotland.

Miss Frances Matthews has obtained a position as teacher at Menominee and left for that place last Thursday.

Miss Minnie Hess was taken sick last week and was obliged to leave her school. She is at James Fitzgerald's.

Mrs. H. H. Green and daughter, who have been visiting Mrs. George Freese, returned to their home at Paine's Hollow, N. Y., last Thursday.

Rev. H. R. Williams officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Rha Conklin in Bridgewater last Sunday. The Congregational choir was also in attendance.

The last lecture on the course was given by James Phelps Leland Tuesday evening on "World-making" and was considered to be by all odds one of the best lectures we have ever had here.

James Farrell is moving into E. R. Smith's house, recently vacated by Mr. Christiansen. Mr. Christiansen and family left Wednesday for Chicago, where he expects to work in a brickyard.

Lon Marshall has sold his farm four miles west of this place and will move his family here soon. They will occupy the brick house owned by Andrew McDermott, corner of Tecumseh and Franklin streets.

Mrs. Eliza Starr died at her home in this village Monday at 4 o'clock, p. m., from la grippe. She was sick but a few days. The funeral was held on Wednesday at 2 p. m., Rev. J. Ward Stone officiating.

James Hogan has purchased J. W. Bradner's farm, at $70 per acre. Mr. Bradner will sell at auction, Saturday, April 11th, 9 horses, 150 bushels of corn, several tons of hay, and a large number of farming implements.

Election day passed off quietly but firmly in favor of the Democrats, with one exception: J. W. Bradner, member of board of review, was defeated by two votes. The following are the candidates elected, with their majorities:

Wesley B. Keyser, Supervisor, 63; A. F. Kishpaugh, township clerk, 41; Louis K. Davis, treasurer, 55; E. R. Smith, justice of the peace, 51; John Keusch, highway commissioner, 21; Alexander C. Brown, drain commissioner, 21; Genevieve Burroughs, school inspector, 25. Constables—George Goodrich, John Noon, John P. Wallace, Richard G. Schreder, 29.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm, and in a short time the discharge was cured.—O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Grayness, baldness, dandruff, and all diseases of the scalp, and falling of the hair can be cured by using Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer

IT WORKS WONDERS.

The tonic and alterative properties of S. S. S. are now widely known, and it enjoys wonderful popularity as a spring medicine. It is as perfectly adapted to the delicate system of a little child as it is to that of the adult. It works wonders on those who use it as a tonic, as an alterative, and as a blood purifier. It gives health, strength and heartiness to the sick and the feeble. It is adapted to the very young and the very old. It revives, renews and builds up the feeble or the broken-down system.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

SIX CENTS FOR A HEART.

Mrs. Julia Goddard's Affections Assessed at a Very Low Figure.

Mrs. Julia Goddard, aged 45, brought suit against Dr. Westcott, aged 74, of Grand Rapids, for breach of promise. She received a verdict of $1,500 upon the first trial and he appealed. The second trial closed with a verdict of six cents and costs for plaintiff. The woman attended Westcott's first wife in her last illness and managed the house during the funeral. Afterward the old man proposed and she consented to marry him if he first secured the consent of his 30-year-old daughter to the match. The daughter refused to consent. The old man considered the match off and married another woman who did not make any conditions.

Women Working for Missions.

The Michigan branch of the Woman's Board of Missions in session at Grand Rapids elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Joseph Estabrook, of Olivet; secretary, Mrs. George R. Gold, of Flint; treasurer, Mrs. R. A. Campbell, of Ann Arbor; vice presidents, Mrs. J. B. Angell of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. J. Morgan Smith of Grand Rapids. Twelve young ladies were chosen, with Mrs. J. B. Angell at their head, to canvass the state in the interest of missions. Greenville was selected as the place of the next meeting in March, 1892.

Reckless Work by Miners.

Reckless work by some miners at the South Buffalo mine in Negaunee resulted in the death of Peter Doyle and Charles Petersen. A party was engaged in breaking an opening in the level where Doyle and Petersen were working from the one below. The upper level was nearly reached and a blast put in. The dynamite was fired directly under the feet of Petersen and Doyle, to whom no warning had been given. Doyle died within an hour and Petersen a short time after.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by forty-six observers in different parts of the state for the week ended March 28 indicated that puerperal fever, diphtheria and erysipelas increased, and cerebro spinal meningitis, typhoid-fever, pleuritis, cholera morbus, croup and typho-malarial fever decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at fourteen places, scarlet fever at thirty-six, typhoid fever at seven and measles at fifty-two places.

Will Keep His Place.

The celebrated Nellie Griffin state public school case at Coldwater came to an end by the board of control refusing to accept Superintendent Kirkwood's resignation. While their report censures him mildly they believe the best interests of the school will be subserved by retaining him, finding that, while he committed one grave error, his thorough and practical work demonstrates his worth and fitness for the place.

Calls It a Huge Joke.

No clew has yet been unearthed that will lead to the detection of the bandits who captured Joseph Perrien, of Detroit, demanded $15,000 for his release, and subsequently returned him to his home. It is a very queer affair, shrouded in the deepest mystery. Perrien has entirely recovered from the shock of his rough treatment and looks upon it as a huge joke.

Short but Newsy Items.

The Detroit college of medicine turned out forty-eight new doctors.

Horse sales from the Kalamazoo farm, for the year 1890, amounted to $70,955.

A breeding stallion belonging to Tonis Denring, of Zeeland, and valued at $5,000, has died.

The railroads running into Toledo, Findlay and Detroit have reduced rates on iron from the upper peninsula. It is designed to meet lake competition.

The house of Geo. C. Comler, in Thetford, was burned to the ground. Incendiarism was suspected.

The date for the Detroit exposition has been announced as August 25 to September 3.

Joshua Osborn, of Kinderhook, an old pioneer, died at the age of 84 years. He was a schoolmate of Gen. W. T. Sherman in Ohio.

The City bank of Winterstein, Vale & Co. has closed its doors.

Miss Myrtle Coats, who was to have been married soon, committed suicide by taking arsenic at Lansing.

Rev. Caroline J. Bartlett, pastor of the Unitarian church at Kalamazoo, preached her farewell sermon before departing for Europe.

O. A. Olsen was elected president of the Seventh Day Adventist conference at Battle Creek.

David McLaughlin, one of the best known republicans of Muskegon, died from a paralytic stroke. He was 61 years old.

Patrick Wall was killed by a railroad train at Kalamazoo.

James Prideaux's store and dwelling at South Lake, Linden, were burned. The loss was $2,000.

Allen Vandecars, 14 months old, while playing with matches at Belleville set fire to his clothing and was burned to death.

John Dempsey was probably fatally wounded at Flint by William Dwyer, a saloon keeper, against whom he had testified.

Fire broke out on the lumber docks of Harvey & McCraken, in Muskegon, and consumed 1,500,000 feet of white pine lumber. Loss, $15,000. Fully insured.

John Losey and his wife, residing near Jackson, were dangerously ill from the effects of arsenic administered in their food, supposably by a woman with whom they had had trouble.

The Michigan Knitting Company has secured its desired capital stock of $25,000 and will remain in Lansing. The business will be enlarged, and the employes will number 100 girls before August.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich., March 31.—A bill was favorably reported in the senate yesterday which places the fraternal organizations of the state under the inspection of the insurance commissioner and requires them to secure a license from him before doing business.

LANSING, Mich., April 1.—The time of the senate yesterday was occupied in routine business.

LANSING, Mich., April 2.—The senate yesterday passed an anti-railroad pass bill, which not only includes members of the legislature but state and judicial officers as well. The joint taxation committee reported in favor of the California system of taxing mortgages and a return to the county system of collection of taxes. The Share bill, which does away with the specific taxation of iron and copper mines and requires that they shall be taxed in the same manner as other property, was passed.

LANSING, Mich., April 3.—The bill appropriating $135,000 for the Ann Arbor university during 1891-'92 was taken up in the senate yesterday. The four patrons united against the bill on the ground that the university was costing too much and that a horde of foreign pupils were being educated at the expense of the poorer taxpayers of the state. The bill was tabled to save it from defeat. The house bill repealing the noted Baker conspiracy law was passed. Adjourned to the 6th.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., March 31.—The house yesterday passed the Dafoe bill which increases the specific tax of sleeping car, drawing room car and refrigerator car lines, and in fact all car loaning and fast freight lines doing business in this state, from 2½ to 6 per cent. on the gross earnings within the state. A bill was also passed amending the statute of 1889 relative to the winding up of the affairs of mining companies whose charters had expired by providing that notice of such contemplated closing up shall be published in adjoining counties when there are no newspapers published in the counties where the properties involved are situated.

LANSING, Mich., April 1.—The house yesterday passed the bill of Mr. Miller to change the method of choosing presidential electors, by providing that two shall be elected from the state at large on a general ticket and the remaining twelve by the congressional districts, one from each district. The bill to prohibit, as a felony under penalty of $500 or a year in state prison, at the discretion of the court, the use of free passes on railroads by any member of the legislature, of the state government or the judiciary was considered in committee of the whole.

LANSING, Mich., April 2.—The house yesterday passed the Miner election bill recommended by the committee of the whole by a vote of 52 to 26. A concurrent resolution was adopted that when the house adjourn today it be until Tuesday, April 7, at 7:15 p. m. The Fildew bill for the repeal of the Baker conspiracy law was passed.

LANSING, Mich., April 3.—The Coldwater school board of control yesterday revived the Nellie Griffin tragedy by reporting to the governor that Superintendent Newkirk should be retained at the head of the school. This stirred up the majority in the house, which had recommended that Newkirk be dismissed, and steps were taken to prepare articles of impeachment against the board for malfeasance in office. Adjourned to the 6th.

A NOTED MASON GONE.

Death at Washington of Gen. Albert Pike, Head of the Scottish Rite.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Gen. Albert Pike died at his home in Washington Thursday night from a complication of ailments incident to his old age. His family was with him, and his death bed was surrounded by masonic friends.

[Gen. Albert Pike, grand commander of the Scottish Rite of Free Masonry and chief of the Royal Order of Scotland for this country, was born in Boston December 29, 1809. He studied at Harvard, which conferred upon him the degree of master of arts. In 1831 he went west and had an adventurous career in Mexico and the southwest for a few years. In 1834 he became the proprietor of the Arkansas Advocate, studied law, and two years later was admitted to the bar. He served with distinction in the Mexican war. He became the editor of the Memphis Appeal, and later removed to New Orleans, where he practiced law. In 1859 he contributed to Blackwood's Magazine the "Hymns to the Gods." In the civil war he became confederate commissioner, negotiating treaties with several Indian tribes. He was appointed a brigadier general, organized bodies of Cherokee Indians and fought with them in the battle of Pea Ridge or Elkhorn Tavern. About seventeen years ago he went to Washington and since then made that city or Alexandria his home. He gave up the practice of law and devoted himself entirely to the masonic order, which he first entered at Little Rock, Ark. His literary works include "Prose Sketches and Poems" (1834), "Reports of Cases in the Supreme Court of Arkansas" (five volumes, 1840-'45), "Nugae," and a collection of poems. His successor as grand commander is thought to be either Surgeon General J. M. Browne, of the navy, or Thomas H. Caswell, of California. It is probable that Gen. Pike appointed Josiah H. Drummond, of Maine, to be his successor as head of the Royal Order of Scotland in the United States.]

ALBERT PIKE.

IRON MINES PLAYED OUT.

Two World-Famous Ore-Producers Exhausted—Mortgages to Be Foreclosed.

ST. LOUIS, April 4.—The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York is about to protect bondholders by foreclosing mortgages to the amount of $2,600,000 on the property of the St. Louis Ore and Steel Company. These are 6 per cent. bonds, $1,000,000 on the Pilot Knob mine, $1,000,000 in the Vulcan iron works, and $600,000 in the coal mines at Grand Tower and Carbondale, Ill. Interest on these has been defaulted since July, 1890, when E. A. Hitchcock was appointed receiver. The failure was directly due to the exhausting of the ore body, the diamond drill after penetrating to a depth of 500 feet failing to reveal any iron ores that could be profitably worked. Pilot Knob and Iron Mountain are two of the most famous mines in the world, and the supply of iron was once supposed to be inexhaustible. The Pilot Knob mine first began yielding in 1846, and in 1884, at its zenith, it yielded 200,000 tons. In 1886 the vein gave out.

A SQUAW man, a white man who marries an Indian woman, is defined as a man who wants a wife who will work for him and allow him to go six months without changing his shirt.

JOHN M. FRANCIS, editor of the Troy Times, who is spending the winter in Alabama and is nearly seventy years of age, is still hale and hearty, and enjoys his six or seven mile walk daily.

JOE BURKS, of Panther Creek, N. C., is an enthusiast upon the subject of egg eating. He lacks one inch of being seven feet high, and claims a record of having eaten 180 eggs at one meal.

His Refusal.

Teacher—Now, Willie Wilkins, I want you to tell me the truth—did Harry Thomas draw that picture on the board?

Willie Wilkins—Teacher, I firmly refuse to answer that question.

Teacher—You do?

Willie Wilkins—Because I gave Harry my word of honor I would not tell on him—Life.

Harper's Magazine.

ILLUSTRATED.

The important series of papers on South America, by THEODORE CHILD, will be continued in HARPER'S MAGAZINE during the greater part of the year 1891. The articles on Southern California, by CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER, will also be continued. Among other noteworthy attractions will be a novel by CHARLES EGBERT CRADDOCK; a collection of original drawings by W. M. THACKERAY, now published for the first time; a novel written and illustrated by GEO. DU MAURIER; a novelette by WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS; and a series of papers on London by WALTER BESANT.

In the number and variety of illustrated papers and articles on subjects of timely interest, as well as in the unrivalled character of its short stories, poems, etc., Harper's Magazine will continue to maintain that standard of excellence for which it has been so long distinguished.

Attention, Comrade.

DO YOU WANT A PENSION?

Do You Want Your Pension Increased.

There is a New Pension Law and nearly every soldier is now entitled to a pension.

DR. J. H. REYNOLDS

Late a member of the Board of Examining Surgeons at Adrian, Mich., and who has examined over two thousand soldiers for pensions, will hereafter devote two hours each day to

PENSION BUSINESS

The Doctor was a soldier and is a pensioner, and with his five years' experience as Examining Surgeon for Pensions, believes he can make it PAY YOU to come and see him.

He knows the RATE on every known disability.

Knows what Diseases or Disabilities are the results of any other.

Knows (as every EXAMINING SURGEON will tell you) that many men do not draw what the law allows them, because their claims are not presented in proper shape.

Knows how to put your claim in such shape that you will get pay for ALL results of the disease or wound for which you are pensioned.

Knows all the recent decisions made by Commissioner and how to give you the advantage of them in dollars.

Knows that some recent rulings are of vital importance to many pensioners, if their claims are only properly presented.

Knows whether you are entitled to Rerating, and how to get it.

I charge just the legal fees because I earn them ALWAYS BRING YOUR CERTIFICATE WITH YOU.

If you want the benefit of a Pension while you live go and see Dr. Reynolds.

I can get you from $2 to $6 more per month under the new law than other agents.

To any person examined by the board, at Adrian, before Aug. 1, 1889, I have something of importance to tell you.

Come and let us examine you (no charge) and will tell you all about it. About one-third of all the soldiers examined while I was on the board were rated for disabilities not claimed. You had better come and see me about it.

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness to that I had serious fears of permanent disability.

"Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way.

"Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

BRITTON BUDGET.

William Larrabee sports a new tile.

Hugh McDougall is suffering with sore eyes.

Two car loads of stock were shipped from here last week.

Robert Francis is busy painting the house of Labe Babcock.

Osgood Brothers have got a chicken incubator at their store.

Don't forget Millie, the Quadroon, Friday and Saturday evenings.

William McCarbry came home from Ypsilanti College last Saturday.

The new stage and scenery at the Opera House, will cost about $200.

Joseph Hunter has commenced to work on the house of Irve Osborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Haines, of Dundee, were visiting friends in Britton last week.

What about our grain elevator? It is time we were thinking about building one.

The star boarder is now at work, and the hotel is making money in consequence.

No new cases of diphtheria in our village, and the present cases are progressing favorably.

Mr. Strong has recovered from his attack of grippe, and will leave for Chicago very shortly.

Herbert Allen is doing quite a business in his barber shop, and he sports a new hat in consequence.

Good music at the Exelby Opera House, Friday and Saturday evenings, April 17th and 18th.

Arthur Lee will learn the carpenter trade this summer, and will work with Joseph Hunter, our Town Clerk.

Dr. Hendershot is having all the business he can attend too. He has shaved off his beard and looks a man again.

Dr. Hendershot will soon be building a new dwelling house in our village. His headquarters are at present at the hotel.

Come and see "The Best Cure," Friday and Saturday evenings. Zeke Peachblossom and George Parker are simply immense.

Dr. Smith has got a very sick horse at his infirmary, but we are glad to say, with the doctor's care and treatment, the horse is now out of danger.

Quite a few in town last Sunday, but the afternoon being fine they did not take possession of the hotel barroom and saturate the floor with tobacco juice as usual.

The new store of F. Brown & Son, is now near completion. It is fitted up in a very fine shape and we are sure that the firm will still continue to increase their trade.

Henry Miller had the misfortune to cut the end of his finger off while working on the railroad, last week. Dr. Hendershot dressed the wound, and Mr. Miller is doing well.

Lawyer Daykin, of Ann Arbor, is in our village at the present time. He seems to be getting ahead in his studies, and our Britton friends will be greatly surprised when he puts up his shingle as a first-class lawyer.

JAMES E. CHEEVER,

Died, in the home of his parents, Monday noon, April 6th, 1891, aged 18 years, 9 months lacking 6 days, of that dreaded and deceptive disease, consumption, which laid its grasp upon James over a year ago. With a continuous burning out of physical force, it kept its death clench, against all medical treatment. Day by day we saw him going. He was the youngest child of John and Catharine Cheever; thus he leaves, as he said, a "little while," father, mother, three brothers and two sisters, to follow him, where he has gone to meet those three deceased brothers and sisters "around the Great White Throne."

From what was known of James in the last few weeks of his earthly life, he sought to be a christian, becoming reconciled to meet death—wanting to go. On one occasion, while in conversation with his pastor upon the subject of christianity, said: "I ought to have begun this work a long time ago." "Then you have thought upon the subject of christianity?" "Oh, yes, more than any other."

Though it is indeed sad to the home, friends and community, to give up one so nearly grown into manhood, whose body rests in mother earth in full hope of immortality, yet to the departed "our loss is his gain."

On Wednesday, April 8th, at 10 A. M., funeral services were conducted by the pastor of the Christian Church, from the home at Britton, when friends and neighbors gathered to pay their last sad rites for the departed; also, expressive of the deep sympathy felt in behalf of the bereaved family. After which his remains were conveyed to Ridgeway Cemetery, when the well-chosen casket was borne over the grave, and the beautifully provided flowers were removed, then, to our notice, there seemed to be something sweet, and yet solemn, as those young pall-bearers took each from his button-hole a delicate bouquet, placing it upon the casket, expressing their sympathy—rest my brother and young companion.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our thanks to neighbors and friends for their kindness during the sickness, death and burial of our son,

JOHN & CATHARINE CHEEVER.

ELLA OSTERHOUT DIBBLE.

Died, February 24th, 1891, about noonday, of that terrible disease Diphtheria, after six days sickness, aged eight years, less two days. To Mrs. Willmine Osterhout, who from the birth of her grand daughter, having so tenderly cared for this bright little girl, while in the midst of her hope, that in her old age she would have one upon whom she could lean for aid and comfort, came death as a n unshock. But the christian other has that hope to cheer is sad trial of her life, that of the ones Jesus said "of such is the kingdom of heaven." Little Ella whose death has caused a vacancy in the District School, also in the midst of her many relatives and friends is missed in the public congregation, where she accompanied her grandmother unto the sanctuary of God, but she has only a little ahead to meet her mother in that upper sanctuary, while she has left a father, and other members of that family, who may go where she is gone unto that loved home of the sainted ones of earth. Private services were only allowable in the nature of the disease, which took place on the 25th, at 10:30 in the home conducted, by Pastor James Wright. There were present a few of the immediate relatives, with the father of the deceased. God comforteth the sorrowing with his promises.

FRANKLIN FACTS

Miss Ula Burroughs returns to her home near Athens this week.

Wm. J. Herbeson has been suffering from a severe attack of la grippe.

A letter from Seward Co., Neb., says that wild hay is being shipped in there and sells for $15 per ton.

Miss Sadie Taylor is expected home from Indiana, where she has been so long engaged in teaching, Thursday.

There are about 500 logs, some of them 4 and 5 feet in diameter, in the Deming boys' woods awaiting the saw.

To all those dear friends who were so good to me and mine in our recent measley siege, I want to express my sincere thanks.

Having been again challenged by the Springville club, April 25th, Tom Conlin, Hollis Taylor, J. C. VanDoren and Carl Wisner will visit that burg to meet in debate F. P. Groger, M. A. Ladd, C. H. Mahar and Clarence Monaghan. The question for debate will be the one previously discussed at Tipton: Resolved—That the Negro has suffered more at the hands of the white man than has the Indian.

Well, here we are again. We haven't had the grippe, but the grippiest grip that ever gripped us has been these double and twisted "warranted to wash and not fade" measles. What curious pranks these measles sometimes play! Barzillai Hurry could not let his children go to the Demorest contest at the Congregational church, because they might get the measles. He could go safely because he had been exposed time and again. Result: Mr. Hurry very sick with measles. Mrs. Len Billington had one of the children in her arms at the church that was coming down with measles. Not a measle has deigned to notice her. Rena Allen could go anywhere among the measles with safety, for hadn't she had them when she was a six-weeks-old baby and given them to a lot of people besides? She was taken sick one day with neuralgia—but it turned out to be a double dose of measles. Rena thinks that's "no fair." About the same time Alma Whelan and Newell Wisner came down with them, and now the latest is Mrs. John Smith,—measles for the second time and grippe combined.

"After a varied experience with many so-called cathartic remedies, I am convinced that Ayer's Pills give the most satisfactory results. I rely exclusively on these Pills for the cure of liver and stomach complaints,"—John B. Bell, Sr., Abilene, Texas.

Many people who pride themselves on their blue blood would be far happier with pure blood; but, while we cannot choose our ancestors, fortunately, by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, we can transmit pure blood to our posterity.

NORTH-EAST FRANKLIN

Wm. Dunn is soon to move on the farm he has purchased of Lon Marshall.

Ula Burroughs, of Athens, is making a too short visit among her Franklin friends.

Some little talk about a crematory being established in these parts. Ask G. W. Allen.

Aggie Woods, of Hillsdale, is making a visit at Rodman Taylor's and instructing such as may desire in the art of painting on velvet. She exhibits some beautiful specimens of her handiwork.

The White Rose Club have postponed their meeting to Saturday evening next, when Mrs. Edward Wisner will make them welcome at her home. A full attendance of members is desired, and all others are cordially invited.

Spring is here, full of hope and promise as ever. But then, she leaves her promises for Autumn to fulfill and he doesn't always accept the contract. Nevertheless the farmer is hustling around as lively as if he had forgotten all past disappointments.

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

Lester Fellows of Elkhart, Ind, is at his father's in Sharon.

Mrs. Libbie Curtis and her brother, Sherman F. Curtis, of Litchfield, Mich, spent several days in town last week.

Dr. Zell L. Baldwin and wife, of Lawrence, Mich, Orville Curtis, from Ann Arbor, Mich and Mr. Holden from Iowa came to Manchester to attend the funeral of Maud Baldwin.

Maud E. Baldwin, only daughter of L. M. and Theresa Baldwin died in Chicago on the morning of April 7th, 1891., aged nearly 22 years. She graduated from the Manchester High School with the class of '89, and won the Adrian scholarship for that year. She was highly proficient in vocal and instrumental music and the tones of her sweet voice will long linger in the memories of all who have heard her sing. During her short life, her charming graces, amiable disposition and lovely, noble character won for her the esteem of a large circle of friends. With the exception of a year or more in California and the few months in Chicago, her childhood and early youth were passed in Manchester. With aspirations for years of usefulness and devotion for suffering, afflicted humanity, she entered the School for nurses, in Chicago, last fall, but severe and dread disease soon sapped her young and promising life and on April 8th, her dead form was brought back to her home. The funeral was held in the Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Mr. Taylor, of Perry, Mich officiating, assisted by the Rev. I. L. Case. The text chosen for the discourse was 11 Corinthians 5; 1.

For the HERALD.

THE OTHER SIDE.

I wish to suggest to the lady who sees such dreadful things in woman suffrage a plan which may, perhaps, help to demonstrate the truth of her quoted proverb: "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." Let her get up a petition, praying that no saloons be hereafter licensed in Tecumseh. Let her circulate this among the ladies, only, for signatures. Nine out of ten women, at least, will gladly set their names to such a paper. Then let her present it to the city fathers and see how much attention will be paid to it. No, my dear sister, the hand that does not hold the ballot counts for very little when it comes to ruling. The two hundred thousand saloon keepers of the country have more to do with shaping the policy of our government—more, a thousand times over, than all the mothers in all the homes of our broad land. Why? Because our husbands and sons love the grog seller better than they do their wives and mothers? Not at all; but the saloon-keepers have at their disposal two millions of votes, while the women have not one. Sentiment is all very well in its place, but in the face of such facts as these sentiment should be politely requested to withdraw and make way for truth and justice.

MOTHER.

Rev. H. H. Fairall, D. D., editor of the Iowa Methodist, says editorially, We have tested the merits of Ely's Cream Balm, and believe that, by a thorough course of treatment, it will cure almost every case of catarrh. Ministers, as a class are afflicted with head and throat troubles, and catarrh seems more prevalent than ever. We cannot recommend Ely's Cream Balm too highly."

I used Ely's Cream Balm for dry catarrh. It proved a cure.—R. F. M. Weeks, Denver.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

The roads are in a horrible condition.

Sunday evening services will begin hereafter at 7:30.

The recent rains make wheat and grass look finely.

Several from here attended the Ariel-Thomas entertainment at Tecumseh Friday evening.

Mrs. Hall and Mrs. David Harrison, who were under the doctor's care last week, are improving.

Mrs. Jacob Arner returned from Detroit Wednesday evening, leaving those sick on the gain.

Louise H. Arner returned last week from her visit with her son, C. W. Arner, of Wellington, Ohio.

W. P. Cadmus and son Bertie returned Saturday from a few days' stay at Devil's Lake, with a fine catch of bass and one pickerel that tipped the beam at nine pounds.

Miss Minnie Barrett began the spring term of school in the Harrington district, Macon, Monday. As it is her first school we, in behalf of her friends, wish her success.

The exhibition given by the friends in district No. 3, at their school-house on Monday night, was a grand success throughout. The young people are deserving of much praise for the successful, pleasing and interesting manner in which they performed their parts.

The last meeting of the Library reading circle will be held at the Library on Tuesday evening, April 28th. The committee have decided to have a short literary and musical program, after which a "Verse" social will be held and r reshments served. Further particulars given next week. A cordial invitation is extended to all to help make it a pleasant occasion.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT AGITATION.

The State Association of Road Builders, of New York, recently held a convention at Syracuse and it is obvious that the members are quite earnest in their determination that the people shall have better means of travel and are also clear in their appreciation of the fact that the amount lost to the rural community and to the merchants of the towns dependant upon these is greater than would be the cost of building good roads and maintaining them in good condition. This point has often been made in THE FREE PRESS. There are many elements entering into the problem that the man of purely city breeding is apt to overlook. The waste of the time of men and teams, the unnecessary wear and tear upon horses and vehicles, the practical cutting off of the farmer from the market and the market from the farmer have all been explained and commented upon again and again.

A bill has been introduced in the Legislator of New York providing for the appropriation of the sum of $10-000,000 to be used in improving the roads of the state outside cities and incorporated villages. The cities are expected to pay their proportion of this amount in direct taxes, in return for the advantages they receive, but the farmers are to be allowed to apply their labor to the discharge of the obligation, allowance for the same to be made at a fair figure.

Again, the New York measure contains a clause providing for the employment of the convicts of the state in the work of road making. There is nothing new in this, for it has been done in the southern states for many years, and before the present agitation arose THE FREE PRESS suggested it as possibly desirable in the double sense of relieving the people from some portion of the cost of road-making and of removing the convict competition with the labor of mechanics and the business of manufacturers, concerning which there has been so much and so bitter complaint.

Place it as you will, devise any plan that seems well, the fact remains that it is imperatively necessary to the prosperity of the farmers of Michigan, as of the older and richer state of New York, that the rural roads be made at all times easily and quickly passable for heavy loads drawn by ordinary farm teams. If the farmer can double the hauling efficiency of his stock and the earning efficiency of himself or of his hired man he is apt to find that it makes all the difference between loss and profit.—Detroit Free Press.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, APRIL 16.

To Major McKinley: If it be true that the tariff is not a tax, then do pray tell us what's the matter with sugar?

The estate of the late P. T. Barnum is estimated at five millions. Barnum was a believer in the utility of printers' ink, and he attributed his success wholly to advertising.

The plan of electing U. S. Senators by direct vote of the people is becoming more and more popular, and during the next session of Congress a Constitutional Amendment will doubtless be submitted for that purpose.

The first number of the New York Tribune was issued by Horace Greeley on Saturday, April 10th, 1841. The paper was therefore fifty years old last Saturday, and the present management held a big celebration in honor of the event.

Gov. David B. Hill has not strengthened his boom any by snubbing the Free Trade meeting at Cooper Union on the anniversary of Jefferson's birthday. The Democracy is not a free trade party to-day, that is true, but no man can be either nominated or elected President on that ticket who is at war with the free trade contingent.

In making an appropriation for our State exhibit at the World's Fair, Michigan should be not only just but liberal. Such an opportunity will not occur again in a life time, perhaps not within three or four generations. The vast and varied resources of the State should all be carefully guarded and provided for. California has voted $300,000—Michigan's appropriation should be not one dollar less than that amount.

Bills have been introduced into both the Senate and House to abolish the Game Warden system. It is not considered probable that this will be done, but is likely that the objections to the system will be remedied in accordance with the recommendation of the State Fish Commissioners by passing the Wachtel bill, which authorizes the employment of special deputies, paid by the day for services actually performed, to do special work anywhere in the State under the Warden's direction.

The Atlanta Constitution points a moral with a sharp pen when it contrasts the general sympathy expressed in the north for the action of the New Orleans mob with the condemnation of the north when lynch law executes the negro guilty of the greatest of crimes, outraging a white woman. Yet, the Constitution says, the people of the north have always held that lynch law was never excusable, and the people of the south have always held that there were occasions which justified it. We may not be consistent in this instance, but we are right.

Is anything impossible? For years we had been told that it was impossible to duplicate the silk veined paper upon which the Government prints its money which is manufactured under the control of the Government, by a secret process which has made its owners all wealthy; yet this paper has been so well imitated that experts have been unable to tell the genuine and the imitation one from the other. A very dangerous counterfeit $2 silver certificate is in circulation printed upon this paper, and every one should exercise care in receiving notes of that denomination. The series counterfeited has a picture of Gen. Hancock on the face of the note.

The colored Episcopalians of Cleveland are trying to get rid of their rector, the Rev. Mr. Caston, just like the white folks. This is how a prominent woman of the congregation puts it: "We do not like Mr. Caston and want him removed, and shall ask the Bishop to remove him. We have done well by him. In less than three months we have paid him $87 besides what the diocese gives him, which is $34 a month. But his wud cannot be relied upon, and he goes about from one lady to another making trouble. In short his conduct is just niggerism, pure and simple. Caston might do in some po' Methodis' or Baptis' pulpit, but in the chancel he is not wuth a cent. I could do bettah myself if I was 'lowed to don male attire. It amounts to this: If Bishop Leonard will remove him we will build a chu'ch, but if he won't we will not even go to Caston's chu'ch. He is no account. Anybody who knows anything about the Episcopalian Chu'ch would know it."

FREE TRADE vs RECIPROCITY.

There was a significant first-page cartoon in this weeks Puck. Thomas Jefferson is on a pedestal made in one piece, inscribed with the legend, "Free commerce with all nations; entangling alliances with none." Blaine is building a pedestal for himself alongside that of Jefferson. He is using a lot of misfit stones, labeled "Alliance" with Yahoo," "Reciprocity with Liliput," etc., which he is trying to hold together with the mortar of "expediency." It is a good picture, and shows exactly the present political condition of affairs. More than this, it shows the rapid drift of public opinion toward Free Trade. A year or so ago Puck was not disposed to advocate Free Trade sentiments. The sentiment that it attributes to Thomas Jefferson, and which may have been his, appeared in the platform adopted by the Congressional caucus (national conventions not having then been invented) that placed Jefferson in nomination for the Presidency. It is a straight out Free Trade declaration, for "free commerce with all nations" can have no other meaning. It is true that many men of that day who accepted this idea committed themselves to the idea of "protecting infant industries" as a temporary expedient; but they looked to Free Trade as the natural and ultimate condition of affairs, and they would have laughed to scorn the suggestion that their concession to the protective notion should be made the precedent for a permanent policy of trade restriction by a great and growing people for all time. It is well that we are so rapidly coming back to the Jeffersonian idea of "Free commerce with all nations" that even the Protectionist fakirs are advocating Free Trade on the installment plan.—The Standard.

DOWN GOES SUGAR.

Yesterday a housekeeper had to pay one dollar for fourteen pounds of white granulated sugar. To-day one dollar will buy twenty pounds of the same quality. This sudden change is due to the fact that the one respectable clause in the McKinley bill goes into effect today. The repeal of the duties on raw sugars, accompanied by a large reduction of the duties on refined sugars, has brought about a result that will bring a tangible benefit to every housekeeper in the land. It does not require an expert to explain how the beneficiary is benefited in a case like this. Off goes the tariff and down goes the price. So certain is the result that the manufacturers have anticipated it and the price is put down without waiting.

This is a splendid Free Trade lesson given to the people by the enemies of Free Trade. A tariff is a tax. A tariff on sugar made sugar costly to the consumer. The tariff is taken off and sugar falls almost to the world's prices. If the tariff had been similarly taken off of other articles, the purchasing power of a dollar would have been similarly increased. Every man who had earned a dollar would find his wages practically advanced by the increase brought about in the purchasing power of that dollar. It is entirely true that, under existing economic conditions the men who own the United States would eventually rob the producers of this advantage, but, for the time being, it would be a real advantage, perceptible to everybody, and requiring no argument to commend it to those who enjoy the benefit. The Republican party took the tariff off of sugar and put it up on everything else. Let the people demand of the Democratic party, now that it goes into power, to leave the tariff off of sugar, and take it off of everything else.

MICHIGAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

The question of the position which Michigan should take regarding the Columbian Exposition seems to us eminently worthy of full and careful consideration. It is really a topic in which every citizen is interested directly or indirectly, and appeals strongly to his State pride and patriotism. For the first time in her history Michigan has an opportunity to place before the entire civilized world an exhibit of her immense natural resources, her great advantages of soil and climate, the progress she has made in manufacturing, agriculture, the arts and sciences, and the development of those resources with which nature, in the most lavish manner, has endowed her.

Practically the Columbian Exposition is as much Michigan's as any other one State. Her people will be as close to it as those of Illinois, within whose borders it is placed. It would hardly accommodate the whole State better were it located at Detroit. Thus she has the advantage of this great Fair, at which the whole world will be represented, at her very door, while the national government, the State of Illinois, and the city of Chicago, must bear the cost of preparing it. The entire cost to Michigan will be the sum appropriated for her own purposes—to help her citizens to creditably represent her before the world. It is the opportunity of a life-time, and, so far as the present generation is concerned, will never occur again.

The question is, how shall this great opportunity be used to bring to our State the greatest advantage? The spirit in which such a question should be discussed should be broad and patriotic. It is not a time for cheese-paring economy or narrow-minded parsimony, which will surely belittle us as citizens and injure the reputation of Michigan as the home of an enterprising and liberal-minded people.—Michigan Farmer.

FREE COINAGE OR FREE TRADE.

Which is of the greatest importance to the wage earner?

Wage earners may, for the present purpose, be roughly divided into three classes: the laborers on farms, on transportation and trade, and in manufacturing, mechanical and mining industries. For some purposes they may be considered together, but for others they must be separated.

As to all of them, it is clear that they will lose at first by any lowering of the coin standard or expansion of currency, if sufficient to accomplish any of the great things which the advocates of cheap money promise. For the chief thing expected from any of these currency schemes is a great increase of prices in food, clothing, house-building, furniture and everything which the wage-earner has to buy. Unless wages rise faster than the price of goods, the wage-earners will be not one penny better off; and, if wages do not rise as quickly or as much as the price of goods, wage-earners will be worse off.

What is the testimony of experience? Invariably, prices of goods always rise under an inflation of the currency months before wages rise at all, and the rise in wages always drags far behind the rise in prices. And as wage-earners have no goods to sell, they pay high prices for all which they buy, while they receive low prices for their labor, which is all that they have to sell.

Now, consider what they have to gain by Free Trade. The farm laborers, who are more numerous than either of the other classes, would, of course, be in much greater demand, because of the immense increase of European demand for farm products. The men engaged in transportation would be in like demand, because the railroads and steamboats would be crowded with farm products coming East and with manufactures going West. The case of these two classes, constituting a great majority of all the laborers, is very clear. Free Trade would raise their wages quickly and largely.

How about the others? They must be divided again into classes. Not more than 1,000,000 are engaged in any business which can possibly be benefited by any tariff. About 4,000,000 are at work in lines of business which would be vastly more prosperous if there were no tariff at all and the materials for their work were admitted free. All of these, therefore, would find work abundant and wages higher, if the tariff were repealed altogether. As to the 1,000,000 remaining, it is well known and admitted by Protectionists that not more than one-fourth of what they make could be supplied from abroad. Therefore, out of about 22,000,000 people now earning their own living in this country, not as many as 250,000 could possibly be injured by a total repeal of the tariff, while 21,750,000 would be far better off. Now, suppose that this vast majority gained only 10 per cent by Free Trade, that would mean a demand for over 2,000,000 new laborers at higher wages; and thus the 250,000 would find instant employment at better wages than they get now. Considering that we absorb every year 500,000 new immigrants, we surely need not fear lack of employment for 250,000 Americans. But, in fact, fewer workmen would be thrown out of employment in the year following the repeal of the tariff than have been thrown out in any one year of the last ten, while immediate employment would be found for them in easier work, at higher wages.

All classes of wage-earners, therefore, have nothing to gain by free coinage, and everything to gain by Free Trade.

Still there remains the greatest benefit of all. The total repeal of the tariff means the abolition of all taxes upon the poor. It means that the savings of all careful laboring men would be instantly doubled. It means that their earnings would be increased, while their expenses would be diminished. It means an era of prosperity for farmers, mechanics and laborers, such as has never yet been imagined possible by most of themselves. For absolute Free Trade would make all indirect taxation impossible and absurd. And indirect taxation is the only possible means by which the rich can make the poor bear the burden of taxation, besides being the means by which a few of them are able to plunder the masses for their own immediate profit.

Make money as cheap and plentiful as you please, and still under tariff taxes those who have all the money now will have all the money then. Abolish the tariff, and those who now have less than one-third of the wealth of this country will soon have two-thirds of it. And it is wealth which commands money, not money which commands wealth.

Whether free coinage would help the mass of our people or not, it is at least certain that it never can confer upon them one-tenth of the blessings which they would derive from Free Trade.

Brooklyn, N. Y. T. G. SHEARMAN.

The Hon. J. M. Rusk, the Secretary of Agriculture, in an article—which is the first of a series by United States cabinet officers—treats, in the April number of the North American Review, the political agitation in which the farmers of the country have so actively engaged, and the grounds of their discontent at the general lowering in price of agricultural products during recent years.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

A REAL LUXURY!

Looking out over the many homes of this country, we see thousands of women wearing away their lives in household drudgery that might be materially lessened by the use of a few cakes of SAPOLIO. If an hour is saved each time a cake is used, if one less wrinkle gathers upon the face because the toil is lightened, she must be a foolish woman who would hesitate to make the experiment, and he a churlish husband who would grudge the few cents which it costs.

If your grocer sends you anything in place of SAPOLIO, send it back and insist upon having just what you ordered. SAPOLIO always gives satisfaction. On floors, tables, and painted work it acts like a charm. For scouring pots, pans, and metals it has no equal. Everything shines after it, and even the children delight in using it in their attempts to help around the house.

Grocers often substitute cheaper goods for SAPOLIO to make a better profit. Send back such articles and insist on having just what you ordered.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

THE "KOCH CURE" AND THE "GEORGE CURE."

Since Jenner banished small-pox from civilized communities, no medical discovery has been received with such enthusiasm, or been followed with such absorbing interest by the whole world, as that comprised in the announcement of Robert Koch that he had been able to produce a substance capable of exerting a marked influence upon the changes which the tuberculosis bacillus causes in the tissues of the body. Coming from so eminent an authority, men felt that one of those great discoveries, calculated to exert a profoundly modifying influence upon humanity, had at least been outlined. For the true importance of Koch's discovery lies not so much in its application to tuberculosis alone, as in the fact that it is pregnant with suggestive possibilities of the cure of all infectious diseases by analogous methods.

It is true, the great hopes of a cure for consumption in all its stages, that perhaps the majority of laymen, at least, allowed themselves to entertain, have as yet by no means been realized. The number of actual cures is, in fact, so exceedingly limited, that at this early stage, we are hardly justified in admitting their existence at all. Nevertheless, all mankind feels happier in the thought that a new way appears to be opening for combating the greatest scourge of modern life. For the supreme interest of the discovery lies, after all, in its humane aspects; in the contemplation of the picture of its wide-reaching effects upon society, and in the thought that suffering is to become less, that at least one form of disease is to be banished, that life is thus to be made more sure, and that the sum of human happiness is so to be increased.

But supposing that the "Koch cure" were really all that the most vivid hope imagined it, would all these results follow? In a certain measure they would, but the increase in general well-being would be insignificantly small when measured by the greatness of the discovery. Just as none of the great inventions for the saving of labor have really made toil any lighter or increased, for the masses the ease of making a living, so this discovery would do practically nothing to make the lot of that greater portion of mankind, which forms the army of labor, any easier or sweeter. Indeed, the contrary would be the result, for that increase in population which results when mortality is from any cause checked, inevitably begets a fiercer competition among laborers for the chance to work, and, as a result, wages fall, while the value of land, upon which alone labor can be performed, necessarily rises. Hence the economic effects of Koch's discovery, should it prove efficacious, would be to increase that poverty which is the lot of many—and which forms the hot-bed of all contagious disease—while it would, at the same time, add to the wealth of the relatively few who own the field of labor. It would, like all great inventions, but tend to make the poor poorer, and the rich richer; to impoverish the land user and enrich the landlord.

It is a sad comment upon our civilization that the pestilence that walketh in darkness and the destruction that wasteth at noonday, by reducing the number of his competitors, are the friends of him who has but his labor to sell. Had we but Malthus, to fall back upon the thought of this paradox—that the blessing of health is really a curse—would be horrible indeed, but the genius of the century has bid us not despair, and has shown that the direst of all diseases—poverty, itself the fruitful parent of disease—is, not an ineradicable of social growth, but is the outcome of social malajustments inflicted by man upon himself.

For it is to poverty, that in the last analysis, we must trace the most potent predisposing and maintaining cause of infectious disease. And if any thing radical is ever to be done toward limiting the spread of those diseases, which, as every physician recognizes, are in their nature preventable, surely the remedy must be applied, not so much to the disease itself as it appears in the individual, as to the cause that engenders it. Of what real use would it be, for instance, to examine for diphtheria, as has been recently proposed by a well-known physician of this city, the throats of all the public school children each morning, when the source of the evil stream—the crowded tenement-house—still remains unchecked. And, measured by the immensity of the evil it seeks to lessen, what a pitiful waste of energy and money does it not seem—what a ridiculous contradiction does it not involve—to take little children in summer from the slums to the seaside, in the hope of saving a few of the thousands that society annually kills, only to return them to the very conditions that cause their illness. Of what use, to tinker with the effects, and leave the cause untouched? Such measures are like attempting to dip out the ocean with a teaspoon.

Boards of health may be vigilant, doctors may be faithful and learned, medical and other charities may be dealt out with a lavish hand; but in a city where three-quarters of the population live in tenements, where 290,000 people are packed upon one square mile, where but four per cent. occupy separate homes, it is folly to think of curing—in the sense of exterminating—any disease which is contagious.

In looking toward the ultimate cure of tuberculosis, we thus inevitably arrive at a point where the medical aspect loses itself in the social; where it becomes a study of the economic problem of the distribution of wealth, of the abolition of involuntary poverty; in short, of the relation of man to the earth which he inhabits and from which alone he draws his being. And hand in hand with the great discoveries which the genius of Robert Koch has given to the world there must go those even greater discoveries which have emanated from the mind and from the heart of Henry George. Let us practice, if it shall seem best, the "Koch Cure," let every physician continue to strive to his utmost to relieve suffering, and, if possible, to exterminate contagious disease, but let us ever bear in mind that every cure, to be really and grandly successful, will ultimately have to be supplemented by the "George cure."—Walter Mendelson.

Who Own River Bottoms.

Judge Young, of the Fourth Judicial Circuit of Florida, has decided that the State can not demand a royalty of one dollar per ton on phosphate taken from the beds of the rivers of Florida. The Ocala Union commenting on the decision assumes that it may be warranted by precedent, but it declares that the people ultimately will repeal laws that deny them their just rights. It thus continues:

It is the people after all that control. They endure much, but when they break through the "conservative restraints" kings tremble on their thrones, and judges perform their duty. The process through which it is done are slow, but the rights of the masses are being extended and the few restricted. The same processes that gave all the lands of England to so few of her population are at work in this country, and if not checked will produce the same results, and they are not likely to be checked by Judge Young's decision.

These phosphates have been forming in the soil and river bottoms in all the ages of the past, and in the formation of which we do not suppose that Mr. Albertus Vogt, Mr. George W. Scott and a few others were alone in the thoughts of the Divine mind, but we are orthodox or unorthodox enough to believe that the Divine worker intended these formations and deposits for the common enjoyment of all mankind.

Owing to the legislative action and judicial determinations, this has not been the case, and the only thing left whereby the people, in their collective capacity, could derive the least benefit from these gifts of a wise and beneficent Creator, was in the riparian rights left to the State, whereby the State, for the benefit of all the people thereof, could levy a tax of one dollar a ton on all phosphates taken from the bottom of navigable streams, and even this the decision of Judge Young denies them. And the Times-Union says that all the people will hail with delight this timely decision. The exaction of this small tariff, the Times-Union says, would have crippled and perhaps stifled this industry and would have proven a great detriment to the State. How much do these men, who have gobbled up all the river bottoms of the State, want to make anyway? Do they want all the earth and the fulness thereof?

The cost of gathering the phosphate from the river bottoms is merely nominal, and delivered at any shipping point is worth from $12 to $15 per ton, and in the interest of this class of men, the Times-Union whines that the payment of the pitiable sum of a dollar a ton into the treasury of the State would ruin them all and kill the industry. This is sheer nonsense and can not deceive a blind man. The people make and unmake the laws and they should see that all the people derive some of the benefits of these immense deposits, which can only be regarded as a divine gift.

Dempsey's Personal Tax Bill.

Apparently the crude suggestions of Governor Hill in regard to the taxation of personal property are to bear fruit in one last desperate attempt to collect a personal property tax in this State. Without bringing up the point of a local tax on personal property is the surest way to drive out of the State the industries needed for its prosperity, and without mentioning the utter failure that has attended past attempts at personal property taxation in this State and others; without referring to the perjury that such laws create, and the injustice of their effect in making the honest pay the taxes of the dishonest—it is only necessary to read Mr. Dempsey's bill, as given in our columns recently, to see how inquisitorial and un-American must be any further effort to reach personal property by taxation. By its provisions every taxable citizen must furnish to the tax commissioners a complete list of all real and personal property owned by him, no matter where situated, all moneys loaned, invested or deposited, and all credits due. And the penalty for failure to comply with the act is a fine of $1,000. Such a law as this would raise a storm of indignation in every business center in the State. It would be an interference with private affairs that would drive thousands into the ranks of the single tax advocates.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Taxing Unseen Coal.

The Supreme Court of Illinois has just sustained the right of James D. Baker, collector of St. Clair County, to collect from the Consolidated Coal Company, of St. Louis, a tax on an assessment made by Assessor Stookey, of St. Clair township, on coal owned by the company, under the surface of that township. The present case involves the trifling sum of fifty dollars, but the effect of the decision is of great importance to Illinois, and, says a dispatch from St. Louis, "it will bring into the treasury thousands of dollars each year in taxes from the vast coal fields that have never been taxed, and relieve the farmer from paying such heavy taxes on the surface, where there are coal fields beneath, and will establish a precedent for assessing coal lands all over the State of Illinois." Just so, and if our Illinois friends improve their opportunity, the change in taxation that will follow will teach the farmers who have ignorantly clamored against the taxation of land values that the farmers not only do not own all the land, but that the land they do own is the least valuable and will be but lightly taxed under a system that makes land values the sole basis of taxation.

If you would save this Republic, if you would save society, if you would preserve free government to the end of time, unjust taxation must be destroyed.

JONAH SENT TO NINEVEH

LESSON III, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, APRIL 19.

Text of the Lesson, Jonah i, 1-17—Commit Verses, 14-16—Golden Text, Jonah iii, 2—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

Having learned from previous lessons how both the ten tribes and the two, with but few exceptions, wander from God and worship idols, we are now for a few weeks to consider God's efforts to win them back to Himself by His servants the prophets. And we begin with the first Hebrew prophet or missionary ever sent to the Gentiles.

1. "Now the Word of the Lord came unto Jonah the son of Amittai, saying."

He prophesied about 800 years before Christ, and is one of the earliest, perhaps the very first, of the so called prophets whose writings exist.

2. "Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it; for their wickedness is come up before me."

Nineveh was on the Tigris, nearly 400 miles from Canaan. Its walls were about 60 miles in length and 100 feet high, with 1,500 towers, each 200 feet high. According to chapter iv, 11, there were 120,000 little children in the city at that time, which would give a population of not less than 600,000.

3. "But Jonah rose up to flee unto Tarshish from the presence of the Lord and went down to Joppa."

Jonah could not in one sense get away from the presence of the Lord anywhere in the wide world (Ps. cxxxix, 7-10), but he could go away from the Lord's land, and city and temple, just as Cain went away from that part of Eden where God dwelt.

4. "But the Lord sent out a great wind into the sea."

Sometimes when people are doing wrong events seem to favor them; so Jonah may have thought it a favorable omen to find a ship at Joppa about to sail to Tarshish. But, however we may seem to succeed in our disobedience, God is watching and controlling, and we may be sure that sooner or later our sin will find us out.

5. "Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god."

Here is a servant of God disobedient to his Master, and bringing trouble on those who knew not God, as when Peter, a disciple of Christ, caused Malchus to suffer. If, as Christians, we do wrong, we are not the only ones who will suffer by the chastisement lovingly sent upon us.

"And he lay and was fast asleep."

While these heathen sailors are doing all in their power for the safety of the ship and all on board, and calling on their gods, which were no gods, the only one on board who knew the only living and true God is fast asleep. Is it not a picture of the majority of Christians now?

6. "What meanest thou, O sleeper?"

This was a well merited rebuke. It would do good if the people of the world would rebuke professing Christians more often.

7. "They cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah."

In the same way it would seem that Joshua discovered Achan (Josh. vii, 14), and Saul found out Jonathan (I Sam. xiv, 41, 42), and an apostle was chosen instead of Judas (Acts i, 24-26).

8. "Tell us, we pray thee, for whose cause this evil is upon us."

Jonah is now awake, and in the hands of those upon whom he has brought trouble. They have found him out, and now question him as to his occupation and people and country. It is humiliating to see this servant of God compelled to give an account of himself to this heathen shipmaster and his sailors, but it is good for him.

9. "I am an Hebrew; and I fear Jehovah, the God of heaven, which hath made the sea and the dry land."

He does better than Peter when he ran away from his Master and warmed himself at the servants' fire; but perhaps Peter might have done better, too, if he had found himself in the midst of a raging storm at sea with death staring him in the face.

10. "Why hast thou done this?"

A searching question, to which his answer is not given. And if in any measure a Christian is turning away from duty the question ought to come to them with power.

11. "What shall we do unto thee that the sea may be calm unto us?"

Sin must be punished. All nations recognize that the transgressor must suffer, and yet there are those in this enlightened (?) Nineteenth century, dwelling in our cities, in the very centers of light and intelligence, who say and teach that sin is a phantom, a nonentity, and that punishment for sin is not to be thought of.

12. "Take me up and cast me forth into the sea, so shall the sea be calm unto you; for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you."

He is convinced of his sin and ready to accept the consequences.

13. "Nevertheless the men rowed hard to bring it to the land, but they could not."

This labor was well meant. They were sorry for Jonah; they did not wish to be the means of his death, but their well meant efforts were all in vain, for Jonah must suffer for his sin.

14. "Wherefore they cried unto the Lord."

It is not now "every man unto his god," as in verse 5, but unitedly they cry to Jehovah, the God of heaven, earth and sea, the Lord God of the Hebrews.

"We beseech thee, O Lord, we beseech thee, let us not perish for this man's life, and lay not upon us innocent blood."

This is a heartfelt cry to Him who is ever ready to hear the cry of the needy, and undoubtedly it was heard.

"For thou, O Lord, hath done as it pleased thee."

Submissively they acknowledge the omnipotence of Jehovah, and that His hand is in this.

15. "So they took up Jonah and cast him forth into the sea, and the sea ceased from her raging."

16. "Then the men feared the Lord exceedingly, and offered a sacrifice unto the Lord, and made vows."

It looks as if they had really become believers in the true God. Thus God overruled the sin of His servant for the good of these men.

17. "Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah."

He is as able to prepare a great fish as a wind or a gourd or a worm. I see no difficulty in believing that this fish was specially prepared for this purpose, as the words imply. Or it may have been one of the great sharks of that sea, concerning which we are told that in one was found 400 pounds of undigested fish, in another a whole horse, while from the stomach of another a sailor was rescued alive.

"And Jonah was in the belly of the fish three days and three nights."

The fact that Jesus speaks of this as an actual event should be enough to satisfy every believer, and forever end all controversy about the book or its story.

A DYSPEPTIC'S ARGUMENT
Is a growl, and that growl marks the limit of argument with him. The best way to get him to try a medicine would be to advise against it—but notice how different his tone after using Burdock Blood Bitters.
"I have suffered with Dyspepsia for the last two years. Not long ago I commenced taking B. B. B. I am now on the second bottle and feel like a new man. G. KNOX, 12 Sherwood Ave., Binghamton N. Y."
REPEATED TESTS WITH UNIFORM SUCCESS prove the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters will cure d The reason is plain, it tones the stomach to natural action and keeps the sluice ways of the system free from clogging impurities.
"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and heart disease for nine years and found no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. Now I am well after taking two bottles. MRS. ETTIE FRAZIER, Bowne, Mich."

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long sta No man or woman now living will ever date document without using the figure 9. It sta in the third place in 1890, where it will remain years and then move up to second place in 19 where it will rest for one hundred years.
There is another "9" which has also come to sta It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respe that it has already moved up to first place, whe it will permanently remain. It is called the "N 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machin
The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by th experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 18 where, after a severe contest with the leading ma chines of the world, it was awarded the onl Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, al others on exhibit having received lower award of gold medals, etc. The French Governmen also recognized its superiority by the decoration Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the compan with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.
The "No. 9" is not an old machine improve upon, but is an entirely new machine, and th Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the great est advance in sewing machine mechanism of th age. Those who buy it can rest assured, there fore, of having the very latest and best.

FARMING—WHAT AILS IT?

A Paper Read at the Farmers' Institute in Tecumseh by R. S. Rawson.

I once worked in company with an individual, and he is only a type of many, who possessed all the ailments that mortal flesh is heir to: Consumption, heart disease, dyspepsia, itch, rheumatism, and complaints without number constantly tortured his frame, wasted his energies and distorted his imagination; not all at once, it is true, but by turns. His appearance seemed to be stalwart enough—of healthful countenance, strong frame and good appetite, yet he was always complaining. He was a diligent student of the almanacs. Among the innumerable symptoms of disease therein described, some were sure to hit his case, as it was impossible to escape them all.—"'Twas his to mourn misfortune's rudest shocks; scourged by the winds and cradled on the rocks,"—and he was equally diligent in seeking a remedy—a cure-all. Nostrum succeeded nostrum, as malady succeeded malady. If any relief was felt, it was only long enough to give some other complaint a new impetus.

I speak of his case as typical of a large class of farmers who are always upon the verge of impending ruin. The class that is always extolling and magnifying the prosperity and enjoyment of olden times and mourning over the condition and prospects of to-day.

While this propensity appears to be more prevalent in the farming class, it seems to be inherent in the human mind. Macauley, the historian, likens it to the traveler upon the Arabian desert,—about him and beneath him all is parched and barren. He sees, far ahead and far in the rear, the semblance of refreshing waters. With parched lips and burning brow he hastens forward to find it but a lake of sand. He looks backward and beholds sparkling seas, where but a short time before he was wading through burning sand. Chase the mirage backward and it recedes before him into the darkened ages of antiquity.

No times like the old times; no stream like the babbling brook in which we bathed in boyhood; no grounds like the grounds indented by the feet of childhood; no happiness like that which filled the cabin of the pioneer; no honesty like that which adorned the character of our forefathers; no government so pure, so nearly perfect, as that born of the blood of departed generations; no prosperity so complete and universal as that obtained by the simple habits of early days.

And yet, after all, what really is the matter? Is the patient really sick? Is it really true that the times that were were better than the times that are? Was Whittier wrong when he said,

> The fathers slept but men remain
> As wise, as true, as brave as they.
> Why count the loss and not the gain?
> The best is what we have to-day.

We are accustomed to the cry of hard times. We hear it to-day. We heard it ten years ago. We heard it twenty years ago. We heard it in our boyhood. The oldest man in this assemblage heard it in his youth and it will be heard doubtless to the end of time. But let us stop for a little while and see if we can find a basis for this eternal cry. If it be true, let us seek to find a remedy; not by reckless and unreasonable denunciation of our laws and of those engaged in other occupations, but by a calm survey in the light of reason and intelligence. That there are certain wrongs to be righted none will deny, and other classes are concerned equally with us in securing them. But this is no truer to-day than at any other time in our history. New conditions call for new laws and we believe that public sentiment can be relied upon to eventually secure them. Let us see if the trouble may not lie largely within ourselves and our methods of farming.

But first, is not the idea of hard times greatly exaggerated? Go where you will, in any reasonably good farming community, and do you not see the people evidently well fed and clothed, entertainments well patronized, a vast number of things in common use which were once esteemed luxuries. It is within the memory of many before me when carriages other than the lumber wagon were great rarities; when the walls of your houses were unpapered and the floors uncarpeted, your stoves, your dishes, your furniture and your wearing apparel of the very plainest kind; the amount of groceries used in your family very much less than what it is now. The rude structure in which your parents lived has given place to homes, beautiful and commodious. Newspapers and magazines are a part of your daily living. Your means of reaching your distant friend, either in person or by letter, both more reasonable and rapid. Commercial progress has brought a market for everything you have to your very doors. You partake in a measure of the products of every clime. Nor are these increased benefits at the expense of more hours of labor, but of less. Your winters, which used to be occupied with ax and beetle, are now spent by the fireside, or upon the village street, or in the lighter employment of caring for stock. There is scarcely a branch of farm work but that machinery has taken the place of human muscle, thereby not only lightening your own labor but that of your household as well. It requires much less help to run a farm now than it did a generation ago, and yet labor is much better paid now than then. Your tools are lighter and better adapted to the work required of them. You are not required, as you once were, to haul your grain and meats to Monroe or Detroit, and upon your return to find the money you received for it worthless, but home buyers are plenty, who pay you in a currency as stable as the government.

Nor do we believe that the prices we must pay for these improvements are upon the whole exorbitant. We hear a good deal said about the profits of manufacturers, but let us at least be fair. Hasn't the fall in the price of manufactured goods been greater in proportion than that of farm produce? You can go and ask the merchant, who sold goods to your parents, for the privilege of looking over his old book accounts, examine the charges and credits and see if it isn't true. Nor will I confine you to the years before the war, but include those since. I will not tire you with statistics, but let us notice a few. A mower once cost you about $125, now $40 to $50; a wagon over $100, now about $50; a sulky rake from $40 to $50, now less than $20. I once paid in this village (and you all know that Tecumseh takes the cake for low prices), $165 for an open single buggy. Now you can buy one with a top on for one-third the price. Such a stove as your mothers used can be bought for a trifle, but don't mention it to your wives, or the statement about the hairs on your head being numbered might be misunderstood. And upon the many smaller things which go into the house or upon the farm there has been even a greater reduction. I picked out what I thought a good butcher knife in a store the other day, but the price fairly took my breath away—20 cents. That great octopus, the Standard Oil Company, put its oil upon the market for 6 or 7 cents a gallon, but, of course, we all use tallow candles, which we have a right to do, rather than patronize the monopoly. The salt trust sells its salt at the factory for about 35 cents a barrel; you pay about a dollar for the salt and barrel, besides freight and commission. Does it seem extravagant? We repeat, that while the price of farm produce is low, it has not fallen as much in proportion as the price of manufactured goods. Convert all your spare crops into cash and there never was a time when they would buy as many of the necessaries of life as they will to-day.

But, you ask, what has all this to do with the payment of debts contracted a few years ago? Now you will concede, I think, that the prices of those times were not normal. Our currency was below par, hence it took more of it to buy goods, produce, or land. It was easy then to pay debts contracted before this condition of things existed, just as it is now difficult to pay debts contracted before we reached the normal condition of the present. The man who got heavily into debt then was unfortunate, but with the caution and retrenchment of the present, we believe most of those old debts are being paid more rapidly than is generally supposed.

There are things which have aided in bringing about low prices, for which the individual is not responsible. We believe that the government policy, pursued since the government began, but which has so unduly increased our agricultural area since the war, by filling up the west with a class from all parts of the earth, both ignorant and un-American, is a mistaken policy. It has in great measure brought the cheap labor of the old world,—a class that can live well according to their ideas of living, upon a small income, in competition upon our own soil with our own native Americans, with a much higher standard of civilization and requirements. Far better had it remained to receive the overflow of that spot that has rounded out and completed more examples of eminent and noble manhood and womanhood than any other spot of equal area upon earth—New England. Far better had it remained the inheritance of the sons and daughters of our citizens, who have builded up this great commonwealth of states, or have offered up their lives for its preservation.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

If a price can be placed on pain, "Mother's Friend" is worth its weight in gold as an alleviator. My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did all together with her last, having previously used four bottles of "Mother's Friend." It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a mother, says a customer of mine.

LEONARD W. HOCH.

The following excerpt from Saturday's Detroit Evening News, will be perused with pleasure by the many friends of the mayor-elect of Adrian. An excellent likeness of the gentleman accompanied the sketch:

Len W. Hoch is the new young man Mayor of Adrian, and his biography may be read to children as a receipt by which to make their lives sublime and leave behind them tracks in the sands of time, as it were. He is but 31 years old, and has risen to political and business prominence simply by lifting himself by his own boot straps. What he is he owes entirely to his own efforts, without assistance. He was born in Coldwater, and spent the first 12 years of his life in Adrian. His parents were not rich, and when very young Mr. Hoch made the great stroke of his life and joined the journalistic profession as devil in THE ADRIAN TIMES office. He learned the trade and worked in numerous and divers places, always saved his money, and finally drifted back to Adrian in 1885, and began the grocery business with his brother. The business grew, and now their sign is written over two big stores. He is a Democrat, a single tax and Henry George man, and widely posted on economic notions.

EXAMINATION OF TEACHERS.

There will be an examination of teachers at Adrian on Saturday April 25th. Teachers of district schools as well as of the village and city schools are requested to arrange specimens of work for exhibition at the County Fair next fall. These may be examination papers upon any and all studies pursued in your school: map-drawing, penmanship, language lessons, number work etc. If possible have work of each school bound together, convenient for exhibition, designating district on the cover or on the examination sheet. Teachers are especially urged to look after this at once. Every school can furnish something. Let us see who the live and energetic teachers of the county are.

Regular Session. There being no quorum present the council adjourned until Wednesday evening April 8, 1891.

CHAS. F. FIELD, RECORDER.

Village of Tecumseh, Mich., Council Room, April 8. 1891, 7:30 p. m.

Adjourned Session. Present President Howell, Trustees Bidwell, Heck, James, Smith and the recorder, Absent, Stout and Shull.

The minutes of the last regular and adjourned sessions were read and approved.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The chairman of the street committee reported that the committee had re-engaged Fred Tessman as teamster for the ensuing year on the same terms as last year, viz. $381.00.

The sexton reported five adult interments for March together with treasurer's receipt for $20.00. interment fees.

At the request of the president, W. E. Gray made a verbal report on the condition of the water tanks and wind mill stating them to be in fair condition.

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS.

E. S. Bardwell asked permission to sell peanuts, popcorn and candy from a platform on Evans street adjoining Harris & Hiteshu's store, on the same terms as last year, and that he have the privilege to remove to other points when desired.

On motion the petition of Mr. Bardwell was granted, on the condition that the removal of his stand to other locations be under the control of the street committee.

The following bills were read and referred to the finance committee:—

Tecumseh Electric Co., street lighting for March, $152.50; E. A. Hodges 2½ days street labor, $5 00; Moreland Bros. & Crane, oil $7.76; T. R. Kyle, marshal, $4 00; VanDuser & Bangs, maple trees for cemetery, $8.50.

The druggist bond of Charles A. Wright and Harriet E. Spafford in the penal sum of $2000, with two sureties, was presented and on motion was accepted and declared sufficient.

On motion A. James was appointed purchasing agent for the ensuing year.

The matter of leveling off the old gravel bank was brought up and after some discussion was referred to the street committee for investigation.

On motion the purchasing agent was instructed to purchase four suitable lamps for the election booths.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The finance committee reported favorably on the above bills as read and on motion orders were directed drawn for the several amounts.

The special order of the session, being the election of marshal and street commissioner, was then taken up.

On motion the council proceeded to elect by ballot a marshal for the ensuing year. T. R. Kyle received 4 votes, H. W. Stevens 1 and C. E. Williamson 1.

T. R Kyle having received a majority of all the votes cast was declared elected marshal for the ensuing year.

The council then proceeded to elect by ballot a street commissioner for the ensuing year. Albert Hyde, Jr. received 4 votes, Eugene A. Hodges 1, and A. L. Millis 1.

Albert Hyde, Jr. having received a majority of all the votes cast, was declared elected street commissioner for the ensuing year.

On motion the marshal's bond for the ensuing year was fixed at $6000, and the liquor bonds at $4000.

On motion the marshal was instructed to notify the saloon keepers that the provisions of the statute with reference to closing on Sunday must be observed.

The council then adjourned.

OBITUARY.

Died, at the house of Mr. James Lan in Raisin Mich, on April 4th. 1891, Miss Mary Thompson. The life of Miss Thompson was not a varied one; she was born in Scotland January 7th. 1864 and died April 4th. 1891, consequently at her death she was 27 years 2 months and 24 days old. At the age of 4 years she accompanied her parents to America; they settled in Adrian where her mother two brothers and two sisters still reside. When 11 years of age Mary came to live with the family of the late Edmund Hall of Raisin and continued to live with the family till her death. At an early age she exhibited a strength of character far in advance of her years and by her pleasant ways and genial disposition she not only gained the confidence and esteem of the entire family but of all with whom she became acquainted. They had long since learned to love and admire her and to consider her as a daughter and sister of the family. She had acquired an education sufficient to enable her to teach school which she did for several terms. Her health not being good she decided to abandon teaching and devote her time to the care and comfort of the family much to their satisfaction; and during the long illness of Mr. Hall she did all that heart and hands could do to soothe his pains. At school and sabbath school it seemed as if she was the special favorite of all the other members. March 27th, she with other members of the family went to Detroit to attend a wedding aniversary of a brother of Mrs Hall, she remaining to spend a few days with a friend and returned the following Tuesday feeling in the very best of spirits and apparently well. On retiring at night she bade us a cheerful good night and little did we think that would be the last good night we should hear from her lips. She was taken sick in the night and continued to grow worse till morning when two physicians were summoned who did all that could be done to alleviate her sufferings. Willing hands and loving hearts worked faithfully to comfort and restore her, but the disease (brain fever) had taken such a violent hold on her that all efforts to allay it seemed to be thwarted and after an illness of only a few short days she quietly and peacefully breathed her last at 6 p. m. Saturday April 4th. Thus ends the life of a pure, noble, and consistent christian. Her funeral was held on Tuesday April 7th. at the Presbyterian Church of Raisin, Rev. L. M. Belden her pastor officiating, and was largely attended by sympathizing and mourning friends. Her Sabbath School class contributed a beautiful floral emblem representing a broken circle with the piece broken out placed in the center. This being the first death from the class since its organization. The remaining members with their teacher Miss Caroline Doty attended in a body and it was a solemn scene as they approached the casket to take their last look of one they all loved so well. Thus ends the life of pure, sweet, noble Mary Thompson.

A. G. H.

Died, at Milan Michigan, April 5th, 1891. Mrs. Flora B. wife of Irving Vascelius. Flora B. Shutt, only child of Samuel L. and Nancy A. Shutt was born in Scottsburg, Livingston co. N.Y., in 1863. In '73 she was brought with her parents to Tecumseh, Mich. In October 1883 she was married to Mr. Irving Vascelius Leaving Tecumseh in 1889, Mr. and Mrs. Vascelius found a home in Milan Mich, where after a brief, severe illness she passed away at the early age of 25. Funeral services were held at the home of her parents in Tecumseh on the afternoon of Tuesday April 7th, which drew together a large circle of sympathizing friends, a number of whom had been the associates of Flora in their school days and who remembered her with all the fondness peculiar to the friendships of early years. Deep grief has fallen on loving hearts by this sudden and sad bereavement, the circumstances of which are unusually afflictive. In the death of Mrs Vascelius an only child has been taken from parents to whom she was very dear; a young wife from the husband of her youth; and a band of four little children has been left motherless. One alleviation of this heavy stroke is found in the submissive spirit with which death was met, and the bright gleam of christian hope which lighted up the dying hour. The last thoughts of the young mother were for her children. The legacy of love she left them will doubtless descend to other hearts and her wishes for them be fulfilled. To feel reconciled in view of an event like this is no easy matter. Only faith in Him who 'doeth all things well' can change the tempest of feeling which it awakens into a calm.

SAVE MONEY AND SUFFERING.

ONE feature of the thousands of testimonials that have been given in behalf of S.S.S. is remarkable. In numbers of instances it is related that a great deal of time and money have been spent in a vain effort to secure relief from disease in the usual way. A knowledge of the virtues of Swift's Specific would have saved the time and the money, to say nothing of the prevention of the suffering. There need be no such mistakes made now. The great blood purifier is for sale by druggists everywhere, and the S.S.S. company in Atlanta will send to any address their Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases free, and a pamphlet containing a few of the thousands of testimonials they have received from those who have experienced the benefits of this wonderful medicine.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, tetter, chappep hands chilblains corns, and all skin eruptions and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box for sale by John J. Orr.

Surprise to All.

After using "Mother's Friend" two months I was so speedily and easily relieved that it was a surprise to those attending me. "Mother's Friend" undoubtedly lessens the pains, shortens the time and restores the mother speedily to health. Will recommend it to all expectant mothers, and advise them to use it. Mrs. J. A. R., Muncie, Ind. Sold by John J. Orr.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Are you going to plant a tree?

Something new at Capt. Chilson's for 15 cents.

Fred Boyd is at home from Ypsilanti for a week's vacation.

At last Spring has got tired of lingering in the lap of winter.

S. W. Anderson is expected home from his New York trip to-day.

Find time at Find Social at Capt. Chilson's. Find 15 cents and go.

Anderson & Co., and Avery & Ellis both have a change of card this week.

The Ariel—Thomas Concert was a fitting close of our Entertainment Course.

Find 15 cents to go to the "Find" Social at Capt. Chilson's, Friday evening, April 17th.

A few more days like this and the click of the lawn mower will again be heard in the land.

A great bargain for some one. The Nathan Morse homestead is to be sold at auction May 16th.

Now is the appropriate season to spade up a patch in the back yard and prepare it for garden sass.

Lieut. Elliott Gray has a Shropshire lamb in his flock that weighed 48 pounds when only 46 days old.

Miss Anna May Bailey is at home from Ann Arbor, enjoying a week's vacation with friends in Macon.

Prof. E. A. Wilson is again attending to his official duties. He expects to start his township institutes before long.

Scove Stacy is attending to his office duties again this week, having downed the grip after a ten day's tussel.

C. W. Dickinson has bought out James Updike, Jr., and will run the West End Market on his own hook hereafter.

Jas. W. Patterson, of Elkhart, is spending two or three days in town this week. He shakes hands with just as much vim as ever.

Our foreman, W. G. Blymyer, has had a varied experience as a job printer and is turning out some of the finest work ever executed in this vicinity. Bring on your job printing.

The friends will hold their meetings, for awhile, in the W. C. T. U. rooms, south-east corner Chicago and Ottawa streets, up stairs. Meetings Sabbath morning and evening, 10:30 and 7:30. D. J. Lewis will be present in the evening.

Mr. W. G. Blymyer's household effects arrived last week and he is now nicely settled in his new home on Union street. We have no doubt that his family will find Tecumseh a congenial place to live in as they become acquainted.

We call attention to the new advertisement of the Semi-Weekly Free Press which appears on the eighth page. The Free Press is'nt afraid to take a little of its own advice and try the utility of advertising. They will doubtless find that it pays.

We hear occasionally from our old friend J. M. Fuller, of New York City. He is still manager of Fuller's Detective Bureau located at 841 Broadway, New York. He established the House in 1870, and it has since grown into one of the big institutions of Gotham.

Miss E. Cora DePuy is making a vigorous effort to establish a State Prohibition Daily for Michigan. It will require persistent and well directed effort to accomplish it, but the enterprise is in good hands and Miss DePuy can galvanize the venture into life, if any one can.

Daniel T. Hall went to Adrian yesterday.

Alva Spayde has a change of card this week.

Strong & McNair swing out a new card this week.

James H. Heck went to Adrian this forenoon on business.

The May Party has been fixed for Friday evening, May 1st.

Geo. S. Spafford has taken another trip to Chicago this week.

Go and see Haverley's Uncle Tom's Cabin at the Opera House this evening.

H. L. Jones has sold his cottage at Manitou Beach to Wm. Elliott for $1000.

Geo. U. Smith has a new corner at his house who will vote if he lives long enough.

Miss Ella Jackson is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hurlbut of Adrian this week.

F. H. Hall and sister Emma are visiting their sister, Mrs. W. H. Wiggins, in Adrian to-day.

A meeting of the County Teachers' Association will be held about the second Saturday in May.

Quite a number of Tecumseh people attended the Nellie Stevens concert at Adrian last evening.

Schremser's Detroit Society Orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music for the May Party.

Archie R. Boyd carries an unusually smiling countenance since the advent of that little girl at his house.

Misses Mamie Osborn and Luella Hendryx are at home from the Normal this week for a short vacation.

Gov. Winans has designated April 30th, as Arbor Day, and earnestly appeals to the people to observe the same by planting trees, vines or shrubbery along the highways, in the cemeteries and about their homes.

Miss Ida M. Taylor, of Tecumseh, who is teaching school at Jackson, has been offered a similar position in the schools at Chicago, at a salary of $800. We are pleased to learn that Miss Taylor is making rapid strides to the top of the ladder. She is classed among the first teachers in the State.

Charles J. Weir, a yardmaster for the Michigan Central at St. Thomas, Ontario, shot himself. His act was caused by despondency occasioned by an attack of the grippe. His wife was formerly Miss Jennie Cupples, of Tecumseh. No particulars of the sad affair have been received here as yet.

The cartoons in Puck of April 15th are entitled, "Good Advice for the Democratic Party—Don't Be Side-Tracked," "The Collecting Mania," and "The Performance was a Dead Failure." The latter, by Mr. Keppler, presents the recent Italian war-scare in a new light, and is very laughable.

The Patrons of Industry, Section Association 1432, will hold a meeting at the school house in District No. 5, on school section, Monday, April 20th, 1891, at 8 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of electing officers and transacting such other business as may come before the association. By order of President and Secretary.

We understand that Mont Hendershot has procured a position as foreman of the Lapeer County Democrat. We are glad to note his good fortune and can assure the proprietors of the Democrat that they have secured a first-class all round printer. We hope the position may prove a congenial one to both himself and his employers.

Our old friend Edward DePuy, of Saline, is getting there in pretty good shape. He has served as Supervisor of his township for the past four years and was re-elected for a fifth term this Spring, leading his ticket by 118 majority, the largest on the ticket. It is needless to say that Saline is a Democratic town and Ed. is on the right side of the fence politically.

Mrs. Jas. B. Colvin, of Raisin, who has been seriously ill for many months, has been failing rapidly for the past few days. Death came to her relief last Sunday evening. The funeral obsequies were held at the old home in Raisin yesterday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Frank Arnold, and were attended by a large concourse of sympathising friends. A fitting obituary notice will appear in a future issue.

M. E. Conklin opens the Spring campaign for the Walter A. Wood Harvesting Machinery with a new card in this week's HERALD. Met has been working for that company for fourteen years past. He is beginning his fifteenth year and he proposes to "whoop 'er up" for the Wood Machines stronger than ever during the coming season. Farmers should examine his machines before purchasing.

Gospel meetings, beginning Sunday morning and continuing throughout the week, every evening, will be conducted by the pastor of the Baptish church next week. It is expected that the Rev. Herman Burns, of Hillsdale, will preach each evening, and Miss Mattie Palmer, of Dexter, will lead the singing. People of any faith, and people of no faith, are most cordially invited.

F. E. ARNOLD, Pastor.

Mesdames De Wolf, Adkins, J. H. Heck and Coddington are attending the Baptist Missionary meeting at Adrian this week.

You will find your Ice Cream and Cake free at the Find Social at Capt. Chilson's Friday evening, April 17th. Admission 15 cents.

The Monroe Presbytery is in session this week at Adrian. Rev. W. H. Babbitt and Dr. Frost are in attendance from Tecumseh.

The Amendment to raise the Attorney General's Salary got a black eye in this County. The vote stood 1649 in favor and 1754 against.

Please find time to spend the evening of Friday, April 17th, with the King's Daughters, at Mr. E. D. Chilson's. Admission 15 cents and Ice Cream and Cake free.

The Kid Band treated Landlord Patterson to a serenade last evening. The Band never played better and Charley passed round the cigars at the close of the program.

The last dance of the season was given at Armory Hall last evening. Hubbard and Macham furnished the music and a fine crowd participated in tripping the light fantastic.

The Detroit Society Orchestra, which furnished the music for the junior hop, the great social event of the season at Ann Arbor, have been secured for the May Party. Do not fail to hear them.

The celebration of the eightieth birthday of Dr. McCosh, ex-President of Princeton University, will be described in the next number of Harper's Weekly. The article will be accompanied by a portrait of Dr. McCosh and illustrations of the silver presented on that occasion.

Harry Lee conducted the Lilley House exactly one month. During that time the House ran very smoothly and he developed first-class qualifications as a landlord. But Mr. Lee has other business ventures that require his attention and he finally concluded to relinquish the management of the Hotel, which now passes into Charley Patterson's hands.

D. H. Warren, Secretary of the 18th Mich. Vol. Inf'try Association, is in receipt of a letter from Col. C. V. R. Pond, Sec. of the ex-Com. of the National G. A. R. Encampment to be held in Detroit the first week in August, stating that the reunion of his regiment has been provided for on Wednesday, Aug. 5, in Room C., Barstow School Building on Larned st.

L. H. Foster has on exhibition in Stebbins' store an old side-board made by Dr. Merrick, fifty-seven years ago. It was made of wood cut and sawed in the city of Adrian by A. J. Comstock, and when completed Mr. Comstock paid $75 for the piece of furniture. It latterly found its way to the junk shop where it was rescued by Mr. Foster and has been toned up and given a new luster.—Mich. Messenger.

A transfer was consummated yesterday by which Chas. F. Patterson purchased Harry Lee's interest in the Lilley House and thus again becomes manager of the Hotel. Charley's countless friends will welcome him back to his old place with many a hand-shake and God-speed. If ever a man in Tecumseh was entitled by peculiar fitness to manage our leading Hotel Charley Patterson is that man, and he has simply taken his own. He may be regarded as one of our business fixtures hereafter.

The Ariel-Thomas Concert on Friday evening was given to a full house, notwithstanding the stormy weather. Those who braved the elements were well repaid for their trouble. The four young ladies are all trained vocalists and their harmony was simply perfect. Nearly every number of the program was favored with an encore. Mr. Thomas furnished the humorous part of the program and he showed himself to be a master of mimicry and burlesque. In fact the entire program was faultless, both from a musical and literary point of view.

The utility of advertising is again illustrated. Last Monday morning a worthy citizen of Tecumseh found a shawl. He hied himself at once to the HERALD office and left a "found" notice. Within two hours thereafter a worthy citizen of Raisin called and left a "lost" notice, giving a description of a shawl which tallied exactly with that in notice No. one. The two citizens were pointed toward each other as speedily as possible and the lost shawl was soon found—only twenty five cents for a single insertion of a lost or found notice, placed at the top of the column and next to reading matter.

The Students' Christian Association building at the Michigan University, is nearly finished, but $12,000 are needed to complete and finish it in time to dedicate during the June commencement. The Detroit Journal has undertaken to raise this amount for them in small donations, and this plan has been endorsed by President Angell, the Trustees of the Association, and the pastors of the Ann Arbor churches. Donations for this purpose may be sent to the Detroit Journal, and will be acknowledged and forwarded. The readers of the HERALD should heartily co-operate, for it is a most worthy cause.

A FRIEND IN NEED.

We have been sending out a batch of dunning letters lately. The different effect produced upon different individuals by these tender little missives is wonderful to behold. Some bring a remittance and others do not. Some provoke a friendly response and others—quite the reverse. One of them accidentally struck our friend Otis Whelan of Franklin and it found him both dead-broke and mud-bound. Otis is not embarrassed with a very fat bank balance but he has a will bigger than an ordinary farm and a heart as large as a banker's pocket book. So he went down into his pant's pockets, turned them inside out and rifled the contents. After sifting the contents through a selve and blowing off the chaff, there remained one jack knife, two inch screws, an old gimlet, two poker checks, three cuds of gum, and an old dilapidated greenback dollar. His first impulse was to keep the dollar and send us the remainder; but before deciding what to do, he sat down in the "old arm chair" and looked at the subject with both eyes and a pair spectacles. He pictured to himself the diminutive dimensions of the editorial woodpile, the big crack in the bottom of the editorial flour bin, the empty vacuity of the editorial maple syrup jug, and the utterly unutterable goneness of the editorial stomach. When he had finished his reflections, a big briney tear quivered in the northwest corner of his starboard eye, and he arose with fists clenched and a wild determination to smash something. He tore off the top lid of a flour sack, borrowed the hired girl's best lead pencil, and indited a beautiful gushing missive, couched in the choicest Latin phrases at his command. He then enclosed his sole surviving greenback dollar, placed both in a manilla envelope, borrowed a two cent stamp of the Tipton postmaster and addressed the entire combination to the "HERALD OFFICE, Tecumseh." Uncle Sam delivered the package in safety and within three minutes after it reached the confines of our sanctum the dollar was extracted and placed under lock and key in the money till. We tearfully and sympathetically commend Otis's example to all our other delinquents. Now is the time to pay up.

Card of Thanks

We hereby tender our heartfelt thanks to the many friends who so kindly sympathized with and assisted us during the illness and after the death of our loved one. Also to the Sabbath School class of which she was a member for their beautiful floral offering.

ITALY FEELS UGLY.

A Startling Rumor Regarding Her Intentions.

Rudini Said to Have Threatened to Dismiss Minister Porter Unless a Reply to His Last Communication Is Made at Once.

DON'T LIKE DELAY.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Something of a sensation was caused by a dispatch from Rome stating that Minister Porter will be dismissed and the Italian legation withdrawn from Washington if the Italian government does not receive a reply to "Marquis Imperiali's note" immediately The story was generally discredited, because to dismiss Minister Porter without giving his government an opportunity to recall him would be almost equivalent to a declaration of war. Besides, Marquis Imperiali is here merely in charge of "current business," and any communication from the Italian government would not be by note from him but from Di Rudini himself. Imperiali would merely deliver the Rudini communication to the secretary of state. The statement in the dispatch from Rome was, however, so explicit, and as so much of the information in regard to the affair with Italy has come first from Rome it was thought worth while to make inquiries of Secretary Blaine and Marquis Imperiali. The secretary declined to answer the numerous inquiries in regard to the matter early in the evening and Imperiali was "not at home." Later Secretary Blaine unhesitatingly expressed the opinion that the dispatch from Rome was untrue.

It is known here that Secretary Blaine has prepared an answer to the message of Premier Rudini. The fact of the preparation of Secretary Blaine's reply is not only well understood, but it is stated moreover that the secretary's letter was submitted to the president and his cabinet and was found to be satisfactory. In view of these circumstances it is asserted with considerable confidence that the letter of Secretary Blaine has already been sent to Marquis Rudini, though whether it was communicated by mail or telegraph is not known. If the former method were adopted the Italian premier, it is believed, was apprised of the fact. The Rome dispatch was shown to the president, and he returned word that he had nothing to say on the subject.

LONDON, April 11. — Advices from Italy represent the Rudini cabinet as deeply hurt by American comment on the Italian difficulty and that there is consequently a revulsion of feeling in favor of aggressive measures. It is said that King Humbert has received from the editor of an Italian newspaper in America a package of American papers containing pictures ridiculing his majesty and belittling the power and dignity of Italy. One picture in particular, representing the king as a monkey, gave great offense. Italy's blood is again boiling and something startling is anticipated within a few days.

Murderer Cash Acquitted.

DALLAS, Tex., April 13.—The trial of W. C. Cash for the murder of E. T. Young ended here in the acquittal of the defendant. Both men were Kentuckians and lived on adjoining farms. Young seduced Cash's wife and fled to this city, where he went into business. Cash separated from his wife, secured a divorce and followed Young here. Meeting him on the street he shot and killed him. He gave himself up, and said he was willing to take any punishment. His divorced wife secured lawyers and got him acquitted. After the acquittal Saturday the pair were again married.

Lots of Water in Sahara.

PARIS, April 11.—News comes from Oran that at El Golea, a small caravan station in the midst of the desert of Sahara, an enormous reservoir of water has been reached at a depth of 120 feet below the surface by workmen who were engaged in sinking a well. A yield of forty gallons of good pure water per minute has already been obtained. Water has never before been discovered at so slight a depth in the desert.

To Strike May 1.

LONDON, April 13.—Greek, Roumanian, Swiss, German, Belgian, French and Italian workingmen have decided to celebrate May 1 as a holiday. In Belgium the congress of miners and metalworkers declared for a general strike May 1. The number of workingmen affected by this declaration is 200,000.

Live Stock Frozen to Death.

DENVER, Col., April 13.—Reports received here from the southern Ute agency are to the effect that the Indians have lost nearly all their stock by the recent heavy snowstorms. The snow covered the ground at a depth of four feet and horses and cattle by the thousands starved to death.

Death of a Prominent Chicagoan.

CHICAGO, April 11.—A cablegram from Florence, Italy, received in this city announces the death of Gen. William E. Strong. He was 50 years of age. General Strong was prominent in world's fair circles and was a member of the board of directors.

A Temperance Congress.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A call has been issued to all opponents of the saloon inviting the appointment of delegates to a national temperance congress, to be held August 18 and 19, in the auditorium of the National Prohibition park, Staten Island.

Badly Hurt in a Collision.

BURLINGTON, Ia., April 11.—By a collision between a Rock Island passenger train and a wild freight train at Vincent, Ia., Postal Clerks W. H. Hope and E. J. Brown were badly crushed and several other trainmen injured.

A Terrible Deed.

OMAHA, Neb., April 10.—A special to the Bee from Herman, Neb., says: Mrs. Andrew Doll, while insane, murdered her two children, and then committed suicide by taking concentrated lye.

ILLINOIS VETERANS.

They Elect Horace Clark, of Mattoon, Their Department Commander.

DECATUR, Ill., April 11.—The vote for a state commander of the G. A. R. resulted in the election of Col. Horace Clark, of Mattoon, who received 547 votes against 399 cast for Maj. Thomas C. Fullerton, of Ottawa. The other officers were chosen as follows: Ivory H. Pike, of Bloomington, senior vice commander; S. G. Bendick, of Centralia, junior vice-commander; W. J. Rutledge, of Decatur, chaplain; P. L. McKinnis, of Moline, medical director. The selection of the place for holding the encampment next year was decided in favor of Springfield.

The following delegates at large were chosen: R. J. Oglesby, Decatur; Robert M. Woods, Joliet; Smith D. Atkins, Freeport; J. L. Bennett, Chicago; C. H. Cassell, Quincy; J. T. Rinaker, Carlinville; Martin Conrad, Chicago; J. F. Harrall, Aurora; L. S. Lambert, Galesburg; C. E. St. Clair, Chicago; Horace Chapin, Springfield; A. D. Reade, Evanston; George Durfee, Decatur; John Wood, Cairo.

Mrs. Mary A. Bradley, of Decatur, Ill., has been chosen state president of the Woman's Relief Corps; Mrs. D. G. Spalding, of Rockford, Ill., senior vice president; Mrs. Mary Ballinger, of Abraham Lincoln corps of Chicago, junior vice president.

[Horace S. Clark is a prominent attorney of Mattoon; has served his state in the state senate with distinction; is a fine presiding officer and a fluent speaker. He enlisted from the state of Ohio in 1861 in the Seventy-third Ohio volunteer infantry and went with his regiment to Virginia, where he participated in a large number of the engagements in that department as well as in the south, to which the regiment was transferred after the battle of Gettysburg. The regiment, the Seventy-third Ohio, was in over twenty hard-fought battles, including the second Bull Run, where Clark was twice slightly wounded, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg and the midnight charge at Lookout valley with the Thirty third Massachusetts, which was pronounced by Gen. Grant in his report as "one of the most daring feats of arms of the war."]

WAS NEVER INSANE.

Anna Dickinson Declares She Is the Victim of a Vile Plot.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The New York Herald publishes a startling story relative to the incarceration of Miss Anna Dickinson, the famous lecturer, in an insane asylum. The Herald says that Miss Dickinson came to New York Thursday with Dr. Frederick W. Seward, of Goshen, N. Y., at whose home she has been since she escaped from Danville, Pa., April 2. Miss Dickinson lays the blame for her incarceration upon her sister, whom she accuses of harboring an intense feeling of jealousy and hatred. She also accuses her sister's physician, Dr. Hileman, of being in the plot.

Dr. Seward, it appears, became informed of the facts of the case as alleged by Miss Dickinson and obtained the release of Miss Dickinson under pretense that he intended to take her to a private asylum where she would be more benefited. Dr. Seward expressed himself as entirely confident of the sanity of Miss Dickinson.

SCRANTON, Pa., April 11.—Miss Susan E. Dickinson was in the city yesterday in consultation with friends relative to the statements made by her sister to a reporter in New York. Miss Dickinson indignantly denied the published story that the distinguished woman had been sent to the insane asylum through jealousy and that she was not insane.

A GREAT SCHEME.

The United States to Build a South American Railway.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The first material outcome of the pan-American congress to bring about a commercial amalgamation of the United States and the republics of South and Central America will have a practical demonstration at noon to-day when the steamship Newport, of the Pacific mail steamship line, sails for South America, carrying as passengers two corps of eminent engineers, thoroughly equipped to make a survey for a railway system 3,000 miles in length and extending nearly the entire length of South America.

Recognized the Colored Race.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The president has listened to the voice of Afro-America, and a colored man is now on the world's fair commission. There being a vacancy in the commissioners at large Mr. Harrison has appointed R. W. Furnas, of Nebraska, an alternate, to fill the vacancy, and Hale G. Parker, of Missouri (colored), to fill the alternate's vacancy caused by the promotion of Furnas.

The Failure Record.

NEW YORK, April 11.—During the last seven days failures number for the United States 211, and for Canada 32, or a total of 243, as compared with a total of 243 last week and 368 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 209, representing 176 failures in the United States and 33 in the dominion of Canada.

End of a Seven Year's Struggle.

DUBLIN, April 13.—The plan of campaign has collapsed on the Tower Hill estates in Limerick and Glensharold, the former purchasing the holdings under the Ashbourne act, while the latter has reinstated the evicted tenants on the payment of a single year's rent less 30 per cent. Thus a seven years' struggle is ended.

Fourteen Years for Killing His Father.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 11.—Centry Butler and Hampton Nelson were hanged at Sumter Friday for the murder of Capt. John Maxey in January last.

PHINEAS T. BARNUM.

Funeral of the Famous Showman at Bridgeport, Conn.

The Will of the Famous Showman Read—How His Estate of $5,000,000 Was Disposed of—Provisions Against a Contest.

LAID IN THE TOMB.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 11.—Business here was almost entirely suspended out of respect to the memory of Bridgeport's great benefactor, the late P. T. Barnum. Mourning emblems were to be seen on all sides and the day was one of gloom and sorrow. At an early hour the streets were filled with people, not only of this city, but from the surrounding towns and cities. The funeral services were begun by a short prayer at the residence at 10:30, only the members of the family being present. The body was then conveyed to the Congregational church, where Dr. Collyer, of New York, delivered a touching oration. The singing was especially beautiful and the floral tributes many and appropriate. The church was crowded. A great throng followed the body to the grave.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 13.—The will of the late P. T. Barnum was read at Maranna immediately after the funeral in the presence of the family and representatives of the press. The wealth of the great showman is estimated to amount to over $5,000,000. The first will was written by Mr. Barnum in 1882, since which time eight codicils have been added at various times.

By a codicil dated July, 1890, he gives his wife $100,000 absolutely and $40,000 annuity. He bequeathed to the First Universalist church of this city $15,000 for providing preaching and other services recognized by the United States convention as in conformity to the faith of Universalism. He bequeathed Caroline C. Thompson, of New York, $100,000, to Clinton H. Seely, his grandson, $34,000. In the same codicil he states that he has no male heir named Barnum, and provides that if Clinton H. Seely will change his name to Clinton Barnum Seely he will give him $25,000 more. The contract between Barnum Bailey shall be enforced and 8 per cent. of his share in the show is given to Clinton Barnum Seely providing he will devote sufficient time in the interest of the show to carry it on successfully. If the sum reaches over $10,000 a year the balance goes to the estate.

To Mrs. Henry Buchetelle, Denver, Col., he gives 765 acres of valuable land in Denver. To Treasurer Fish of the great show is bequeathed 2 per cent. of the profits, providing he remains at the end of five years, in addition to his present salary. The residuary estate, after the payment of bequests, is divided among his children and grandchildren.

To Tufts college he bequeaths $40,000. To Universalist societies and institutions, to hospitals and asylums in various cities about $80,000 is left. He leaves $8,000 for a statue of himself at his grave. Any contestant of the will is to be cut off.

The last codicil, dated March 30, 1891, provides that his executors shall complete the new historical and scientific society building in this city, the same to cost $125,000.

NEW YORK, April 13.—In the storage-house in Hoboken is a statue of P. T. Barnum. It has been there since 1889 and was brought from Europe. The statue is about seven feet high and is of bronze. It represents Barnum seated in a great bronze arm-chair, and was made by Mr. Barnum's personal order. Mr. Barnum visited the place soon after the statue arrived and expressed himself as being delighted with it. He gave instructions that no one should see it until after his death.

Funeral of Gen. Pike.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The funeral services over the remains of Gen. Albert Pike took place at 3 o'clock p. m. at Ascension church, this city, Rev. Dr. Elliott officiating. The remains, which were lying in state at the Scottish Rite cathedral, were followed to the church by a masonic escort. The services were simple and impressive. The choir sang the hymn: "Abide with Me," after which Dr. Elliott recited the Episcopal burial service. The remains were then taken to Oak Hill cemetery and placed in a vault.

Met a Terrible Death.

MILWAUKEE, April 11.—While assisting in cleaning one of the big beer vats at the Schlitz brewery Joseph Hamann fell into the vat, which was filled with boiling water. None of his associates witnessed the accident, and when they missed him he was felt for with a pole and located in the bottom of the vat. His body was horribly scalded when taken out, and life was extinct.

Scalded to Death.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 10.—The engine of freight train 25, north bound, on the Wisconsin Central road, jumped the track near Vernon. It ran on a bridge near by and tipped over, pinioning Dan McMullen, engineer; B. A. Moore, fireman, and Peter Seipp, a brakeman, beneath the wreck. All were terribly scalded, and have since died.

MERIT WINS.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. J. J. Orr, Druggist.

MARVELOUS ENDURANCE.

The vast amount of labor performed by the heart in keeping all portions of the body supplied with blood is not generally known. It beats 100,000 times and forces the blood at the rate of 168 miles a day, which is 3,000,000,000 times and 5,150,880 miles in a life time. No wonder there are so many HEART FAILURES. The first symptoms are shortness of breath when exercising, pain in the side or stomach, fluttering choking in throat, oppression, then follow weak, hungry or smothering spells, swolen ankles, etc. Dr. Franklin Miles' NEW HEART CURE is the only reliable remedy. THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

A FARMER'S OPINIONS.

Why should not farmers organize? Business men and professional men have been organized for years' and neither in social, business or political relations have they ever had such need for through effective organizations as have the producing class. This is pre-eminently an age of organization and concerted action, and the present movement will not be as spasmodic and temporary in character as was the old Grange movement. Many of the same evils exist to-day that existed twenty years ago. The reforms that have been promised by politicians and predicted by writers on political economy have not been kept in letter or in spirit. The traditions of the old parties have hampered politicians and defeated legislation. Reforms move slowly—too slowly when entrusted to existing political parties, and the general feeling of unrest all over the country shows that people are casting off political allegiance, and are getting ready to act for themselves, independently of party dictation. The apparent change in politics in such states as Iowa does not mean that a large part of our voters are changing from Republicans and are becoming Democrats, but it does mean that they propose to rebuke any man or party that fails to do the will of the people. The recent election, it is true, gives a temporary Democratic victory, but the next change in the political wheel will probably show that the voters will rebuke men, measures or parties that fail to heed the wants of the people.

It may be asserted that the farmers have not persistently demanded any particular measure, while business men have been looking closely after legislation, and this is perhaps true, as the producing classes, because of their isolation and lack of experience in such matters, have been slow to act and have not been so persistent as have people with other interests, but the ballot is within their reach, and having learned their power and how effective that power is they will not be slow to exercise it. In fact there is great danger in too great an exercise of that power, or rather, as in the old Granger days, there is danger that demagogues will take advantage of the situation to lead the masses to extreams in the hope of gaining advantages personal to themselves.

But, aside from the political aspects of the situation, the movement will make better business men of our farmers; will make them more careful in ordinary transactions; more observant of influences operating generally over the country; will make them more self-reliant and determined, and will better fit them for conducting their own affairs and for exercising the duties of citizenship. The present movement has a wonderfully stimulating effect, energizing to greater activity, more thorough, strict and careful investigation, which must result in arriving at a higher standard of citizenship.

Another—and to my mind the most important—consideration is the social benefits that must accrue to those engaged in the farmers' movement. The farmer and his family have been rather exclusive—not particularly from choice, but it was so originally from the very necessities of the case; but more recently from custom and habit. Now the social conditions are changed for the better. See, for example, what a wonderful change for the better there has been in the agricultural press. Now good agricultural literature enters every progressive farm home. Opportunity for meeting and interchange of opinion is within the reach of all. Social gatherings, Granges, Farmers' Alliances and Farmers' Institutes are doing a good work and to-day the boys and the girls on the farm have an opportunity to get an education and have social advantages that their parents never had.

GEO. VANHOUTEN.

THE SAFE WAY OF DOING.

If a man writes with a bitter partisan tone, put his paper in the waste basket. By this plan the ideas advanced by honest, level-headed, far-seeing writers will be adopted by the masses, and the ideas of the do-it-all-at-one-blow fellows will be dropped. Of the latter class there are too many, in my judgment. We need relief—there is no mistake about it; but we don't want a great many things that are demanded. I believe in doing one thing at a time, and doing it well. Organization is necessary for protection. After that I believe in education. Educate the farmer that he may see who he stands. This will make him think for himself, and then he will naturally demand that he have a seat at the first table, and he will get it. I am glad that we have agricultural journals that dare to take the course you have taken, and that they are journals that go into every part of the union. I am no prophet, but I believe that the ideas you are now scattering abroad will eventually be the ones that will be adopted. I am a little like Crockett—be sure you are right, and then stick to it.

THE STEEL RAIL TRUST.

It Puts Up the Price of Rails—Great Profits of the Rail Makers—High Protection and What It Costs—A Strong Monopoly Which Needs No Protection.

The steel rail manufacturing in the United States has been consolidated into fewer and fewer hands during the past ten years. Ten years ago there were eleven companies engaged in making rails; now there are only six, and these are in a combination which controls prices and output. A recent meeting of the manufacturers were held, at which it was agreed to put up the prices of rails to $30 a ton, the price having been as low as $27.50 at the beginning of the year.

The present price of the Bessemer steel rails in England is $21 a ton, or $9 lower than in the United States. Our total production of rails last year is given by the American Iron & Steel Association as 1,797,000 gross tons of 2,240 pounds. If the present difference of $9 a ton should continue through the year, we should pay $16,173,000 more for our rails this year than the same quantity would cost in England.

In order to prevent us from buying rails where we can get them cheapest a protective duty of $13.44 a ton is placed on rails, although the difference between the total labor cost of production in England and the United States has been officially stated by United States Labor Commissioner Carroll D. Wright to be only 27¾ cents a ton. This is the difference in the entire labor cost, beginning with the iron ore.

The entire cost of producing a ton of rails in the United States is given by Mr. Wright as $25.77 and the entire European cost, as averaged from seven establishments on the Continent and two in England, is stated by the same authority to be be $22.77. This makes a difference in the total cost of production of just $3—to cover which our tariff grinders give a duty of $13.44!

As the steel rail trust has fixed the price of rails at $30 a ton, or $4.30 above the cost of production, the total net earnings of the six companies for this year on 1,797,000 tons will be $7,700,000.

Our experience in the protection of iron and steel has been carefully studied and the result reduced to figures by David A. Wells in his "Recent Economic Changes." Mr. Wells takes the figures given out by the Iron and Steel Association, of Philadelphia, covering the ten years from 1878 to 1887, inclusive, and shows that the consumption of iron and steel averaged 6,000,000 net tons per annum. The average price of anthracite pig iron in Philadelphia was $21.87; the price of "Scotch" pig in England was $12.94, which, allowing ample for freights, would make about $15 in this country. The average difference was about $7.

The average price of best rolled iron in Philadelphia was $50.30 per gross ton; in England the corresponding iron was $35.48, a difference of over $14; but, taking the lowest difference—$7—it then appears that the consumers here paid on 60,000,000 tons in ten years $420,000,000 more than the English consumers paid; or, more accurately, more than a like quantity would have cost, taking the English price plus the freight.

The aggregate consumption of steel was 20,000,000 tons. Taking then the lowest form of steel—the rails—the average American price was $44; the average English price $30. The increased cost to Americans was $280,000,000; but, deducting $7 per ton from the iron used in making these rails, the difference is $140,000,000. The excess of price on iron and steel was then $560,000,000 for ten years, or $56,000,000 per year.

TWO FOREIGN MARKETS.

Our Markets in Brazil and in England Compared—Vast Importance of the English Market to Our Farmers—Brazil's Small and Mixed Population.

Now that partial free trade under the name of "reciprocity" has been secured with Brazil it will be of interest to examine in detail what kind of a market has been opened for us in that country, and to compare it with the free market we already have in England.

The McKinley type of "reciprocity" seeks to accomplish its end by threats of retaliation to the injury of our own people. If you do not open your markets to us, we say to Brazil, we will avenge ourselves upon you by making our own people pay duties on your sugar, your coffee, your hides—on your sugar, seven-tenths of a cent to two cents per pound; on your coffee, three cents per pound, and on your hides one and a half cents per pound. Brazil knew that the tariff is a tax and that these duties would restrict the sale of her products in this country, and hence Brazil has chosen to lower her tariff wall to our farm products and to many of our manufactures.

Our wise lawmakers ought to see that if other nations should legislate against us to enforce reciprocity of trade with them as we have legislated against Brazil we should be taken at a great disadvantage. A just legislator will not vote for any measure applying to foreign nations which he is not perfectly willing that those nations should apply to our own country. How should we like to have England enact a reciprocity measure embodying our Blaine reciprocity idea? Admit tin plates free, or your wheat and flour shall be taxed at Liverpool; lower your duties on woolen goods, or we will tax your corn and your meat; let in raw wool free from the English colonies, or we will tax your raw cotton. Such a tit-for-tat would expose to us what a foolish and shallow makeshift is our reciprocity by threats of retaliation.

But our lawmakers ought to be willing to see reciprocity by threats become universal, else their votes for the McKinley brand of reciprocity were inconsistent and not founded on their belief in the intrinsic wisdom and justice of that measure. These lawmakers voted tariff duties on many English products which involve a great hardship to many manufacturers and working people in Europe by shutting them out of our markets; and now our high tariff organs exultingly print reports of the shutting down of worsted mills in Bradford, England. These reports are commented upon with great satisfaction by the high protectionists as evidence of the wisdom of the McKinley law; for England's loss, they stupidly say, is our gain.

It is worth while to compare our great free market in England, which the protectionists affect to despise, with the markets of Brazil, which they now look upon as the promised land in which our farmers and manufacturers are to sell enormous quantities of their products and reap untold profits in trade. In order to make this comparison in detail it will be necessary to take the figures for the fiscal year 1889, those for 1890 not being available as yet for many commodities. Our exports of the leading commodities to Brazil and England (including Scotland and Ireland) for the fiscal year are given in the following comparison:

	Brazil.	England.
Agricultural machinery	$ 31,900	$ 456,800
Animals	79,800	16,377,000
Corn	25,700	19,783,000

Beef products	9,000	18,250,000
Hog products	590,000	40,680,000
Butter and cheese	7,800	7,890,000
Tobacco	6,700	6,968,000
Wood and manufacturings of	186,500	7,300,000

Our total exports to Brazil for 1889 were valued at $9,276,511, and those to England amounted to $379,990,131. Our total exports to all countries being $730,282,000, it is seen that England took more than half of the commodities which we sent abroad.

The vast importance of the English market to farmers may be seen by comparing our exports of farm products to that country in 1890 with the total exports of these articles, as in the following table:

	Total Exports.	Exports to England.
Cattle	$ 16,628,000	$ 16,189,000
Corn	32,462,000	19,783,000

Mr. Blaine professed much concern because in 1889 "the balance of trade" in our trade with Brazil was so much against us. We bought $60,000,000 worth of merchandise from Brazil, while that country bought only $9,000,000 from us. From these figures Mr. Blaine drew the astounding conclusion that we lost $51,000,000 in Brazil in a single year! Upon the same basis he and his followers ought to view with intense satisfaction our "balance of trade" against England for the same year. In 1889 our exports to England amounted to $379,990,000, while our imports from England were only $178,269,000. What protectionists call the "balance of trade in our favor" ought here to be $201,721,000. According to Blaine's figuring we made that amount in England in one year; and this "shrewd and weather-wise navigator" ought certainly to exert himself to increase such a profitable trade. How would some of his Brazilian free trade do in this case? Although the Brazilian duties on farm products which are to be removed are small, still it is doubtless true that Blaine's free trade will "open the market there for another bushel of wheat and another barrel of pork." Our farm products will find a larger sale there, but our farmers must not expect too much from the Brazilian market. There are only about 13,000,000 inhabitants in Brazil, of whom only about 4,000,000 are whites. The rest are Indians, negroes and mixed races. England has a population of about 36,000,000.

PROTECTION BOODLE.

Canadian Manufacturers Imitating the United States in Raising Campaign Funds.

In the political campaign now in progress in Canada the question of unrestricted reciprocity of trade with the United States is the main issue. The compaign there is developing some amusing resemblances to the protectionist tactics in our own campaigns.

A dispatch from Montreal shows, for example, how the protected manufacturers of Canada are preparing to collect "boodle for use in the coming election. The dispatch reads curiously like what happens in the United States in a political campaign. Here it is:

The manufacturers are becoming very much alarmed at the unrestrained reciprocity policy of the liberals, believing that if free trade between Canada and the United States is had the Canadian manufacturers will be run out of business by the free competition from the other side. A meeting was held, therefore, to devise means to combat the liberals. There were about twenty millionaire manufacturers and business men present. * * * Resolutions were offered and adopted condemning unrestricted reciprocity and approving the government policy of limited reciprocity and protection to Canadian manufacturers. It is thought that the manufacturers will subscribe $250,000 to the election fund.

As much alike as two peas. We erect a McKinley wall to protect ourselves against Canada, our protected interests subscribe enormous funds to keep that wall in repair when it is endangered about election time; and now the protected interests of Canada are going through with the same comedy! We need protection against Canada, and Canada needs protection against us! American "boodle" is raised here to save us from Canada, and Canadian "boodle" is raised there as the only salvation from the cheap flow of American goods which will drive Canadian manufacturers to the wall and throw Canadian labor out of employment. The absurdities of these protectionists crop up in every country and nowhere are they more ridiculous than between countries situated like Canada and the United States.

—It is said that nine-tenths of the industries of this country are controlled by trusts or combines. A large number have sprung up since the McKinley bill went into effect.

Is one which is guaranteed to bring you satisfactory results, or in case of failure a return of purchase price. On this safe plan you can buy from our advertised Druggist a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It is guaranteed to bring relief in every case, when used for any affection of Throat, Lungs or Chest, such as Consumption, Inflammation of Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Croup, etc., etc. It is pleasant and agreeable to taste, perfectly safe, and can always be depended upon.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is a sure cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor Enquirer, McArthur, Ohio.

Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.—Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

PROGRESS.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY,

Dr. Brown Sequard's elixir of youth may be an important discovery, but every one knows that Dr. Franklin Miles' New Heart Cure certainly is. It has given thousands afflicted serious heart disease a New Lease of Life. Druggists who can observe its effects on many costomers everywhere speak very highly of it. Mr. John Weaver, Knightstown Ind., says: "I have sold much of Dr. Miles New Cure and have received many good reports." O. Monroe, of Dunkirk, N. Y., report large sales. "And the best part of it is every bottle has given satisfaction." Sold and guaranteed by Baker & Hall.

ONE DOLLAR WELL INVESTED.

If you have bad breath, constipation, pain in the small of the back, discolored skin, nervousness, or dizziness your only wise course is to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. It will cleanse the blood of all impurities, regulates the Kidneys and Liver, and thus restore a healthy glow to your checks again. All druggists; one dollar a bottle.

The Liver

When out of order, involves every organ of the body. Remedies for some other derangement are frequently taken without the least effect, because it is the liver which is the real source of the trouble, and until that is set right there can be no health, strength, or comfort in any part of the system. Mercury, in some form, is a common specific for a sluggish liver; but a far safer and more effective medicine is

Ayer's Pills.

For loss of appetite, bilious troubles, constipation, indigestion, and sick headache, these Pills are unsurpassed.

"For a long time I was a sufferer from stomach, liver, and kidney troubles, experiencing much difficulty in digestion, with severe pains in the lumbar region and other parts of the body. Having tried a variety of remedies, including warm baths, with only temporary relief, about three months ago I began the use of Ayer's Pills, and my health is so much improved that I gladly testify to the superior merits of this medicine."—Manoel Jorge Pereira, Porto, Portugal.

"For the cure of headache, Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the most effective medicine I ever used."—R. K. James, Dorchester, Mass.

"When I feel the need of a cathartic, I take Ayer's Pills, and find them to be more effective than any other pill I ever took."—Mrs. B. C. Grubb, Burwellville, Va.

"I have found in Ayer's Pills, an invaluable remedy for constipation, biliousness, and kindred disorders, peculiar to miasmatic localities. Taken in small and frequent doses, these Pills on the liver, restoring its natural powers, and aiding it in throwing off malarial poisons."—C. F. Alston, Quitman, Texas.

Act Well

"Whenever I am troubled with constipation, or suffer from loss of appetite, Ayer's Pills set me right again."—A. J. Kiser, Jr., Rock House, Va.

"In 1858, by the advice of a friend, I began the use of Ayer's Pills as a remedy for biliousness, constipation, high fevers, and colds. They served me better than anything I had previously tried, and I have used them in attacks of that sort ever since."—H. W. Hersh, Judsonia, Ark.

IT WORKS WONDERS.

The tonic and alterative properties of S. S. S. are now widely known, and it enjoys wonderful popularity as a spring medicine. It is as perfectly adapted to the delicate system of a little child as it is to that of the adult. It works wonders on those who use it as a tonic, as an alterative, and as a blood purifier. It gives health, strength and heartiness to the sick and the feeble. It is adapted to the very youg and the very old. It revives, renews and builds up the feeble or the broken-down system.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

TOOK A LONG SLEEP.

Hiram McConkey Suddenly Awakens After an Eight-Months' Slumber.

Hiram McConkey, of Springport, slept for eight months. Last July he lost the power of speech, was taken sick, went to bed, and had not spoken or opened his eyes until the other night blood began to flow from his head and ears and suddenly he came to his senses. The doctors were dumfounded by the phenomenon and explained it by the supposition that some blood became clotted in his brain, which prevented it from being active. He remembers nothing since he went into the sound sleep, but can recall everything previous to that time. During eight months the functions of the body remained quiescent, the man neither opening his eyes nor speaking a word. McConkey is a married man, and has of late been granted a pension for service in the war of 1812.

WON THE SLEEP-FAST.

John Cunningham the Only One to Keep Awake for Seven Days.

The seven-day sleep-fast closed in Detroit with John Cunningham as the only one left. Townsend tried his best to stay, but on the last day he tumbled in a heap on the floor and at once fell asleep. Cunningham watched the clock, danced, sang and jumped to keep awake, and in the last hours complained that somebody had stopped the clock. Hundreds of people were present at the close and cheered the winner, who gets $500. He was taken to the stage and introduced, but fell asleep while it was going on. He lost six pounds and Townsend eight pounds.

Held a Prisoner in Mexico.

M. C. Bernard, a mining engineer who has just returned from Mexico, says that a young Michigan man named Graham is in prison at Guanajuato under a sentence of twenty years on an unjust conviction of murder. It seems that Graham was attacked on the streets of Lagas by a Mexican and a German, who were drunk, and shot the German in self-defense. Bernard says he was an eye-witness of the affair and testified to the facts on the trial, but ten Mexicans who did not see the fight testified that Graham started it.

Attempt to Murder a Cashier.

George A. Sherwood, teller in the Charlevoix bank, while sitting at his desk was surprised at a pistol shot followed by a crash of glass. He saw a man standing outside the window and dropped to avoid a second shot. The sound alarmed the people, and a searching party spent the night trying to find the man, but failed. It was supposed that the shooter intended to murder Sherwood and then rob the bank, which at the time had considerable money sent on to pay the woodsmen.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by fifty-two observers in different parts of the state for the week ended April 4 indicated that cholera morbus, whooping cough and dysentery increased, and cerebro spinal meningitis, typhoid-fever, inflammation of the brain and scarlet fever decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twenty places, scarlet fever at thirty-one, typhoid fever at three and measles at twenty-seven places.

Died Suddenly.

John H. Buckingham, a Chicago commercial traveling man, died suddenly of heart disease at Lansing. He had spent the evening at a party in his honor at the house of one of the firm of Bement & Sons. A friend returned with him to the hotel to spend the night with him. As they were about to retire Buckingham gave directions about the time when he should be awakened, and immediately fell forward in a chair, dead.

Had Saved a Snug Fortune.

Moses Chappell, a rag-peddler, was found paralyzed in the hut in which he lived at Detroit and in addition both his feet and hands were frozen. He died soon after he was discovered. He was worth about $8,000, although he was supposed to be a pauper.

Short but Newsy Items.

Marquette odd fellows are building a $25,000 temple.

The Kalamazoo insane asylum contains 1,021 patients, the largest number in its history.

Caro citizens have pledged $25,000 for the Bay City & Port Huron railway.

Mrs. Charles Spaulding wife of a well-to-do farmer living a few miles east of Lapeer, committed suicide by hanging herself.

The latest directory of Lansing contains 5,920 names.

The Michigan society of Sons of the American Revolution held their first annual banquet at Detroit.

A safe in Fred Barney's office at Battle Creek, was blown open and a small amount of money taken.

The Latimer residence at Jackson where Irving Latimer killed his mother two years ago, was sold at mortgage sale for $2,745.

A coroner's inquest decided Charles Moyer, of Detroit, said to have been kicked to death by Charles Perrin, died from heart disease and not as the result of any injury inflicted by Perrin.

Julia Goddard, of Grand Rapids, suing Farmer Westcott for $15,000 damages to her affections for alleged breach of promise, was given a verdict of six cents and costs.

The March product of the mines in Calumet was as follows: Calumet and Hecla, 3,628¾ tons; Atlantic, 214½; Peninsula, 80; Quincy, 500¼; Franklin, 120.

Burt Robinson and Charles Smith, the boys convicted of the Vicksburg burglary, were sentenced, Robinson to Jackson for two years and nine months and Smith to Ionia for two years and six months.

Browning's mammoth furniture factory at Vermontville, including the electric light plant, was burned to the ground and nothing saved. The loss was from $18,000 to $20,000 and the insurance about $5,000.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich., April 9.—The senate yesterday passed the university appropriation bill as it came from the house—$185,750 for the years 1891-92; also a bill establishing a state stationery department for the purchase and distribution of stationery in the state institutions and departments.

LANSING, Mich., April 10.—The senate yesterday passed a bill making general election days legal holidays; also a bill authorizing the incorporation of companies for improving rivers amd streams for the purpose of sorting and driving logs.

LANSING, Mich., April 11.—The senate yesterday failed to pass a bill detaching the counties of Gogebic and Ontonagon from the Twelfth judicial circuit and forming therefrom the Thirty-second district. The vote was, however, recomidered, and an effort to pass the bill will again be made. In acting on the state public school appropriation the senate cut out the item of $4,000 for the expenses of an agent in conducting children to and from the school. The item was inserted to guard against possible repetition of the Nellie Griffin tragedy. The bill as passed appropriates $75,300 for the expenses of the school for the next two years.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., April 9.—The house committee on state affairs yesterday reported a substitute for the Ferguson bill reducing the test of illuminating oil from 120 to 110 degrees. The substitute is the Wisconsin system requiring a test of 120 degrees without igniting. The present test is 120 without flashing, and is a practical reduction of 10 degrees. The Ferguson bill provided for a reduction in salary of inspector and of fees of deputies for inspection, but the substitute allows this section of the law to remain.

LANSING, Mich., April 10.—Representative Hawley, representative from Ionia county, died yesterday morning of la grippe. Resolutions of respect were adopted by the house, and adjournment was taken until the regular hour to-day.

LANSING, Mich., April 11.—The house committee on elections reported a substitute for the several general election bills introduced in that body. The substitute is modeled closely after the Australian system, but differs therefrom in providing for separate state, county and municipal tickets. These tickets are to be furnished free of charge. A favorable report was made on a bill providing for the appointment by the governor of a dairy and food commissioner, with an annual salary of $1,200 and expenses. A bill was passed which provides a uniform system of accounting for all state institutions and which requires an itemized statement of expenses to be forwarded to the auditor general every three months. The apportionment committee reported a bill to redistrict the representative districts.

WORLD'S WHEAT CROP.

It Is Almost Certain to Fall Below the Consumption Computed.

LONDON, April 7.—The Standard publishes a long and careful review of the agricultural outlook, in the course of which it says that the steady rise in wheat revives the hopes of the English farmer, adding that wheat will probably reach the highest price in many years, the principal cause of the rise being the failure of foreign crops. The wheat crops of France and Russia, according to the Standard, are much below the average, and the same paper says the deficiency will be at least 20,000,000 quarters, adding:

"It is expected that cold winds and frosts have almost destroyed the French crop. Germany, Holland and Belgium all furnish pessimist reports. In Roumania there is a decreased wheat area, and in India there has been a bad wheat season. The only exception is Hungary, where there are better prospects; but it is almost certain that the world's wheat consumption will exceed the production computed. Whatever the magnitude of America's crop may be, it will not be sufficient to cover the European deficit, thus compelling an extensive draft upon the reserves for the third year in succession.

"The increased home consumption, the decreased wheat area, owing to the spread of population and recourse to scientific tillage in order to repair the waste of first settlers, thus increasing the cost of production, must inevitably remove the American farmers' formidable competition in European markets and allow the English farmer to look forward to a prosperous future."

HAIL AND HIGH WINDS.

Missouri and Kansas Towns Visited with Hail Storms and High Winds.

ST. LOUIS, April 10.—A dispatch from Springfield, Mo., says: The severest hail storm in ten years was raging here Thursday about noon. In the western part of the city windows and glass doors were broken by the hundreds. The hailstones were as big as hens' eggs. Many persons exposed to the storm received severe bruises from the hail. At Sandvale, Kan., a heavy wind and rainstorm did a great deal of damage by blowing down and unroofing buildings, leveling fences and trees.

NEVADA, Mo., April 10.—A cyclone passed near here at 9:30 Wednesday night, tearing down three dwelling houses and many barns and outbuildings. In one of the barns a horse was left standing hitched to a post in his stall unhurt, while the building was completely carried away. No one was hurt in the city, but it is reported that a child of William Lewis, living 4 miles east of here, was severely injured.

ELEVEN MEN INJURED.

Hungarian Workmen Horribly Mutilated by an Explosion at Braddock, Pa.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 8.—A Braddock, Pa., special says eleven men were seriously injured by an explosion in a row of frame tenements. The men were all married men and Hungarians who boarded in the row. The boarding houses were kept by Joseph Chisick and Joe Herodos. There were no gas attachments in the houses, but pipes still there are supposed to have been leaking. One man got up at 3 o'clock in Herodos' boarding house to light a lamp. He struck a match and simultaneously there was a quivering of the building, followed by a loud report, and a moment later the exterior of the building was enveloped in flames. All the men were terribly burned. Pierhacs, Novosk, Sekerak and Czehnlya will die, while the rest have a bare living chance.

Carried Over the Dam to Death.

ORANGE, Mass., April 13. — Sunday afternoon while four Italians, Carmelo Carria, Tony Long, Tony Jedium and Nicolo Marchesi, were boatriding on Milles river they allowed the boat to go too close to the rapids and were carried over the dam and drowned.

Quarreled Over an Account.

VANDALIA, Ill., April 13. — Cyrus Browning and Thomas Cullom, living near Van Burensburg, quarreled about an account, when Browning drew a knife and stabbed Cullom in the groin, resulting in his death a few hours later.

The Eloquent Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago, Does Suffering Humanity a Great Service by Telling His Experience with a Great Family Medicine. Read:

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability.

"Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. As I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way.

"Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used.

"One of my sons, who has long been a sufferer from Catarrh, has received like signal relief from this old enemy. P. S. HENSON.

GOOD NEWS

—ABOUT—

HARVEY!

The New Temperance and Manufacturing Town two Miles South of Chicago.

NEW RAILROADS—The Northern Pacific R'y Co. is extending the Chicago Central through the town. An exevated railroad chartered on Halsted street, with $10,000,000 capital stock. A local street car line to be completed in 90 days.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS PROGRESSING. Two miles of Mason Sewerage already in, and contract let for twice as much more. Contracts have been awarded for paving Park Ave., 151st St., and 155th St. Water-works, side walks, shade trees and street grading to be pushed at once. The above improvements are being made without taxation or expense to lot owners or purchasers, which occasions the announcement that all lots included in Blocks 119 to 126 inclusive, still selling at first prices, will be advanced May 1st. This is the last chance to secure business or residence lots at first prices within a short distance of the center of the town.

PRICES TO ADVANCE MAY 1ST.

☞ DO NOT MAKE THE MISTAKE of delaying longer your visit to the "MAGIC CITY," or of making an investment by mail if you cannot come. Spring is here; its just the time to come.

Read What Disinterested Newspapers Say of Harvey:

Last week we announced the coming of a very important railroad on the west side of Harvey, through Blue Island to Chicago. This week we can announce another, the Chicago North and South Elevated Railway, with a capital of $10,000,000. One million is already subscribed. W. C. Goudy alone taking $250,000. The road was projected by W. C. Goudy, J. A. Austin, Geo. C. Newberry, Samuel T. White and others. The proposed route will start at Harvey, about One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth and Halsted Streets. A perfectly straight route along this most populous street will bring Harvey within fifteen miles of the center of Chicago. The road is to be an elevated road and will not be obstructed by cross streets, or east or west lines of any kind. The stock is eagerly sought for, and will be a success.—Chicago Tribune, April 4th.

The thriving suburb of Harvey is getting a reputation for the solidity and permanency of its improvements. * * Last summer a four foot brick sewer was laid on 155th street from Ashland Av. Contracts have been let for a sewer on 157th street from Halsted street to the Illinois Central tracks. This makes nearly two miles already built, about six miles under contract, and two and a half to be built next summer, a total of ten miles of brick sewer in all.—From the Economist, Chicago, March 28, 1891.

REMEMBER!

It is necessary to buy in HARVEY PROPER to obtain ADVANTAGE of the ABOVE IMPROVEMENTS made by the Land Association. $40,000 WORTH OF PROPERTY sold by us to MICHIGAN PEOPLE in the past ten weeks, and yet it can be safely said that every lot sold by us can be resold before July next for an ADVANCE OF FROM 25 to 100 PER CENT. The BEST THING to do is to come and see for yourself. The NEXT BEST THING is to send for corrected plat and make a selection by mail. Only Two Weeks Remain to Secure Choice Lots at First Prices in the original tract of Harvey.

☞ Call at our Chicago office by 9 a. m., get FREE TRANSPORTATION, and go with us to see the "Magic City." We are representing Walter Thomas Mills & Co., in Michigan, but all mail should be addressed to us to save confusion and delay.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

G. W. Jackson, of Tecumseh, was in the village Monday.

W. L. Jones was the first to sow oats in this section.

James Curry's family was on the sick list, with the grippe, last week.

F. E. Pocklington was home from Harvey the first of the week, returning Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Beckley left Wednesday of last week for a visit with relatives in New York State and New Jersey.

Mr. Coda, of Bellville, a Normal friend, was the guest of T. D. Loree, Friday and Saturday of last week.

Mrs. Wm. Larkin and daughter, Ella, left for Reed City last week to make her nephew, Teddie Winder, a visit.

Fred. Boyd, of Tecumseh, at present attending school at the Normal, was in the village last week to make application for our school.

Dean Loree, Jennie Osgood and Loana Davidson, were home last week during the Normal vacation, returning to Ypsilanti Monday.

C. C. Miller, manager of the Lenawee County Butter Co., of Detroit, was in the village the fore part of the week to contract for A No. 1 butter, for which they pay the highest cash price. Those wishing to furnish them with butter can get tubs and all necessary information by consulting with J. D. Arner, their local agent here.

The L. C. S. will give a box social at the home of Mrs. Dr. Loree on Friday evening of the present week. The ladies are requested to prepare a box with a lunch for two, for which the gentlemen will pay 25 cents for the privilege of eating it with them. It is hoped there will be a good attendance as there is need of means to do some necessary repairing at the church.

The attendance at the Ship Social, given by the W. C. T. U., at the home of Mrs. Ella Waring, on Wednesday evening of last week, was all the house could conveniently accommodate. A very pleasing and interesting program was carried out, consisting of music and literary selections appropriate for the occasion. Refreshments were served by the members of the Union. The evening was spent in a most enjoyable and social manner by all. Those taking part were dressed in sailors costumes, presenting quite an attractive appearance. The proceeds amounted to $15.00.

It is hoped no one will forget the last meeting of the Reading Circle, at the Library parlors, next Tuesday evening. A short program will be rendered, after which a "Verse" social will be held. Each lady is requested to bring a short verse of poetry which will be cut in two, one half of which will be put in a box and the gentlemen allowed the privilege of drawing for 15 cents, eating lunch with the lady who holds the other half of the verse. Let everybody come and have a good time. BY ORDER OF COM.

FRANKLIN FACTS

Saturday night is the time fixed for the debate at Springville.

A bouncing boy has come to live with Fred and Ada Bunting.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather very few ventured out last Friday night and the Literary and Lyceum once more adjourned to meet at Otis Whelan's, Saturday, May 2nd. Measles are a thing of the past. Let us have a good turn-out once more.

On Saturday last Edward Wisner received a dispatch announcing the sad news of the death at St. Louis, Mich., of his brother Rufus. On Monday the remains arrived at Clinton and were interred in the cemetery in that place. His son George accompanied the remains but returned to St. Louis Tuesday, on account of his sister Eva, who had just arrived from Florida a few hours after her father's death. Eva's health has been very poor, the southern climate has not benefited her, and the shock of finding her father gone had prostrated her. Rufus Wisner had an attack of la grippe last spring which left him in very poor health. While under treatment for his liver and apparently getting better he caught a cold that went to his lungs and terminated his life in a few days.

Mrs. Hoag was visiting friends in Britton last Friday.

William Larrabee went on a fishing excursion last week.

Don't forget Millie, the Quadroon, next Saturday night.

John Britton is busy drawing tile from Comfort's tile yard.

Part of a carload of cattle shipped from here last Thursday.

A carload of shingles arrived here last week for Walter Exelby.

F. Brown and Son will be moving in their new store very shortly.

William Prindle is busy trying to find carpenters to shingle his house.

Business is somewhat dull at present on account of the rainy weather and bad roads.

Mrs. Eliza Holtz has been quite sick for the past week but is now somewhat better.

A general meeting of the B. A. D. Society was held in the opera house last Monday evening.

Norman Post moved into George Exelby's apartments above the store the latter part of last week.

The roads are drying up fast and in two or three days, with no more rain, they will be in good shape again.

Henry Miller has now recovered from his accident and went to work again on the railroad last Monday.

We regret to say the Rev. James Wright is at present on the sick list and is under the care of Dr. Hendershot.

A number of our young men went fishing last Sunday. They caught no fish and drank nothing stronger than water.

Millie, the Quadroon, will be staged here again next Saturday evening, giving our friends who were kept away by the inclemency of the weather another chance to see the drama.

The last entertainment of the season will be given by the Britton Amateur Dramatic Society on Friday and Saturday evenings, May 29th and 30th, when the great drama, It's Never Too Late to Mend," will be put on the boards. This will be the greatest play ever seen in Britton and no expense will be spared to make it a grand success. Cast of characters and full particulars later.

Millie, the Quadroon, was played by the Britton Dramatic Society Friday and Saturday evenings of last week and was quite a success, notwithstanding the bad roads and rainy weather. There was a good attendance and the Society took in about forty dollars. All the players did themselves credit. Arthur Lee as Oscar Dauville was very good, and Mrs. A. Gibson and Miss. Serene Zeluff were also worthy of special mention for their good acting. The farce, The Best Cure, was well played and fairly brought down the house.

MACON MUSIC.

Miss Sadie Jackson began teaching in the Merritt District last Monday.

B. S. Scudder sold over ten hundred pounds of sugar one day last week.

B. S. Scudder received a box of oranges from Geo. Gray last Saturday; they came direct from Mr. Gray's orchard in Florida.

Wheat is looking fine and grass is starting nicely; now for a few days good weather and the farmers will start the plow in earnest.

The "Sugar Social" that was to have been held at Mr. Henry Miller's last Friday evening was postponed, on account of the weather, till next Friday evening, April 24th.

Lilburn Hatch has been plastering and otherwise repairing the house formerly owned by Beecher Lighthall, now owned by Thomas Liddle, and he and Mrs. Hatch will try housekeeping by themselves, in a few days.

A change in the post-office has become necessary, as Mr. Travis is going to send in his resignation on account of poor health. All agree that the management of the office under Mr. Travis has given perfect satisfaction. Mr. Cotton is the only aspirant for the office.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

If a price can be placed on pain, "Mother's Friend" is worth its weight in gold as an alleviator. My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did all together with her last, having previously used four bottles of "Mother's Friend." It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a mother, says a customer of mine.

Mr. and Mrs. Olive Beach report a new son at their home in Rome.

Both of the saw mills are running at their fullest capacity at present.

Will Austin is off from the railroad, on account of a difficulty with his back.

Wheat at present looks better in this locality than it has in a number of years.

The school here was resumed on Monday of this week after a lengthy measily vacation.

A gentleman from near Morenci, has rented Fred Nortons farm and has taken posession.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Shultis, of Springville, called on friends in this vicinity one day last week.

David Aldrich has sold his brood horse to Fred Smith, who will season him in this vicinity this spring.

Norman Taylor has just given his residence a new coat of white paint which improves its looks very much.

A large attendance at the Patron's meeting at Rollin Center on the 13th, and a very good time was the result.

Mr. J. C. Taylor is now prepared to furnish all who desire good fresh fish, so call at the north side meat market.

At the late township meeting it was decided to pay 15 cents a piece for woodchuck scalps this year, so boys get a big move on.

This town contains at present two barber shops and two meat-markets, so who says this village is not in a flourishing condition.

As the sun sinks behind the hills at close of day,
The weary ploughman homeward plods his way.

Rufus Payne now occupies Spencer Evan's farm house, and Charlie Lindmer has moved into the house he purchased of Mr. Payne.

A Demorest contest will be held on Saturday evening of this week at the church under the guidance of the Grange Fraternity.

Frank Pratt had the misfortune to lose one of his horses and through the instrumentality of the Patrons of Industry money was raised and another horse was purchased for him, for which he thanks all helpers.

RAISIN RACKET.

Mrs. Seneca Haviland is in very poor health.

Dr. Morden of Adrian gives a lecture at the Seminary Friday evening.

TERRIBLE WRECK ON THE LAKE SHORE.

CLEVELAND, O., April 18.—A frightful wreck occurred on the Lake Shore Railroad at Kipton station, about forty miles west of Cleveland, early this evening, in which six postal clerks and two engineers were killed. The fast mail No. 14, bound east, collided with No. 21, the Toledo express, just as the latter train was about to pull on the siding to let the fast mail pass. The fast mail was running at full speed, and the force of the collision was so great that both engines, three mail cars and one baggage car were completely wrecked. The engine of the Toledo express was knocked squarely across the track and that of the fast mail reared in the air, resting on the top of the other. The fast mail consisted of three mail cars and two parlor cars, and the Toledo express of five coaches and two baggage cars. The first and second mail cars were telescoped and mashed to kindling wood, and the third crashed into the the first two and rolled over on the station platform, breaking the windows of the building. The two baggage cars of the Toledo express were knocked from the track, but did not turn over. The force of the collision was so great that of the sixty-four revolving chairs in two parlor cars, only four remain attached to the floors, all the others being broken and hurled about in confusion. The passengers were thrown to the floors and badly shaken, but none were seriously hurt. The passengers of the two trains at once began the work of rescue, and with a corps of physicians from the town, ministered to the few who were injured. All but one of the dead were beyond human assistance as soon as the collision occured. The bodies were all horribly crushed and mutilated, arms and legs being torn off, and the corpses were almost beyond recognition.

Nine persons were killed outright, the engineers of both trains, the fireman on the fast mail and six postal clerks. Among the latter was John J. Bowerfind of Adrian, a son of Ex-Alderman Bowerfind. His remains were brought home Sunday afternoon and after a medical examination were deposited at once in the vault at Oakwood. We take this brief obituary mention from the Adrian Times:

John J. Bowerfind was born in this city, April 11, 1868, making him just 23 years old this month. He had always lived here, and was considered a peculiarly bright and intelligent young man. He was loved and respected by all his acquaintances, and during the recent severe illness of his father was a help that could not have been obtained from any other source. The love borne towards him by his parents and brothers and sisters was beyond the ordinary.

Just ten weeks ago Sunday he was married to Miss Gertie Brainard, of this city, and left immediately to establish a home at Elyria, Ohio.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, APRIL 23.

Jerry Simpson says that the Alliance expects to repeal the present tariff. The Alliance is sound on that question, at all events.

Does Major McKinley still believe that the tariff is not a tax? If so, will he kindly inform a patient people what's the matter with sugar.

Here is the latest and best bon-mot perpetrated on President Harrison. One local artist remarked to another: "I am engaged in making a life-size statuette of Harrison."

It would be a very strange spectacle to see Ex-Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, running on the Farmer's Alliance ticket for President in 1892. But stranger things than this have happened in American politics.

This, from the Chicago Tribune, is the unkindest cut of all:

The able Democratic editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal is industriously but hopelessly trying to pump wind into the collapsed McKinley Presidential boom.

That there was a lot of disreputable junketing in connection with the Congressional escort of Senator Hearst's remains to California is made clear, despite Senatorial and Representative denials, by Mrs. Hearst's indignant determination to pay all necessary expenses of the trip out of her own pocket.

President Harrison is received with a cordial welcome on his trip through the South. In thus honoring the official head of the Republic the South is showing her good sense. The Southern people do not believe in Force bills nor McKinley tariffs, but they do believe in peace, prosperity and friendly business intercourse between all sections of our common country.

"Uncle Sam must pay back between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000 excess of duties illegally collected on hat trimmings." This little news item contains less than four lines but it means a great deal. The consumer has already paid this excess to the importer, but will the consumer get any of the rebate? Not much. Thus we have another illustration of the beauties of the McKinley tariff.

The Saginawian sets out the bounty business very nicely in this wise:

Every farmer who makes 500 pounds of maple sugar gets $10 reward from the government treasury for making it by putting in an application for the bounty. Every farmer who makes 500 pounds of butter or cheese gets—well, he gets a chance to pay extra tariff taxes on his tinware so that there will be enough money in the government treasury to pay the maple sugar man his bounty. And this is "protection."

By the retirement of Senator Edmunds the U. S. Senate will lose one of its ablest members. Since Bayard and Thurman left that body, he has been the unquestioned leader on all questions of constitutional law. Besides he was an honored member of the "old guard," the men whose brains, rather than their money bags, constituted their passport to the Senate Chamber. The Senate can illy afford to lose men of his intellectual calibre.

Major Jones, of St. Louis, advises Mr. Cleveland and Governor Hill not to permit their names to come before the next Democratic National Convention. Major Jones will not permit New York to vote the Democratic ticket next.—Elmira (N. Y.) Gazette.

No such advice has been offered to Mr. Cleveland, and as to Governor Hill it makes no difference whatever whether he "permits" his name to go before the convention or not. The West and South will accept from New York no other man than Cleveland, and the next Democratic candidate will be Cleveland or a Western man.—St. Louis Republic.

Mr. McKinley is being laughed at because in his recent speech at Worcester he took up a pressed-glass tumbler and declared that if the 60 per cent. ad valorem duty upon that kind of tumblers were reduced to 15 per cent., the imports of glass tumblers would increase more than fourfold. Mr. McKinley was not aware that the pressed glass tumbler he exhibited is made in the United States cheaper than anywhere else in the world. It is evident that some mischievous manufacturer has been trifling with the Father of High Tariffs.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE SUGAR SHAM.

The Administration organ of this city, referring to the sugar clauses of the McKinley Act, which took effect Wednesday, says:

To-morrow the heaviest burden the American people have been bearing for many years past will be rolled off by the much-maligned McKinley Bill. A duty averaging two cents a pound will be taken from sugar.

Then a tariff duty is "a burden," is it? And it is not the foreigner but the American consumer who pays it? This is a "Free-Trade heresy" which sounds strange from Protectionist lips.

But it is not true that the burden "will be rolled off" so far as the people are concerned. The reduction of sugar duties was not intended to benefit the American people, but to enrich the Sugar Trust and to win votes from the growers of beet and maple sugar.

Under the old law the Trust had to pay two cents a pound for its raw material and was protected by a duty of one and one-half cents a pound on its refined product. The McKinley Bill gives the Trust its raw material free and protects its product by a duty of half a cent. Under this arrangement the Trust is enormously benefited, and it will doubtless give the people some fraction of its gain in the form of slightly reduced price on refined sugar. But the people must pay for this. The McKinley Bill taxes them to pay a bounty of two cents a pound on the sugar raised in this country, including sorghum, beet sugar and maple sugar. This will, before long, just about offset the consumers' share in the reduction in price of refined sugar.

But the bill also adds greatly to the taxation on other necessaries of life, and so makes the consumer in the end pay very heavily indeed for the slight cheapening of his sugar, taking from him many times more in the increased cost of clothing, blankets, products of iron and the like than it gives him on his sugar. The trick is expected to serve its vote-catching purpose by making a display of the reduction and carefully concealing the more than compensating taxes.

But if it is a good thing to strike off the duties on necessaries of life why did not the McKinley Bill do something of the kind for wool and iron, the raw materials of more of the necessaries of life than any other articles in the whole category.

No, the McKinley tariff does not cheapen living, but renders it more costly. It was not framed to benefit the people but to enrich favored classes at the expense of the people. It does not lessen taxation but increases it enormously. It does not stimulate industry but paralyzes it. It does not raise wages but gives occasion for their reduction. It is the law of the monopolist. It is altogether a curse, to be rid of as soon as may be, and the people gave that as their emphatic opinion at the polls last November.—N. Y. World.

THE RECENT ELECTIONS.

Senator Morrill, of Vermont, thinks that the recent State elections indicate that public sentiment on the Tariff question has changed since last Fall, and in view of this change he believes that Western Republican Senators, who voted against the McKinley bill, will hestitate before voting in the next Congress in favor of any serious modification of the provisions of the present Tariff. If this proves to be true, the recent Republican victories will prove useful in pressing the Democratic party toward Free Trade. Any temporary relief might diminish the popular dissatisfaction with the existing law, and it would certainly tend to promote the return to the Republican party of many who voted against it or refused to vote last Fall. The Tariff question was not directly involved in the recent Spring elections. The question was between the two great parties on purely local issues, and many who are disgusted with the Republican attitude on the Tariff question yielded to habit and prejudice, and voted with it once more. If the Senators of that party will take care to demonstrate that there is no hope of relief so long as the Republican party controls the Senate, the Free Trade Republicans of the Northwest will see that they must give up their prejudices and elect Democratic legislatures in order to get rid of the burden that is crushing them.

All of this means a continuous agitation of the question of tariff taxation, and the more it is agitated the more radical becomes the attitude of the victims of the protected monopolists. We hope Senator Morrill is right in his assumption as to the effect of the Spring elections on the minds of Republican party leaders. If he mistakes the tendency of life-long Republicans to give their party another chance for its life, it is reasonable to expect that other Republican leaders will do likewise, and all concessions will therefore be denied. We Free Traders want none. We want to see the American people drain the cup that McKinley fashioned to its dregs, not that we are indifferent to their sufferings, but because we want them to fully understand, at last, the cause of their distress, so that they will demand the entire abolition of all forms of indirect taxation.—The Standard.

THE PROFESSOR WAS CORNERED.

A short time before the last general election a professor, a noted educator, living not far from the city of Cleveland, took a trip into the country and dined with a farmer.

After some remarks about crops, and the tillage of the soil, the conversation took a turn, and the farmer (a single taxer, by the way), who had previously done little but listen now did most of the talking. What was said was about as follows:

Farmer—Does the fact that so many farms are mortgaged show that the farmers are getting into bad shape financially?

Professor—Oh no! It indicates that the agricultural class are making so much money that they are mortgaging their farms to buy more land.

Farmer—If farm lands are so productive of wealth, it is strange that they are declining in value. Do you think the tariff is hurting the farmer?

Professor—Not at all. Protection has been a great benefit to him. Under its benign influence the cost of manufactured articles has declined; wire nails, for instance. The invariable effect of the application of the principle of protection to any line of goods is to ultimately decrease the cost.

Farmer—The fact that prices have declined since 1860 is not a proof that protection brought it about. The population of the United States increased during the war; did the war therefore cause it? There has been a great many improvements in machinery in all civilized countries in recent years. No tariff was ever levied upon petroleum, and prices have declined from $2 a bottle to less than $1 a barrel. Moreover, manufactured goods were diminishing in cost before the high tariff era. Free trade England has pursued a policy opposite to ours, and yet prices have fallen more than here. I do not believe that protection is enforced for the purpose of lowering prices, or the manufacturers would oppose it. We have always been told by the republicans that the tax on imported farm products was for the purpose of enabling us to realize higher prices, and we were never taught that its ultimate effect would be to decrease the cost of our produce.

Professor—Protection keeps out pauper made goods, makes a home market for you, holds wages up; better wages are paid in United States than free trade England.

Farmer—When Evarts was secretary of state he said that the American laborer on the average accomplished from one and one-half to two times as much as the average European laborer, and other eminent republicans have in effect said the same thing. Free trade England pays better wages than France, Germany or any European country; and moreover, France, in consequence of what you call protection, pays $50,000 000 a year more for the wheat it consumes than England would have to pay for a like amount.

Professor—You are making a very unfair comparison now. England subsidizes ships, and is very advantageously situated for commerce.

Farmer—And being so situated she is sensible enough not to legislate that advantage away. Do you believe in subsidizing ships? That is, if our ships load up with some of our products and carry them to some other land, or bring goods from abroad and unload them at our ports, you think that we should let them have such freights as they may earn, and besides pay them a bonus out the treasury of the United States for so doing?

Professor—I do.

Farmer—You favor the McKinley bill, I suppose?

Professor—Yes.

Farmer—You believe in imposing fines to stop trade, and then, in taking some of the money derived from that source, to assist trade. What is your opinion of Blaine's reciprocity scheme?

Professor—I endorse it.

Farmer—You think, then, that if South America permits our goods to go in there free of duty, we ought to let their wares come in here untaxed, do you?

Professor—Yes.

Farmer—If you make such an arrangement with South America, why not with all other countries? and then what have you got but universal free trade? Which is precisely the principle I contend for.

Professor—I did not come out here to talk politics. I had other purposes in view; so I would rather not discuss this subject further. A. E. BROWN.

Lakewood, Ohio.

HEED THE WARNING.

It is not infrequently the case that itching pimples and irritating "cat boils" are the forerunners of larger boils, or the more serious carbuncles. Invariably Nature puts out her danger signals, and they should be heeded at once. The pimples and little boils show that the blood is not in a good condition and nature is trying to relieve the system. A few doses of Swift's Specific at this juncture will accomplish wonders. The eruption will be healed and the system cleansed of its impurities. The modern paraphrase of the old saying, "A stitch in time," etc., is that "Timely stitches will save nine pairs of breeches." The modern form has a touch of humor that does not modify the truth of it. In that vein, we may say that a course of Swift's Specific prevents ills terrific.

WHY!

WHEREFORE. The virtues or merits of a remedy for pain do not consist in its being as good for relief as other remedies, but in the fact that it is better, in being more prompt and sure, and therefore the best for the specific purpose. It is not an idle catchline that strikes the eye thus:

ST. JACOBS OIL

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN, IS THE BEST.

It is the best cure for all aches and pains, and it holds

THE TRUE PROOF.

To this specific fact Archbishops, Bishops, Clergymen, Lawyers, Doctors, Governors, Generals, Senators, Members of Congress and Legislatures, U. S. Consuls, Army and Navy Officers Mayors and Officials, testify and unite in saying: "We suffered pain;

OTHER REMEDIES FAILED, and St. Jacobs Oil cured promptly and permanently." For the same reason

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

THE PEOPLE'S "SUPERB CONDITION."

A few months ago Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, while hobnobbing with other nabobs in Europe, publicly declared that the condition of the American people is "superb." From the standpoint of a money king who knows little and cares less about the real condition of affairs in this country, it doubtless looks that way. Such men never probe below the surface of society and try to find out how people live, what are their resources, their prospects, their opportunities, their struggles for existence. With the railroad kings, the Wall street gamblers, and the great land monopolists, the condition is generally "superb." But how is it with the toiling, struggling millions? Let us, for example, consider the condition of the poorer classes, in the larger cities of the United States. I mean those who are honest, sober, and willing to work for a living. Mr. Depew must know, or he ought to know, that ten or a dozen of our larger cities contain hundreds of thousands of such persons who live from hand to mouth, and are constantly struggling with all their might to keep starvation at bay, and whose best efforts bring results only sufficient to prevent them from becoming absolute paupers. The New York Tribune says that in crowded districts of that overcrowded metropolis, hundreds of human beings are slowly dying from lack of sufficient nourishing food. The Sun says that 40,000 working women in that city are trying to exist on wages so small that they will in all probability be driven by necessity to crime or lives of shame. In the tenement house districts, 290,000 persons to the square mile are crowded into tenements and compelled to exist in conditions that are not conducive to physical health, moral culture nor intellectual development. In every one of our large cities, and in most of the smaller ones, thousands who have labor to sell find the labor market glutted. In a land of plenty there is want; in a land of industry there is enforced idleness; in a land of prosperity there is misery; in a land of glittering wealth there is pinching poverty; in a land of boastful freedom there is abject slavery. And especially marked are these contrasts in our large cities.

And what is the condition of the farmers—a very numerous class, and a class whose interests are at the bottom of all national prosperity? A few facts and statistics, gathered from trustworthy sources, will tend to indicate the "superb condition" of the American farmers.

The Banker's Magazine is authority for the statement that the farm mortgages of Kansas amount to $235,000,000; those of Indiana, $640,000,000; of Iowa, $567,000,000; of Michigan, $500,000,000; of Ohio, $1,431,000,000. At 6 per cent., $200,000,000 would be required to pay the interest on these mortgages, as the total in the five States is $3,481,000,000. By a little figuring I find that this grand total of mortgage indebtedness on farm property in only five States exceeds by $1,846,000,000 the entire national debt, principal and interest, as reported at the close of the fiscal year ending the 30th of last June. What a "superb condition," and what a glorious outlook for the farmers of those States! And their circumstances are a fair sample of what prevails in nearly all the other agricultural States. Statistics of the agricultural bureau of Illinois show a decrease in the value of farms and farm property in that State during the past year of $4,000,000. Governor Campbell, Ohio, who is a farmer, says the depreciation of the same kind of property in his State, in the past ten years, aggregates $80,000,000. The tenth census showed that the United States contained one million and twenty-five thousand tenant farmers; and surely the number has increased rather than decreased since 1880. Hugh McCullough, the great Republican financier, who was Secretary of the Treasury under two administrations, declares that while rents in cities and large towns are steadily increasing, agriculture has become so depressed that good farms offer no inducements to tenants to hire them at a rental of 6 per cent. on one-third of their assessed value.

An in this connection it is pertinent to inquire, who owns and controls most of the available land which rightfully belongs to all the people? Largely it is in the hands of wealthy landlords, greedy speculators and grasping syndicates. The Schenley estate owns 2,000 acres within the limits of Pittsburgh and Allegheny cities, from which the heirs draw $1,000,000 rent annually. Vanderbilt owns 2,000,000 acres, Murphy, of California, 4,000,000 (equal in area to the State of Massachusetts); Disston, of Pennsylvania, 4,000,000; the Standard Oil Company, 1,000,000, and railroad companies own 210,000,000. Then there are 21,000,000 owned by foreign noblemen, who are not citizens of the United States, owe no allegiance to our government and spend their money elsewhere. A striking instance of this kind is "Lord" Scully, of Ireland, who owns (according to our laws) 90,000 acres of farm lands in Illinois. These lands he parcels out to small tenants, who work like slaves for a bare living, and turn over the bulk of their earnings to their foreign landlord, his income from that source being $200,000 per annum. In 1860 the producers of the United States owned 43 per cent. of the wealth; in 1870, 36 per cent.; in 1880, only 20 per cent.; in 1890—don't mention it! More land is owned by railroad companies than would make six States as large as Iowa. Since 1861 no less than 181,000,000 acres of land have been given to railroad companies—of which the Illinois Central got a subsidy of 2,500,000 acres. Facts like these could be multiplied almost indefinitely, but enough have been presented to show what a "superb condition" the American farmers are in, and why they are in it.

But if the farmer's condition is not really "superb," perhaps that of the average business man is. I hardly think so, however. The average annual profit of legitimate business is only two and a half per cent., and the newspapers are constantly teeming with reports of business failures in every line, while landlords who hold tightly to natural opportunities are fattening on "unearned increment."

But perhaps it is the American wage-worker whose condition is "superb." Let us look into his condition a little, and see. I have been doing a little figuring in that direction and the result is as follows: Over against the popular fallacy that the wage-worker can, if he will, by his own efforts, become a millionaire, and thus be able to purchase a seat in the United States Senate, we find the cold fact that the average pay of the American wage-worker is only one dollar a day. On this basis, if he lives like a Chinaman, is never ill, indulges in no holidays, and works 313 days in the year for 100 years, he can accumulate the princely sum of $7,800. To become a millionaire he would have to live, and toil, and economize in the same way for 1,500 years. Is not the outlook glorious?

But perhaps Mr. Depew, in characterizing the condition of the "American people," did not really refer to the masses. He must have had in mind only a select few "superb" souls like Gould, whose income is $7,000 a day; Vanderbilt, whose daily revenue is $15,000; Rockefeller, whose personal receipts are $18,000 a day; Astor, whose "earnings" are $23,000 a day. And very likely he also included the twenty-four United States Senators whose wealth aggregates $153,000,000; and a few other moneyed aristocrats who, in becoming immensely rich, have compelled thousands to become wretchedly poor. Men who, taking advantage of a bad social system, have trampled on human rights, subsidized the press, corrupted the courts, put justice in irons and crowded industry to the wall. Yes, I see! The condition of those men is "superb"—viewed without reference to the great hereafter. But they are not the "American people," Mr. Depew, and you know it. And when you told your European cronies that the people of this country were in a "superb condition," you were either ignorant of the facts or you deliberately lied. Such talk is a cruel mockery, for which you ought to hide your face in shame.

In conclusion I would add this prediction: There must be a change for the better in your social system, and that soon. We all hope the change may come through peaceful methods; but come it must.—Ralph E. Hoyt.

Taxation in Germany.

The latest improvement in legislation proposed by the Emperor William II. of Germany is in the line of taxation. He proposes to remit a part or all of the income tax in the case of men whose incomes are less than $750 a year, the remission being in proportion to the number of children such men have; so that a man who has five or six children is to pay no income tax at all. But as Germany is not troubled with a surplus in the treasury, the Emperor proposes to increase the income tax in the case of those whose incomes are more than $750 a year. It is not necessary to say that this latter part of the proposition is meeting with vigorous opposition. It would, indeed, be a most unheard of thing if an income tax really were made to bear heavily on the rich. There is said to be a chance that the Emperor will dissolve Parliament and appeal to the country on this issue, in case his views are not legislated into effect. Emperor William has evidently got clear and correct ideas on one important phase of the taxation problem. He thinks children are a good thing, and he therefore proposes to so regulate taxation as to encourage the increase of population. Now, when the Emperor sees that wealth is a good thing, we may expect to see him regulate taxation so as to encourage the increase of wealth, which means, of course, that "the labor Emperor" will be a single tax Emperor.

State Ownership of Land.

James A. Bradley, the founder of Asbury Park, is going to sell the whole of the beach there to the town for $150,000. He says he could have obtained a larger sum for it, but he accepted Henry George's theory and wants the town to become the owner of the property. He does not, however, intend to sell the rest of his land; as he can not become a martyr to the cause and undertake, all alone, to inaugurate the progress of transferring land to the State, though he thinks the State ought to own the land. If Mr. Bradley understood the Single Tax theory fully he would find that individual action in the line indicated is not required and that it is not necessary or even desirable that the State shall "own" the land. The George theory contemplates permanent private possession, conditioned on the payment to the State of the value of the opportunity thus held by an individual. The best thing that a man like Mr. Bradley can do is to use any surplus income he derives from land-holding toward aiding the movement that will give to the public the income derived from land.

Where Land is Dear, Men are Cheap.

In the new settlements, where land is cheap, you will find no beggars, and the inequalities in condition are very slight. In the great cities, where land is so valuable that it is measured by the foot, you will find the extremes of poverty and of luxury. And this disparity in condition between the two extremes of the social scale may always be measured by the price of land. Land in New York is more valuable than in San Francisco; and in New York, the San Franciscan may see squalor and misery that will make him stand aghast. Land is more valuable in London than in New York; and in London, there is squalor and destitution worse than that of New York.—Progress and Poverty.

WE propose to substitute for the present system of taxation a system of taxation that will not discourage enterprise, that will not fine and punish industry, that will not require any one to come up and take an oath, that will not necessitate an army of spies and a horde of tax gatherers.

NINEVEH'S REPENTANCE

LESSON IV, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, APRIL 26.

Text of the Lesson, Jonah iii, 1-10—Commit Verses, 9, 10—Golden Text, Luke xi, 32—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "And the Word of the Lord came unto Jonah the second time, saying,"

From the belly of the fish Jonah cried unto the Lord, and the Lord heard him, and spake unto the fish, and it vomited out Jonah upon the dry land (chap. ii, 1, 10). Jonah's prayer is largely made up of quotations from the Psalms, as many as eight or ten different Psalms being quoted from (see marginal references), teaching us that afflictions open up the mine of Scripture, and make real to us words before unheeded (Ps. cxix, 67, 71). If Jonah in the fish's belly was not hid from God's sight and hearing, where can we hide from Him.

2. "Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city."

How very gracious of the Lord to come to him the second time with the same message (chap. i, 2)! How very patient and long suffering He is with us!

"And preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee."

This is the whole responsibility of every preacher, for we are simply messengers of the Lord of Hosts.

3. "So Jonah arose and went into Nineveh, according to the Word of the Lord."

Now he is obedient. This is what he should have done at first instead of going to sea. By his willfulness he has lost much precious time and grieved his Lord. But let us take it to ourselves. Are we obedient to the word of the Lord, or wasting time and grieving the Spirit by our waywardness and disobedience?

Nineveh was a very great city, about sixty miles of wall inclosing it, and Jonah was only one lone man of no importance to that great and wicked city, but God was with him.

4. "And Jonah began to enter into the city a day's journey."

Many days had he journeyed from the seashore across the country (look at your map and note the distance), and much time had he for meditation and communion with his God. However lonely the way and long the journey, he had the consciousness that he was doing the will of the Lord and that the Lord had sent him.

"And he cried and said, Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown."

What a strange cry for a lone man in a great and prosperous and wicked city!

5. "So the people of Nineveh believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them."

God was with His servant, the Spirit of God was in the message, and where the word of a king is there is power.

6. "For word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes."

So the word of the Lord through this humble man reached even the heart of the king on his throne, and he humble himself before God, as well as the lowest in the city.

7. "And he caused it to be proclaimed and published through Nineveh, by the decree of the king and his nobles, saying,"

The king and his great men have put themselves on the side of Jonah and his God. If God could make use of such a crook as Jonah let no one who is willing to be used ever be discouraged, but let us be on the Lord's side out and out.

"Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste anything; let them not feed nor drink water."

Surely this was a great and thorough repentance, at least on the part of the king and his great ones who ordered this severe fast.

8. "But let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God."

Why include the cattle, for they had not sinned? Though they sin not, yet they suffer because of man's sin, and God cares for cattle.

"Yea, let them turn every one from his evil way; and from the violence that is in their hands."

Outward sorrow without a turning away from sin would avail nothing, for God searcheth the heart. And inward sorrow must be accompanied by the actual turning away from all evil.

9. "Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?"

Had they such light as Israel had, how they would have been encouraged! If they had known of the repentance of Ahab, how it might have helped them (II Kings xxi, 29). Or if they could have heard the words of Isaiah, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon" (Isa. lv, 7)! Or if they had the light which we have as to the love of God, and his unwillingness that any should perish, and his readiness to forgive sin (John iii, 16; II Pet. iii, 9; Acts x, 43; xiii, 38, 39), how it would have rejoiced them! If then with the light they had, and the warning given them, their repentance was so thorough, what shall be said of the impenitent under the light of the glorious Gospel we have so freely proclaimed among us?

10. "And God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way."

God sees unbelief, and it grieves Him; He sees faith and obedience, and He is pleased. What does He see in you? Whatever is wrong, come to Him just as you are, yield fully to Him, and He will make it all right.

"And God repented of the evil that He had said that He would do unto them, and He did it not."

See His promise to act thus given as a later date to Israel (Jer. xviii, 7, 8). Although it was just as He had always done for Israel, as is fully recorded in the book of Judges, or as in Ps. cvi, 43, 44: "Many times did He deliver them, but they provoked Him with their counsel, and were brought low for their iniquity. Nevertheless He regarded their affliction when He heard their cry." As to God repenting, we have on to remember one or two things. Being unchangeable, and knowing the end from the beginning, He cannot change His mind as we do or ever be sorry for anything He does (Mal. iii, 6; Num. xxiii, 19; Acts xv, 18). But from the beginning, foreseeing all things, He knew that with individuals and nations He could pursue a certain course or mode of treatment to a certain point, and that then He would have occasion to do differently; and these turning points in His modes of treatment are called repentings. We change our mind and then change our conduct or mode of action; He changes His mode of treatment, knowing beforehand that He would do so just at that particular time. May the repentance of Nineveh not be lost upon us, but humble us before God!

A DYSPEPTIC'S ARGUMENT

Is a growl, and that growl marks the limit of argument with him. The best way to get him to try a medicine would be to advise against it—but notice how different his tone after using Burdock Blood Bitters.

"I have suffered with Dyspepsia for the last two years. Not long ago I commenced taking B. B. B. I am now on the second bottle and feel like a new man. G. KNOX,
12 Sherwood Ave.,
Binghamton N. Y."

REPEATED TESTS WITH UNIFORM SUCCESS prove the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters will cure d The reason is plain, it tones the stomach to natural action and keeps the sluice ways of the system free from clogging impurities.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and heart disease for nine years, and found no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. Now I am well after taking two bottles.
MRS. ETTIE FRAZIER, Bowne, Mich."

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain for years and then move up to second place in 1900, where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889, where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

Sold by J. S. Kinney, Tecumseh.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.
Cures all Humors, from a Boil to the worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.
It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.
It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.
It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.

FARMING—WHAT AILS IT?

A Paper Read at the Farmers' Institute in Tecumseh by E. S. Rawson.

But the depressing effects upon our markets arising from this undue expansion of our agricultural area, has, we believe, reached and passed its limit. The redundancy of population is flowing to the cities. The growth in numbers of the consuming class is greater than that of the producers. The land in the West which under present conditions can be profitably cultivated, is mostly occupied. We look westward for great cities, where we once looked only eastward. Great industries dot the prairies, as well as the rugged hillsides of New England. We are dependent, less and less, for a market beyond the seas. The productions of the farms are becoming more and more varied in their character. Things which were once only waste products, are now being utilized. Farming is becoming more intensive in its character. While the farmers themselves, as never before, are searching out the reasons of individual success or failure, are rising as never before, to a complete understanding of their rights as citizens, and a determination to maintain them. May they keep a level head and not ask the government to launch out in the visionary project of building warehouses to store products as security for the loaning of money at two per cent.; or indulge in the foolish pastime of electing men to Congress whose principle, or only claim to statesmanship, is the fact that they don't wear socks. In computing our earnings do we do the fair thing with the old farm and give it credit for house-rent, fuel and food used in the family, all of which must be purchased were we engaged in something else. Do we stop to consider that in other occupations competition is more intense, more bitter and more disastrous to the weaker, than in ours? Again, how many manufacturers have gone to the wall by having their products supplanted by new inventions, or a change of wants. Suppose your farm had been converted into money at the price of a few years ago, would not the income from your capital, placed at interest, be but little more than half what it was then, even if you didn't lose a portion of it altogether. Is'nt money as plenty now, at 6 per cent. as it was then at ten. Instead of kicking forever, we can sell our farms and try something else. You say we can't sell them. Well, we can trade; if you don't believe it try it and you will find plenty of opportunities right here in Tecumseh. But you had better put a forty in your wife's name before you make the deal. It might be safer to let her wear the breeches before you strike in.

There is a stability about land that is nowhere else known. It is a bank into which many a wise capitalist has placed a fund against misfortune or death, and in which the matter of present profits, was a secondary consideration. Is not the cause of lack of profits frequently, or generally, within ourselves?

There isn't a business on earth that will prosper without close application, careful study of its details and economy in its management, though without these farming will survive longer than anything else. Farming is not profitable on the half-crop system. Thorough cultivation, thorough drainage, and a due regard to the cultivation of the soil's fertility will go a long way toward overcoming the evil effects of drouths and insects. The practice, all too prevalent, of removing almost the entire products of the farm to the village or railroad must result in soil starvation. To determine how to restore and keep up the fertility of the soil is to determine in great measure the matter of profit, instead of loss. Were a small portion of the many thousands annually spent for commercial fertilizers used in preserving the fertilizers made upon the farm, a very great saving in the aggregate would be made.

We might study with profit the history of agriculture in the old world. It has been said that her soil has been made rich by battle fields, but it is not by these alone. For generations England has been the dumping ground for the surplus products of other lands. A never-ending stream has poured in upon her from earth's remotest end. It has been said that the entire value of her shipping, wonderful as it is, is not equal to that of the manure applied to her soil in a single year. Her soil has been growing richer, while that of many of those she has depleted has grown poorer. Ireland, once almost wholly devoted to pasturage, has for more than a century drained deep the bitter cup which has measured out her land's productiveness, while Holland, born of the sea, of great natural fertility, densely populated with sturdy, frugal Dutchmen, who guard that fertility as though it were a gold mine,—where absolutely nothing goes to waste, but where everything possible is returned to the soil that gave it,—is, and has been for ages, a marvel of productiveness. But our lands have been cultivated for only a short time, comparatively. While new and replete with plant food they have in favorable seasons yielded large crops of all kinds suitable to the soil and climate, and fair crops in unfavorable seasons. But with that prodigality which comes from abundance, that eagerness to secure the present dollar though many are sacrificed in the end, through the impoverishing system so largely followed, only good seasons produce fair crops and poor seasons scarcely any at all. Long practice becomes a habit, until it is difficult to realize that we are using up, not our interest only, but our capital. Any system is necessarily disastrous which disregards final good for the satisfaction of the present, whether followed by governments or men. If you are feeding stock (as you ought to be), don't estimate every night what the grain and hay fed during the day would have brought had it been carried to the market. This failure to appreciate the true value of feeding the soil we regard as one of the chief of agricultural ailments.

How many are enchanted by the siren song of credit! We can always pay easy enough, you know—after a little. And if then things didn't turn out just as we expected the creditor needn't worry. We are going to pay it—sometime. His capital may be distributed throughout the community in driblets without interest, but what of it? Ours isn't much and he can afford to wait. Having got along with it so easily we ask him to continue to charge it up to us and he does. We become careless and our creditor becomes not only Mr. A., but Mr. B. and C. and nearly the whole alphabet. But, brother farmers, it is not fair, it is not manly, it is not profitable. It may be ruinous. Store debts have swamped many a farmer who never knew what ailed him. Credit is valuable if not abused, but dangerous if not used with caution and fidelity.

Competition has driven those engaged in manufacture, trade or commerce to the most careful economy, in the production of the article, or as a means to the end. Much of the business of the country has been swallowed up by great corporations, because small concerns could not keep within the necessary cost and live. Can there not be more economy without inconvenience in the management of farms. I have in mind a farmer on a small farm, who threw aside a self binder after four years of use, while his neighbors on three times the land used one of the same kind more than twice as long. The difference in the care and management told the whole story.

Were we able to show in figures the actual losses by exposure of farm implements to the elements, and it is even worse in the west, they would appear startling. It is not economy to allow the most fertile portion of the field to lie in waste, for the want of a few tile. It is not economy to feed stock in such a manner that there is as much wasted as eaten. It is not economy to be compelled to do in the busy season what might have been done in times of leisure. Some farms are run by McKinley bills, some by free trade, some by horse trading, some by burdock, and red root, some by proxy, some by whiskey, some by the hired girl, and some not at all. And their proprietors are generally loudest in placing the reasons for hard times on everything but themselves. I do not mean that other matters should not meet our attention, far from it, or that repeated drouths, and other difficulties may not be discouraging, but I do mean that personal attention is the one thing needful in farming, for which there is no substitute. Then we deduce: first, that farming in and of itself is not seriously ill, second, that success or failure, in farming as every thing else, depends more upon the man than upon circumstances. Third, that the unavoidable drawbacks, such as naturally poor soil, drouths, etc., are not greater than those encountered in other occupations. Fourth, that the depreciation of farm property, is not greater, than that of other property, on the average, except when there are special reasons. And from these deductions we conclude, that farming in the future even more than in the past, will be the most independent, the most healthful, the safest, and as enjoyable as any business in which men are engaged.

If the income on the capital invested is not as great as that some lines obtained in other lines, the farmer can at least feel that his capital is safe, and his income permanent. His products are depende t for a market not on men's fancies, but on their necessities. Nor do we believe that trusts or monopolies can long seriously affect it but that public sentiment and the natural operations of trade, combine to declare, that thus far they can come but no farther. That the tendency of these combinations that seek to corner prices, is to fall to pieces of their own weight.

There is too much capital in the world seeking investment, to long permit any set of men reaping immense profits when investment and competition are free. It is difficult to obtain concert of action among farmers. If their organizations are as yet, crude and unwieldy, if the declarations of these organizations, are sometimes visionary, and impracticable, nevertheless recent events have shown that they can be made effective. All wealth is the creation not of law but of labor, and between these two there is not, there cannot be hostility. The prosperity of the one is the prosperity of the other. The farmer is the embodiment of both and from him there should be careful study and moderation, not hasty conclusions, nor pre[illegible]. Wholesale denunciation of [illegible]s, or wild clamor for flat money, will bring neither respect for our intelligence, nor profits to our calling. Nor do we believe that the road to permanent prosperity lies in such an inflation of our currency, by the general government, as shall result in its debasement, shall throw us again into the turbulent sea of speculation; better a currency whose volume is not fixed but elastic, governed by the same unwritten but non-expiring law, of supply and demand, that governs the price of your commodities and mine. Let us not believe that all other's ships, are sailing over smooth waters, and ours alone storm-beaten. Let us not be without proof, when we would assert that the whole trend of society, is toward making laws which would enslave us. Agriculture is not a puny infant to be nursed in swaddling clothes, except as it begets its own weakness and infirmity. If I have consumed my time more in telling, not what ails farming, but what doesn't all it, it is because one must hunt out the disease, before he can prescribe the remedy. If there be an ailment that is curative, by man, treat it with allopathic doses, but be sure of your diagnosis or you may kill the patient. But whatever may be your conclusions, let us go on, with confidence, and earnestness, in our work, believing that nowhere else can be found the conditions, which so well inculcate habits of industry and sobriety in our children as upon the farm. Nowhere else, a greater certainty, that the helplessness of age shall be assuaged, by the comforts if not the luxuries so needful in life's winter. Nowhere else, a larger scope for the most pains-taking investigation of Nature's handiwork, or a work, which has through all time developed better examples of manhood and womanhood. Believing, that whatever cloud of depression may darken agriculture to-day, will pass away, to be succeeded, as it always has, by the pure sunlight of a renewed prosperity.

MAYOR HOCH'S INAUGURAL.

The mayor-elect of Adrian, Leonard W. Hoch, delivered his annual address to the common council last week, and it was very favorably received. The message is so much superior to the general average of such addresses that we depart from our usual custom and give it a place in these columns:

MAYOR HOCH'S ADDRESS.

Gentlemen of the Council:—In assuming the position of President of this honorable body, I believe I fully realize the grave responsibilities attending it; and in the discharge of its various duties I shall at all times give my best efforts to the promotion of the interests and welfare of all our people, and shall be always ready and willing to co-operate with you to that end.

To this body are entrusted in a large measure the most vital interests of this community of nearly ten thousand people. Owing to the faithful and intelligent performance of its duties by the adminstration just dissolved, and of which a number of you were members, we find the affairs of the city in an unusually harmonious condition, and need but continue the careful, prudent and wisely economical methods of our predecessors to insure the fulfillment of our obligations to the people.

True economy in municipal government is not found in scanty provision for its important and vital departments, and our support of these should be as generous and far-reaching as possible. Of course we cannot expect to satisfy every public need. Our means for doing things are always closely limited, and the people are ever watchful for the exercise of the strictest economy on the part of those in whom the power to expend is vested.

There is something about existing methods of raising revenues for municipal purposes which makes the fullest relization of the wants and needs of civilized communities well nigh impossible. There is not a citizen who does not see the necessity, or at least the great desirability, of many public improvements which, while not unreasonable, or even extravagant, are still through sheer necessity placed far beyond the scope of our consideration.

The wretched condition of our highways during a large portion of the year, through which travel is checked to a great degree, and business almost suspended, is an abundant indication of the need of great improvement in that direction. There is no citizen who could not see in a system of paving extending over the leading thoroughfares of this city the great benefits it would bring the community. It is an improvement so desirable, that the subject can scarcely be touched upon in public or private without arousing at once the keenest interest and the most spirited discussion. It is such a rational, reasonable desire, that it is really a matter of surprise that the need should go so long unfulfilled. And yet it is more than likely that if a proposition should come from this body to night to inaugurate and carry out a plan by which this great public need might be satisfied, it would be met in many quarters by the most determined resistance, and would be defeated by an overwhelming force of public sentiment—simply because the general tax is already too high, and the necessary increase could not be borne without absolute hardship to a large majority of our citizens.

The same may be said in relation to the question of sewerage. There is nothing our city is so urgently in need of for the improvement of its sanitary condition, and for the welfare of its inhabitants, as a perfect system of sewerage. And yet, much as it might be desired to improve the present system so as to cover every point where service is needed, we encounter the same obstacle to progress in that direction—that the satisfaction of the reasonable wants and needs of a community involves a burden upon the minds of people too great for them to voluntarily assume.

This does not appear to be a natural healthful condition of things—that what are clearly matters of public necessity should be so far beyond the reach of the public.

Still, it is not a condition of affairs that exists with us alone. In nearly every city of the state and Union the same obstacles to material progress present themselves, untill the problem of municipal government is attracting the attention and absorbing the thought of the best citizens in every community. It is forcing itself to the front as few questions have of late years, until it becomes the duty of the representatives of every municipality to give it their fullest and best consideration.

The great problem for municipalities to determine, as the needs of population and civilization multiply, is not so much how to keep within certain bounds in the matter of expense, as how to remedy existing systems of taxation so that the burdens of goverment may be more equally and equitably distributed among all the people.

These are the causes, in my judgment why material progress in public improvements does not keep pace with public needs in all civilized communities, and furnish the reason why the strictest economy consistent with the public welfare should guide us in our every act.

The one improvement of great public importance now under way, and which we will be called upon to further, is the paving of Maumee street, between Broad street and the point where work was stopped last fall. I believe it a common wish that this work should be pushed to completion as speedily as possible, and that the paving be made full width, from curb to curb.

In all improvements of this character there is a distinct line which distinguishes public from private benefits, and I believe that in so far as paying or any other public improvement confers a private benefit, the expense should be shared by those benefitted.

It is difficult to discern exact justice by defraying wholy by general tax the expense of special improvement of any particular thoroughfare. To some specific extent abutting property is benefited thereby over all other property, and to that extent it ought to be made to assume the burden of expense. This is a matter which it is well for us to fully consider, before a dangerous precedent becomes too firmly established.

Other matters of great common interest at the present time are those involved in the subjects of public lighting and water supply. While the time may be somewhat remote when the city can own and operate these systems independently, still our treatment of these subjects should be with that object in view. To provide the citizens with water and light is as much a public function as is the furnishing of fire or police protection, or the satisfaction of any common need, and is essentially in the direction of true economy and the most efficient public service.

I am confident that in the consideration of all matters of necessity and improvements pertaining to the city that may come before you during the year, you will be guided by wisdom and fairness, and that the experience in public affairs which most of you can bring to the performance of your official duties, presages a continuance of the safe and judicious management of the city's affairs that marked the labors of the retiring administration, and gives us a promise of the approval of the public whose servants we are.

About one-quarter of the board of lady managers of the Columbian Exposition are white ribboners.

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrap says of the W. C. T. U.: "No other association has touched so many springs of praise and blame of love and hate, and become equally distinguished for the friends it has won and the enemies it has made. Cursed at the bar of the legalized saloon, hissed on the floor of the beer brewers' congress, scored by political conventions, misrepresented by the all-powerful press, denied a place in the halls of legislation, sneered at in places of fashion where the wine-glass tempts to destroy, unwelcome often in the Christian church, it has been left to the organization of ballotless women to arouse all classes of opposers and find for themselves the 'Hate of Hate.' Then, on the other hand, blessed by the fevered lips of the drunkard ready to perish, sought by the wandering feet of the boy or girl who went astray, hallowed by loving thought at thousands of firesides, baptized with holy tears by the others whose battles it wages; perfumed by the stainless prayers of little children; endorsed by the express principles of Christianity; sustained by the highest and freshest authorities in the scientific world; praised by lips grown careful through statesmanlike speech; believed in by the best, trusted by the most needy, it has been granted them also to find the 'Love of Love.'"

The Find social, given by the King's Daughters at Capt. Chilson's last Friday evening, proved to be a very enjoyable affair. Refreshments were served as advertised, and a pleasant evening was spent by all. The attendance was good, considering the inclemency of the weather.

Waring Bros. of Chicago have another message in to day's paper, giving a batch of interesting particulars about the magic city of Harvey. That city is one of the Western marvels and every man having any idle money to invest should investigate the chances presented in this new town.

The Detroit Times, although not yet eight month's old, has already attained a sworn circulation of over 15,000. It now proposes to have 20,000 by August 18, its first anniversary. The remarkable success of the paper has necessitated the ordering of a new press. As soon as this arives, which will be about May 15, the Times will be an 8-page paper every Saturday.

The young men have engaged Schremser's orchestra, of Detroit, for the May party, Friday, May 1st. This orchestra is one of the finest in the State. It plays at all the fine dances in Detroit and the neighboring cities. The Ann Arbor boys engaged it for their Junior Hop a few weeks ago and had the best music ever produced at a dance in that city. It has been engaged to play at the Detroit Exposition, instead of Cappa's band. Concert at 8:00; Promenade at 8:30. Admission, 15c; reserved seats, 25c.

The home of Ira Ladd, of Adrian, was the scene of a very pleasant surprise party on the 15th. That day was the anniversary of Mrs. Ladd's birthday, she having completed sixty-one years on this earth. Her children and grand-children conceived the happy thought that a surprise upon her would be most appropriate, and so they all assembled at the old home, taking with them a beautiful set of china dishes. The afternoon was spent in social converse and all present voted it a splendid time. It would be better for us all if such joyful gatherings might occur oftener.

DEATH OF C. J. WEIR.

The following article clipped from the St. Thomas Evening Journal of April 14th gives a few additional particulars in regard to the death of Chester J. Weir.

It was surmised that the letter left in his desk by Mr. C. J. Weir, addressed to his father, would throw some light on the causes which led to his taking the fatal step, but it now appears that the letter was written on Saturday, before any intention of suicide had entered the mind of the writer. Mr. Weir, sr., arrived last night from Manchester, and was immediately handed the letter, which is reproduced below. While it contains no intimation of the deed which yesterday morning startled the city, it yet shows that Mr. Weir was troubled in his mind over financial matters, and that his illness had left him weak and in all probability despondent. His reference to his aged parents and what they were doing for him, will touch a chord in many a heart. The poor fellow was evidently in embarrassed circumstances, his illness had thrown him still further behind, but he was making a manful attempt to hold his head up, and was only accepting assistance from his parents on the condition that it was assistance they could render without pinching themselves or working harder. There is a simple pathos in the letter that contrast strongly with the deadly climax of the troubles besetting the writer that came within a day. He was struggling, but the waters proved too deep, the shore too far, and he chose oblivion. It was not a courageous choice, but however we may condemn the deed, we can but sympathize with the fellow being, whose pitiful life-struggle, defeat, surrender—perhaps not far different, except in its ending, from the common lot of all—has by his own act been placed before us "as a tale that is told."

The following is a copy of the deceased's last letter:

St. Thomas, April 11, 1891.

DEAR FATHER AND MOTHER,—We received mother's letter Thursday, and to-day I got the one from father with the draft inclosed. I have been laid up just ten days with the quinsy, and to-night is my first night I feel very weak, and my throat is very sore, but I will stay in the office as much as possible and not try and catch any more cold.—and—are all well. There is lots of sickness here, both among children and older people. There have been a great many deaths this winter. I was in hopes I would escape this winter, but could not drive it off. My throat gathered and broke same as the time when mother was here. I have not read anything to—about the money father sent me. I think I shall be able to arrange my business in a satisfactory manner, unless something happens that I lose my place, but won't look for trouble from that source until it comes. I hope you sent this on the conditions I named. If I thought you did not, or that it was going to deprive either of you of any comfort, or make you work any harder, I would not touch one cent of it. I shall try and get everything paid up just as fast as I can. If nothing happens it won't be long. I am sorry you are both so poorly. Hope you will be better before this reaches you. I hardly feel able to stay on duty to night, but will stick it out, as I have lost $30 worth of time already this month. Will write again soon. Accept with love from CHES.

Three sisters of Mrs. Weir arrived from Tecumseh, Mich. last night. It has been decided to take the remains to Manchester, Mich., for interment, and they will leave by No. 9. M. C. R. express, at 5:45 this afternoon. The funeral here will be attended by members of A. O. U. W., Knights of Pythias and Oddfellows. Two from each order will act as pall-bearers, and will accompany the remains to Manchester. Some one of the officials of the M. C. R. will also go to Manchester to attend the funeral.

ITALY ANSWERED.

Mr. Blaine's Forcible Reply to the Italian Premier.

The True Principle of Indemnity—Nothing Can Be Claimed for Aliens Which a Government Does Not Afford Its Own Subjects.

READING FOR RUDINI.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Another stage has been reached in the diplomatic episode with Italy. Secretary Blaine yesterday gave to the press for publication the letters which the Italian prime minister, through the Italian legation in Washington, addressed to this government on April 2, and also a copy of the reply which he addressed yesterday to the Italian d'affairs in this city, the Marquis Imperiali. This is the first time that the text of the Italian letters of April 2 has been given to the public. The sum and substance of that communication was that the Italian government has no desire to be unreasonable; that they did not demand the punishment of the New Orleans mob irrespective of the forms of justice; all they wanted was the assurance of the United States government that judicial proceedings against that mob would be promptly executed through the regular channels.

The other part of the Italian letter was a confession of error. It showed that Mr. Blaine's letter of April 1 had been misread in Italy; that the Italian government had understood it to mean that Mr. Blaine admitted outright the undoubted liability of the United States government for a money indemnity to the families of the three or four Italian subjects who happened to be among the eleven victims of the mob's violence on March 14. Mr. Blaine, of course, admitted nothing of the kind, but simply acknowledged on general principles that if the Italian subjects in question or any other Italian subjects had been deprived of the rights which we guaranteed to them by the treaty of 1871, they would be entitled to indemnity at the hands of the United States government. Mr. Blaine distinctly left it an open question whether that treaty had or had not been violated, and he still holds it an open question. He says:

"As promptly as possible after the lamentable occurrence at New Orleans the president directed the attorney general to cause through his department a full inquiry to be made into all facts connected therewith, and solicited his opinion whether any criminal proceedings would lie under the federal laws in the federal courts against persons charged with the killing of Italian subjects. He has not yet received the official report. If it be found that a prosecution can be maintained under the statutes of the United States the case will be presented to the next grand jury according to the usual methods of criminal administration. But if it shall be found, as seems probable, that criminal proceedings can only be taken in the courts of Louisiana, the president can in this direction do no more than to urge upon the state officers the duty of promptly bringing the offenders to trial. This was done in his telegram to the governor of Louisiana as early as the 15th of March.

"If it shall result that the case can be prosecuted only in the state courts of Louisiana and the usual judicial investigation and procedure under the criminal law is not resorted to, it will then be the duty of the United States to consider whether some other form of redress may be asked.

"It is understood that the state grand jury is now investigating the affair, and while it is possible that the jury may fail to present indictments the United States cannot assume that such will be the case.

"The United States did not by the treaty with Italy become the insurer of the lives or property of Italian subjects resident within our territory. No government is able, however high its civilization, however vigilant its police supervision, however severe its criminal code and however prompt and inflexible its criminal administration, to secure its own citizens against violence prompted by individual malice or by sudden popular tumult. The foreign resident must be content in such cases to share the same redress that is offered by the law to the citizen, and has no just cause of complaint or right to ask the interposition of his country if the courts are equally open to him for the redress of his injuries.

"The treaty in the first, second, third, and notably in the twenty-third, articles clearly limits the rights guaranteed to the citizens of the contracting powers in the territory of each to equal treatment and to free access to the courts of justice.

"Foreign residents are not made a favored class. It is not believed that Italy would desire a more stringent construction of her duty under the treaty. Where the injury inflicted upon a foreign resident is not the act of the government or of its officers, but of an individual or of a mob, it is not believed that a claim for indemnity can justly be made unless it shall be made to appear that the public authorities charged with the peace of the community have connived at the unlawful act or, having timely notice of the threatened danger, have been guilty of such gross negligence in taking the necessary precautions as to amount to connivance.

"If, therefore, it should appear that among those killed by the mob at New Orleans there were some Italian subjects who were resident or domiciled in that city, agreeably to our treaty with Italy, and not in violation of our immigration laws, and who were abiding in the peace of the United States and obeying the laws thereof and the state of Louisiana, and that the public officers charged with the duty of protecting life and property in that city connived at the work of the mob, or upon proper notice or information of the threatened danger failed to take any steps for the preservation of the public peace, and afterward to bring the guilty to trial, the president would under such circumstances feel that a case was established that should be submitted to the consideration of congress with a view to the relief of the families of the Italian subjects who had lost their lives by lawless violence.

"Accept, sir, the renewed assurance of my high consideration. JAMES G. BLAINE."

ROME, April 17.—Premier Rudini was interpellated in the Italian chamber of deputies concerning the dispute with the United States. He explained the situation and said in conclusion that in no case could serious trouble between Italy and the United States be expected.

Ninety Lost with a British Ship.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The steamship Monowai, which has arrived twenty-five days from Sydney and seven days from Honolulu, brings the intelligence that the British ship St. Catharas has been wrecked off the Caroline islands and ninety persons drowned.

Made a Handsome Present.

NEW YORK, April 18.—Rev. James McMahon, of St. Andrew's church, this city, has presented to the Roman Catholic university in Washington $500,000 worth of property to found a school of philosophy and to beautify the university grounds.

The Myra Clark Gaines Case.

NEW ORLEANS, April 20.—The celebrated case of Mrs. Myra Clark Gaines against the city of New Orleans has been compromised and her heirs will receive about $800,000 in the settlement.

Hog Cholera in Wisconsin.

RACINE, Wis., April 20.—During the past week 150 hogs have died in the town of Yorkville of hog cholera and 1,000 more are sick with the disease.

RUINED BY GALES.

Windstorms Cause Great Destruction at Various Places.

MARION, Ind., April 18.—A destructive wind and hailstorm swept the northern part of this city yesterday afternoon. In that section are ten factories, not one of which escaped injury. The Crosby paper mill was completely crushed and the machinery broken. The Marion window-glass works and the Swezay & Johnson skewer-works were partially unroofed and otherwise damaged. A number of dwellings went down and trees and fences were leveled, while stables and outhouses were tumbled about everywhere.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., April 18.—The east part of this (Morgan) county was visited by a cyclone which, fortunately, did but little damage. One man with a load of hay was caught and used up pretty well. The wagon and contents were twisted around and around and pitched into a hedge in a twinkling, but, strangely enough, the man and horses were but little injured.

LIBERAL, Kan., April 18.—Reports brought in state that the courthouse at Hansford, Tex., in course of construction and nearly completed, was destroyed by a cyclone and a brickmason and another man was killed. Every house was more or less damaged. From there the cyclone traveled in a southeasterly direction to Paludora, a little town on the Beaver river, in Beaver county, O. T., which place is reported as entirely destroyed.

TREATY WITH SPAIN.

The Agreement for Reciprocity with Cuba Entered Into.

MADRID, April 18.—The draft of the new treaty of commerce between the United States and Spain which provides for partial reciprocity of trade between the former country and Cuba has been concluded. The treaty is understood to fix a very low rate of duties on flour and other articles imported into the Antilles from the United States. Gen. John W. Foster, the special representative of the United States who negotiated the new treaty, will at once leave this city for home.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Information has been received from Venezuela to the effect that the congress of Venezuela met on the 3d inst., and in his message the president referred to the negotiations between Venezuela and the United States for a reciprocity treaty, saying that he would make it the subject of a special message later.

POISONED HER DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Hyde Kills Her Children to Prevent Them from Becoming Insane.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 20.—Saturday evening Frank R. Hyde on returning home discovered his wife lying on the kitchen floor unconscious and bleeding from wounds in the arm made with a razor and his daughters dead in their beds. On the parlor table was a letter written by Mrs. Hyde, in which she stated that she had poisoned her children because she believed that they were gradually growing insane. Hereditary insanity had prevailed in her family, and rather than be a burden to her husband she had decided to take the lives of herself and children.

PAID THE PENALTY.

Four Murderers Executed on the Gallows for Their Crimes.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 18.—George and Fred Dunawas were hanged at Tahlequah, I. T., for the murder last September of Wash Lee, a Cherokee.

NEW ORLEANS, April 18.—William Green (colored) was hanged here yesterday for the murder of Joseph Proper on January 6, 1890.

LAURENS, S. C., April 18.—Walker Brown (colored) was executed here yesterday for the murder of Noah Ramaga (colored) last November.

Another Counterfeit.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Another two dollar counterfeit silver certificate has been received at the treasury department. It is of the series of 1886, check letter B 1863. The note bears the portrait of Gen. Hancock, and is signed by W. S. Rosecrans as register and James W. Hyatt as United States treasurer. The "i" in register is not dotted and the "t" in states is not crossed.

The Body Was Petrified.

GOSHEN, Ind., April 17.—When the body of William Imes, which was buried at Corunna two years ago, was distinterred Wednesday for shipment it was found that it was petrified, with every feature preserved perfectly, even to the hair. At the time of burial Imes weighed 180 pounds, while his petrified body now weighs 495 pounds.

The Urban Population.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The census office has issued a bulletin giving the population of cities in the country containing 8,000 inhabitants or more. The total urban population in 1890 was 18,235,670, or 29.13 per cent. of the total population. In 1880 the urban population was 11,813,547, or 22.57 per cent. of the whole.

Last of Chicago's Founders.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Alanson Sweet, who came to Chicago when only soldiers, Indians and squatters were here, and who was the only survivor of twelve men that agreed to found the town of Chicago, died Saturday morning at the age of 87 years at the home of his son, George O. Sweet, of Evanston.

Death of a Veteran.

SARATOGA, N. Y., April 20.—John Mulligan, who said he was over 100 years old, and who was said to have been the oldest veteran of the Grand Army of the Republic, is dead at his home in Mechanicville. He was a member of the One Hundred and Fifteenth regiment, New York volunteers.

Heavy Loss in Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 20.—The wholesale dry goods house of Gus Blass & Co. and the stores of B. Levinson, wholesale liquors, and A. Kuttner, millinery, were destroyed by fire Saturday night. Blass & Co.'s loss is $400,000, insured for $200,000, while the other losses will exceed $100,000.

DOWN IN DIXIE.

Progress of the Presidential Party on Its Journey.

The Chief Magistrate Speaks to Immense Throngs of Enthusiastic Citizens, Congratulating Them on Their Increased Prosperity.

IN THE SOUTH.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 17.—The presidential party had a delightful six-hour trip over the Georgia Pacific road from Atlanta to this city. The special engine provided was completely covered with flags and bunting and displayed in front a large portrait of the president. Tallapoosa gave the president a cordial reception. Mayor Head welcomed the president, who stood on the rear platform of the train and responded.

There was a great crowd at Anniston, and the reception of the party was most enthusiastic. The reception at Birmingham was the noisiest that has been exprienced on the trip, thus far. Gov. Jones and his staff in full uniform and a committee of citizens met the presidential party a little way from here and escorted it to the city, where the president was welcomed by Gov. Jones, Mayor Lane and other municipal officers, and in reply said:

"I judge from what we have seen as we neared your station that we have here at Birmingham the largest and most enthusiastic concourse of people that has met us since we left the national capital. For all this I am deeply grateful, and I reciprocate with the very fullness of my heart every fraternal expression that has fallen from the lips of the gentlemen who have addressed me. I have not been saved from mistakes; probably I shall not be. I am sure of but one thing—I can declare that I have simply at heart the glory of the American nation and the good of all its people."

The party returned to the train at 8 o'clock and immediately started for Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 18.—The presidential train arrived in this city yesterday and was greeted at the station by an immense assemblage of people, who cheered the party enthusiastically. At the cotton exchange an address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Clapp and responded to by the president. A public reception lasting about an hour was held, at the conclusion of which the party started for Little Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 18.—The presidential train arrived in Little Rock at 5:45 o'clock. At Carlisle, 30 miles from Little Rock, the wife of Gov. Eagle and a number of other ladies, forming a committee of reception, met the train and proceeded with it to Little Rock. After the president had held a short reception in the capitol he was driven back to the depot and just before 7 o'clock the train left for Galveston.

GALVESTON, Tex., April 20.—The presidential train reached here at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. A stop was made at Palestine at 4:30 a. m., where Gov. Hogg met the party and welcomed the president to Texas. The reception here was very enthusiastic. A noteworthy feature of the demonstration was the cordial welcome given the president by the Italian colony of this city. Yesterday the president attended divine service in the morning at the First Presbyterian church and in the evening went to Trinity Episcopal church. Shortly after midnight the presidential party left for San Antonio.

CHICAGO'S NEW MAYOR.

The Official Canvass Shows Hempstead Washburne (Rep.) Is Elected.

CHICAGO, April 18.—The official canvass of the city election was completed yesterday afternoon and Hempstead Wasburne (rep.) for mayor has a plurality of 369 over Cregier. The vote for mayor is as follows:

Hempstead Washburne (rep.)	46,957
Dewitt C. Cregier (dem.)	46,588
C. H. Harrison (ind. dem.)	42,931
E. Washburn (ind. rep.)	24,027
T. Morgan (socialist)	2,376

Peter Kiolbassa (dem.) is elected city treasurer by a plurality of 4,417 over Jacob Tiedeman (rep.). Jacob Kern, the democratic candidate for city attorney, has a plurality of 1,239, and J. R. B. Van Cleve (rep.) for city clerk has a plurality of 5,400.

Knights of Reciprocity.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 17.—The new secret order known as "The Knights of Reciprocity" is said to be rapidly gaining a strong foothold throughout the west. Members are required to pledge themselves to support the perpetuity of the union, to favor liberal pensions to soldiers and sailors, to maintain the doctrine of protection of American industries and to advocate and work in favor of a free ballot and an honest count.

Whist Congress Adjourns.

MILWAUKEE, April 18.—The first American whist congress finished its labors Friday morning and adjourned sine die. The date and place of the next congress was left to the executive committee of the newly formed American Whist league, which will govern future congresses. A permanent organization was effected, with E. S. Elliott, of this city, as president.

Five Men Drowned.

WHEELING, W. Va., April 20.—Five men, four Americans and one Italian, were drowned in Laurel creek near Addison, Webster county, on Friday. They were crossing the swollen stream on a foot log when it turned and all were precipitated into the water. None of the victims are known by name and the bodies have not been recovered.

Three Children Drowned.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak;
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

LANDLORD VS. TENANT.

[The Tenant's Side.]

A tenant has no life of ease;
His "moves" are never through;
Before he's settled off he flees,
Same as the Wandering Jew.

Although he pays his rent,
Which in no case is small,
All he receives is discontent,
And ne'er a "home" at all.

Though leaky roofs and broken panes
His family make ill,
And plumbing bad and worn-out drains
His little ones may kill,

He can not make his landlord see
A reason for repairs,
And, as he has to have them, he Himself the burden bears.

In case he has a growing flock
Of children young and sweet,
The landlords on him turn the look
And leave him in the street.

He can not keep a pet about (Dogs, chickens, goats or geese),
Because the landlord turns them out
With his one-sided lease.

When any careful tenant shows
A wish to longer stay,
His rent to such a figure goes
He's forced to move away.

And if by noon he isn't out,
In stormy rain or sleet
He, with his household goods about,
Is fired on the street.

The awful rent a tenant gives
Would in five years or so
Purchase the house in which he lives,
As smart landlords know.

And knowing that, they charge so high
That tenants can not save
Enough a chicken coop to buy
Before they're in the grave.

A tenant never has a "home,"
Though for one paying dear,
But with his furniture must roam
House-hunting every year.

A CLOSE CALL.

Romantic Story of an Innocent Man's Escape from Death.

For twenty years Hamilton Duke was my client. In fact, it was to him that I owed not only a competent fortune, but my position in society.

But for this I should never have undertaken his defense in this last case, my best feelings were so against him—not that I was an ingrate, but because I believed that he had murdered his wife.

Many things compelled my drawing such a conclusion.

He was well-bred, refined and cultured, while she was of common stock, the personification of ignorance and low-breeding. For ten years he was all of chivalry and tenderness to her that a lofty nature could be, while she was always sullen, morose, dissatisfied.

It was claimed by their closest friends that he loved her the first few years of their united life, though I never believed this—it was such a manifest impossibility.

Any way, he hated her cordially when her life came to its tragic close, and so he had for a considerable period prior to that event.

Being entirely in his confidence he often came to my office, pallid and trembling, to tell me some new vulgar violence of hers which had driven him nearly to the last extremity of desperation.

And so one morning when Mrs. Duke was found dead with an ugly stab through her heart, her husband standing over her with a reeking knife in hand, I naturally believed that he had killed her.

Later on, when I saw him, my suspicions seemed confirmed.

He was in a state of wild excitement when I entered the sheriff's office in answer to his summons.

Until that moment no one had succeeded in getting a word out of him about the murder.

"What does it all mean?" I asked, when we were alone.

"I don't know," he gasped. "I don't know whether it was I who killed her or not. But I don't want to die. I mustn't be allowed to die. You must defend me—you must save me."

Though I pitied him I believed him guilty, and though I defended him I felt that he merited death.

But my efforts were vain ones. The evidence against him was too conclusive.

An unusual noise in Mrs. Duke's room had attracted the butler's attention the morning of the murder. On entering he saw Mr. Duke rising up, knife in hand, from the prostrate body of his wife, as if he had just stabbed her.

That and the fact that the Dukes had indulged in many bitter quarrels of late was enough to win a disastrous verdict from any jury.

Mr. Duke was found guilty and sentenced to death. He was to be hanged in forty-five days.

Reopening a case at that time was not the easy thing it is now, and I found it impossible to get him a new trial.

On and on those grace days swept seemingly with lightning swiftness, until the time set for the execution was but fifty hours off.

I was desperate; Duke was frantic.

"You must go to the Governor," he cried at length. "You must get a pardon for me."

"Impossible," I answered. "There isn't enough time."

"Yes, there is. This is Wednesday morning, and I am not to hang until Friday noon. The train goes in an hour. If you leave here at once, you can make the trip and get back here in time."

"But on what pretext? Simply seeing the Governor will do no good. I—"

"You must think of a pretext on the way. Don't stay here and talk. You are wasting time and my life must be saved. Do go at once."

He was in such a wrought-up state that there was no use arguing with him, and so I went away, walking about the streets in sheer bewilderment.

By blind chance I went to the railway station, arriving just as the train rolled in. Dejected and reckless, scarcely knowing what I was about, I clambered on board at the last moment and went whirling away toward the Governor's, bent on a wild mad purpose, which I well knew could only prove entirely fruitless.

When the station next to my destination was reached, a woman came on board, who instantly popped on me and kissed me.

It was my niece.

"What under the sun is the matter with you?" she demanded.

When I told her of poor Duke's predicament her face became very grave, but the moment she discovered my business with the Governor it brightened.

"How very fortunate!" she exclaimed, clapping her hands gleefully.

"What?" I demanded, nearly stupefied with amazement.

"Leave it all to me," she said, "and I will save your friend. No—I'm not crazy. Listen: Last night the Governor proposed to me. Of course I love him dearly, but I didn't want to be too cheaply won, and so I refused to give him an answer. He dines with us tonight. After dinner, when his stomach is full and his heart easy to get at, I'll promise to marry him on the condition that he pardons poor old Duke."

Then and there, on a public train though we were, I both hugged and kissed her.

She was as good as her word, and six hours later I was on board another train, homeward bound, and in my pocket was a reprieve for Duke—the case against him being so strong that the Governor deemed a full pardon impolitic then.

The reprieve granted him another three months, though, and by that time popular sentiment was likely to cool down sufficiently to make a pardon feasible.

On the way home I was fairly happy and tried to picture to myself Duke's face when he knew he was safe.

This made me so comfortable that I fell asleep.

Nothing disturbed my slumbers until the trainmen called out the name of the junction where I had to change cars for the branch road which ran through my town.

And there, to my consternation, I found myself unable to move. Mentally I was awake. Physically, I was asleep. I was fully conscious of the stir and bustle made by those who were getting on and off the train; but I could not move a muscle.

With all my might I endeavored to throw off the trance-like spell which held me, but all to no purpose. The train moved on and took me with it.

Cold perspiration oozed out through every pore, and I think I would have gone mad, then and there, had not utter unconsciousness mercifully come to my rescue.

It was more than an hour before I regained possession of my senses.

By that time it was impossible to get back to the junction in time to catch the home-bound train on the branch line.

Springing up, the moment I was conscious, I explained things to the conductor, offering him any price he chose to demand if he would run his train back to the junction and take me home.

That was out of the question. He could only do such a thing on the order of the general superintendent, and that personage could not be reached, because a storm the day before had blown so many wires down that all telegraphic communication was cut off.

All I could do, then, was to remain on board the train seven hours more, when by tramping twelve or fifteen miles over a craggy, roadless mountain, I could probably get home by noon.

Though the "probably" discouraged me, I thanked the conductor for his advice, shut my teeth hard on my misery and tried to make the best of it.

That was the longest night of my life. It seemed to me that it would never end.

Day was just breaking when we reached the station where I was to leave the train and begin my foot journey over the mountain.

Hard as was the ascent of that trackless, precipitous mountain side, it was a vast improvement on the train. I was in motion myself now, doing something whether it would avail me any thing or not.

Soon the sun was up. Altogether too soon it had accomplished half its journey from horizon to zenith.

It was then that I reached the mountain top, with a good seven miles of rough walking still before me.

Duke was to be hanged at noon, unless I was on time.

At ten o'clock I was but two miles away from him, and with all the horrors of my journey presumably behind me, I smiled self-congratulatively at the thought of how easy the rest would be, and of how I would disappoint those who were even then gathering to see my client hanged.

A vine caught my foot and threw me. Falling I sprained my ankle, and the pain was so intense that I had to exert every atom of my will to keep from going into a dead faint.

Breaking a forked stick from a sapling presently I extemporized it into a crutch and hobbled on as best I could.

At the end of an hour I had made but half a mile, and was so exhausted that I knew another fifteen minutes would bring my locomotive powers to a full stop.

Poor old Duke must die, after all. There was no help for it, and with an outcry of utter despair I settled on the ground in a heap.

The mental anguish I suffered in the half hour which followed was enough to unseat a man's reason.

Watch in hand I counted the fleeting seconds.

In twenty-five minutes more my client would hang for want of the reprieve in my pocket.

And then, joyful sound, I heard approaching feet!

A moment later a negro appeared. He was old, dirty and stupid—entirely unable to understand me until I mentioned money. When I said: "I will give you a hundred dollars if you get this paper in the hands of the sheriff before twelve o'clock," with a yell like a fiend he snatched the reprieve out of my hand and darted away.

Again I sought my watch.

My messenger had twenty-two minutes in which to cover a mile and a half, a portion of his route being through thick underbrush. It was doubtful if he would make it.

The hour which passed before he returned with help seemed a hundred years to me.

"I done got dar," he gasped, nearly out of breath, "an' de gemmen am all safe."

Probably it was unmanly, but I wept for joy.

They tried to make a hero of me for that exploit, but I am too commonplace and stolid for that. I had simply done my duty. I had saved my client. That was all.

However, I was rewarded more gloriously yet.

Before Duke's reprieve expired his butler was taken seriously ill. Just before he died he made a startling confession.

It was he who killed Mrs. Duke.

She caught him in the act of stealing her jewels and he killed her to escape punishment. Returning a moment later to make sure that his victim was dead, he saw Duke beside the dead woman with the bloody knife, and so made capital out of this circumstance by swearing away his employer's life to save his own.—Chicago Herald.

A NIGHT AMONG WOLVES.

The Thrilling Experience of an Old Trapper on the Plains of Kansas.

Years ago when the plains of western Kansas were the feeding ground of the buffalo, antelope and prairie wolf, an old trapper named Harris had a thrilling experience and a narrow escape from death by a pack of gray wolves. The story is probably best told in the language used by the old trapper while relating it, and is as follows:

"One day I had been out looking after my traps along the Smoky river, nearly south of where Hays City now stands. It was in the first days of January, and the winter had been such a severe one that the wolves could get hardly anything to eat, and had become rather ferocious. I was about three miles from my cabin, returning home, when I was startled by the howl of a wolf hardly three hundred yards to my right. Barely had it ceased before the howl was taken up in my rear and on my left. I then knew that I was being trailed and that I would have a hard run for life, with the chances ten to one against me. I increased my pace to a long 'dog trot,' but it was not long before I could see the yellowish eyes of the beasts as they glared at me through the gathering darkness. I broke into a hard run, and was beginning to congratulate myself on escaping, when down came the whole pack right at my heels, snapping and snarling like 'bedlam' turned loose. My rifle was a double-barreled one, and suddenly wheeling, I fired into the pack twice, killing one at each shot. Being winded, nothing was left for me but to take to a tree, which I did instantly, the discharge of the rifle stopping the wolves for a moment and giving me a chance to climb.

"I staid in that tree until my feet were frozen, and I was fast becoming so numb that it was but a question of a short time until I should fall out. Feeling round in my pockets, I discovered some matches, and as I then believed that I would never get out alive, I pulled off my heavy hunting jacket, and set it on fire; it was made of buckskin and burned brightly. By its aid I discovered an old dead limb that had fallen, and trusting that the light would keep the wolves at bay, I concluded to try and reach the limb and build a fire. When I reached the ground my lower limbs were so badly frozen that I could not walk, so I started on my hands and knees for the dead limb, with the wolves howling all around me. I threw down the burning coat and began to break twigs in order to start a fire, but had my left leg badly bitten and mangled before the fire burned vigorously enough to scare off the varmints. I now walk on crutches on account of that night out with the wolves, but I never think of it unless I thank the Almighty for His goodness in allowing me to escape with my life."—Chicago Journal.

LONG-DISTANCE LAUGHTER.

How the Telegraph Operator Communicates His Mirth.

Did you ever laugh by telegraph? Probably not. It would hardly pay. When one reflects that it would cost a cent or two per chuckle to express his sense of amusement, he refrains from manifesting it and lets it go.

But laughing is done by telegraph. It is the telegraph operators who indulge in this luxury, and mostly the night operators, who have more time than the day people. When an operator becomes lonely and his sounders are clicking out messages not intended for him, he calls up some friend operator, maybe a hundred squares away, and opens a conversation.

A conversation, of course, cannot be continued long before something "funny" is said. It then becomes the duty of the operator to laugh. This he does by making four dots, then one dot and a dash, thus: . . . . —, spelling ha. Thus to all jokes he replies h—a, h—a. Sometimes, to make it easier, he says h—i, that is, four dots and two dots.

The laugh by telegraph is necessarily cold and sardonic. It does not bubble irresistibly to the surface. It is the result of deliberate purpose. When one has sufficient self-control to laugh in this way, probably his tribute to your joke is not what you would desire. But the operator is often shaken with laughter before shaking his key with it, so to speak.

Telegraph operators have a few other conversational expressions, among them "hm," four dots and two dashes, indicating surprise. — Indianapolis News.

—Shocking a Lady.—Mrs. Fordyce Langley, a Long Island matron, had for many years flattered herself that she walked with unusual grace and dignity, but the other day a teacher of manners told her that her gait was "pudgy," and she took laudanum and tried to die.—Detroit Free Press

HAPPY HOOSIERS.

Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined; for that bad feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie farmer and stockman, of the same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best kidney and Liver medicine, made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care hether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c. a bottle, at J. J. Orr's Drug Store.

For nearly half a century Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been the most popular cough remedy in the world. The constantly increasing demand for this remedy proves it to be the very best specific for colds, coughs, and all diseases of the throat and lungs.

Adolf Lafloz, carriage manufacturer, 119 Carroll Street, Buffalo, N. Y., states: I was troubled with nausea of the stomach, sick headache and general debility. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me.

After suffering horribly for years from scrofula in its worst form, a young son of Mr. R. L. King, 706 Franklin st., Richmond, Va., was recently cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. No other medicine can approach this preparation as a cleanser of the blood.

In Holland, Mich., C. J. Doesburg, publishes the News, and in its columns strongly recommends Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for coughs, colds, sore throat, catarrh and asthma.

A bald headed woman is unusual before she is 40, but gray hair is common with them earlier. Baldness and grayness may be prevented by using Hall's Hair Renewer.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY,

Dr. Brown Sequard's elixir of youth may be an important discovery, but every one knows that Dr. Franklin Miles' New Heart Cure certainly is. It has given thousands afflicted serious heart disease a New Lease of Life. Druggists who can observe its effects on many costomers everywhere speak very highly of it. Mr. John Weaver, Knightstown Ind., says: "I have sold much of Dr. Miles New Cure and have received many good reports." O. Monroe, of Dunkirk, N. Y., report large sales. "And the best part of it is every bottle has given satisfaction." Sold and guaranteed by Baker & Hall.

ONE DOLLAR WELL INVESTED.

If you have bad breath, constipation, pain in the small of the back, discolored skin, nervousness, or dizziness your only wise course is to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. It will cleanse the blood of all impurities, regulates the Kidneys and Liver, and thus restores a healthy glow to your cheeks again. All druggists: one dollar a bottle.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

The Best

Blood Medicine

So say Leading Physicians and Druggists, and their opinion is indorsed by thousands cured by it of Scrofula, Eczema, Erysipelas, and other diseases of the blood.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla has won its reputation by years of valuable service to the community. It is the best."—R. S. Lang, Druggist, 212 Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass.

Dr. W. P. Wright, Paw Paw Ford, Tenn., says: "In my practice, I invariably prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla for chronic diseases of the blood."

Dr. R. R. Boyle, Third and Oxford sts., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "For two years I have prescribed Ayer's Sarsaparilla in numerous instances, and I find it highly efficacious in the treatment of all disorders of the blood."

L. M. Robinson, Pharmacist, Sabina, O., certifies: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has always been a great seller. My customers think there is no blood-purifier equal to it."

"For many years I was afflicted with scrofulous running sores, which, at last became so bad the doctors advised amputating one of my legs to save my life. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla and soon saw an improvement. After using about two dozen bottles the sores were healed. I continue to take a few bottles of this medicine each year, for my blood, and am no longer troubled with sores. I have tried other reputed blood-purifiers, but none does so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—D. A. Robinson, Neal, Kansas.

Dr. T. C. Adam has been very sick this week.

Neil Williams returned to Ann Arbor Monday.

Mrs. Will Hall was quite sick Sunday and Monday.

We are sorry to hear that Roswell Randall is seriously ill this week.

Prof. Swift moved his household goods here from Adrian this week.

The DeLeon Comedy Company are at the Town Hall every evening this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Webber and children spent Thursday and Friday at Frank Kirchgessner's.

Lon Marshall has purchased a house and lot on Mill street of E. R. Smith and will move his goods there shortly.

Mrs. Franc Hollenbeck arrived here last Saturday from Perrysburg, Ohio, to see her brother Aaron Bruce who is quite sick.

Mrs. Hattie Johnston and children went to Manchester Saturday, remaining until Monday the guests of Mrs. E. M. Conklin.

Miss Helen Rowland who has been in Toledo for several months is visiting relatives here. She is on her way to her home in Caro.

Dr. White was called Wednesday to attend a boy a few miles out of town, who had his shoulder broken by a corner of a falling hay rack striking him.

Will Hall leaves here Thursday morning for New York City. He expects to start from there the following Saturday for Glasgow, Scotland. He will be absent from here about ten weeks.

Miss Carl Corey came home from Paw Paw last Friday in response to a telegram announcing the serious illness of her mother. Mrs. Corey has improved very rapidly within the last few days.

The item in last week's correspondence in regard to the sale of the Keyes property was incorrect. We have since learned that Mr. Harry Davis was the purchaser and he is moving his household goods there this week.

A telegram was received by the Misses Henderson last Friday requesting one of the young ladies to come immediately to their home at Racine Wis. Accidentally Miss Anna Henderson left for that place the same evening.

Singing—Choir.

Will R. Bigham died Monday, April 20th, of pneumonia, after an illness of ten days. Mr. Bigham came here with his family about five years ago and worked in the Local office, which position he held until his death. During the time he has lived here people have found him to be a man of few words and quiet demeanor, seldom on the street except when his work called him there, and altogether a man worthy of respect. His family, consisting of a wife and two children, have the sympathy of the entire community. The funeral service was held Tuesday at 10 a. m. The remains were taken to South Lyons, his former home, for burial.

Last Thursday morning, after many weeks of extreme suffering from heart trouble, death came to the relief of William Price. Mr. Price has lived among us a great many years and though as a citizen he was of a very retiring disposition, seldom taking any active part in public affairs, yet he has done a great deal toward the improvement of Clinton in the last few years by putting up several new houses. At the time he was taken sick he was engaged in building a pretty little house on Chicago street. The funeral was held at his home Sunday at 2 p. m. Revs. Wastell and Williams conducted the service.

Died.—At his home one mile south of this village, on Tuesday night, John Fisher, aged 47 years. One year ago last fall Mr. Fisher was one of the first victims of la grippe, from which he never recovered, but which in the course of a few months developed into consumption. For the last seven or eight months he has been able to do but very little work and has been confined to the house all the latter part of the winter. Mr. Fisher has lived in or near Clinton about twenty years and had a host of friends. He leaves a wife and three daughters, Carrie, May and Susie. The funeral was held Thursday at 3 p. m.

Died—At his home in this village, Friday evening, April 17th, Solomon Brown, aged 66 years. Mr. Brown had suffered a long time with kidney trouble but was only confined to the house for a few days preceding his death. He was born in Monroe Co., N. Y., July 22nd, 1824. He came to Michigan with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. K. N. Brown, more than 50 years ago and settled in Bridgewater. He remained at home until his marriage with Sarah McElwain, of Fayette Co., Ind. Mrs. Brown died in 1879 leaving five children, Calista, Frank, Lon, Ida and Carrie, all of whom survive their father. Mr. Brown was married a second time to Miss Jane A. Liddell, with whom he lived until his death. As a citizen Mr. Brown will be greatly missed for he has always shown a great degree of interest in all matters pertaining to the public good and has held many positions of trust. He has represented several insurance companies, among them the Hartford, Phenix, Connecticut, and the U. S. Mutual Accident Association. He was president of the village council at one time and has been justice of the peace for several years. He operated the Bridgewater mill for six years and was engaged in the hardware business here for six years. The funeral was held Sunday at 3:30, at which Rev. H. R. Williams, of whose church Mr. Brown was a member, officiated.

"When my Ship Comes Over the Sea," the latest musical hit. Price seventy-five cents. Special price, for introduction, post-paid, forty cents. Address, Will L. Thompson & Co., 259 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

The popular "Buck" Ewing, captain of the New York's, has written an article for the Boy's Department of The Ladies' Home Journal for June, on the "Ins and Outs of Base-ball," in which the famous catcher will tell how to play the game; how to form a nine; the hardest positions and how to fill them; how to throw a ball, etc. This is Ewing's first article, and it is said to be the best which has ever been written for boys on the great national game.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

FARMERS IN LUCK.

Wheat Throughout the State Is in Excellent Condition.

The Michigan crop report for April says that wheat in the southern and central counties, where 97 per cent. of the crop in this state is raised, has suffered no material injury. Owing to the open winter, the top is more or less browned, but it is believed that the root is uninjured. The ground is not yet bare of snow in the northern counties, but no fear is expressed as to the condition of the crop in that section. The number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in March is 1,518,297, and in the eight months from August 1, 11,568,617. Clover meadows and pastures are reported in good condition and the outlook for fruit, particularly apples and peaches, is promising in all parts of the state.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by forty-eight observers in different parts of the state for the week ended April 11 indicated that typhoid fever and inflammation of the bowels increased, and cholera morbus, whooping cough, dysentery, cerebro spinal meningitis, inflammation of the kidneys and typho-malarial fever decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at eleven places, scarlet fever at thirty-two, typhoid fever at four and measles at thirty-six places.

Unable to Move.

Frank Clark, a prominent Detroit business man, died the other morning while arising from bed. His wife saw him, but for some reason was unable to move. She lay paralyzed until a neighbor forced an entrance into the house. The whole affair was shrouded in mystery. Doctors could not account for the woman's condition and the husband had evidently not been the victim of foul play.

Muskegon's Public Library.

Charles H. Hackley has provided for the maintenance of the Hackley public library by donating to the Muskegon public schools a fund to be held in trust by the board consisting of bonds valued at $75,000, bearing 5 per cent. interest, for a new schoolhouse to replace the one recently burned, making a grand gift to that city from Mr. Hackley within two years of $269,000.

Tramp Kills Tramp.

James Carroll, a tramp, killed another member of the "profession" in a quarrel at the Grand Rapids & Indiana railway yards in Grand Rapids by stabbing him with a jackknife. The dead man had not been identified. Carroll was in jail. He said he had a sister living in Fort Wayne and another in Indianapolis. He has lost both feet and walks on his knees.

Commissioners Named.

The governor has appointed the following commissioners to the commercial congress at Kansas City next month: Marshall Howell, of Cassopolis; J. H. Withey, of Grand Rapids; Don. M. Dickinson, of Detroit; Eugene H. Belden, of Jackson; W. R. Burt, of Saginaw; William McPherson, of Howell; J. G. Mason, of Adrian; O. F. Barnes, of Lansing.

Michigan Homeopaths.

The Southwestern Homeopathic association of Michigan held its annual meeting at Kalamazoo and the election of officers resulted as follows: President, E. A. Balyeat, Kalamazoo; vice-president, H. L. Miller, Otsego; secretary, J. N. Ayres, Kalamazoo; treasurer, Alfa R. Lieb, Kalamazoo.

Short but Newsy Items.

Sherman Mercer, of Newaygo, was drowned in Bigelow creek while fishing.

A. J. Blake, of Leslie, has a fiddle which is more than 100 years old and is valued at over $2,000.

The people did not want the Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad Company to discontinue their Fargo branch and had the courts enjoin the road.

Michigan salt manufacturers have formed a new organization to control the price of their product.

Lewis A. Campbell, a pioneer of East Tawas, died the other morning. He was born at Staunton, Va.

Willard S. Martindale, of Grand Rapids, has pleaded guilty to playing ghost and frightening women.

The Ottawa Furniture Company, with a capital of $100,000, has been organized at Holland. Two hundred men will be employed.

Work is to be begun at once on the buildings for the West Michigan Fair association at Grand Rapids. The main building will be 100 feet square, with four wings 30 by 80 feet each.

The first train passed through the Port Huron tunnel and under the St. Clair river at 4:55 the other afternoon.

William Eagan, who killed Patrick O'Connor in a fight at Grand Rapids, last summer, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury.

The Mancelona handle factory was destroyed by fire, throwing fifty men out of employment. Loss, $17,000; insurance, $6,000.

Joe Simpson, a Canadian, with no relatives and no money, dropped dead in the depot at Reed City and was buried at Big Rapids.

Dr. Jonathan B. Chapin, of Battle Creek, dropped dead at his residence. He was 86 years old and had lived at Battle Creek for over half a century.

Three unoccupied dwellings in Grayling were burned at a loss of $2,500. The houses were near the Michigan Central depot and that building was slightly damaged.

The Chicago & West Michigan Railroad Company will begin building its road to Petoskey and Charlevoix as soon as the frost is out of the ground. It is thought that cars will be running by July 1.

A St. Ignace man recently received a dog by express from a friend and had to pay $10. He still feels very sore, as the same breed of dogs can be bought in St. Ignace for twenty-five cents per half dozen.

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability.

"Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way.

"Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used.

"One of my sons, who has long been a sufferer from Catarrh, has received like signal relief from his old enemy. P. S. HENSON.

GOOD NEWS

—ABOUT—

HARVEY!

The New Temperance and Manufacturing Town two Miles South of Chicago.

NEW RAILROADS —The Northern Pacific R'y Co. is extending the Chicago Central through the town. An exevated railroad chartered on Halsted street, with $10,000,000 capital stock. A local street car line to be completed in 90 days.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS PROGRESSING. Two miles of Mason Sewerage already in, and contract let for twice as much more. Contracts have been awarded for paving Park Ave., 151st St., and 155th St. Water-works, side walks, shade trees and street grading to be pushed at once. The above improvements are being made without taxation or expense to lot owners or purchasers, which occasions the announcement that all lots included in Blocks 112 to 126 inclusive, still selling at first prices, will be advanced soon. This is the last chance to secure business or residence lots at first prices within a short distance of the center of the town.

PRICES TO ADVANCE SOON.

☞ DO NOT MAKE THE MISTAKE of delaying longer your visit to the "MAGIC CITY," or of making an investment by mail if you cannot come. Spring is here; its just the time to come.

Read What Disinterested Newspapers Say of Harvey:

Last week we announced the coming of a very important railroad on the west side of Harvey, through Blue Island to Chicago. This week we can announce another, the Chicago North and South Elevated Railway, with a capital of $10,000,000. One million is already subscribed, W. C. Goudy alone taking $250,000. The road was projected by W. C. Goudy, J. A. Austin, Geo. C. Newberry, Samuel T. White and others. The proposed route will start at Harvey, about One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth and Halsted Streets. A perfectly straight route along this most populous street will bring Harvey within fifteen miles of the center of Chicago. The road is to be an elevated road and will not be obstructed by cross streets, or east or west lines of any kind. The stock is eagerly sought for, and will be a success.—Chicago Tribune, April 4th.

The thriving suburb of Harvey is getting a reputation for the solidity and permanency of its improvements. * * Last summer a four foot brick sewer was laid on 155th street from Ashland Av. Contracts have been let for a sewer on 157th street from Halsted street to the Illinois Central tracks. This makes nearly two miles already built, about six miles under contract, and two and a half to be built next summer, a total of ten miles of brick sewer in all.—From the Economist, Chicago, March 28, 1891.

REMEMBER!

It is necessary to buy in HARVEY PROPER to obtain ADVANTAGE of the ABOVE IMPROVEMENTS made by the Land Association. $40,000 WORTH OF PROPERTY sold by us to MICHIGAN PEOPLE in the past ten weeks, and yet it can be safely said that every lot sold by us can be resold before July next for an ADVANCE OF FROM 25 to 100 PER CENT. The BEST THING to do is to come and see for yourself. The NEXT BEST THING is to send for corrected plat and make a selection by mail. Only Two Weeks Remain to Secure Choice Lots at First Prices in the original tract of Harvey.

☞ Call at our Chicago office by 9 a. m., get FREE TRANSPORTATION, and go with us to see the "Magic City." We are representing Walter Thomas Mills & Co., in Michigan, but all mail should be addressed to us to save confusion and delay.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

BRITTON BUDGET.

Mr. Strong went to Adrian on business last Monday.

Dr. Hendershot was away on business, last Saturday.

A number of our young folks went to Adrian last Saturday.

The roads are in fine shape again and business is booming.

Prof. Hopkins, of Hillsdale, was in our village last Monday.

Mrs. Luella Haynes commenced teaching school last Monday.

William Larrabee is working in the butcher shop of Ousterhout & Loose.

Agents have been busy delivering fruit trees in and around our village.

Henry Miller will drive W. Lenardson & Son's egg wagon this summer.

Lyman Hause has sold out his butcher shop to Ousterhout & Loose.

Neal Exelby lost a valuable horse last week. Cause, inflamation of the bowels.

John Britton is very busy improving the looks of his land by building new fences, etc.

Mr. Strong says he will soon be going to Chicago. The boys are too rough for him at Britton.

Seventeen dollars and eighty-five cents was taken in by the Britton Dramatic Club last Saturday evening. This still leaves the Society a little in debt.

The boys and men who have no business calling them to the livery barn at the hotel, are kindly and respectfully requested to keep away, especially on Sundays.

The Old Reliable, the TECUMSEH HERALD, has taken a new departure and is now giving its readers a correct market report. This feature alone is worth the price of subscription. The HERALD should be in every home.

The boys are anxious to organize a base ball team in the village this summer. Let some of our influential men take hold and help organize. We have quite a number of first rate players and a strong team could be brought together.

A number of young ladies, from the hotel, went out driving last Sunday evening, it being a beautiful moonlight. It was in the small hours of the morning when they returned to their couch. Monday being washing day and the young ladies being very tired and sleepy, one of them fell into the wash-tub, and would have undoubtedly been drowned had not some persons come to her rescue. There is a good moral for the young ladies in future; don't stay out all night when you have to do a hard day's washing the next morning.

Monday, April 20th, was the birthday of Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, Mr. Allen being 80 years old and his wife 64 years. The children and grandchildren were present, consisting of two daughters from Bay City, three from Tecumseh and one from Belding, and the others from the surrounding towns. The wishes of the family circle are that father and mother may see many more such happy days. A purse of silver was given to Mr. Allen and a dozen silver knives and forks to Mrs. Allen, besides other valuable presents. Refreshments were served and all enjoyed a pleasant day.

Positively the last entertainment of the season. "It's Never Too Late to Mend." This domestic drama will be given by the Britton Dramatic Society on Friday and Saturday evenings, May 29th and 30th (Decoration Day,) 1891, at the Exelby Opera House, Britton.

Act 1.—The Grove Farm at Farnborough.

Act 2 —The Model Prison near Farnborough.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Wheeling fine and splendid weather for farm work.

Wheat never bid fairer for a big crop than now.

Grandmother Dennison is quite sick with the grippe.

Chas. Johnson called on E. W. Rappleye and family last week.

W. F. Clack and Ed. Palmer were in Clinton Sunday afternoon.

Supervisor Barnes was in the village last week with his assessment roll.

Mrs. Fairbanks, of Adrian, spent Sunday with Mrs. James Pocklington.

Lula Rappleye began the spring term of school in District No. 3 Monday.

Mrs. Harry Smith and Chas. Pocklington were victims of la grippe last week.

Mrs. Waitman of Jackson visited her sister Mrs. James Curry, last week.

Wm. English, of Adrian, spent Friday evening as the guest of Rhoba Arner.

Wm. DeMott, of Tecumseh, was in the village Thursday of last week on business.

Marcie Kelly and Lelia Sutton attended church at Holloway Sunday morning.

Dr. Balcom, of Dundee, was in the village Thursday of last week calling on friends.

H. J. Williams has several jobs of slating contracted for the season and is giving it special attention.

Mrs. Laura Cheever, who has been at Kalkaska for several weeks past, returned home the first of the week.

Mrs. Anna Riley and sons James and Johnnie, of Chicago, visited their uncle Pat Curry and family last week.

Cleaning house and door-yards and making gardens occupy the attention of most of the citizens of the village at present.

T. H. Temple and Dr. R. H. Nelson were at Monroe a part of last week on a fishing expedition, returning Friday evening.

Prof. Rieman, Shirley Smith, Lena Smith and Minnie Barrett attended the Teachers' examination at Adrian Saturday.

Commencing May 1st the Library will be closed during the afternoon but open from 6:30 until 9 p. m. until further notice.

R. Wiggins and men began the carpenter work on a 28x42ft horse and carriage barn for Mrs. Sue Clark the first of the week.

The W. C. T. U. will hold a business meeting at the home of the President, Mrs. Ella Waring, on next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The road machines put the roads in fine shape. It is hoped every road district in the township will purchase one by another spring.

L. S. Palmer has been repairing his house during the past few weeks and when completed will have a very pleasant farm residence.

W. E. Barrett is improving the appearance of the house and outbuildings formerly owned by Wolston Comfort, near the Raisin Mill, during the present fine weather.

There was a good attendance at the entertainment given by the Reading Circle at the Library on Tuesday evening. A short literary program was carried out, after which a verse social was given. The ladies each furnished a verse, one-half being put in a box. The gentlemen did the drawing, by which their partner for supper was ascertained, when the ladies holding the other half of the verses were found. The evening was spent very pleasantly and all report a fine time. The proceeds amounted to something over five dollars.

The ladies' church social will be held at the residence of Chas. Underwood on Friday evening, May 8th, from 8 to 10 o'clock, and the following program will be presented:

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

If a price can be placed on pain, "Mother's Friend" is worth its weight in gold as an alleviator. My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did all together with her last, having previously used four bottles of "Mother's Friend." It is a blessing to any one expecting to become a mother, says a customer of mine.

A WEEK IN CHICAGO AND VICINITY.

Learning that Dr. H. L. Stewart spent the most of last week in Chicago and the suburbs of that city, a reporter of the HERALD called upon him to ascertain how he enjoyed his visit at the western metropolis, and what he saw there.

"How long did you remain in Chicago, Doctor, and how did you find matters moving on the shores of Lake Michigan?"

"I spent one week in that city and in the suburban towns about it. I think I put in my time to pretty good advantage too. That city is a marvel of growth and a wonderful example of western grit. It is all alive now with the preparatory work for the great Columbian exposition. The wrangling incident to the selection of a site is over, the plans of most of the buildings have been adopted, and the actual work of erection is under way. In just two years the exposition must be opened, but Chicago is equal to the task of having everything ready for the big show by that time.

The influx of people to Chicago is also very large, and the city will receive an immense addition to its population during the next two years. Several mammoth hotels are now projected and boarding houses without number will be built before the exposition opens. Real estate speculation is already lively and it will increase in volume during the coming two years. Everybody is interested in the World's fair and no stone will be left unturned to make it the greatest exposition the world has ever seen."

"What suburban towns did you visit during your stay?

"I went to several of them and they are all on the boom, but none of them are so full of life and activity just at present as Harvey, the magic city. It is well named the magic city too. The wet spring has retarded building somewhat, but the carpenters and masons are making things hum now. Houses by the hundred, shops without number, and extensive factories are in course of construction. They are also putting in miles of brick sewer, setting shade trees around each block, grading the streets and otherwise improving the town. Harvey has the appearance of a genuine western town, all the buildings being new, several hundred of them, and scattered over eight or ten hundred acres. Lots are going off there like hot cake and the original plat of Harvey will soon all be sold out."

"Are the temperance features of the town all that they have been represented to be?"

"The statements made public in that regard have not been exaggerated in the least. It will be a legal impossibility for a saloon to exist within the corporate limits of the city. These features are drawing a fine class of residents, people who desire to get away from the contaminating influence of the saloon. The city has a strong prohibition club and W. C. T. U. organization. Churches and schools are already started and the city will be well supplied with these accompaniments of modern civilization."

"Did you see the Waring Bros. while you were there, and if so, how are they doing?

"Yes, I was in their Chicago office and made two trips to Harvey while I was there. They are getting nicely started and are evidently held in high esteem by the people of Harvey with whom they have become acquainted. The business position they have held in this state facilitates immensely their business relations with Mich. people. They are pleasant, affable men to deal with and evidently making the most of their opportunity. Eighteen different states are now represented among the residents of Harvey. I enjoyed my week's stop in Chicago very much and almost caught the western fever myself. But I can hardly afford to desert my celery farm, although I would not object to placing a few hundred dollars in Harvey. There is certainly money to be made in any investment there."

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.

Doctors may differ in opinion as to the cause of that feeling of languor and fatigue so prevalent in the spring; but all agree as to what is the best remedy for it, namely Ayer's Sarsaparilla; it makes the weak strong, and effectually removes that tired feeling.

OUR NEW PHYSICIAN.

We are glad to hear from Dr. Thomas Miller of Washington D. C. who is stopping at his mother's in East Raisin, a very gratifying account of our esteemed fellow-townsman Dr. Fred O. Teff, who recently graduated in medicine. Dr. Teff passed an excellent examination, being one of the best in the class. He had charge of a section of his class for hospital work and spent the winter in Freedman's hospital, an institution containing over three hundred beds; thus offering him a splendid opportunity to see and study diseases in all phases and giving him a practical insight diagnosing and treating all manner of sickness.

It is Dr. Teff's intention to enter at once into the active practice of his chosen profession here in Tecumseh, he having already secured an office on Chicago street. Dr. Miller says the people of Tecumseh and vicinity are to be congratulated in having such a capable and bright young doctor in their midst, who not only understands the theory of medicine profectly, but has had sufficient actual practice to enable him to cope successfully with diseases, not the least feature of which is the administration of remedies in their latest and most palatable form It is worthy of note that one of our best doctors, Dr. Catlin has watched the course of Doctor Tefft with considerable interest, and the fact of his indorsement and approval is sufficient guarantee that confidence in Dr. Tefft will not be misplaced. He will return home next week. We predict for him a brilliant future.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Village of Tecumseh, Mich.,
Council Room, April 20th, 1891, 7:30 p. m

Regular Session. Present, President Howell, Trustees James and Smith and the recorder. There being no quorum present, the council adjourned for one week.

CHARLES F. FIELD, Recorder.

Village of Tecumseh, Mich.
Council Room, April 27th, 1891, 7 p. M

Adjourned Session. Present, President Howell, Trustees Bidwell, Heck, James, Smith and the recorder. Absent, Shull and Stout.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and approved.

PETITIONS AND APPLICATIONS

A petition was received from twenty-four citizens and firms of the village, asking the council to provide public platform scales for the use of all citizens, where their purchase may be weighed and the weight certified by an official weigh-master to be appointed by the council and subject to its control, at a cost not exceeding ten cents a load.

Similar petitions were received signed by 122 farmers.

Remarks were made by R. B. Gillespie, E. Russell and Wm. Hayden on the desirability of having public scales, as asked for in the petition, after which the petitions were, on motion, referred to the committee on ordiances with especial reference to ascertaining whether the council has authority, under the charter, to take action on them if desirable.

NEW BUSINESS.

The bond of the marshal in the penal sum of $6000, with two sureties, was presented and, on motion, approved and declared sufficient.

The liquor bonds of Jacob Cheever, Keyser & Kennedy, John McCone, Wm. J. Arnold, and Eugene Service each in the penal sum of $4000 and with two sureties were presented and, on motion, were severally approved and declared sufficient.

Moved to reconsider the motion by which the liquor bonds of Keyser & Kennedy and Jacob Cheever were approved. Carried.

The original mover of the motion approving Jacob Cheever's bond withdrew his motion with the consent of the second.

It was then moved that the bond of Jacob Cheever be returned to him for further security, on the ground that the provision of the law requiring sureties to be worth, in real estate, the penal sum of the bond, had not been complied with. Carried.

The motion to accept Keyser & Kednedy's bond was then withdrawn and, on motion, the bond was referred back to the principals on the same grounds as in the case of Mr. Cheever's bond.

The druggist's bonds of Baker & Hall, John J. Orr, and James Potter, each in the penal sum of $2000, with two sureties, were presented, and, on motion, were severally approved and declared sufficient.

The following bills were read and referred to the finance committee:—

C. F. Field, printing "Proceedings" 3 months, $5.00; VanDuser & Bangs, 27 maple trees, $13.50.

Mr. Conely, representing the Muskegon Chemical Engine Co., was present, and on invitation of the president, addressed the council, explaining the leading features of their engines.

Wm. Hayden, also, made a few remarks on the desirability of having a chemical engine.

On motion the question whether it is desirable for the council to purchase a chemical engine was referred to a special committee of three. The president appointed as such committee, Messrs Field, James and Bidwell.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The finance committee reported favorably on the above bills as read and on motion orders were directed drawn for the several amounts.

On motion the council then adjourned.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, APRIL 30.

Is the tariff a tax? That is the absorbing question; and if the tariff is not a tax, then what's the matter, with sugar?

P. T. Barnum paid out $3,000,000 in advertising and he died worth $5,000,000. An effect never followed its cause with more mathematical accuracy.

The billion pinch has come even sooner than people anticipated. The net surplus in the U. S. Treasury is now only twelve millions and that is petering out very rapidly.

President Harrison is likely soon to be confronted with a condition rather than a theory. The peculiar condition, however, to bother him, will be a treasury deficit, not a surplus.

If free sugar is a good thing, and no one denies that it is, why would'nt free blankets, free salt, free coal, free carpets, free wool, and free raw materials generally be an equally good thing? Tell us why, Major McKinley, tell us why.

President Harrison is having a jolly good time in swinging around the circle. He was welcomed in all the principal Southern cities with the booming of cannon, a profuse display of bunting and genuine Southern hospitality. We wonder what the President's views are now in regard to the necessity of a bayonet election law to punish the South.

In an interview and comments, published in another column, considerable light is thrown upon Cleveland's views on the silver question. It shows Mr. Cleveland to be the same cautious and yet courageous man that he has always been. He is not afraid to express his personal views on all subjects, but when it comes to political action his feet are guided by the lamp of experience. He endeavors to keep in touch with the popular pulse and to respect the popular will.

Geo. D. Liddell, of Providence, R. I., is engaged in a discussion on taxation with the editor of the Orange County Farmer. The editor has got to the point of making this declaration: "Relieved of the burden of personal taxation, with a system of land values assessment, the farmer would no longer be robbed, the denizen of the town would not be injured, and wealth would be equally distributed between the producer, the manufacturer and the consumer." This in pretty good doctrine, call it by whatever name you choose.

City Assessor Perrin, of Detroit, is making some of the land owners of that city squeal. An additional $162,000 has been placed on Ex-Mayor Thompson's real estate, and Thompson is mad clear through. The assessor is adopting the single tax plan that unproductive real estate should be assessed at its full current value. One piece of real estate has been raised from $88,000 to $154,000, and Mr. Perrin thinks it will stand. The Journal estimates that the total increase on real estate this spring will reach $12,000,000.

The Chicago Tribune still continues to speak right out in meeting about the McKinley iniquity. There is much tariff reform wisdom in these few lines:

The McKinley bill has increased the duties on a total of 791 articles in common use. Is it not a fact that the duties on most of those 791 articles were raised because the mill bosses wanted to make excessive profits and not for the purpose of their being able to pay higher wages? And was not the rise of the tariff made for the express purpose of permitting those excessive profits by preventing the foreign competition that would otherwise have kept them within more reasonable bounds?

Verily, the world is moving in both political and religious matters, as the following item taken from the New York Tribune will show:

A well-known Universalist clergyman of this city invited a well-known Baptist clergyman to fill his pulpit on Sunday, and the latter readily responded and preached acceptably. Nothing is likely to happen either to Dr. Eaton or Dr. Armitage in consquence. For that matter, nothing is very likely to happen to Dr. Newton or Dr. Rainsford because they invited ministers of other denominations to speak in their churches recently. The dividing lines between the different denominations are becoming fainter, and the fact of a Baptist in a Universalist pulpit is not an insignificant sign of the tendency of the times.

AMERICAN TIN PLATE.

Mr. S. C. Trench, of New York, Explains the Situation and Makes Some Vigorous Assertions.

So much has been said by the friends of the McKinley high tariff law about the tin plate business that Mr. C. S. Trench, the heaviest dealer in New York, has made a public statement of the facts in a communication as follows to the New York Evening Post:

The Tribune of last week contains a long editorial article on the effect of the McKinley tariff bill on tin plates, claiming that the new tariff should be judged by its results, and that the effect of the increased tin-plate duty promises to supply the best possible illustrations of the benefit accruing from this measure. The facts cited by the Tribune in proof of this position are all so contrary to the truth, and so calculated to mislead the public, that, having noticed no reply to it, it seems to me right your readers should be informed through your valued columns of the misrepresentations that are being circulated on this subject. Up to the present moment the effects of this odious and burdensome tax have been exactly as predicted by your paper and other opponents of the McKinley bill. Since the bill passed the anxiety to buy on the part of American consumers (whose business foresight told them that the McKinley bill would advance prices), has led to an extraordinary demand which has caused a rapid advance in prices, equal to over three million dollars, on the amount already imported, since the McKinley bill passed, and which, should values go no higher, will be equal to five million dollars by July 1, when the new tin plate tariff goes into effect. This disposes of the claim that the McKinley bill does not advance prices so far as the tin plates are concerned. The United States treasury officials have estimated the increased duty after July 1, at about nine million dollars per year.

The tribune gives the name of a person in St. Louis, who is producing, they say, 3 per cent of the entire quantity required in this country; this would be about 15,000 boxes per month. This statement is not based on facts, nor is the firm producing one tenth of this quantity, for, with the exception of sample sheets that have been distributed, and here and there sample boxes, there is no record of any of their output having been offered for sale or placed on the market. The Tribune says another concern at McKeesport is producing about as much as the other. This must be a mistake, as after a careful investigation I cannot find that they are producing any tin plates at present, or that they have put any on the market or are at all likely to do so. All that has been heard about this Apollo concern is same sample boxes of No. 28 gauge iron made into roofing plates, for which their price is $16 per box, or 35 per cent. more than the same grade can be imported at plus the McKinley duty from England, and consequently we hear of no sales except occasionally sample lots which have been purchased as curiosities. The Tribune also speaks of other tin-plate manufactures being at work in Brooklyn; this is also a mistake. We understand that there is a tin-box maker in that city who is reported as contemplating the manufacture of tin-plates, but up to the present moment none of his output has been placed on the market, nor has he put on the market even the sample boxes, and so far as we can find out has not even secured the necessary plant yet. The other instance cited by the Tribune of a Chicago firm has been already exposed by the Chicago papers, which have proved that until a very short time ago the only tin plates made there consisted in dipping imported iron sheets into imported pig tin in imported tin pots.

The British trust spoken of in the Tribune exists only in the editor's imagination, and until the passage of the McKinley bill and the rush of American buyers to secure supplies before the new duty went into effect, enabled the Welsh makers to increase their price, there has not been a trade that has shown a larger proportion of failures in the past 10 years than the tin plate trade in Wales. While the rush continued, and while the American buyers were buying in a few weeks what in ordinary circumstances would be extended over as many months, the Welsh makers have taken advantage of the unusual condition of affairs to advance the prices, and the American consumer has paid very dearly for the situation created by the McKinley bill. But after July 1 when the new duty goes into effect and the demand again assumes its normal proportion, prices will probably decline in England to as low a point as ever, and in anticipation the English makers have already sold, and are offering to sell to-day for July and August shipments at nearly the same prices in England as have ruled for July and August in every year since 1885, but on account of the increased duty of one and two-tenths cents per pound to which these shipments will be subject, the cost to our American consumer will be about 28 to 30 per cent. greater than at any time since 1885. Who pays the duty? Certainly it would seem in this case the American public. It might be of interest to mention that the above sale referred to as having been made for July and August shipments have been to concerns like the Standard Oil company, who export their product, and who, although paying equivalent to $6 per box delivered in New York, obtain a rebate of 99 per cent of the McKinley duty, which reduces the cost of their tin plates to $3.60 per box, while the hundreds of American canners and tin-ware manufactures selling their product to the American public have to pay the English price plus the McKinley duty or equal to 60 per cent more.

The stories circulated and largely copied by the high tariff papers, of tin can and other manufacturers proposing to manufacture tin plates, have been allowed to remain in most instances uncontradicted. Several firms whose names have been used have, as one personally expressed to me, been perfectly satisfied to obtain the benefit of the free advertising it afforded, and it would seem as if this is also the object of some of the firms who have exhibited their samples of tin plates on Tribune bulletins and elsewhere. It must be remembered that tinplates are simply sheet iron or steel coated with tin, and there is no mechanical difficulty in the manufacture. America has already for years been producing large quantities of the necessary gauge of sheet iron or steel, which by being coated with tin become tin plates; and the only reason why tin plates have not been manufactured in this country in the past has simply been a matter of cost. It is not at all strange that several concerns have been able to exhibit and distribute samples of tin plates made by them, which up to the present time in evey instance has been accomplished by purchasing either from England or from Pittsburg, or some of our iron rolling mills, the proger gauge of sheet iron or steel, and dipping said sheets into imported tin and imported palm oil. Fifty pounds will secure the tinning plant or tin pot, such as is used in Wales to do this work of tinning the steel and iron sheets, and which is a very insignificant portion of the process. The problem is to roll, pickle, anneal the sheet iron of No. 30 gauge at a cost equivalent to the price ruling in England, plus the McKinley tin plate duty, and this I claim has not yet been done. I should be very glad at a very short notice to furnish you with the necessary No. 30 gauge sheet iron or steel, either English or American make, the imported pig-tin, palm oil, and the necessary tin pots, which would enable you or any other newspaper, by the employment of one or two workmen, to turn out in one corner of your establishment as good tin plates, and in as large quantities, as any that have made by the so-called American tinplate makers. I feel quite safe in saying that up to the present moment not one among the names who have been quoted as manufacturing tin plates in America can positively assert that they are at present able to manufacture the article at a price equal to the present market price in New York.

The firm that has been most positive in their assurances of success have within one month acknowledged that they are unable to compete with the English prices plus the McKinley duty, but hope to do so by a new process of making steel, which, if successful, will revolutionize the entire manufacture of steel, and land its inventors among the millionaires and benefactors of mankind (and in which process, it may be well to add here, the entire steel and iron world have not the slightest confidence, considering that it is totally impracticable.) Up to the present moment there is no tin plate being made in this country that will materially affect our supply, or make the McKinley tariff on tin plates anything else but an outrageous tax on the poor man's dinner-pail and our growing canning industry, not to speak of scores of other industries that are likewise seriously injured. Already some of our American canners are contemplating transferring their business to Canada, and are only deterred by the expectation that the glaring outrage will be corrected during the coming year. Tin plate can be imported from England at $3.62 per box delivered at the Canadian seaboard, while the same tin plate would cost $6 delivered at the American seaboard duty free. "Drowning men catch at straws," and the persistency at which the defenders of the McKinley tariff continue to hang on to the tin-plate phantom factories, can only be explained by the demoralization which seems to have completely overtaken both the intelligence and moral rectitude of some of its defenders.

Yours respectfully,
C. S. TRENCH.

CLEVELAND ON SILVER.

In a recent interview with Treasurer Stevens of Missouri, Grover Cleveland stated his views more fully than he has hitherto done on the subject of free silver coinage. The interview was published, a portion of which is given below:

"If I should be elected President in 1892," answered the ex-President, "such a bill would not reach me until 1894, as Congress would not meet until December, 1893. So that is a bridge we had better not attempt to cross until we come to it. What would be bad for the country at the present time might be a necessity in 1894. As the volume of business increases it is necessary to increase the currency. The amount of the present per capita should be increased, but changes should be made gradually. When the law was passed providing for the coinage of $2,000,000 per month, I feared the result, for I thought it would prove an injury to the business interests of the country for the time at least. However, the law proved a benefit, for, contrary to my opinion, the country was ready for the change. When the present law providing for $4,500,000 per month was passed, I thought the measure too radical, and that it might have the effect of driving gold out of the country, but in this I was mistaken, and both those opposed and those in favor of free coinage believe that the present law is a wise one in so far that the country has benefited by it. With the rapid strides the country is making it is impossible to say what financial measure we may be ready for in 1894. In forming my views upon the subject I did not alone consider the interests of any one section of this country. I have been unable to see how free coinage could fail of being an injury to every section of this country, believing as I do that it would drive gold out of circulation. As we are in a great measure dependent upon European markets for our products, we are obliged to take them into consideration. When I have suggested a monetary conference of the representatives of other governments with our own which could agree upon a new standard of value my suggestions have been scoffed at by Europeans. I am delighted that the people are now engaged in such a thoughtful consideration of this question and that by 1892 they will have decided whether or not we are ready to handle all the silver of the world."

Although Mr. Cleveland has since denied the exact language attributed to him, it is evident that his views were given with reasonable accuracy. Commenting thereon, the St. Louis Republic, a strong free silver paper, says:

Those who know Mr. Stephens believe that, while he may not have been entirely accurate in quoting Mr. Cleveland's exact expressions, in the main he conveyed, with reasonable accuracy, Mr. Cleveland's meaning. If the interview is even approximately correct it is the belief here that it will have the effect of satisfying the advocates of free coinage of silver of Mr. Cleveland's position. It was nothing more, however, than those who know Mr. Cleveland best were inclined to expect from him. Although opposed to the free coinage of silver himself, it has been the general opinion of Democrats here, especially Democrats from the West and South, that, if a free coinage bill should pass Congress by Democratic votes, and Mr. Cleveland should happen to be President, he would not be likely to veto it. In other words, that while Mr. Cleveland might at some times differ from the judgment of his party, still when the party in Congress took action he would not interpose a veto. In this manner, it will be remembered, he approved of the oleomargarine bill. He was opposed to the general principles of that measure, but because it was supported by a great many Democrats and demanded by the farming people of the country as a rule, he approved the bill, although not personally believing in its wisdom. It is believed that his attitude on the silver question, if elected President in 1892, will be somewhat similar. While he may not personally believe that free coinage would be wise, still, if a free coinage measure should be passed by the general votes of his party friends in Congress, he would not be likely to veto it. Besides, it is a long time between now and 1894, and as Mr. Cleveland is reported to have said to Mr. Stephens, what might not appear wise now might be necessary then.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

"IS IT RIGHT?—THE ETHICS OF THE LAND QUESTION."

From an address delivered by Rev. Dr. John W. Kramer, before the Manhattan Single Tax club, of New York. Dr. Kramer said:

Land is God's gift to the people; the people need it; no man's share in it is asked of him, but every one's right to it is asserted; nothing else can be justice. The simple statement would seem to show the ethical nature of the case. But there are complications, and the one plan proposed to effect the result, known as single tax on land values, is objected to by many right-feeling persons, who say that it does not seem that it would be just to tax landholders out of economic rent, to intercept their investment in land value, after civilized society has for long centuries encouraged persons to make such investment in the conviction that it was both right and lawful to do so, unless the state, which has encouraged and protected the investment, makes some compensation for what landlords must lose. Those who propose the single tax have not been unmindful of the ethical consideration belonging to it. The lecturer can hardly hope to present any thing here that is new, but he may endeavor to offer what study he can make in some original manner which possibly may command attention and challenge conviction.

At the outset let us be assured that an immoral cause can not win assent from the people and through popular demand become lawful practice of the state. Wealth and greed may purchase legislation which is wrong, and party feeling may influence legislation which is unfair, and both of them may become iniquitous in corrupting the executive or the judiciary; but the public conscience is not debauched, and the people will not ask for what is thought to be wrong. A majority of the people may be mistaken as to the wisdom or unwisdom of a measure, but so long as any proposition seems unrighteous the people will withhold approval. The single tax advocates must show that it is both right and expedient. To the ethics belonging to this question let us give a bold investigation.

The highest moral consideration here attaches itself—in the abstract study and in application of it—not to property, not to land as property, but to land in its primary relation to man. For consider: (1) all wealth is produced from land, everything that man has coming from it; (2) all wealth is produced by labor; (3) land and labor are necessary to man's continued existence on the planet. The one gift to the race, the absolute and unconditional gift, is land, on which and from which every child of man must live. It is God's board, from which alone the Father in Heaven gives man his daily bread. Man is before property in every moral study. In morals the right to property comes to the front when we find man with something in his possession produced from the land; and then it appears at the front for man's sake. All this is said because it is of first importance, and needs to be referred to incidentally in our study. And it must not be forgotten that the single tax is proposed for the suppression of an evil—that of poverty. The suppression of an evil has highest rank in public morals. Property has been confiscated and destroyed, life has been required of thousands, for the suppression of evils all through history, and relief for man and the advancement of the race have justified the crowning of those who were not deterred by considerations of property or life as benefactors of the world. Our question is. Does the single tax propose to suppress an evil by means that are not justifiable?

Taxation is for the maintenance and defense of the State, the preserver of society. There has been a general conviction that citizens should be taxed in proportion to their wealth and revenue. The whole community is protected in persons and homes, and provided with highways, schools and many conveniences; those who acquire property have, in addition, the protection of their property. It seems that every one ought to pay something for the protection and provision given by the State, unless so poor and helpless as to be a proper case for charitable care. Peoples probable responded to this moral persuasion with a good will that was provoked out of existence by learning that a small class had taken unjust advantage. What was true of Athens should have been true in every civilization where patriotism was not dead or dying. The late Prof. Thorold Rogers has presented (En. Brit., Finance) this aspect of Athenian taxation: "The extraordinary taxes on property which the government levied, and which the contributors paid, apparently with the greatest readiness." Why so? We find that "it was graduated, being a heavier per centage in the case of the richer citizens than in that of the middle classes." As long as the rich hold to such a compact others pay their share willingly. It is not so with us. Our taxation not only violates the canons of Adam Smith, but is also unrighteous, and every moral consideration demands that it be amended. The natural tendency of taxes on commodities is to the consumer. The minority class, who have wealth and opportunity found that indirect taxation might be put on the people, who would feel the burden while they could not easily discover what it was and whence it came; found that much direct taxation might be shifted from themselves; and perceived that a portion of wealth which otherwise would come under taxation might be hidden, and that where it could not be hidden there were in some instances taxing laws which could be evaded.

There are sorry devices to make perjury easy. The taxing officers tell us unblushingly that they violate the law which created them by declining to appraise property at its value, and by compromising with rich men who have movable wealth, lest these persons remove out of their jurisdiction. In all these items there is violence done to that general conviction on which taxation is accepted, that citizens ought to support the state according to ability; and it shocks the public conscience to think of wealth, which avoids taxation, being guarded by the state, which imprisons thieves who may take it and shoots down rioters who may menance it. The result of the matter itemized is, that the toilers of the community bear the burden of taxation. The proportion falling upon each and every one of them is far beyond his just share. He is taxed for the spot of land on which he stands, eats or sleeps, for the food he eats, for the water he drinks, for the clothes he wears, for the fuel he burns; and the taxes on his standing up or lying down, on his eating, drinking and warming, are greater than on the necessities of other men; he is taxed most heavily for the right to live and the opportunity to work. The present system of taxation being hard on the poor who must pay more than their equitable share, easy on the rich when they pay what the laws demand, and easier still for them when they evade payment of tax, righteousness demands that the system be amended into a just one if it be possible; or, if that be impossible, that it be swept away and we begin anew. The right of the state to tax any thing, any business, any privilege, being conceded does not mean that the state has the right to be unjust in doing this. We are studying ethics—what is right and what is wrong—and those who raise a moral objection to the single tax are surely unwilling that the state shall do wrong.

Single tax men propose that the state shall exercise its right of taxation on a value which no one man can make or give, but which men together give, a value which the state or society gives to that which God made for the use of this society, and that every one shall be taxed on this value according to his use or possession of it. As soon as any one sees what this means, what it is, he perceives in it a self-acting law which would bear righteously, with equal and exact justice on every one, coming as near to absolute justice as we can in this world.

Ralph E. Hoyt on Henry George.

In closing the last lecture of the course delivered by Ralph E. Hoyt in San Francisco recently, under the auspices of the single tax society of that city, the speaker paid a deserved compliment to Henry George, which the audience greeted with tremendous applause. Mr. Hoyt said:

As this city was for many years the home of Henry George, and the scene of his early labors for reform, I am unwilling to let this occasion pass without saying a few words about the great leader of the single tax movement. The noblest hero of the age is not he who leads armies into battle and drenches the earth with blood; but he who, with heart and brain, with tongue and pen, bravely fights the battles of the people against unjust laws and popular iniquities. Such a hero is Henry George. He does not claim to have originated the single tax theory. It originated with the human family—as long ago as the first human being trod the soil of this revolving world. But Henry George has done far more than any other man to develop, to push forward to popularize the God-given idea that the land belongs to the people, for their use, and therefore should not be monopolized. In all his labors and struggles for humanity, this principle has been his inspiration. A few years ago he was called a dreamer, a crank, then an anarchist. But later on these epithets gave way for such terms as agitator, economist, prophet and philosopher. To-day the most intellectual and influential men of America, Europe and Australia are proud to meet him and glad to hear him talk. With a pure character, a clear head and an honest heart, he has steadfastly advocated the grand idea of free land for all, until to-day its reiterations are heard throughout the civilized world.

Let us who grasp this idea cleave to it and battle for it, under the banner erected by Henry George; never ceasing our efforts till the victory is won, or till he and we have graduated from this primary department of life's unending school, into the broader realms and clearer light of an eternal day.

For Once the Press is Right.

The New York Press refers to the incident recently commented upon in the Standard, in which a man named Sanford, after he could no longer escape paying a fair tax on a vacant lot in New Haven, proceeded to erect a fine building on it, because he could no longer afford to let it lie idle and pay taxes upon it. The Press commends this incident to the consideration of the New York tax department and urges it to adopt the plan of the Bridgeport assessors. It says: "There is utter disproportion between the listed values of unimproved and improved property on Manhattan Island, to the disadvantage of the owners of that which is improved. The owners of the unimproved property are largely speculators, while the owners of improved property are investors and pay double because of the evasion of the others."

THE value of land does not express the reward of production, as does the the value of crops, of cattle, of buildings, or any of the things which are styled personal property and improvements. It expresses the exchange value of monopoly. It is not in any case the creation of the individual who owns the land; it is created by the growth of the community.—Progress and Poverty.

THE farmer is apt to cry out against what he calls the injustice of exempting the magnificent buildings, sometimes erected in cities, from all taxation, forgetting that such buildings always stand upon the most expensive land, while his own farm house and barn stand upon land of utterly insignificant value.

NO INCREASE of the effective power of labor can increase general wages, so long as rent swallows up all the gain.—Progress and Poverty.

ISRAEL OFT REPROVED.

LESSON V, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 3.

Text of the Lesson, Amos iv, 4-13—Commit Verses, 6-8—Golden Text, Prov. xxix, 1—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

God's love for His people Israel is seen not only in His bringing them out of Egypt and placing them in the good land of Canaan, but also in His sending them His servants, the prophets, who showed them their sins and pleaded with them to turn from their sins unto God (chap. ii, 9-11).

The prophets were in themselves weak and fallible men, but God gave them a message for His people, and they had only to deliver that message faithfully in His name. But there were many false prophets, who spoke lies in the name of the Lord and perverted His word (Jer. xxiii, 28-32, 36).

Amos was a prophet to Israel (the ten tribes) in the days of Uzziah, king of Judah, and Jeroboam, son of Joash, king of Israel. And about the same time lived the prophets Isaiah and Hosea (Amos i, 1; Isa. i, 1; Hos. i, 1). Amos was called to be a prophet while keeping sheep, and the chief place of his prophecy was Bethel (chap. vii, 10-15). Israel's sin was that because prosperous they were at ease and indifferent to the claims of God (vi, 1-6); greedy of gain and oppressing the poor (ii, 6, 7; iv, 1; v, 11, 12; viii, 4-6); heeded not the voice of God in judgment (iv, 6-11), and despised the word of God (ii, 4; v, 10; vii, 10-13). Yet He loved them, and bore patiently with them, and entreated them, and kept before them the blessings of the sure covenants with Abraham and David. Read very carefully chapter ix, 11-15.

4. "Come to Bethel and transgress; at Gilgal multiply transgression."

With all their sin they were outwardly very religious. At Bethel and at Gilgal they had many altars; Hosea says they were as plentiful as heaps of stones in the field. But there was only one altar in all the land where, since the building of the temple, God commanded sacrifice to be offered (Deut. xii, 10, 11; Ps. cxxxii, 13), so that all sacrifice at Bethel or Gilgal was simply transgression.

5. "And offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving with leaven, for this liketh you, O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord God."

Leaven is everywhere in Scripture a symbol of evil. With the meal offering there was to be neither leaven nor honey, and at the Passover there was to be no leaven found in their houses.

6. "And I also have given you cleanness of teeth in all your cities, and want of bread in all your places; yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord."

Observe in this verse and in verses 8, 9, 10, 11, the five times repeated sad refrain, "Yet have ye not returned unto Me, saith the Lord." This shows us the heart of God and His one great longing for His erring people, that they in true penitence return to Him.

7. "And also I have withholden the rain from you when there were yet three months to the harvest; and I caused it to rain upon one city, and caused it not to rain upon another city."

That He would also thus chasten them is recognized by Solomon in his prayer at the dedication of the temple (I Kings viii, 35, 36). Who among us ever stops to consider that when it rains in one place and not in another God has anything to do with it, or that when in one place there is a drought and in another much rain, it is the hand of the Lord that doeth this? And yet if we believe His word we must believe that "the balancings of the clouds are the wondrous works of Him who is perfect in knowledge; who saith to the snow, Be thou on the earth; likewise to the small rain and the great rain of His strength."

8. "So two or three cities wandered into one city to drink water, but they were not satisfied, yet have ye not returned unto me, saith the Lord."

They forsook God, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that could hold no water.

9. "I have smitten you with blasting and mildew."

This also he had forewarned them of when He set before them the blessings and cursings which would surely follow obedience or disobedience (Deut. xxviii, 22).

10. "I have sent among you the pestilence after the manner of Egypt."

This, too, He had threatened (Deut. xxviii, 27, 60), while at the same time He had promised that if they would diligently hearken to His voice and do right in His sight He would put none of the diseases upon them which He had brought upon the Egyptians (Ex. xv, 26; xxiii, 25; Deut. vii, 15)

"Your young men have I slain with the sword."

The result of obedience would have been that one would have chased a thousand, and two have put ten thousand to flight (Deut. xxxii, 30), but instead of this their enemies oppress them and slay them.

11. "I have overthrown some of you, as God overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and ye were as a firebrand plucked out of the burning."

In Zech. iii, 2, Jerusalem is called a brand plucked out of the fire, and in Isa. i, 10, they are called rulers of Sodom and people of Gomorrah, while in Matt. xi, 24, Jesus says it will be more tolerable in the day of judgment for Sodom than for disobedient Israel. By famine and sickness and war and by direct judgment He pleads with them to return unto Him, but they refuse.

12. "Therefore, thus will I do unto thee, O Israel, and because I will do this unto thee, prepare to meet thy God, O Israel."

The long account of love slighted, commands disobeyed, blessings abused, gifts transferred to other lovers, while all the time keeping up an outward profession of devotion, must some day be settled, and how will Israel meet her God, whose most loving and persistent entreaties she has spurned? The only preparation is true penitence and consequent forgiveness, followed by fruits meet for repentance.

13. "For, lo, He that formeth the mountains and createth the wind . . . And declareth unto man what is his thought."

If it is man's thought that is meant, then we remember that He searcheth reins and hearts to give unto every one according to their works (Jer. xvii, 10; Rev. ii, 23).

"That maketh the morning darkness."

If this had been reversed it would seem more like God, but we must take it as we find it, and we remember that "the Lord hath His way in the whirlwind and in the storm, and the clouds are the dust of His feet" (Nah. i, 3; Ps. xcvii, 2).

"And treadeth upon the high places of the earth."

He is the most High God, possessor of Heaven and earth, and does as it pleases Him both among the armies of Heaven and the inhabitants of the earth.

A DYSPEPTIC'S ARGUMENT

Is a growl, and that growl marks the limit of argument with him. The best way to get him to try a medicine would be to advise against it—but notice how different his tone after using Burdock Blood Bitters.

"I have suffered with Dyspepsia for the last two years. Not long ago I commenced taking B. B. B. I am now on the second bottle and feel like a new man. G. KNOX, 12 Sherwood Ave., Binghamton N. Y."

REPEATED TESTS WITH UNIFORM SUCCESS prove the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters will cure d The reason is plain, it tones the stomach to natural action and keeps the juice ways of the system free from clogging impurities.

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and heart disease for nine years and found no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. Now I am well after taking two bottles. MRS. ETTIE FRAZIER, Bowne, Mich."

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain 10 years and then move up to second place in 100 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889, where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the greatest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

Sold by Wm. McCowen, Tecumseh.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates it cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Prices 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

A JOURNEY THROUGH SWITZERLAND AND DOWN THE RHINE.

About one o'clock in the morning, August 21st, I arrived in the city of Geneva and put up at the Hotel de Russia. I immediately retired to rest, which I needed very much, having travelled from Rome without stopping anywhere. The consequence was that when I arrived in Geneva I was pretty well used up. I arose at six o'clock, a m., and from my window I had a grand view of the River Rhone, whose dark-blue waters rolled almost beneath my feet, while to the left could be seen the placid lake of Geneva. Before breakfast I crossed Mont Blanc bridge which spans the river just as it emerges from the lake of Geneva. It is my impression that Lake Geneva is the most beautiful sheet of water in the world, with its beautiful little towns and villages nestled close about its shores on every side. At nine o'clock in the morning I embarked on board one of the small steamers which cut the waters of this delightful lake and proceeded onward to Lausanne. My attention was directed toward Mont Blanc and although the morning was quite clear it was a difficult matter to see the famous mountain, owing to the fact that clouds and mists frequently hide it from the spectator, yet we had a tolerably good view of the monarch peak of the Alps, clad in its mantle of eternal snow. We finally gave up looking in the direction of Mont Blanc and turned our attention to the scenery in our immediate vicinity. Neat little Swiss cottages built on the declivity of a hill are to be seen here, and a little further onward are seen small clusters of houses scarcely numerous enough to bear the name of village. These, with the ever changing landscape, made the passage from Geneva to Lausanne one which it will be difficult to eradicate from the mind and one over which it will always give the traveller pleasure to reflect.

Arriving at Lausanne we were carried by a cable road into the town. Lausanne is built on a hill overlooking the lake. On arriving at the station of this cable road I found it becomes necessary to still further climb the hill in order to reach the Hotel de Gibbon, famous for having been the residence of the historian Gibbon. It was here that he wrote a part of "The Rise and Fall of the Roman Empire." It is a good hotel and was at that time pretty well filled with English guests and everything about it had a very strong English "air."

As my time was limited on account of the few days lost in Vienna during the illness and death of my friend, Dr. Stephenson, I was obliged to hurry through Switzerland, and therefore I left Lausanne about two o'clock in the afternoon of August 21st, passing through the towns of Fribourg, Berne and Basle. The country through which we traveled during the day is picturesque and beautiful. The country is undulating between Lausanne and Fribourg, and in fact all the way to Berne. The land is good and well tilled. Very frequently we observed fine herds of cattle and sheep grazing in luxuriant fields of grass. Everywhere along our route we observed the prosperous condition of the farming community. There is an air of freedom and prosperity about the people of Switzerland that is not to be seen in any other country in Europe. Among the poor one does not observe that hunted-down look which so frequently is seen among the poorer classes in different countries of Europe. A republican form of government and the mountains which surround them, together with the pure and mountainous air they breathe, give these people a bold and manly appearance. In Geneva and Lausanne, where I stopped a few hours, soldiers were not so numerous or so conspicuous as in Germany, France and Austria. We would have stopped at Fribourg and heard the celebrated organ, but our time was too limited and therefore we were whirled onward to Berne and thence to Basle.

The Swiss railroad coaches are very much like our own, except that the seat in front faces you. During my trip through Switzerland there was an American gentleman and wife in the coach with me. This man was very confident that our country was going to the "bad" and was very emphatic in expressing his opinion. I left him in Berne and do not know whether or not he has recovered from his attack of spleen against his own country. I think very likely that the country will live long after this gentleman ceases to exist.

After traveling all night, I arrived early in the morning of August 22d in the city of Mayence and immediately engaged a porter to carry my baggage to the boat which was to convey us down the Rhine. The morning was clear and the air was bracing. The walk from the railway station to the banks of the Rhine had the effect of limbering up my limbs, which were considerably out of sorts after traveling the greater part of the previous day and night aboard those horrible European coaches, which are in every respect inferior to American coaches.

I was obliged to wait patiently some three hours before the time of the boat's departure for Cologne, and during that time I endeavored to purchase a New York Herald from an ugly-looking old German woman who would always reply to my inquiry that she expected the late edition every minute, but I was finally obliged to leave without procuring the Herald, whose enterprising publisher has succeeded in giving his American readers an opportunity of purchasing it on the banks of the Rhine. The boat slowly loaded up its passengers and about nine o'clock in the morning we began our journey down the River Rhine, every mile of whose banks are clustered with famous historical associations. The river's banks at Mayence are low but there is a slight elevation of ground upon which the old city stands which enables the spectator to get a good view of the city, particularly the tall spires of the Cathedral, which remained in view after we had proceeded many miles down the river.

We had only proceeded a short distance when it was readily observed that every passenger was armed with a map of the river and from it all were endeavoring to catch the most important objects as we descended the stream. The passengers fraternized with each other and each appeared willing to give information on the interesting points along the river.

Along the whole course of the River Rhine, from Mayence to Coblentz, the banks are high and precipitous. The high cliffs on either side are the seat of ancient castles, or are the site of ruined ones. The historical associations clinging about the cliffs are extremely interesting, because since the days of Julius Cæsar to the memory of men still living, the river banks and their neighboring cliffs have been the scene of chivalrous deeds and heroic combats. Therefore, during the greater part of our journey down the Rhine we were seeking out these historical points, reviewing in our mind the bloody deeds which now give them fame and which excite the imagination of travelers from the remotest regions of the earth. Probably one of the most interesting views along the river is the Mouse Tower, where the legend says that Archbishop Hatto of Mayence was eaten up by mice because he caused a number of peasants to be burned to death, comparing these poor people to corn-destroying mice. It no doubt was built for defence, as it commands the stream above and below. Very frequently along this ever-changing shore we observed the grape vine growing where it appeared that there was scarcely sufficient earth to cover its roots; but every foot of soil, no matter how uninviting to the eye it may be, is under cultivation. We finally came to the city of Coblentz, where the Moselle joins the Rhine, and from this point to Cologne the river banks are low and the scenery uninteresting. We arrived in Cologne about 5 o'clock p. m., having been eight hours in descending the river, but during those hours (excepting the hour for dinner) we were so absorbed in sightseeing that we scarcely realized that they had passed and that our journey down the Rhine was completed.

Card of Thanks.

"Honor to whom honor is due" is among the primary laws of good society and fully warranted and sanctioned in the Divine law, and evidences of obedience to these from principle should meet with the approval of all who love good order, and especially of those who profess to be, and are indeed, governed by these principles. We therefore are pleased when the spirit of true brotherly and Christian love and good will are manifested. Among those who demonstrated this primary law of our being, of "Love to God and Christian love to our neighbor," are the good people of East Macon, and especially those who constitute the Reformed Church of DeSpelder, as shown by the following: Last Sabbath, after the usual afternoon service, the pastor, Rev. J. I. Gulick, was presented by the secretary of the Church, Mr. Steele, with a package which, when opened, was found to contain gold and silver coin—a testimonial of the kind regards of his people to whom he ministers. It came from the ladies, the Christian mothers of the Church, made up among themselves, the value of which, not only in its intrinsic worth but the good and kind feelings it manifested, is a cause for devout thanksgiving. May God bless these kind-hearted people, not only for this generous gift but also for the many proofs given of respect and regards of these noble people of the East portion of the town of Macon, Lenawee Co., Mich. J. I. GULICK.

The superior merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral as an anodyne expectorant is due to a skilful combination of the most powerful ingredients. Nothing like it has ever been attempted in pharmacy, and its success in the cure of pulmonary complaints is unparalleled.

Total value of all crops from the best data available was $45,499,231, hay being second in rank, $14,016,194.

THE GRIP MICROBE.

The Secretary of the State Board of Health Finds the Cause of the Plague.

At the meeting of the state board of health in Lansing Dr. H. B. Baker, for many years secretary of the board, announced that he had worked out the cause of la grippe. "The germs of influenza," said the doctor, "are generally present, but there must be certain coincident meteorological conditions to irritate the throat and air passages sufficiently to let the germ gain an entrance to the body. These meteorological conditions at present are the excessive prevalence of north and northeast winds and the excessive amount of ozone in the air." Dr. Avery was reelected president of the board and Dr. Baker was reelected secretary.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by fifty-four observers in different parts of the state for the week ended April 18 indicated that typho-malarial fever, inflammation of the brain, diphtheria, remittent fever and diarrhea increased, and inflammation of the bowels, whooping cough and typhoid fever decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at fourteen places, scarlet fever at thirty-two, typhoid fever at four and measles at thirty-nine places.

Death of Dr. Barrows.

Dr. John Manning Barrows died at his home in Olivette after an illness of but three days. Dr. Barrows, who had almost completed his 85th year, was one of the most noted scholars Michigan ever produced. He was one of the founders of the Olivette college and for more than twenty-five years filled the chair of natural science in that institution.

Unjustly Imprisoned for Years.

In 1852 James Hitchcock, of Mason, was convicted of killing a neighbor and sentenced to life imprisonment. Two years ago one of the witnesses at the trial confessed on his deathbed that he had sworn falsely and that Hitchcock killed his victim in self-defense. Hitchcock was released, and has now presented a bill against the state for $3,000 for false imprisonment.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich., April 22.—The senate yesterday in committee of the whole agreed to Senator Milne's two bills, which contemplate bringing the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway, now operating under a special charter under the general law for taxation purposes. A joint resolution asking congress to submit a constitutional amendment providing for the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people was passed.

LANSING, Mich., April 23.—The senate was not in session yesterday, the members being in Grand Rapids at the funeral of Congressman Ford.

LANSING, Mich., April 24.—The senate yesterday passed the Milnes bill repealing the special charter under which the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad operates. In committee of the whole the house electoral bill for electing presidential electors by congressional districts was agreed to. Senanor Milnes introduced a concurrent resolution providing for the issuing by the state treasury of the balance of the bonds authorized by law for payment of soldiers' bounties, amounting to about $428,000, and that the proceeds be applied to the equalization of bounties on the basis of $100 each. A bill for regulating the charges of telephone companies was favorably reported.

LANSING, Mich., April 25.—The bill requiring that the upper berths in sleeping cars shall not be lowered unless they are actually sold for the night was defeated in the senate yesterday.

LANSING, Mich., April 27.—Nothing was done in the senate on Saturday.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., April 22.—In the house yesterday bills were favorably reported providing for a central board of control consisting of three men and three women, which shall have the management of the state public school at Coldwater, the state blind school at Lansing and the school for the deaf at Flint; appropriating $55,000 for the expenses of the state fish commission for the ensuing two years, and amending the present fish and game warden laws so as to authorize the warden to appoint not exceeding five special deputies in each county, clothed with equal authority with himself, at a compensation of three dollars per day.

LANSING, Mich., April 23.—All the house members yesterday went to Grand Rapids to attend the funeral of Congressman Ford.

LANSING, Mich., April 24.—The house yesterday passed a bill authorizing the auditor general to credit the county of Muskegon with the sum of $8,000 of delinquent tax assessed upon lands the title of which was in the state or United States. The committee of the whole reported favorably the bill appropriating $30,000 to the grand army encampment to be held in Detroit next August. The senate bill making it a misdemeanor to counterfeit a trade union label, and the general election bill, modeled closely after the Australian plan, were passed. The committee on ways and means reported without recommendation the Dodge bill, equalizing state bounties by giving every Michigan veteran of the cival war a bounty of $100, provided he has not already been paid that sum.

LANSING, Mich., April 25.—The Richardson bill, increasing the rate of the specific taxes imposed upon the railroads over 50 per cent., was favorably reported to the house yesterday. It requires that the roads shall pay 3 per cent. of their gross earnings, if less than $30,000 per mile, and 4 per cent. when in excess of that sum. A committee on state affairs reported in favor of abolishing the office of state game warden and of shortening the deer shooting season ten days in each of the two peninsulas. This will make the season from September 20 to November 1 in the upper peninsula and from November 10 to December 20 in the lower peninsula.

LANSING, Mich., April 27.—In the house on Saturday a bill providing for a stenographer for each of the justices of the supreme court was agreed to after amending by changing the salary from $1,200 to $1,000.

TO CIRCULATE SMALL COINS.

Secretary Foster's Plan to Secure the Assistance of Banks.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Secretary Foster is considering a new plan for getting the subsidiary coin into circulation and keeping it in circulation. One of the New York banks, which is a government depository to the amount of $200,000, has offered to take $5,000 monthly in subsidiary coin, provided it be allowed to increase its holdings of the 4 per cents. Four per cents are now above $1.20. They are accepted by the government from the banks in which United States funds are deposited as security up to $1.10. The New York bank's proposition is that the 4 per cents be taken as security up to $1.15. As there is not much probability that the 4 per cents will go below $1.20, Secretary Foster is inclined to believe that they might be accepted from the depositories as security on government funds up to $1.15, but he does not expect to give this advantage without some concessions in return, and the offer of the New York bank to help keep the subsidary coin in circulation by taking a stated amount monthly, about meets his idea of a fair arrangement. Should the government bank depositories throughout the country show a disposition to do this they would probably be accommodated. It would require a general concurrence of action to make the plan successful and the secretary will wait till he hears from a number of the banks before taking steps to carry out the plan.

BUTCHERED BY BRITONS.

Queen Victoria's Soldiers Burn Twelve Indian Villages and Massacre the Natives.

SIMLA, April 24.—Information has reached here that the British columns advancing on Manipur under Generals Lockhart and Turner reached a large native settlement situated in the Bhagri valley. The British halted when within sight of the settlement and sent scouts forward to inform the Manipuris that the British generals were awaiting proposals of peace from the insurgent tribes. The rebels, however, refused to answer this peaceable suggestion, and consequently the troops were ordered to advance. The British columns pushed forward and burned twelve villages which had been occupied by the rebels. The latter in great force retreated to the hills. The British force then shelled the hills with shrapnell shells, killing ing and wounding large numbers of the enemy. The latter is now believed to have been completely cowed.

Buried Under a Wrecked Building.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., April 27.—A two-story frame building in process of erection collapsed Sunday during a heavy wind. Four men went down in the wreck. All were more or less injured. Robert Biggerstoff had a leg broken and several of his ribs stove in. He will probably die.

Death of Grand Duke Nicholas.

LONDON, April 27.—A St. Petersburg dispatch announces the death of Grand Duke Nicholas, uncle of the czar. He was a field marshal in the Russian army and inspector general of cavalry and the corps of engineers.

TECUMSEH, MICH., APRIL 30, 1891.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Cleaning house time is fairly upon us.

This is good weather for garden sass.

The Catholics of Clinton are building a new parsonage.

Remember the sale of the Morse property, which will take place May 16th.

A tent of the Knights of Maccabees will be organized in Hudson this week.

John Keyser of Adrian is spending the present week with Tecumseh friends.

Last Sunday was a beautiful day and the churches were all well patronized.

The Opera House will be lighted with the Electric Light to-morrow evening.

The old city band were out on the street Friday evening and made some fine music.

C. H. Hopkins of Battle Creek is spending two or three weeks in Tecumseh.

Dr. Stewart spent most of last week at Chicago and Harvey, returning home on Saturday.

Walter Kinney, of Battle Creek, is spending two or three days among his Tecumseh friends.

A large bicycle party came over from Adrian last Sunday and took dinner at the Lilley House.

Chas. Skinner Jr. has accepted a position in a circus band and will spend the summer on the road.

The street watering pot began its daily rounds last Monday, and not a day too soon to please the people.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Joe Rynd of Madison, who has been seriously ill, is now convalescing.

The fishing season at the lakes has fairly opened, but the big fish stories have not yet put in an appearance.

Chas. Burridge was in Adrian last Saturday, engaged in the final settlement of the Michael Hendershot estate.

Lew Waldron is kept busy this spring putting in new wind mills and repairing old ones. Notice his change of card in to-days paper.

If you wish to know an easy method of keeping the gutter clean in front of your store, scatter salt on the cobble stones and then paint 'em red.

The Clinton Woolen mill will shut down in a few days for about two weeks, during which time they will put in their new engine and machinery.

A private note from H. Langan, who lives on the peach belt near Lake Michigan, says that peaches give promise of a bountiful crop this year.

The orchestra that is to play for the May Party to-morrow evening, is the same that played for the last Governor's Levee. Go and hear them. Admission 15c. Reserved seats 25.

Walter Raymond, son of the late Alva Raymond, was here to attend his father's funeral.

Miss Savage, of Adrian College, was the guest of Mable Jenkins the first of the present week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bell of Rome came down to attend the funeral of the late Alva Raymond.

E. C. Rogers is in the upper peninsula this week, looking after A. W. Slayton's basswood lumber.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulbert of Adrian, were the guests of Wm. C. Heck's family the first of the week.

Pat Keyser was home over Sunday, returning to his celery farm on Monday. He expects to enlarge his acreage of celery considerably this season.

A full attendance of White Ribboners is requested at the meeting on Friday p. m. at 3 o'clock, in the W. C. T. U. Hall, for the transacting of very important business.

Dr. Snyder has a new laughing gas machine, which is a beauty. After inspecting the machine, it almost makes one feel like getting a few teeth pulled, on purpose to try it.

The Adrian Times makes the assertion that there are more people, on the average, patronize the street cars who get off the train from the Jackson branch of the Lake Shore road, than any other train that arrives in Adrian.

Plain Facts is the title of a neat little paper which Ed. Van DeMark of Clinton is publishing to advance the sale of his patent medicines. He has purchased a few cases of type and a new job press and runs the whole business in his own office.

Schremser's Detroit Society Orchestra, that is to furnish the music for the May Party to-morrow evening, has been engaged to furnish the music for the Detroit Exposition next September. It is considered to be the best in the state. Go and hear them.

The Brooklyn Exponent comes out with a new spring dress. Sister Ethlyn has needed a new gown for some time. Now if she will buy a new flat-iron, that is, a new printer's roller, and use it, it will make the new dress look very neat and tidy.

Mr. Quad has severed his connection with the Detroit Free Press and gone on the staff of the New York World. In the departure of Mr. Lewis Michigan Journalism will sustain a serious loss. But Quad's pen will not be idle, and the World will scatter his wit and humor from pole to pole.

Adamson Bros. will remove their stock of goods to the Hewitt store, first door East of Mark's drug store, about the 15th of May next. Workmen are already engaged in overhauling the store and putting it in order for the new occupants. They expect to have a model store when the improvements are completed.

Editor Kempton of the Addison Courier, is giving the readers of that paper some very interesting letters descriptive of his late Southern trip. He went as far south as New Orleans and St. Augustine. His ready pen is dishing up some racy, readable letters. And he has made no advance in his subscription rates by reason thereof.

Dr. H. L. Stewart, of Tecumseh, arrived home Saturday from a week's visit to Chicago, and is more than ever impressed with the push and growth of the great western metropolis. In company with Hon. G. P. Waring he spent a day in Evanston and made a pleasant visit to the home of Miss Frances E. Willard.—Michigan Messenger.

Hosmer & Son are now fairly settled in their new quarters and it is no exaggeration to say that they have the finest jewelry and book store in Lenawee Co. They have put in a full supply of new show cases, while the furniture and fixtures are of elegant design and finish. Their new departure will mark an era in the history of that flourishing House.

The Good Templars elected officers for the new quarter on Monday evening April 27th: C. T. Harry Tansley; V. T. Mrs. Fannie Stuart; V. S. Grace Heck; T. Robert More; Secretary, Frank Crossman; Marshall, Geo. Cadwell; Chaplain, Jas. Potter; Guard, Hattie Conklin; Sentinel, Wm. Ford; Organist, Julia Wyrril; P. C. T. M. J. Tremaine; L. D. Wm. Smith.

We received a very pleasant call from editor Kempton, of the Addison Courier, last Saturday. He came down to attend the funeral of Uncle Alva Raymond, and being obliged to stay over Sunday, he had time to circulate round and pay his respects to his Tecumseh friends. Joe's Southern trip evidently agreed with him, for he is getting to be more robust and religious than ever.

We spent a few hours in Clinton last Monday and while there called to see Ed. Van De Mark's laboratory. He has a very handy little shop where his patent medicines are prepared. He has lately bought a press and some type and hence is now in shape to do his own printing. This plan rather crowds on the printers but he finds it a great convenience in his business.

Co. C. had a street drill on Tuesday evening.

Ed. Hough of Ypsilanti was in Tecumseh over Sunday.

Miss Edith Phelps of Chicago is at home this week to be present at her sister's wedding.

Have you engaged your best girl for the May party? If not, it is high time you were about it.

We were pleased to see Lon. Tribou out yesterday. This fine weather will brace him up again.

Albert Vedder is having a serious time of it and his friends are considerably worried about him.

The Good Templar's lodge is booming right along. New members are received at every meeting.

Mrs. Zelinda De Mott is spending a portion of the present week with her old friend, Mrs. Judge Stacy.

Jehiel Davidson has been drawn as a juror to serve at the next session of the United States court at Bay City.

Rev. Frank Osborn was in Tecumseh last week, having come here to attend the funeral of Mrs. Walt. Osborn.

Our weekly price current is a feature which the farmers will appreciate. We shall endeavor to keep it reliable and accurate.

Reserved seats for the May party are on sale at Adamson's. The concert will commence at eight o'clock sharp. Grand march at 8:30.

G. D. Ellis has a twin pair of beautiful spring colts, which he has named Bow and Arrow. Their dam is a Banker and their sire Aragon.

H. W. Stevens has been at Clinton since last week Tuesday, assisting at the sick bed of Dr. Adam. The venerable Doctor is nearly 86 years old.

Chet Haines is now located on Church street in Adrian, within a stone's throw of the City Hall and he is doing more blacksmithing than ever.

The staircase in the second story of the Lilley House is being torn out and changed in location, which will afford two more sleeping rooms with windows.

Dr. Thomas Miller is making a short visit in this vicinity after a flying trip to New York, Boston and Chicago. He returns to Washington D. C. to-day.

The addition to the Clinton woolen mill is now enclosed and will soon be in readiness to receive the machinery. The mill will be shut down during the first two weeks in May.

Mr. G. Burtch has some light machinery in his steam mill, which he is utilizing to good advantage in making small articles of furniture. He seems to be working up a nice trade in this direction.

S. P. Hosmer & Son have concluded to strike out boldly for the spring trade and as an effective means to that end they have an announcement to the public in this issue, which heads the list on the local page.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Phelps, of Marquette, came out to attend the wedding of Miss Clara Phelps. Mr. Phelps will remain until after the May party and his wife will prolong her visit two or three weeks.

Alva Raymond, whose serious illness we announced last week, departed this life on Friday last. The funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at the old farm in Raisin and were attended by a large concourse of friends and neighbors of the deceased.

Rev. L. M. Belden has resigned the pastorate of the Raisin Presbyterian church and has accepted a call from Walla Walla, Wash. He has done an excellent work in Raisin and the people there exceedingly regret his departure. He started last Monday for his new field of labor and his family will follow in a few days. That good luck and prosperity may attend him in his far western home is the hearty wish of all his Raisin friends.

Dr. C. M. Woodward has three framed charts hanging in his office, which every visitor to his sanctum should examine. One is a certificate from the National Military Museum, acknowledging the gift of a Colt's revolver, which was captured by him at the battle of Antietam. It is a beautifully engraved certificate surrounded by a neat frame. The second is a certificate of membership in the organization of the Army of the Potomac. This is an elegant engraving of large size, and is one of the Doctor's most highly prized mementoes of his army experience. The third is his commission as surgeon of the first regiment, M. S. T. It was issued by Gov. Begole, and dated April 30th, 1883. The Doctor is now the ranking commissioned officer in the state service.

The May Party to-morrow evening will open with an instrumental concert by the celebrated Detroit society orchestra, when they will present the following program:

1.—Overture—Martha, ... Flowtow
2.—Selection—Erminie, ... Jakobowski
3.—Melodie, ... Rubenstein
4.—Patrol Comique, ... Mindley
5.—Selection—"Nadjy," ..... Chassaigne

Wes. Keyser has rented his farm and rumor has it that he is about to move to Clinton and enter the employ of the woolen mill company. If the rumor should prove true, we have no doubt that Wes. will make himself useful in his new situation.

A singular thing occurred last Saturday night. The train going north on the Lake Shore R. R. discovered a horse on the bridge near the depot. The engineer blew the whistle but the horse kept on the bridge and at last he made his way across. The bridge is about 50 feet long, with nothing but the ties to walk on and it is queer how a horse could or would walk on them. His legs were somewhat scratched but otherwise he is all right. The horse belongs to Dr. Frost.

KLEIN-PHELPS.

St. Peter's Church was nearly filled yesterday afternoon with invited guests to witness the marriage of Mr. Andrew W. Klein and Miss Clara A. Phelps of Marquette. The chancel was tastily decorated with flowers and plants and the little sanctuary never looked more enticing. Messrs. Will H. Hayden and A. J. Cummins officiated as ushers. The music, of which there were three selections, was executed by Miss Louise Phelps, organist, assisted by Prof. Skinner with the cornet. Promptly at two o'clock the bride and groom, preceded by the ushers, marched up the right aisle to the chancel, where the Rector welcomed them. He then recited the beautiful marriage ceremony from the Episcopal ritual by which the twain were pronounced "One," closing with a brief invocation at the inner altar of the chancel. The wedded pair, accompanied by the family relatives, then retired to the rectory, where a lunch was served and the happy couple left on the afternoon train for a trip to New York and other eastern cities. The entire affair was exceedingly simple and unostentatious, thoroughly in harmony with the good taste and surroundings of the family.

The groom is engaged in the insurance business at Marquette and is highly esteemed by his acquaintances. The bride resided in Tecumseh for several years and made many warm friends here. The elegant wedding gifts bestowed upon them evinced this esteem more emphatically than mere words can express. May the sunlight of happiness and prosperity illumine their pathway down the tide of time, even to the pearly gates of Paradise.

"JACK THE RIPPER."

New York Startled by the Horrible Butchery of a Woman.

The Frightful Manner in Which Her Body Was Mutilated Leads to the Belief That Her Murderer Is the Famous Whitechapel Fiend.

SLAIN BY A MONSTER.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A horrible crime committed in a thickly populated section of lower New York at some time between 11 o'clock Thursday night and 10 o'clock Friday morning justifies a suspicion that the fiend known as "Jack the Ripper" of Whitechapel notoriety in London has located in this city, or that an equally bloodthirsty wretch is plying his trade of murder in the same fashion. Between the hours named an unknown woman about 55 years of age was disemboweled at the Fourth Ward hotel, a resort at No. 14 Catherine slip, and her assassin has disappeared mysteriously. About 10:30 o'clock Thursday night a tall, slender man about 30 years of age, dressed in a brown cutaway coat and light trousers, met an old woman who is known by the name of "Shakespeare" around the Fourth ward, and with her entered the hotel and asked for a room for the night. The man registered under the name of C. Nicoll, and he and the woman were shown to a room on the top floor. Friday morning the bartender went to the room and rapped on the door. There was no response and he forced the door. The dead body of the old woman was found lying on the bed. It was shockingly cut and mutilated. The body was completely naked. A deep gash extended from the lower part of the abdomen upward to the breast, which disemboweled it completely. The entrails had apparently been torn from the body and were scattered over the bed. There were also two deep cuts crossing each other on the back in the form of an exact cross.

It is believed the murderer strangled his victim first and then proceeded to his horrible butchery. There was no trace of the man, and no one had seen him leave the hotel. The detectives placed under arrest a bartender, a woman named Mary Heeler and the chambermaid, Mary Mineter. The coroner has the murderer's knife, which is a common table knife with a broken blade about two inches in length and half an inch wide. The resemblance between this murder and those credited to Jack the Ripper in London is strong enough to warrant the presumption that the object aimed at was the same, although the procedure was slightly different.

MURDERERS HANGED.

Six Criminals Pay the Penalty for Their Villainous Deeds.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 25.—Waite S. Martin (colored) was hanged in the jail yard for the murder in January of Alice McLeod, a white woman. Bill Miles (colored) was executed at Pickens for the murder of Jake Griffen. Edmund Holliday (colored) was hanged at Manning for the murder of John W. Dubose, white.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 25.—John Wilson and Melvin Johnson were hanged here yesterday for murder.

LEXINGTON, Va., April 25.—James Croney was hanged in this city yesterday for the murder of Charles Oliver.

Robbed the Safe of $2,500 Cash.

FINDLAY, O., April 27.—Burglars entered the residence of Winter Bros. Saturday night, blew open the safe and got away with $2,500 which had been placed there after banking hours Saturday. The occupants of the house were chloroformed and knew nothing of the job until morning.

Money in the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The amount of money in the treasury on the 1st of April was $751,000,000, of which $493,000,000 was "trust money," held for the redemption of gold, silver and currency certificates, and the balance of $258,000,000 belonged to the government.

Starved to Death.

DECATUR, Ill., April 27.—Mrs. Sarah Crist, aged 27 years, died of starvation Saturday night. She was affected with a stricture of the stomach and wasted away to skin and bone. She had taken no nourishment of any kind since twenty-five days before her death.

Will Try It Again.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Citizen George Francis Train is about to start on a trip around the world with the intention of cutting his former record down to fifty-five days. The starting and finishing point is to be New Whatcom, Puget sound.

Killed While on Her Way to Church.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 27.—The aged aunt of Maj. Longley, of this city, was instantly killed Sunday morning by being thrown backwards out of a buggy, the fall breaking her neck. She was on her way to church when the accident occurred.

Philadelphia Leads.

PHILADELPHIA, April 24.—Enough is known of the census returns for 1890 from the manufacturing industries of the United States to establish the fact that this city leads all the cities of the country in the value of their annual product.

Crushed by Falling Rock.

LEADVILLE, Col., April 25.—While several men were working in the Buena Vista tunnel Thursday a mass of rock weighing several hundred tons fell on them, instantly killing John Carlsen and severely injuring five other men.

The President's Sister Hurt.

CLEVES, O., April 27.—Mrs. Bettie Eaton, of North Bend, Ind., sister of President Harrison, was probably mortally injured yesterday at this place by being thrown from a carriage while returning from church.

Wisconsin's Legislature Adjourns.

MADISON, Wis., April 27.—Both houses of the legislature adjourned Saturday afternoon. There were few legislators in either house.

DEDICATED.

Talmage's New Tabernacle at Brooklyn Formally Opened for Public Worship.

NEW YORK, April 27.—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage's new tabernacle located at the corner of Grant and Clinton avenues, Brooklyn, one of the finest locations in the city, was opened to his congregation and the public for the first time Sunday morning. There were three important dedicatory services held during the day and thousands of people crowded the big edifice at each one.

The building is 200 feet long by 118 wide, and it is Romanesque in its style of architecture. It is built of brick and stone. The main entrance is at the corner of Green and Clinton avenues, and at this point is a handsome tower. The building extends through to Waverly place, but the rear part is used for class rooms and Sunday school. The interior of the church has two galleries and will seat 3,500 persons. The big organ, which cost $30,000, is directly back of the preacher's platform. Up to date the total cost of the church is $410,000 and it will require $40,000 more to complete it.

STRIKERS JUBILANT.

The Detroit Street Car Company Finally Agrees to Arbitrate.

DETROIT, Mich., April 25.—At a late hour Friday afternoon the secretary of the City Railway Company addressed a letter to Mayor Pingree accepting his suggestion to arbitrate the present trouble between the company and its employes. The letter, which is ambiguous in its wording, has thrown considerable oil, upon the troubled waters, and it is thought the strike will be a thing of the past within the next forty-eight hours. The strikers are jubilant at the turn matters have taken and the city rings with their shouts as one of their impromptu bosses passes from time to time. Public sympathy is entirely with the men and liberal collections have been taken in the various parts of the city for them during the last two days. It is not thought that any attempt to run cars will be made till the committee on arbitration reports.

RUIN AT ROME.

The Holy City Badly Shaken Up By a Powder Explosion.

ROME, April 24.—The powder magazine at the fort at Pozzo Pantaleo exploded at 7 o'clock a. m. yesterday, completely demolishing the fort, killing seven peasants who were in the vicinity and seriously injuring hundreds of others. The fort was 4 kilometers from Rome but the explosion shook this city to its center. Every house within a radius of a kilometer from the point of the explosion is more or less damaged. It has been ascertained that 250 tons of powder was stored in the exploded magazine. The vatican was not spared. The edifice was shaken and several of the historical stained glass windows of the old building were shattered.

A DISASTROUS BLAZE.

Fire in the Prussian City of Romhild Leaves 1,500 Persons Homeless.

BERLIN, April 27.—The quaint old city of Romhild, in the duchy of Meiningen, has been almost entirely destroyed by fire. The fire started in some back premises of the historic city hall square, which with its three sides of noble mansions, in which the wealthiest families of the town have resided for many centuries, was entirely destroyed. The storm which was raging at the time carried the flames to the adjacent streets, and the primitive fire brigade was inadequate to cope with the flames, which has left 1,500 out of 2,000 people homeless.

CHILIAN IRONCLAD SUNK.

The Blanco Encalada Blown Up and 200 Persons Killed.

IQUIQUE, Chili, April 27.—The warship Blanco Encalada, which was one of the vessels taken possession of by the rebels at the breaking out of the insurrection, was sunk April 23 in Caldera bay by a torpedo fired by the new gunboat Almirante Lynch. The destruction of the ironclad was attended by great loss of life, 200 persons, comprising half of her crew, being killed by the explosion of the torpedo. The congress party are now in possession of Caldera and Carrizal.

Triple Tragedy in Missouri.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 25.—A shocking crime was unearthed at Archie, Mo. The absence of E. P. Soper, a butcher, from his home caused suspicion. Upon breaking the door of his house a ghastly sight was seen. His wife and two children were lying in a pool of blood, their heads having been beaten to a pulp. The murderer left a letter confessing the crime.

A Plucky Young Lady.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., April 25.—A thief named Thomas attempted to rob the residence of a man named Branner, near Raleigh Court-House a few nights ago, during the absence of all the family except Branner's daughter, aged 17. As he broke through the window the girl brained him with an ax, after which she fainted and is now very ill from fright.

Portugal Brought to Time.

LONDON, April 25.—Lord Salisbury informed Portugal that unless the British are given access to the Pungwa river in accordance with the provisions of the modus vivendi, England will resort to force. The Portuguese cabinet has responded by giving consent to the free passage of the river.

Will Leave Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 25.—Rev. Dr. Lorimer handed in his letter of resignation as pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church at the prayer-meeting services at the church Friday night. He has accepted an urgent call from the members of his old congregation in Tremont temple, Boston.

A Maniac's Deed.

STEUBENVILLE, O., April 25.—Lorenzo Coleman, the insane son of a farmer living near here, shot his mother, his sister and a hired man yesterday, the first named being dangerously wounded. The maniac thought the shooting would reduce the price of coffee.

HIGHLY HONORED.

Progress of the Presidential Party on Its Journey.

The Chief Magistrate Cordially Welcomed by Throngs of Enthusiastic People—Mexico Assists in His Reception in Texas.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S TOUR.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 24.—The president's train arrived here yesterday morning and the party were received by ex-Gov. Murray and Mayor Gunn and the San Diego reception committee. Gov. Torres, chief executive of Lower California, and his staff, representing the president of Mexico, were also introduced.

Gov. Torres read to the president the following dispatch which he had received from President Diaz:

"It has come to my knowledge that the president of the United States will visit San Diego, May 23, and I let you know it so that you may call to congratulate him in my name and present him with my compliments.

"PORFIRIO DIAZ."

The president responded as follows:

"Gov. TORRES: This message from that progressive and intelligent gentleman who presides over the destinies of our sister republic is most grateful to me. I assure you that all our people, that the government through all its constituted authorities, entertain for President Diaz and for the chivalrous people over which he presides most friendly sentiments of respect. We covet, sir, your good will and those mutual exchanges which are profitable, and we hope that the two republics may forever dwell in fraternal peace." [Great cheering.]

The principal feature of the stop in San Diego was the parade of the militia and the G. A. R. Mr. Harrison delivered a speech. At South Riverside the president left the train for a few minutes and was photographed with his left hand resting against a column of block tin mined in the vicinity.

PASADENA, Cal., April 24.—The president's train arrived here at 7:40 o'clock Thursday night. From 8 to 9 the president and Gov. Markham held a public reception, and from 9 to 11 a banquet was given, after which the president retired for the night at the hotel.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., April 25.—Yesterday the president and the members of his party, with Gov. Markham and those accompanying him, were driven about the principal streets of Pasadena and through several orange groves. Along the streets the school children threw thousands of roses, calla lilies and orange blossoms in the pathway of the president's carriage and fairly filled the vehicle with flowers. Upon arrival in this city a procession was formed at the station composed of a cavalcade of Spanish citizens in their native costumes, the local grand army post, and a brigade of children and citizens in gayly-decorated carriages. The party was first escorted to the Promenade des Anglais, a beautiful drive bordered on both sides with mountains, dotted with picturesque villas. Here they witnessed a battle of flowers—a spectacle new to this country, but familiar to all visitors to Nice during carnival week. The engagement was participated in by ladies and gentlemen in open carriages, so covered with flowers and green that they were completely obscured, even to wheels and harness. Each carriage was provided with a profusion of small bouquets, and as they passed each other the occupants threw flowers with zest and precision. A visit to the old Santa Barbara mission was then made, and after a public reception at the hotel the party left for San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—President Harrison was welcomed to San Francisco Saturday night by a great display of enthusiasm. At the pavilion the president was received by Gov. Markham, Mayor Sanderson, Senator Stanford and others. The crowd was immense, and an informal reception was held, the military forming in lines, between which a steady stream of people passed for over an hour.

Yesterday the president and Mrs. Harrison accompanied Mayor Sanderson and Mrs. Sanderson to the First Presbyterian church. The remainder of the day the president spent in his rooms at the Palace hotel.

Illinois Paid Up.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 24.—Gov. Fifer yesterday received from United States Treasurer Huston a draft on the subtreasury at Chicago for $956,760.69 in partial payment of the amount due the state of Illinois under the provisions of the recent act of congress providing for the refunding of the direct tax paid to the government during the war.

Baron Fava Reports to Rudini.

ROME, April 24.—A dispatch to the Temps from Rome says that Baron Fava in his report to Marquis di Rudini on the New Orleans lynching expresses the belief that there is no way out of the situation, as the federal government has no power to give Italy the satisfaction demanded.

The Center of Population.

COLUMBUS, Ind., April 25.—The center of population of the United States has been located about 12 miles east of this city, and a monument 30 feet in height will be erected at the center of population May 10, at which time grand commemorative exercises will be held.

Tragedy in Indiana.

WOLCOTT, Ind., April 24.—Martin L. Ferrick, a prominent railway man at this place, yesterday shot and fatally wounded Jeff Bunnell, another prominent citizen, and then put a bullet through his own heart. No cause is assigned for the tragedy.

Hume Clay Gets Eight Years.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 25.—Hume Clay, the wealthy and aristocratic forger of more than $60,000 in notes, was given eight years' penal servitude Friday. A strong effort had been made to have him pardoned before convicted, but the governor refused to interfere.

Intense Heat in South Dakota.

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 27.—Reports from all over Minnesota and the Dakotas indicate that Saturday was the warmest April day in the history of the country. The highest point reached was 92 degrees at Aberdeen, S. D.

NOW TRY THIS.

It will cost you nothing and will surely do you good, if you have a Cough, Cold or any trouble with Throat, Chest or Lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to give relief, or money will be paid back. Sufferers from La Grippe found it just the thing and under its use had a speedy and perfect recovery. Try a sample bottle at our expense and learn for yourself just how good a thing it is. Trial bottles free at J. J. Orr's Drug store. Large size 50c. and $1.00.

MARVELOUS ENDURANCE.

The vast amount of labor performed by the heart in keeping all portions of the body supplied with blood is not generally known. It beats 100,000 times and forces the blood at the rate of 168 miles a day, which is 3,000,000,000 times and 5,150,880 miles in a life time. No wonder there are so many HEART FAILURES. The first symptoms are shortness of breath when exercising, pain in the side or stomach, fluttering choking in throat, oppression, then follow weak, hungry or smothering spells, swolen ankles, etc. Dr. Franklen Miles' NEW HEART CURE is the only reliable remedy. Sold by Baker & Hall.

The Eloquent Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago, Does Suffering Humanity a Great Service by Telling His Experience with a Great Family Medicine. Read:

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability.

"Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way.

"Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used.

"One of my sons, who has long been a sufferer from Catarrh, has received like signal relief from the old enemy. P. S. HENSON.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

Reliable man wanted for Tecumseh and vicinity. Good pay to right party.

Kimball, in the city of Adrian, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 25th day of May, 1891, and on the 13th day of October, 1891, at one o'clock in the afternoon of each of said days and that six months from the 13th day of April, A. D. 1891, are allowed by the said Court to the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated, April 15, 1891.

JOHN F. JONES, CALVIN H. CRANE, Commissioners.

ESTATE OF WILLIAM T. THORP.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 7th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William T. Thorp, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Charles Burridge, administrator upon said estate, praying that he may be empowered and licensed to sell the real estate of said deceased in said petition described, for reasons therein set forth.

It is Ordered, That Monday, the 4th day of May, 1891, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

MONEY.

What it Is—Its Influence on Business—How to Relieve a Close Market.

The currency question which is now being debated in all the assemblies of farmers—Patrons as well as Alliance men, the F. B. A., and kindred societies, and in the halls of legislation—is capable of being explained by a few simple rules which to be understood do not require the brilliant mind of a certain congressman, who mastered the whole question of finance in three weeks' study. Many things enter into the discussion which do not properly belong there, and many things are excluded that have a bearing on this investigation, by the partisans of both sides. And many are befogged and imbibe erroneous ideas and theories. Some will tell you that there is only $8 per capita of the circulating medium, and that the scarcity of circulating medium is the cause of the hard times, and failures in business: that at the close of the war we had $60 per capita, and we never had better times. Others, on the contrary, say there is now sufficient circulating medium, and instead of having but $8 per capita there is $24; that the cause of commercial depression is over-trading, a tendency to live extravagantly, to run in debt, and to spend the money before it is earned. Now, whichever of these "doctors" is right, and probably neither is entirely so, there is a wide spread dissatisfaction among the "tillers of the land." Whether this can be charged to the currency question, or to many other causes, we will not now consider. There is no doubt great ignorance of just what the currency consists of, and the amount of it. Some confine it to gold, silver and bank bills; others more properly say it is anything that takes the place of and fills the office of money, that can be passed from hand to hand, like checks, drafts, bills of exchange, etc. There is a popular expression which says "Money is scarce," but Edward Atkinson says, with great force, money is not scarce, for we have a larger volume now than we possessed in former years when money was said to be plenty; that the trouble is, that the circulation has become congested, and business men could not get hold of sufficient funds conveniently and cheaply; that the minimum of business transactions in this country aggregate not less than 130 billions of dollars per year, and of these 90 per cent, or 117 billions, are not money transactions. The money in actual circulation, as shown by the report of the U. S. Treasurer, consists, beside the coin and paper currency held in reserve in the U. S. Treasury of $607,300,000 of gold, silver and paper money, in circulation outside of U. S. Treasury, of $1,528,900,000 on January 1st, 1891, against $1,430,500,000, January 1, 1890, showing an increase of money circulation during the year of about seven per cent, or 98,400,000 of dollars. Of this large amount of circulating medium about $300,000,000 is held as reserve by the banks, National and State, leaving about $1,200,000,000 supposedly in the hands of the people. But again money tends to business centers, and large amounts are held by wealthy persons locked up, awaiting chances for profitable investment, which is largely added to in times of doubt or peril by individuals and banks calling in their reserves and shortening sail, preparing for the storm that may never come. To help this state of things some of our best financiers propose to make legal the clearing house certificates, which did so much in the last panic to tide over the emergency.

And this leads me to ask what is our circulating medium composed of? It has been well likened to a canal dug by the government and filled with water, in which all our commerce is floated. When the nation was young and our commerce small it took but a small amount of water to float it. As the crafts on the canal grew in number and size it required a wider stream and deeper water to float them, and the canal was widened, deepened, and lengthened, to accommodate new avenues of trade, and more and more water must be poured in every year to float the commerce on it. If, then, there be too little water, the ventures of commerce are stuck in the mud on account of low water. If too much water is poured into the canal it overflows, bursts its banks, inundates the country, destroying the farms, and leaving the boats, some lying high and dry, some wrecked or destroyed in the mad rush of the waters. Just enough is just right.

But how much is just enough? To understand this we must first fully understand of what the water of circulation that floats the business of the country is composed of. Some of our friends tell us that gold, silver, and legal tender greenbacks are the only circulating medium, and that we do not have half enough of them. If this was so, it is evident that there is not enough to do the 130 billions of dollars of business done in the United States. But let us look at the business of the City of New York, the business heart of the country, which does about one-third of all, or one billion of dollars each week on the average. Yet a very small proportion of this vast business is done with what we call money. The greater share of the business here, as well as elsewhere, is transacted with the aid of checks, drafts, and bills of exchange. When a man buys a shipload of goods, or buys or sells anything at wholesale, he gives a check on his bank for the amount, he does not pass over the money; but this check is deposited to some one's credit in some other bank, and he checks against it; or they draw a draft or bill of exchange on some other bank or country. Then all these papers of some 500 banks are sent to the clearing-house, and the checks, drafts, and exchange drawn by one bank are balanced by the checks, drafts, and exchange drawn on it, and all the immense business of the day, is, after the balance is struck, settled by a few dollars changing hands. But this floats the commerce of the nation and is a part of the water, or circulating medium, as much as gold and silver, for it performs the same office. Now, if these clearing-house certificates could be guaranteed, they would be more valuable currency than bank notes, for it would give us an elastic currency, suitable to the demands of business, expanding to meet an emergency and retired and cancelled when not wanted for use.

THE FARMER'S MARKET.

What the Farmer Sells Abroad—Treasury Figures of Agricultural Exports For 1890—England Takes Most of the Farm Exports—An Important Lesson in Reciprocity.

The American farmer has never been so deeply interested as just now in his foreign market. Agricultural depression has made the farmers look to the foreign market as never before. Even farmers who have heretofore been deluded by the protectionists into the belief that their home market is all-sufficient, have been shaken from that delusion by no less a protectionist than Blaine himself. This arch protectionist has himself dealt the home market heresy a deadly blow with his famous remark about the market for "another barrel of pork and another bushel of wheat;" and his present agitation of the reciprocity question is further calculated to impress upon protectionist farmers the fact that foreign markets are the hope of American agriculture.

As the foreign market is thus attracting attention from all sides it is well that the farmer should know its dimensions, and that he should know, too, where his best foreign market is. The figures recently published by the treasury department for the year ended December 31, 1890, give accurate information on both these points.

The most striking fact brought out in this report is that the foreign market is at times more valuable to the farmer than to the manufacturer. This is seen from the figures of agricultural exports, $628,772,000; and those of manufacturers, $156,983,000. Total exports amounted to $845,987,000. Agricultural exports were thus 74.33 per cent. of the total, and the manufacturers only 18.56 per cent. Wherever, therefore, our wild McKinleyism arouses a spirit of retaliation against us in foreign countries, or forces those countries to seek trade elsewhere, our farmers have four times more to lose than our manufacturers.

The details of farm products exported are interesting. The largest item is cotton, $254,275,000; then follow provisions, $142,842,000; breadstuffs, $141,602,000; animals, $35,665,000, and miscellaneous agricultural products, about $35,000,000.

The principal provisions exported wer as follows:

Beef products—Canned beef, $8,610,000; fresh, $13,837,000; salted or pickled, $6,039,000; tallow, $5,738,000. Hog products—Bacon, $37,855,000; hams, $8,495,000; pork, fresh and pickled, $4,704,000. Dairy products—Butter, $3,228,000; cheese, $8,130,000. Exports of provisions have increased very largely in three years. These are the figures:

1888	$ 91,249,000
1889	128,307,000
1890	142,844,000

Besides these exports of meat products live animals were exported to the extent of $35,665,000, of which cattle were the principal item, reaching $33,297,000, against $25,673,000 in 1889. Exports of hogs were $970,000; horses, $808,000; mules, $358,000; sheep, $199,000.

The different classes of breadstuffs exported were: Corn, $37,603,000; wheat, $42,348,000; wheat flower, $52,709,000; oats, $4,141,000; rye, $1,025,000; cornmeal, $917,000; oatmeal, $579,000; barley, $463,000.

Many articles of a miscellaneous character were sent abroad by our farmers. The most important of these were as follows: Bones, hoof, horns, etc., $400,000; fruits, $2,845,000; hay, $577,000; hides and skins, $1,488,000; hops, $2,172,000; seeds, $2,945,000; leaf tobacco, $21,155,000; vegetables, $1,370,000.

The above articles are all strictly farm products. Besides these there were exports of manufactured products, amounting to some $40,000,000, for which our farmers produced nearly all the raw materials. These are as follows: Cotton goods, $11,113,000; leather and manufactures of leather, $12,275,000; lard oil, $646,000; cottonseed, $5,400,000; oilcake, $7,762,000; manufactured tobacco, $4,018,000.

The figures here set forth will furnish the farmer with an adequate answer to ex-Gov. Foraker's famous sneer, "what have we to do with abroad?" These were the largest exports of farm products in the history of the country, except in the two years 1880 and 1881.

The enormous volume of agricultural products going abroad demonstrates the ability of our farmers to beat "pauper labor" on its own ground. In his report on the tariff bill McKinley said: "The 'world's market,' to which the advocates of tariff for revenue only invite the farmers of this country, is today crowded with the products of the cheapest human labor the earth affords. All over the old world there is a rush for their surplus to that market, and it is to such a contest as this that free trade would allure American agriculture." But the farmers are already allured into that contest in the world's market; and they have no idea of withdrawing from it. They do not propose to keep their products at home, as McKinley advocates, to still further glut the home market and carry prices lower than they have ever been.

While the "great reciprocitist" is trying to find a market for our farmers in South America, it is important to know where their greatest market now is, and where, in fact, it will remain. It is in England that the American farmers sell most of their exports. Let Blaine sweep in all South America with his reciprocity treaties, he will never make a market for our farmers there half so great as that of Great Britain alone.

Here are the figures showing the value of the British market: Total exports of cattle, $33,297,000, of which England took $31,364,000; canned beef, $8,610,000, to England, $6,356,000; fresh beef, $13,837,000, to England, $13,654,000; salted beef, $6,125,000, to England, $3,952,000; tallow, $5,738,000, to England, $2,643,000; bacon, $37,855,000, to England, $30,966,000; hams, $8,495,000, to England, $6,857,000; lard, $36,062,000, to England, $11,139,000; butter, $3,288,000, to England, $1,355,000; cheese, $8,130,000, to England, $7,080,000. Our exports of breadstuffs were also principally taken by England. The leading items were: Corn, $37,603,000, to England, $19,474,000; wheat, $43,348,000, to England, $28,810,000; flour, $52,709,000, to England, $32,356,000. Exports of raw cotton amounted to $254,000,000, of which England took $148,000,000. Hops to the value of $3,172,000 were exported, of which all except about $65,000 went to England. Of $21,155,000 of leaf tobacco England took $6,191,000.

England has been offering us reciprocity for forty years, has absolutely thrown her markets open to us and invited us in. Our protection lawmakers have always declined this English reciprocity, since the advantage of it would go mainly to our farmers, and the harm, if there should be any, would be felt by our manufacturers.

EXPERIENCE WITH WOOL TARIFF

Figures Showing Decline of Wool Growing in Pennsylvania and Michigan—The Wool Duty "a Delusion and a Snare."

Farmers who believe that the wool duty has been of any advantage to them in raising the price of their wool or in increasing the number of their sheep should examine the following table showing the number of sheep in Michigan from 1866 to 1889; the average value of sheep per head in each state from year to year; the tariff duty on wool each year, and the average market price of wool each year.

This table begins with 1866, that being the year before the high wool duty was enacted. The figures here given are taken from the annual reports of the department of agriculture. The table is as follows:

Year.	Mich. sheep.	Value.	Penna. sheep.	Value.	Tariff per cent	Price of wool.

It is true, the number of sheep in the far west and southwest has greatly increased since 1886, but this is to be considered, not as the effect of the tariff on wool, but as the natural result of the settlement of these parts of the country. How the tariff could increase the number of sheep at the same time that the price of wool was steadily declining is one of those contradictions which only the protection mind can believe.

The figures above given amply justify the wool growers of Livingston and Ontario counties, in New York state, in denouncing the wool tariff as a "delusion and a share" and in demanding that wool be placed on the free list.

Our Tariff Company.

The tariff sometimes puts nations into strange company. Protectionists constantly express their satisfaction that all the continental nations of Europe have high tariffs, while England stands practically alone in maintaining free trade. This fact gives them much pleasure, since it places us in a different class from England and puts us along with Germany, France, Italy, etc.

In the matter of the wool tariff it is curious to note in what company our high McKinley duty on wool puts us. Here is the list of the countries which admit wool free of duty, and the United States "is not in it:"

Austria,	Belgium,
New South Wales,	Norway,
Chili,	Denmark,
The Netherlands,	Sweden,
British India,	Canada,
France,	Great Britain,
Portugal,	Germany,
Greece,	Italy,
Victoria,	New Zealand.

And here are the countries which tax wool; also the duty per pound. each levies on ordinary clothing wool:

Brazil	$1.02 and 65 per cent.
United States		11 per cent.
San Salvador	.06
Ecuador	.059
Porto Rico	.059
Mexico	.046
Peru	.011
Argentine Republic		25 per cent.
Hayti	.04
Honduras	.032
United States of Columbia	.023
Russia	0.16
Korea		8 per cent.
Roumania	.61
Turkey	.0072
China	.0066
Spain	.0061
Switzerland	.0006
Siam		3 per cent.

This puts us in the company of the least civilized and least progressive nations in the world on the wool question. The United States is the only first-class nation in the list.

The Hand-to-Hand Club.

The tariff battle of 1892 is already going on in a quiet way. A curious organization in New York has undertaken a novel and important step in preparation for the great struggle. This is the Hand-to-Hand club, of which Logan Carlisle, son of the great Kentucky statesman, is president. The work undertaken by this club is to print and distribute a half million copies of Henry George's "Protection or Free Trade" at the extraordinary price of ten cents per copy.

Of this undertaking Mr. Carlisle says: "It is certainly the duty of every democrat who is in accord with his party to assist in this educational work of the Hand-to-Hand club, since it is in line with what must be done by democrats to achieve success in 1892. The idea that the people can be educated in ninety days has been demonstrated to be an erroneous one. As a matter of economy, also, the work must be done now. One-half the money that is spent foolishly and feverishly in the heat of a campaign can now be spent for 1891 to better and more lasting effect in educating the people in sound economic principles."

The first 100,000 copies of "Protection or Free Trade" is now in press. The book can be had at ten cents a copy by mail when ordered in quantities. The secretary is W. J. Atkinson, 42 University Place, New York.

SPECIMEN CASES.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his Stomach was disordered, his Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large Fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by J. J. Orr.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Have more than once been saved by the timely use of Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs, after all other remedies have been tried in vain. The Balsam stops decay of the lungs and cures influenza and acute and cronic coughs. There is no other medicin in the world that acts so promptly, certainly none that does its work so thoroughly as Kemp's Balsam. All druggists sell it. Large bottles 50c. and $1.

NO MATTER HOW HARD

any druggist tries to sell you his own cough medicine, remember he does it because he makes more money on it. Insist on having Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs, for there is no cough remedy so pure and none so quick to break up a cold. For influenza, soreness of the throat and tickling irritation with constant cough Kemp's Balsam is an immediate cure. Large bottles 50c and $1. At all druggists'.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY,

Dr. Brown Sequard's elixir of youth may be an important discovery, but every one knows that Dr. Franklin Miles' New Heart Cure certainly is. It has given thousands afflicted serious heart disease a New Lease of Life. Druggists who can observe its effects on many customers everywhere speak very highly of it. Mr. John Weaver, Knightstown Ind., says: "I have sold much of Dr. Miles New Cure and have received many good reports.", O. Monroe, of Dunkirk, N. Y., report large sales. "And the best part of it is every bottle has given satisfaction." Sold and guaranteed by Baker & Hall.

ONE DOLLAR WELL INVESTED.

If you have bad breath, constipation, pain in the small of the back, discolored skin, nervousness, or dizziness your only wise course is to take Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. It will cleanse the blood of all impurities, regulates the Kidneys and Liver, and thus restore a healthy glow to your checks again. All druggists; one dollar a bottle.

Wonders

Are wrought by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor in restoring gray hair to its original color, promoting a new growth, preventing the hair from falling, keeping it soft, silky, and abundant, and the scalp cool, healthy, and free from dandruff or humors. The universal testimony is that this preparation has no equal as a dressing, and is, therefore, indispensable to every well-furnished toilet.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair to use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing." — Mrs. Lydia O. Moody, East Pittston, Me.

"Some time ago my wife's hair began to come out quite freely.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

not only prevented my wife from becoming bald, but it also caused an entirely new growth of hair. I am ready to certify to this statement before a justice of the peace."—H. Hulsebus, Lewisburgh, Iowa.

"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair fell came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as my physicians ordered, but failed to promote a growth of hair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by druggists, and all alike fell short of accomplishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of any similar preparation, and is now on the market."—Vincent Jones, Richmond, Ind.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH. APRIL 30, 1891

C. S. Burroughs is in Adrian to-day.

Chas. Thompson went to Tecumseh last Saturday.

S. C. Stacy, of the HERALD, was in town Monday.

Dr. Monroe is making his monthly visit here this week.

D. M. Palmer is seriously ill with inflammatory rheumatism.

J. W. Bradner left here the first of the week for Washington.

Fayette DePuy of Grand Lodge is visiting friends here this week.

Miss Julia Conklin, of Manchester, was in town a short time Sunday.

Mrs. E. M. Conklin, of Manchester, called on friends here last Thursday.

Carson Fisher, of Toledo, came here last week to attend the funeral of his son.

Mrs. E. R. Smith returned from a ten days visit in Detroit, last Thursday.

E. W. Freese is recovering quite rapidly from his illness. He rode out Sunday.

D. H. Silvers arrived here last Thursday morning and remained until Friday night.

Mrs. Peter Kishpaugh visited friends in Dundee last week, returning Friday evening.

Mrs. C. S. Burroughs and Miss Helen Rowland called on Tecumseh friends Monday.

Miss Florence Rowland, of Tecumseh, is a guest of Miss Louisa VanDeMark, this week.

M. L. Calkins passed through this village Wednesday en route for Toledo on horseback.

Mrs. Lyman Ames, of Ypsilanti, has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. D. Niblack, this week.

Rev. A. W. Stalker and family who have been visiting in Detroit and Ann Arbor, returned last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lawrence, of Tecumseh, attended the funeral of John Fisher, last Thursday.

Eugene VanDeMark, Laverne Sutfin and John Machen spent Saturday night and Sunday at Sand Lake.

Hardy Bird leaves Monday for Tecumseh. He has accepted a position with the Tecumseh Table Company.

Dr. T. C. Adam, who has been dangerously ill for the past week, is very much better and the chances are good for his recovery.

Ed. Parker had his left foot severely injured by a falling beam at the Woolen Mill last Friday. He will be laid up for some time.

Mrs. Lambert who has been spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Albert Wilkerson, of Dundee, returned to Peter Kishpaugh's last week.

F. D. Lancaster has been improving the appearance of his premises by making a gravel drive and building a new side-walk on the north side of his house.

Our popular young jeweler, E. F. Kirchgessner, leaves Clinton this week to engage in business with O. B. DeWolf, of Tecumseh. We are sorry to have Ed. leave but hope the change he is making will prove as beneficial as he could desire.

Work on Horace Bartlett's new residence is progressing rapidly. We judge from the plan that this house will far surpass the one that was burned, in convenience and architectural beauty. Mr. Bartlett never does things by halves.

Opper's cartoon in Puck of April 29th is a very laughable one. Mr. Blaine is giving the whole show, himself, while President Harrison, in the background, can not get a chance to make himself heard.

Scribner's Magazine for May contains important articles in two notable illustrated series—the first of "The Great Streets of the world," and the second of the "Ocean Steamship" articles. A. B. Frost has made eighteen drawings for the "Broadway" article, which are as complete an interpretation of the varied life of that thoroughfare as Richard Harding Davis's picturesque and vivid text. With two such series of articles, and a special fiction issue in August, it is believed that the summer numbers of this magazine will be remarkably interesting.

POISONS IN COSMETICS.

It seems to be the fashion for young ladies with pimples and blotches on their faces to make experiments with various cosmetics. Madame Piffypaffy advertises her foreign-named compound, composed of a combination of poisonous mineral substances that deaden and burden the delicate substances of the skin. There are no complexions like those that nature give. The tonic, strengthening and healthgiving effects of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) permit nature to work her will in this respect, as thousands of ladies, both young and old, have discovered. The cheapest and most beautiful complexions depend on health and vigor. It is the office of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) to give vigor and tone and health to the system, and in this way to give luster to the eye and roses to the cheeks.

OBITUARY.

Laura Brown Osborne was born at Jersey Shore, Pa., Dec. 12, 1852, and died at her home in Franklin, Mich., April 22, 1891.

When a little child she was a sufferer from heart affection and through much of her life was compelled to bear its pain. In the last five years the attacks became more frequent and severe until they caused her death. She entered upon a Christian life when a young woman and united with the M. E. Church in Clinton. She was married Nov. 26, 1878, to Mr. Walter Osborne, who, with three children, survive her. A loving wife, a devoted mother, a kind and amiable neighbor will be missed where she was known. In her last sickness she felt that her end was near and longed for another visit to her girlhood home. This was denied her but the great Father took her to a better one on high. In the saddened home gathered father and mother, brothers and sisters, neighbors and sympathizing friends to pay their last tribute of respect to one they so much honored and loved. Her own brothers bore her tenderly from her earthly home, the solemn burial service was read, and tearfully but hopefully we turned away, sorrowing not as those that have no hope, for we know that Laura is with God. MRS A. W. S.

DIED—April 12, at her residence in Raisin, Harriet A., wife of James B. Colvin, in the 58th year of her age.

She bore her long illness with remarkable patience and resignation, conversing freely from time to time with members of her family in regard to the last trying hour which she felt sure was near. During the last few months of her suffering it was evident to her family and intimate friends that she was sustained and comforted by a humble hope and trust in her Savior, upon whom in her affliction she had learned to lean. As she neared the end she said: "Jesus is very precious to me. I am not afraid to die." Thus, although sadly missed by the sorrowing ones in the home she has left, as also in the homes of the large circle of relatives, with all of whom she was ever a favorite, they sorrow not as for one lost to them, but cherish the blessed assurance that as the gentle spirit of their loved one has passed through the Heavenly portals, those portals are ever mercifully left ajar. C. N. C.

The following item, clipped from an Atlanta newspaper shows that our old friend Jim Bell is forging ahead down in that hustling Southern City. His Tecumseh friends will be glad to note his prosperity:

The Georgia Soap Company is one of the manufacturing enterprises of Atlanta making great headway. The present company consists of Mr. J. A. H. Bell, who is a practical soap maker, and started the factory years ago, and Mr. A. I. Vandyke, who has recently come into the firm, guaranteeing the necessary capital to carry on the increasing business. They make four or five brands of soap, but their great specialty, that they are "whooping up" in Atlanta style, and not only they, but the merchants who use it, is the "Glory." Call for Atlanta soap when you want the best—that made by the Georgia Soap Company.

Card of Thanks.

The undersigned desires to express his thanks to the neighbors and friends who rendered him much help in the hour of his bereavement. Especially would he express his obligations to the Clinton M. E Choir.

Rev. H. H. Fairall, D. D., editor of the Iowa Methodist, says editorially, We have tested the merits of Ely's Cream Balm, and believe that, by a thorough course of treatment, it will cure almost every case of catarrh. Ministers, as a class are afflicted with head and throat troubles, and catarrh seems more prevalent than ever. We cannot recommend Ely's Cream Balm too highly."

I used Ely's Cream Balm for dry catarrh. It proved a cure.—B. F. M. Weeks, Denver.

The world is always interested in the cure of consumption; yet its prevention is of far more importance. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is guaranteed to cure coughs and colds. Sold by all dealers on a guarantee of satisfaction.

The Rev. Wm. Stout, Wiarton, Ont., states: After being in effectually treated by seventeen different doctors for Scrofula and blood disease, I was cured by Burdick Blood Bitters. Write him for proof.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh.—Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendrill, Perry Co., Ohio.

GOOD NEWS

—ABOUT—

HARVEY!

The New Temperance and Manufacturing Town two Miles South of Chicago.

NEW RAILROADS—The Northern Pacific R'y Co. is extending the Chicago Central through the town. An exevated railroad chartered on Halsted street, with $10,000,000 capital stock. A local street car line to be completed in 90 days.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS PROGRESSING.

Two miles of Mason Sewerage already in, and contract let for twice as much more. Contracts have been awarded for paving Park Ave., 151st St., and 155th St. Water-works, side walks, shade trees and street grading to be pushed at once. The above improvements are being made without taxation or expense to lot owners or purchasers, which occasions the announcement that all lots included in Blocks 112 to 126 inclusive, still selling at first prices, will be advanced soon. This is the last chance to secure business or residence lots at first prices within a short distance of the center of the town.

PRICES TO ADVANCE SOON.

☞DO NOT MAKE THE MISTAKE of delaying longer your visit to the "MAGIC CITY," or of making an investment by mail if you cannot come. Spring is here; its just the time to come.

Read What Disinterested Newspapers Say of Harvey:

Last week we announced the coming of a very important railroad on the west side of Harvey, through Blue Island to Chicago. This week we can announce another, the Chicago North and South Elevated Railway, with a capital of $10,000,000. One million is already subscribed. W. C. Goudy alone taking $250,000. The road was projected by W. C. Goudy, J. A. Austin, Geo. C. Newberry, Samuel T. White and others. The proposed route will start at Harvey, about One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth and Halsted Streets. A perfectly straight route along this most populous street will bring Harvey within fifteen miles of the center of Chicago. The road is to be an elevated road and will not be obstructed by cross streets, or east or west lines of any kind. The stock is eagerly sought for, and will be a success.—Chicago Tribune, April 4th.

The thriving suburb of Harvey is getting a reputation for the solidity and permanency of its improvements. * * Last summer a four foot brick sewer was laid on 155th street from Ashland Ave. Contracts have been let for a sewer on 157th street from Halsted street to the Illinois Central tracks. This makes nearly two miles already built, about six miles under contract, and two and a half to be built next summer, a total of ten miles of brick sewer in all.—From the Economist, Chicago, March 28, 1891.

REMEMBER!

It is necessary to buy in HARVEY PROPER to obtain ADVANTAGE of the ABOVE IMPROVEMENTS made by the Land Association. $40,000 WORTH OF PROPERTY sold by us to MICHIGAN PEOPLE in the past ten weeks, and yet it can be safely said that every lot sold by us can be resold before July next for an ADVANCE OF FROM 25 to 100 PER CENT. The BEST THING to do is to come and see for yourself. The NEXT BEST THING is to send for corrected plat and make a selection by mail. Only Two Weeks Remain to Secure Choice Lots at First Prices in the original tract of Harvey.

☞Call at our Chicago office by 9 a. m., get FREE TRANSPORTATION, and go with us to see the "Magic City." We are representing Walter Thomas Mills & Co., in Michigan, but all mail should be addressed to us to save confusion and delay.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Good roads and business booming.

Everybody seems to be busy gardening.

Will Babcock was in Blissfield last Sunday.

Black straw hats are now the fashion in our village.

George Smith was in Adrian last Saturday on business.

A car load of hogs was shipped from here last Saturday.

Fred Dubois is busy helping E. Sink in the painter's trade.

W. J. Helm and wife visited friends near Dundee last Sunday.

The young folks enjoyed themselves at a dance one day last week.

George Exelby sold six large steers to a Toledo butcher, last week.

The butcher shop has been moved to the West side of the railroad.

Joseph Hunter is busy building a house for Irve Osborn, on Beasly street.

Don't forget "Never too Late to Mend," May 29th and 30th (Decoration Day.)

Good music will be given in "Never too Late to Mend," regardless of expense.

There was a meeting of the Britton Amateur Dramatic Society last Monday evening.

L. Hause has sold all his chickens, together with his chicken house, to John Exelby.

Reserved seats for "Never too Late to Mend," for sale at any store in Britton, on and after May 20. Only 25 cents.

Henry Miller bought over one thousand dozen eggs for Lenardson & Son, last week. Not very bad, Henry, for your first week's work.

Ben Snyder has returned from near Monroe, and he says he will never again be tempted to leave Britton. Religious persecutions were the cause of his quick return.

Mr. Strong has not yet left Britton. The boys will miss him when he does take his departure for they will then either give up chewing or buy their own tobacco.

The Michigan Nursery, of Monroe, is sending agents about Britton and vicinity. They seem to be doing a nice business and anyone in need of plants of any kind would do well to give them an order.

Miss Tillie McCutchen has been suffering from a very severe cold and grave fears were entertained that she would lose her voice. We are glad to say, however, she is somewhat better, and the doctor hopes that she will again fully recover her speech.

We are glad to set the people of Britton and vicinity patronizing a veternafy surgeon who is fast coming to the front. We refer to Dr. Thomas Smith. The doctor saved a horse last week for John Zeluff, when everyone had given it up to die. Dr. Smith is working up a very large practice, and he deserves it.

Married, in Detroit, April 27th, 1891, Miss Anna May Exelby, of Britton, to Mr. Thomas Campbell, of Detroit. The bride is well-known in Britton, being the only daughter of Mr. John Exelby, formerly proprietor of the Exelby Hotel. She has the best wishes of our villagers for her future prosperity and happiness. The young couple spent a few days with the bride's parents at Britton the early part of the week. They will shortly return to Detroit and make it their future home. Mr. Campbell is engaged in business in that city.

EAST TECUMSEH ECHOES.

Philip Kehoe is painting his barn.

Mr. and Mrs. Rice Hendershot have got nicely settled in their new home and are ready to receive their friends.

School opened last Monday morning after a vacation of three weeks Nearly every child in the community has had the measles, including the teacher.

Supervisor W. B. Keyser has been reminding the people this week that tax-day is to come again. Mr. Keyser is very popular wich all classes. He is not only a gentleman but one of nature's noblemen.

There are children in this community who never went to Sunday School a day in their lives, who never spoke with a minister of the Gospel, and who for the past six months have not had sufficient food to satisfy the cravings of hunger. And yet the Christian churches keep right on sending missionaries to the jungles of Africa.

TIPTON TOPICS.

Joe Whelan is dangerously ill.

Mrs. Pitcher is moving into her new house.

Eugene Camburn's new barn is up and enclosed.

Miss Stella Allen, of Britton, is visiting friends here this week.

The foundation is being laid for the new school-house in the Paragon district.

Tipton is not without its sensations. Last Monday, as Z. Kohler was attempting to shoot a dog, the gun accidentally exploded, severing one finger entirely and tearing two others badly.

The citizens of Franklin and all interested in the G. A. R. are to meet at the M. E. Church next Saturday evening, to make arrangements for Decoration Day. A good attendance is desired.

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

Mrs. Thomas Roberts, of Jackson, was in town over Sunday.

Mrs. T. S. Allen has been sick with the inflammatory rheumatism.

Julius C. Mattison and wife, of Norvell, visited at Wm. Johnson's over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brower, of Francisco, were recent guests at Porter Brower's.

Edmund Lapham came down from Jackson Saturday afternoon to visit his brother, J. P. Lapham.

Mrs. J. P. Lamb spent several days the first of the week in Ann Arbor, as the guest of Mrs. Fred S. Gaige.

Miss Clark, of Ypsilanti, a daughter of the late Thomas Clark, is spending a few days in town visiting relatives.

Austin Yocum and Fred Kalmbach drove to Chelsea last Sunday morning. Mr. Yocum returned upon his bicycle.

Dr. W. G. Stowell, of Chicago, arrived in town on Monday morning to attend the funeral of his brother-in-law, S. Twist.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Tuttle of Monroe County, Spencer C. Morgan and George F. Harmon of Macon were delegates in attendance at the recent session of the Q. M.

S. Twist, who has been in the railroad employ at the Manchester railway station for several years, died of pneumonia on Saturday afternoon last. Funeral on Monday, May 4th, at 1:30 p. m.

The Revs. C. H. Jackson and H. M. Ford, of Hillsdale, attended the River Raisin Quarterly Meeting of Free Baptists held at Iron Creek on Saturday and Sunday last. Rev. H. M. Ford delivered the Sabbath morning discourse.

Mrs. Matthias Saley, nee Mary Lanning, a sufferer from consumption for a long time, died at her home north of the village on Saturday, May 2d. She leaves a husband and family of small children to mourn their early loss. Funeral from the house on Monday, at 2 p. m.

ONSTED ODDS.

Farmers very busy.

Nice growing weather.

Oats all sown and corn planting next in order.

Mrs. Alice Mann has been entertaining a sister from Ohio.

The supervisor has come and gone and the taxpayers will be contented until next fall.

Norman Taylor is the first to plant corn, as he planted five or six acres the first of last week.

The Demorest contest was postponed on account of some of the contestants coming down with the measles.

Dell Pratt says it weighs ten pounds and will vote the Republican ticket if it follows in the footsteps of its father.

Sixty-five persons attended the maple sugar social given by the grangers at their hall on Wednesday evening of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Taylor visited the Rollin Center grange last Friday evening and report a good time.

The party that took half a barrel of soap from Will Taylor's summer kitchen intends to soft-soap somebody and Will's wife thinks it was herself.

Parties from Brooklyn have purchased the barber business here of G. Bancroft, Mr. Bancroft retiring and the purchasers continuing the business at the old stand.

The next union meeting of the Patrons of Industry of Rome will be held with the west Rome association on the 20th of next June and it will be an all day affair.

A genuine tramp was walking our roads last Sunday morning in quest of food and we guess he did not starve, as he got two meals within one hour. No one ought to encourage such people by feeding them.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Ice was frozen Monday night half an inch thick.

A. C. Arner was in Dundee Monday on business.

G. P. Waring, of Chicago, was home Sunday and Monday with his family.

J. D. and Lou Arner visited friends and relatives in Detroit Saturday and Sunday.

Fruit trees are dressed in bloom and all nature presents a fresh and thrifty appearance.

James Linn drew 167 bushels of oats at one load Saturday, selling them to T. H. Temple.

N. M. Hindes, who has been in poor health for the last few months, is slowly recovering at present.

The third quarterly meeting service for the present conference year will be conducted next Sunday.

Remember the L. C. S. will be held at the heme of Chas. Underwood on Friday evening of next week.

Mrs. Winders has secured rooms of Mrs. Mary Arner and moved into her new home the first of the week.

The causes of catarrh and influenza are many, and the effects disastrous, but the remedy is a safe and sure one, Old Saul's Catarrh Cure. It is known from east to west. Price only 25 cents.

Dr. James Corrie, Dentist in Baltimore, writes: "I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup personally and in my family for two or three years, and I am prepared to say that there is nothing to compare to it as a remedy for cough, cold etc." 25 cents.

MACON MUSIC.

Miss Clara Hendershot has been on the sick list for several days.

Measles, grippe, snow and a lost dog. And yet they talk of orange blossoms.

Who is going to be the next postmaster, and who will carry the mail? are the two questions agitating the public mind.

Geo. Harmon and Spencer Morgan attended the F. W. Baptist Quarterly meeting at Manchester last Saturday and Sunday.

Frank Greenfield was called to Barry County last Thursday to attend the funeral of his father, which took place on Friday afternoon, May 1st. Seven old people in the vicinity where Mr. Greenfield lived died within a week from the effects of the grippe.

The community was surprised and pained to hear of the death of Mr. McClue which occurred last Friday, May 1st, at his home. Mr. McClue was an old and highly respected citizen and was the father of Misses Hettie and Edna McClue, who have been connected prominently with the Tecumseh schools for several years. The funeral services were conducted at his late residence on Sunday afternoon by Rev. J. I. Gulick, and were largely attended.

IN THE FULNESS OF TIME.

The following beautiful tribute to the memory of the late Alva Raymond is from the pen of Editor Kempton of the Addison Courier, who is a nephew of the deceased.

"One short sleep past, we wake eternally, And die no more."

Mr. Alvah Raymond, the subject of this sketch, was known to many of the older Courier readers, was an Uncle of the publisher, and in point of industrious habits and good citizenship Lenawee county has produced few more striking examples.

He commenced his earthly career at Wheeler, Stuben county, New York.

At the age of thirteen years he came to Michigan, and stopped in the township of Raisin, this county. In common with twelve others who constituted the family, he shared the privations and trials incident to pioneer life, and in so doing developed characteristics of perseverance and enterprise well worthy the imitation of all. With the exception of one year in Wisconsin, his subsequent life was spent in this state.

He joined hands in holy matrimony with Miss Mary Ann Iveson, then of Woodstock township, July 9th, 1842. This union was blessed by the birth of six children, all of whom survive, and as progressive upright citizens do honor to those who gave them being.

Mr. Raymond and wife resided in Raisin township the most of the time after their marriage, the exceptions being a few years spent in Washtenaw county, and about four years in Woodstock township. A part of the last named period was consumed on the G. W. Horton place north of Addison, and a part of it at the old Lewis corner store west of the creek, which building he purchased for boarding house purposes.

He was a model farmer and by a judicious use of his income succeeded in accumulating a competency.

Years of incessant toil could not always be endured however, and on the 27th day of April 1889 the companion of his life succumbed to the destroyer of all humanity and was gathered home. Lonely, weakened by disease and saddened by the loss of his hearing, the bereft husband continued his pilgrimage until Friday afternoon of last week, April 24th, 1891, when the disenthralled spirit joined those of its kindred in the Fatherland, and the house of clay found the long desired freedom from mortal ills. In the beautiful language of Tennyson, "God's finger touched him, and he died."

The obsequies occurred at the Presbyterian church of Raisin, Sabbath afternoon, were conducted by Rev. L. M. Belden, and attended by a very large number of sorrowing friends.

The deceased united with the church when but a boy, and was one of its most stable supporters ever after. In consigning his body to rest by the side of that of his wife in the cemetery near by, all felt that a good man had gone out from their midst.

Though done with earthly toils his perfected faculties will still bear fruit in the other world, for as Longfellow has said:

There is no death! What seems so is transition;
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portal we call Death.

NIAGARA IN CHICAGO.

Paul Philippoteaux's Painting of Niagara Falls Placed in a Chicago Cyclorama.

Niagara Falls can now be reached by an cable train on the South Side in Chicago. With brush and paint Paul Philippoteaux transferred the world's most famous cataract to canvas, and the immense picture now lines the cyclorama building at the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Hubbard court.

The sightseers to the new cyclorama climb a winding stairway that leads them to the top of the old museum on the Canadian shore directly opposite Goat Island. This island, as every American ought to know, divides the grand cataract. To the right are seen the Horseshoe Falls, and to the left, in which direction the river winds its way to the Whirlpool Rapids, the American Falls appear. In the distance are the new suspension bridge for carriages and pedestrians, the Clifton House, on the Canadian side, and the town of Niagara on the New York soil.

Continuing to the left visitors meet with groves, parks and rocky cliffs untill, completing the circuit, they reach the old Prospect House, which faces the Horseshoe Falls. This house was removed not long ago to make room for the extension of Queen Victoria Park, but it was standing when Philippoteaux painted the picture. Way beyond the Prospect House and capping a mountainous promontory is seen Loretta convent. Stretching along the precipitous bank of the river and far below the spectators are the walks and carriage roads alive with people and equipages.

As in all cycloramas, the lines on the canvas are carried out on the natural ground which stretches out for fifty feet in every direction. Visitors may amuse themselves by trying to find out where the canvas and the earth join. The artist has given an autumn view of the falls and their surroundings, and crimson and russet tints of the foliage are as natural as the green and white of the rapids and falls. The coloring and perspective show careful work, and great attention has been given to minor details in order that visitors who have seen the falls may not be disappointed. One of the prettiest bits of the painting is seen through a square opening at the foot of the stairs. It shows the rapids at the foot of the horseshoe and a little steamer forging its way over the troubled surface. Below, too, but on a separate canvas, is a large view of the Whirlpool rapids. This is also the work of Philippoteaux, and it delays the people who do not know of the treat awaiting them up above. Still another of the French artist's pictures is to be seen there—"Cotton Picking in the South." It is viewed from the reception-room over the offices.

Niagara Falls was first exhibited in London three years ago, and delighted the people in that city for two years and nine months, being visited by all the crowned heads and nobility of Europe and by over 3,000,000 people. It has never been on exhibition before in this country. The canvas is 410 feet long and fifty feet in width.—Chicago Herald, March 12, 1891.

THE FORUM FOR MAY.

If any well-informed man were asked what are the most important topics that have engaged public opinion during the month of April, and about which the public desires authoritative information, he would be sure to answer (1) the Italian difficulty, (2) the new Australian Commonwealth, (3) our reciprocity treaties with South America, (4) religious discussions caused by a large number of trials for heresy, and (5) silver coinage. The Forum for May contains articles on every one of these subjects—on our Constitution and the demand of Italy, by ex-Secretary of State Bayard, who takes the same position taken by Mr. Blaine; on the Commonwealth of Australia, by Sir R. W. Cameron, the best authority in the United States; on reciprocity, by R. Q. Mills, ex-Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, and by Senator Frye, who writes with special reference to the improvement of our Southern harbors; on changes of orthodox belief in our own time, by the Rev. Dr. Alfred Momerie, of King's College, London; and on "Free Silver Coinage—Why not?" by Edward Atkinson. In this way the Forum tries to make good its claim to give its readers not only important information, but important information just when it is most desired.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

It is remarkable how many people there are who seem to think it is of no importance or that nothing need be done for it. They would not be so careless if they realized how really serious the malady is. But they think or say "It will go off after a while." We do not mean the legitimate weariness which all experience after a hard day's work, but that all gone, worn out feeling which is especially overpowering in the morning when the body should be refreshed and ready for work.

IT IS A MISTAKE

To allow this condition to continued as the body may soon become debilitated beyond recovery, or some serious disease may gain a tenacious foot-hold. The craving of the system for assistance should be gratified by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great building up medicine. It purifies and vitalizes the blood, regulates the digestion and really does "Make the Weak Strong."

MADE A NEW MAN.

"In the spring of 1890 I experienced that tired, dull feeling, and what sleep I had nights seemed to do me no good. Dyspepsia seized me, and each morning in the effort to get rid of the bad taste I had severe vomiting spells. I was much discouraged. My druggist suggested Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles and am happy to say it made me a new man, and I never was better than now." John Mack, foreman Springer & Willard's stock farm, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, MAY 7.

The Alger boom is taking a rest, just at present. But wait till the General taps his barrel; then look out for business.

Bro. Blair, having been unceremoniously snubbed by John Chinaman, will be compelled to take his washing to another laundry hereafter.

To Major McKinley:—The people are still anxiously enquiring whether the tariff is a tax; and if the tariff is not a tax, then what's the matter with sugar.

That portion of the McKinley bill that seems to be the most popular with the people is the sugar clause, and this is the only free trade feature contained in the bill.

Is Blaine out of the race? Frank Leslie's Illustrated says so. But if we ever indulged in betting, we should not care to risk any odds on the truth of that prediction.

If Jack, the Ripper, and the New Orlean's Mafia could be boxed up in some prison yard and let loose upon each other, it might result in a happy solution of two very difficult problems.

Forty new trusts have been organized during the past twelve months and still they come. The McKinley tariff makes a harvest time for the monopolists and they are making the most of it.

The Republicans are doing most of the political talking at present, the Democrats are pursuing a course of masterly inactivity, while the Farmers' Alliance is initiating new members and sawing wood.

The passage of the Miner election bill is a step in the right direction. It brings the election of President a little nearer the people. If the same plan were adopted in all the States we would have no more minority Presidents.

Senator Sherman originated the political phrase, "I am looking after my fences." He is now rusticating at his home in Mansfield, and when interviewed by a reporter, the wily old politician replied, "I am engaged now in building a barn."

As Bro. Blair has been sent back from China the President might try the experiment of sending him to Greenland, where the days and nights are one month long. Up in that latitude he could finish one of his celebrated speeches on education in a single day.

President Harrison enjoyed his Southern trip, and is evidently learning something. Had he taken the same trip one year ago, it is not at all likely that the Republican party would have disgraced itself and threatened the business interests of the country by an attempt to pass a bayonet election law.

Certain grades of sugar are admitted into our ports free of duty, and as a consequence a drop in price takes place. This goes to show, says the Boston Transcript, "that the favorite thesis of the protectionist that the foreigner pays the duty does not apply to sugar. Seriously, the decline in price of sugar after the duty has been remitted is the worst blow the McKinley fabric of protection has yet received."

Secretary Tracy is deserving of the sympathy of all honest people in his effort to take the navy yards of the country out of politics, but he will probably realize, if he has not already done so, that he has undertaken the largest contract of his life, and his failure to carry it out need not surprise anybody. Mr. Tracy is only one man and the politicians who work the navy yards for their own personal benefit are numerous and influential.

At a dinner held by the new Republican club of Massachusetts recently, President Wolcott said: "The party must rally to its standard the recruit and drum out the mercenary. The loss of thousands of votes in this State was due to the Pennsylvanian, who is still chairman of the National Committee. The king of personal politics that seeks and requires what is called vindication is always at the expense of party and is a blunder when it is not a crime."

A STARTLING EXHIBIT!

The country and the government are just beginning to realize the appalling fruits of the Billion Congress that adjourned less than two months since. It was expected by all who looked the facts in the face that there would be a Treasury deficit some time during the next two years, caused by the bewildering profligacy of the late Congress; but none anticipated that the dragon's teeth of waste sown so recklessly by the Fifty-first Congress would produce such a swift deluge of financial disaster.

Two moons have not yet waxed and waned since the adjournment of the Billion Congress, and the Secretary of the Treasury finds himself without money to meet the thirty millions of pensions to be paid a month hence. Two years ago there was a surplus of nearly fifty-eight millions in the Treasury, after paying out forty-eight millions for the redemption of bonds. In addition to this surplus, there were some fifty-five millions of a trust fund for the redemption of bank notes, that the Billion Congress turned over into the Treasury to delay inevitable bankruptcy, thus practically adding fifty-five millions to the national debt.

This surplus and this trust fund that was transferred into the Treasury, making over one hundred and ten millions, have been scattered by the late Congress, and a bankrupt Treasury stares the administration in the face almost before the echoes of the jobbers' carnival of profligacy have died out in the Capitol.

The current revenues are now not any more than equal to the ordinary expenditures of the government, and at least thirty millions must be provided for the June quarterly pensions. The present balance in the Treasury is less than twelve millions; that amount is not likely to increase between this and June, and there are no reserve assets in the Treasury but some twenty millions of small silver coin that the business of the country will not absorb.

Being of less intrinsic value than even our eighty cent dollars, the public will not receive this subsidiary coin beyond the absolute necessities for making change, but these cheap coins, which have long been honestly given in the financial statement of the government as an "unavailable asset" are all that Secretary FOSTER has to supply the money to make up the thirty odd millions to be paid in pensions a month hence. He is now appealing to the banks to accept eighteen millions of silver half dollars as a government deposit and thus enable him to keep up a show of a solvent Treasury, when in fact, if such deposits were accepted by the banks, he could not draw against them for any thing but the depreciated coin that nobody would receive.

The financial exhibit of the government is indeed a startling one. The change in two years from a surplus of nearly sixty millions to a bankrupted Treasury, with a forced loan of over fifty millions expended, presents a fearful condition for the country to face, and it will profoundly impress considerate people of all parties as to the criminal profligacy of the Billion Congress.—Philadelphia Times.

THE PENNSYLVANIA LAW.

H. C. Lea, a prominent merchant of Philadelphia, has written a letter to the Pennsylvania Legislature vigorously protesting against the passage of a bill to list and tax personal property. Mr. Lea is a large owner of real estate and a very small owner of personal property, which makes his letter all the stronger. He says:

As a heavy taxpayer I have naturally given the subject of taxation some thought for many years past, and my conviction is settled that real property is the surest and fairest basis on which to levy the public revenue. It cannot elude the Assessor, as the great bulk of personal property can; its value can be estimated with reasonable accuracy, and is not subject to violent or sudden fluctuations. The difference between land at $25 an acre and $25 a square foot is simply that the latter is surrounded by capital and business, while the former is remote from these sources of value. Of all classes in the community, the land-owner is the one most interested in having capital and business untrammeled to earn the largest profits. He gets, sooner or later, his share in those profits, and it is suicidal for him to drive away that which alone gives his land its special value over Government lands in the territories.

The bill provides for a complete inventory of the personal effects of every person, firm and corporation, including household furniture and tools, and then provides that the inventories shall be printed and distributed to all the taxpayers, so that each one may play the spy on his neighbor and see whether he has made a true return or not. As there are 225,000 taxable persons in Philadelphia, the lists would fill several volumes, so that each person would have a small library presented to him every year at the public expense, consisting of a detailed statement of everybody's assets and liabilities.

IS BLAINE OUT OF THE RACE?

It is a violation of no confidence to say that Secretary Blaine is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency next year. That is a settled fact.

Not only is Mr. Blaine not a candidate, but under no circumstances will he consent to the use of his name.

If there seems to be any doubt in the mind of the public in reference to this matter Mr. Blaine will, in due time and in his own way, utterly, finally and absolutely dispel that doubt. He is ready to do so now.

When Mr. Blaine was called to the most important place in the Cabinet he wrote, in reply to the President's letter tendering the appointment (which letter clearly outlined the President's views), a statement that distinctly implied in the clearest terms unquestioned and unbending fealty to the head of the administration, and by no act, word or intimation has Mr. Blaine at any time since left his loyalty open to the slightest suspicion.

Mr. Blaine, by virtue of his position, is the chief and most intimate adviser of the President. If the latter will accept renomination he will have no stronger, able and constant supporter than his Secetary of State.

So much for a prediction that the history of the immediate future will amply justify.—Frank Leslie's Illustrated.

"A God-send is Ely's Cream Balm. I had catarrh for three years. Two or three times a week my nose would bleed. I thought the sores would never heal. Your Balm has cured me."—Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Portsmouth, N. H.

SINGLE TAX IN RHODE ISLAND.

In the Rhode Island Senate a week ago to-day, the Single Tax occupied the attention of that body for nearly an hour. Senator Garvin, early in the session, had introduced an amendment to a chapter of the Revised Statutes providing for the exemption from taxation of personal property and improvements. The committee to whom the bill had been referred reported in favor of postponing action for a year. Mr. Garvin called the bill from the table, and made an address in its behalf, which the Providence Journal says "The Senate listened to with patience and courtesy, and then consigned to the May session." This kills the bill. In his address the Senator brought out a number of good points. He referred to the decrease in the value of farm lands in New England during the last decade, and from that argued that a change of this nature was necessary to ameliorate this condition of affairs. Farms in Connecticut do not pay more than $23 per year over and above expenses. The reason was that the industrial population are treated as criminals. If a man builds a respectable house he is fined say $20 per year as long as he holds the property. A sufficient revenue could be raised without any such imposition. The Senator read from an article written by President Andrews, of Brown University, showing that the Single Tax system would relieve the farmer of a considerable portion of the present burden of taxation. In the State of Rhode Island a land value of $100,000,000 has been created. About half of this value is in the city of Providence; the greater portion of the remainder is in the manufacturing villages, and very little in the hillside farms. By the adoption of this system the condition of the manufacturers would also be improved. Reading from the tax book of the town of Warwick, he showed that under a Single Tax the taxation of the large manufacturing establishments would be greatly reduced. The amount to make up this reduction would come from the taxation of vacant lands in the town of Warwick. With mills, machinery and personal property free from taxation, there would be a great incentive for manufacturers to locate in this State. It would be saying to the manufacturers, you can get land more cheaply and centrally located, because the tax on land values would cheapen land and place on the market vacant lots now held for speculation.—The Standard.

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR.

The President's tour will, we doubt not, be productive of good. The President himself will get new conceptions of the vast interests of the nation, its diversified industries, its varied requirements, its wonderful resources. He will see men of all sections equally loyal in their devotion to American institutions. He will learn that after all, the things in which the people of the two sections differ are few and insignificant when compared with those things as to which they are in hearty agreement.

There is running through all the short speeches made by the President a fervor, a tolerance, a patriotic sincerity for which the people were not prepared. The misconception of the personal character of the President, if it is to be shown to be a misconception, has been due to his public actions and to his messages to Congres. It is difficult to reconcile these recent utterances with the message sent by the President to the last session of Congress, or to believe that the man who is ready and even eloquent when called to the platform as his car passes through the cities and villages of the South is the same man who welcomed the visiting delegates to Indianapolis in 1888 with speeches breathing out threatenings and slaughter to all opponents.

But we do not wish to dwell on these inconsistencies and contradictions; we prefer to listen to such remarks as the President made at Knoxville, at Chattanooga and at Atlanta, and to remember that they came from the President of the United States, the ruler over a great and a united people, and to join with him in rejoicing that the conflict which a quarter of a century ago raged over those fair fields, and thundered from those mountain tops resulted, not in a divided country, but in a closer and a more glorious union.

It is well for a time that there should be a truce to partisan strife, and the President be received in the spirit in which he comes. His words are more than fair; his utterances have an eloquence of their own that is as creditable to the intellect as it is to the feeling of him who utters them. It is difficult to make a short speech and more so to make half a dozen a day. The President speaks well, clearly, concisely, and yet in each address there is something above the common-place; something that appeals to the best instincts of the American people.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE NEW YORK POO BAH.

Why should not Hill run for Governer again? and why should he not be Governor, Senator and President at one and the same time? He is willing, he has proved his capacity to appropriate all the offices that come in his way, and what is to hinder him from being an immortal trio? He is a lawyer—why not make him Chief Justice of the Supreme Court? He is a lightning calculator—why not put him in Porter's place as Superintendent of the Census? He is a funeral orator—why not make him chaplain extraordinary of the United States Government? He is in with the Whiskey Trust—why not make him Commissioner of Internal Revenue? He is a politician—why not put him in charge of the National Democratic Committee? Let's turn the whole concern over to him and let him run it to suit himself. But the great American public is growing very weary of Governor Hill and his everlasting scheming for personal political advantage.—Charleston News and Courier.

I have had nasal catarrh for ten years so bad that there were great sores in my nose, and one place was eaten through. I got Ely's Cream Balm. Two bottles did the work. My nose and head are well. I feel like another man.—C. S. McMillen, Sibley, Jackson Co., Mo.

THE LADIES DELIGHTED.

FRIENDLY BUT TRUTHFUL CRITICISM.

The Philadelphia Telegraph (Tariff Rep.) in its comments on the President's letter to the Commercial Congress, says: "The McKinley bill restricts every market, except the home market, in respect of all our products except our breadstuffs, which other countries cannot do without and live; but according to the Secretary of State, it does not afford a market anywhere for an additional bushel of grain or a barrel of pork raised by our farmers. Its exactions in favor of a single class, the manufacturers, have incensed all countries against us, have made them do what they could to close their markets against us. It has made the coat and every other thing, except sugar, dearer, but it has not increased wages. It has barred the product of foreign cheap labor, but it has done nothing to bar foreign cheap labor itself. It has enormously increased the profits of the manufacturers, but it has added nothing to the wage-rate. All things considered, it was scarcely wise for the President, as the chief of the Republican party, to defend a measure the merits of which are not conspicuously or obtrusively obvious. He would have done better if he argued generally in favor of the good and wholesome principle of protection, and not exclusively in favor of a measure which is an abuse of that principle; or if he said a timely word in support of the restriction of foreign cheap labor, which is overcrowding our labor market and reducing the wage rate."

The May Peterson is at hand with a large invoice of good things. "Marguerite In Her Garden" is a charming picture, and the engraving of the harbor of "The Isle of Wight" is very striking. The opening article "Some Curious Rocks and Waterfalls," by Rodney T. Waterman is capitally written and the illustrations are interesting in the extreme. "A Pretty Room at the Lowest Cost" by Margaret V. Payne shows how an ingenious woman furnished a parlor with wonderful cheapness and the illustrations prove that she made it look exceedingly pretty and artistic. There are two excellent serials running and the remaining articles of the number are all valuable. The fashion plates give new and effective dress designs and the Household department is filled with things worth knowing. Terms $2.00 a year. Ad. Peterson's Magazine, Philadelphia, Pa.

An exchange says there is but one lawyer in heaven. How he got there is not positively known, but it is conjectured that he passed himself off for an editor, and slipped in unexpected. When this dodge was discovered they searched the realms of felicity in their length and breadth for another lawyer to draw up the paper of ejectment, but they could not find one, and of course he held the fort.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES.

Letter in Portland (Me.) Sunday Telegram.

Taxes on personal property and on building and other improvements operate as fines upon industry and enterprise. We need more and better houses, we want large manufacturing and commercial establishments, we want more capital for the development of the wonderful resources of our state, and yet we tax all these things as if we wanted to get rid of them. The tax commissioners evidently wish to reduce the number of dogs in the states for they recommend an annual tax of $1.00 on each male dog. Female dogs being even more objectionable than male dogs they wish to tax $2.00 each. This is sound policy. Too many dogs are a nuisance hence the number must be reduced by taxation. But are houses a nuisance that they should be taxed? Does a man inflict irreparable injury upon the public when he hires masons, carpenters, plumbers, painters, etc., and builds him a house to live in that the tax assessors should come down on him with a heavy fine? Are manufactories employing the labor of hundreds of hands, purchasing our raw material of us and furnishing us with manufactured goods a curse that must be repressed by taxation? Is capital something not needed in this state? Something so dangerous to the community that its possessor must make oath to the exact amount he owns, and be heavily fined for the crime of having saved it? A tax on date trees caused Mohammed Ali's subjects to cut down their trees. A tax on windows compelled the English people to make their houses abodes of darkness. Do we, in like manner, wish to abolish houses, factories, capital, all the works and enterprises of civilized man that we should impose taxes upon them? Do we wish to discourage every kind of honest industry, the saving of capital, the home investment of our wealth by taxation upon industry, thrift and capital?

Every attempt of our state to enforce equitably a general property tax has failed. Every attempt we may make in the future, though aided by the powers of the modern inquisition, will fail. In every country in which the effort has been made it has failed. It always has and it always will fail, because a general property tax is inherently vicious. The sooner we discover this truth the sooner we shall seek the remedy. There is a tax which meets every requirement of a perfect tax, one which is easily applied, which is equitable and just to every one, which will never result in double taxation, which will never discourage industry or the accumulation or investment of capital, and which will not be shifted from producer to consumer or from creditor to debtor. This proposed tax will be explained and illustrated in another paper.

The Landlord Blight in Illinois.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 26.—Fully one hundred and twenty-five, and possibly one hundred and fifty families, numbering in the aggregate at least five hundred people, will take their permanent departure from McLean county, this state, between this date and April 15 next. One large party started on February 24 and will be followed by others. They have chartered whole trains and will join in a general hegira to northwestern Iowa in search of cheaper lands. The great majority of those who will join the exodus are farmers who, most of their lives, have been renters. Many of them, it seems, have been living in McLean county from fifteen to thirty years, and during all that time, in which they have cultivated one of the richest soils under the sun, they have been unable to acquire homes which they could call their own. McLean county is known as the breastpin of the great commonwealth of Illinois. In point of population it is the sixth county in the state. It is noted for its rich soil, its resources and beauty. It is the pride and boast of the whole state. Few counties in the United States possess so many advantages. It is the county to which great orators point as evidence of the nobility of husbandry. But it appears that at last this magnificent garden spot and breastpin of one of the foremost states in America is blighted by landlordism, for the exodus about to take place is due to the fact that farming lands are too high to be profitably cultivated, and, therefore, cheaper and perhaps inferior lands are in great demand.

According to the testimony of a gentleman from McLean, with whom I have just had a conversation, the city of Bloomington, the seat of McLean county, is very largely populated by a class of men who are known there as retired farmers. Many of them live in luxury and ease, and still many others count their fortunes by the million. Its big landlords, its is said, are equal in their exactions to the noted Lord Scully, whose thousands and thousands of acres lie across the border from McLean county. Many of this distinguished gentleman's serfs have escaped from his acres and cast their lot with the landlords of McLean county, hoping thereby to secure greater profits for their labor from "American" landlords, secure in the belief that the methods of the English tyrant were not practiced by the latter. In this they were sadly mistaken, as they have learned to their sorrow, after having labored for many years in developing the richness of the great county of McLean. They found that the American landlord was quite as avaricious as Lord Scully, taking from them all that their labor produced except a bare subsistence. Early in the history of the county the Funks, the Gridleys, the Brokaws, the Stevensons, the Orendorffs, the Ewings, the Vandrstaands, the Kennedys and others probably to the number of a hundred, got hold of the lands in this promising country and by "wise forethought and business sagacity" kept them until necessity compelled thousands to live upon them at terms profitable to the holders.

After all these years of toil, and after witnessing the wonderful development of McLean county, these tenants have at last realized that they must have cheaper lands, hence they propose to go in great droves to Iowa, where "rents" are cheaper than they are in Illinois. They want new landlords, as my friend expressed it, "landlords who will not charge them for house rent, nor more than a dollar or two dollars an acre for the use of land."

There is no place in the United States which affords a better field for single tax laborers than Central Illinois, and particularly McLean county. The five hundred people who have already determined to become the tenants of Iowa landlords are not all of those who are discontented. It is reasonably certain that hundreds of others in McLean and adjoining counties, to escape the grasping greed of Illinois landlords, will follow as soon as they can. In the meantime something should be done toward raising funds to use in sending single tax missionaries through this country. The thousands and thousands of tenants and discontented farmers in Central Illinois were never in a better frame of mind than now to receive the light of the new political economy. The field is a grand one for single tax workers, and it would be a lasting shame to allow it to escape further attention. Something ought to be done at once. Good speakers should be secured to canvass every town and village in the district.—J. F. H., in a letter to the Standard.

Welcoming George to Bermuda.

When Mr. George was talking with his friends about a good place in which to take a complete rest a suggestion was made that perhaps in Bermuda he would find a place where the single tax had never been heard of, and where he would escape all invitations and temptations to discuss the principles with which his name is identified. It seems, however, that the editor of the Bermuda Colonist, the liberal paper of the island, is a single taxer and has been such for years. It was, therefore, an easy task for him to reply to an article in a tory paper of the island, in which Mr. George was alluded to as a "socialist." The reply is the leading editorial in the Colonist for Wednesday, February 4, and is as follows:

The most distinguished civil visitor Bermuda has had for many a day is Mr. Henry George, of New York city—who is comfortably quartered at the Princess hotel. Mr. George was, a few weeks ago, run down by work and sought these islands for rest. Only a short time ago he returned from a lecturing tour in the Australian colonies, where he was received with great enthusiasm. His themes were "free trade" and "single tax." At Sidney, New South Wales, 7,000 people in a drenching rain filled the exposition building in their desire to hear him. It was the arduous work on this trip that largely contributed to his break-down. We can hardly blame the Australians, however, for having given us this opportunity of entertaining so distinguished a public man.

Mr. George is famous the world over as the author of "Progress and Poverty," which advocates the abolition of all taxes save a single tax on the value of land irrespective of improvements. This is the direct opposite of socialism and for this he is no doubt ironically called a "Socialist." The movement his book inaugurated is now forcing itself upon the public attention of the United States, Australia, and England. The next congress at Washington, meeting March 4, will have a dozen single tax members who are also democrats. The democratic party is largely honeycombed with the Henry George idea, and the Colored Farmer's alliance, representing 4,000,000 colored farmers have come out for single tax. Within the past month the mayors of New Haven, Conn., and of Minneapolis, Minn., have declared for the single tax. The Knights of Labor, the great wage-earner's order, have for a year or more been fighting hard to force the single tax to the front.

Mr. George, who is accompanied by Mrs. George and Mr. and Mrs. Simon Mendelson, of New York, will remain here till next month. Were it not that Mr. George's physician recommends absolute rest and freedom from excitement, there is no doubt many of our citizens would be glad to tender him a recognition of their appreciation of his public services in the interest of humanity.

WE can not divide land up equally. That is impossible. We can not make possession common. That would be to destroy civilization. The security of the individual possession of land is necessary.

But possession is one thing. Ownership is another. We can secure individual possession and common ownership by simply following out what we have seen is the democratic principle of taxation. By abolishing all taxes on labor, or the products of labor and taking for the public revenues that value which attaches to land, not by reason of what any individual does, but by reason of the growth and improvement of the whole community.

This is the culmination of the democratic principle—this is the single tax!

IF any thing in human experience, as applied to methods of taxation, is settled, it certainly is the fact that taxation upon personal property never can be made a success. Taxes can be raised from personal property, no doubt; for large sums are thus raised; but that they can not be levied with any reasonable approach to accuracy or equality is demonstrated, not only by conclusive reasoning, but by the more conclusive fact that they never have been thus levied.

THE mode of taxation is, in fact, quite as important as the amount. As a small burden badly placed may distress a horse that could carry with ease a much larger one properly adjusted, so a people may be impoverished and their power of producing wealth destroyed by taxation, which, if levied in another way, could be borne with ease.—Progress and Poverty.

ISRAEL'S FALL FORETOLD

LESSON VI, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 10.

Text of the Lesson, Amos viii, 1-14. Commit Verses, 11, 12—Golden Text, Luke viii, 18—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "Thus hath the Lord God shewed unto me, and behold a basket of summer fruit."

In our last lesson we heard Jehovah reminding Israel of the many ways in which He had sought to win them back to Himself. In chapter v, 4, 6, 14, 15, they are repeatedly entreated to seek Him and live. Then they are warned of the day of the Lord and its terrors, yet they conspire against the prophet Amos and refuse to hear his words (vii, 10-13). Now, in a vision, the nation is shown to the prophet as a basket of ripe fruit, ready to be consumed; they will not be warned and therefore judgment must come.

2. "Then said the Lord unto me, The end is come upon my people of Israel; I will not again pass by them any more."

Similar words are found in chapter vii, 9, and in Ezek. vii, 2, 3. Long and patiently He forbears, and lovingly seeks in every way to win them back, but there is a point where mercy stops and judgment must fall.

3. "And the songs of the temple shall be howling in that day, saith the Lord God; many dead bodies in every place; they shall cast them forth with silence."

In Isa. xiii, 6-9, and in many other places howling is associated with the Day of the Lord, and the expression "in that day" found in this verse and in verses 9 and 13 also signifies the Day of the Lord (Isa. ii, 11, 12). The Great Day of the Lord is yet future, and is everywhere associated with judgments upon the ungodly and deliverance for the faithful remnant (see Isa. xxxiv, 8; xxxv, 4; lxiii, 4). But the approaching judgment in the days of Amos was a foreshadowing of the Great Day yet future.

4. "Hear this, O ye that swallow up the needy, even to make the poor of the land to fail."

They were panting for the goods of the poor, that they might fall out of the land. They are described in Prov. xxx, 14, as "a generation whose teeth are as swords, and their jaw teeth as knives, to devour the poor from off the earth, and the needy from among men."

5. "Saying, When will the new moon be gone, that we may sell corn? and the Sabbath that we may set forth wheat."

They outwardly kept these days religiously, but all the time their hearts were longing for the business of the morrow.

"Making the ephah small, and the shekel great, and falsifying the balances by deceit."

Not only were market days better to them than Sabbaths, but they were full of deceit even in business, giving their purchasers short weight and taking from them more than was due. Not scrupling to cheat God out of His appointed worship, they found no difficulty in cheating their fellow man.

6. "That we may buy the poor for silver and the needy for a pair of shoes, and sell the refuse of the wheat."

Compelling the needy to sell themselves as slaves and eat refuse corn. They sold the righteous for silver and the poor for a pair of shoes (chap. ii, 6). They had no heart for God or His commands or His poor.

7. "The Lord hath sworn by the excellency of Jacob, Surely I will never forget any of their works."

"He will remember their iniquity and visit their sins." "The sin of Judah is written with a pen of iron, and with the point of a diamond" (Hos. viii, 13; Jer. xvii, 1).

8. "Shall not the land tremble for this, and every one mourn that dwelleth therein? And it shall rise up wholly as a flood, and it shall be cast out and drowned, as by the flood of Egypt."

This shaking world would be great and sore, but nothing when compared with the great shaking of heaven, earth, sea, dry land and all nations in the day of the Lord (Hag. ii, 6-7; Heb. xii, 26).

9. "And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord God, that I will cause the sun to go down at noon, and I will darken the earth in the clear day."

The physical signs shall happen as accompaniments and intensifications of the awful state of things which the description typifies.

10. "And I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your songs into lamentation."

The mourning, lamentation, sackcloth, baldness and bitterness of this verse all indicate the great judgment that would overtake them because of their sins.

11. "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land; not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord."

Multitudes in our day would not worry much over that kind of a famine. It was just so in Israel.

12. "And they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east; they shall run to and fro to seek the Word of the Lord, and shall not find it."

Blessings lost are apt to be prized when it is too late.

13. "In that day shall the fair virgins and young men faint for thirst."

This is the third reference in our lesson to "that day." In chapter ix, 11-15, observe how it is associated with the national restoration, never again to be broken up; but before that there will be the great tribulation of Jer. xxx, 7; Dan. xii, 1. The sufferings of the captivity were foreshadowings of the time here spoken of as "that day." The fainting for thirst will be because of continued impenitence, for in Isa. xii, 17, it is written, "When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, I, the Lord, will hear them; I, the God of Israel, will not forsake them."

In Lam. i, 18; ii, 21, He speaks of His people as young men and virgins.

14. "They that swear by the sin of Samaria, and say, Thy God, O Dan, liveth; and, The manner of Beersheba liveth; even they shall fall, and never rise up again."

In Deut. ix, 21, the golden calf which Aaron made is called Israel's sin. The calves of Jeroboam at Dan and Bethel were also Israel's sin, and are here called the sin of Samaria. While there is a great and glorious future for Israel as a nation, all individuals who sin against God and die impenitent, whether Jews or Gentiles, shall surely perish. The only way to have life now, real life consisting of forgiveness of sin and fellowship with God, and be able to look forward with joy to the future, is to be in Christ by simple faith in Him, and, turning away from all idols, abide in Him and in His love. We must take heed lest we in any way by unbelief turn away from the only living and true God.

TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, MAY 7.

THE MAY PARTY.

The Tecumseh Bi Club's Party a Brilliant Social and Musical Success.

The May parties given by the Tecumseh Bi Club have lately become strong competitors of the Christmas parties, as successful social events. It is no more than simple justice to say that their fifth party eclipsed all their former efforts. A large and efficient committee was appointed at the outset, the work of preparation was properly divided among sub-committees and the result was that no detail was overlooked or improperly attended to.

The Opera House was never more tastily decorated for such an occasion. Elegant curtains were hung before all the doors and windows. The front of the gallery was decorated with bicycles, three safeties being ranged on each side of the gallery and a tandem in front of the South one. The stage was neatly ornamented with potted plants and flowers.

The committee was very fortunate in their music. Schremser's Detroit Society Orchestra has no superior in the State, and it is frequently called upon to officiate at important society events, at Detroit, Ann Arbor and other interior cities of the State. At eight o'clock the galleries were filled with spectators and the orchestra rehearsed the program as published in last week's HERALD. The selections were all of superior merit and some of them elicited a hearty encore.

After a brief intermission the opening march was struck up and "ye merrie dancers" filed upon the floor to the number of thirty-five couples. The Grand March was led by Will H. Hayden and Miss Florence Cook, of Brooklyn, assisted by Levi C. Hayden and Mrs. E. J. Ware, of Grand Rapids. Some of the evolutions of the march were very elaborate and it was skillfully conducted throughout. The figure of the large revolving star was especially beautiful. In fact the leaders did themselves proud and showed rare skill in their difficult task. To the spectators in the gallery, the intricate figures of the march, the fine music, the rich and elegant dresses of the ladies, all heightened by the glow of the electric lights, presented a labyrinth of beauty that will not be forgotten. After ten minutes marching the line suddenly melted away and the orchestra struck up the initiatory waltz of the regular program. From that time until the "wee sma' hours" of the morning, excepting a brief intermission for lunch, mirth and gaiety reigned supreme.

It was the general expression of opinion that a more tastily and elegantly dressed party never assembled in the Opera House. Many of the ladies dresses were of superior texture and pattern and lent an air of beauty and gaiety to the scene that would have otherwise been impossible.

Miss Florence J. Cook, of Brooklyn, the lady leader of the grand march, was attired in white wool stuff, with gold trimmings.

Mrs. E. J. Ware, of Grand Rapids, white silk, embroidered with blue.

Mrs. Peter Phelps, of Marquette, red satin, brocaded with gold, entraine.

Miss Humphrey, of Adrian, yellow silk.

Miss Grace C. Briggs, pale blue, gold braid.

Miss Sena Hosmer, pink corsage, flowered skirt.

Mrs. Chas. Ham, gray Henrietta.

Mrs. J. H. Oder, navy blue with silver cord.

Miss Louise Phelps, pale blue.

Miss Flora Hartbeck, white wool.

Miss Jennie Price, white faille silk.

Miss Jennie Wirtz, white mulle.

Miss Etta Thorp, cream brilliantine.

Miss Ella Jackson, cream India silk.

Miss Agnes Woodward, white wool, garniture of red pinks.

Miss Minnie Corey, white China silk.

Miss Bertha Bryan, pearl cashmere.

Miss Edna Bryan, white nun's veiling.

Miss Lulu Jones, cream wool, pink flowers.

Miss Olive Blymyer, red Russian net over red satin petticoat, white roses.

Miss Maud Eccles, white grenadine over pink silk, Jacquenot roses.

Miss Elida James, black stripped grenadine, white roses.

Miss May DeWolf, yellow China silk.

Miss Allie Satterthwaite, pink gause.

Mrs. Lester P. Tribou, white gause over pink.

Mrs. George Tiffany, black satin.

Miss Stella Cleveland, white wool.

Miss Anna Doke, cream wool.

Miss Florence Burlingame, cream brilliantine, gold braid.

Miss Bertine Brewer, white wool with silk embroidery.

Mrs. M. L. Root, heliotrope silk, black ostrich trimming.

Mrs. H. B. Root, white corded silk.

Miss Grace Heesen, white wool.

Miss Julia Wood, pale blue veiling.

Miss Anna Osborne, cream nun's veiling.

Miss Susie VanTyne, light blue.

Miss Nellie Heesen, cream cashmere.

The menu was provided by Mrs. Van Antwerp at Armory Hall, and nothing was lacking in that portion of the festivities.

Forty dance tickets were sold altogether and the galleries over-flowed with spectators. Most of the dancers in the village honored the occasion by their presence, and there were quite a number of ladies and gentlemen from abroad. The names of those ladies appear in the above list. The gentlemen were: Peter W. Phelps, of Marquette; Harry J. Kennedy, of Ann Arbor; Ed. Colvin and Benj. Cocker, of Adrian; J. H. Oder, of St. Louis, Mo.; Charles Thompson, of Clinton; Fred. Tiffany, of Orchard Lake Academy.

The committee of arrangements, who had the entire affair in charge, consisted of the following young gentlemen: Walter Burridge, Will H. Hayden, Raynor Anderson, Will Whiting, Charles F. Patterson, Levi C. Hayden, Jas. Boyd, Ben. Garlinghouse, Gus Cummins, Percy Fitzsimmons, Chas. Bidwell, Jr., P. V. Woodward, George Field, Robe Hosmer, Bert Baker, Henry McClure, Thos. McClure, Erastus Ward, Lelma Stewart, Mina J. Hughes.

It is no disparagement to the other members of the committee to say that the chief credit should be awarded to Walter C. Burridge. He secured the music, and with the assistance of Messrs. Hayden and Bidwell took charge of decorating the hall. But all did their share and each one contributed his part to the success of the ball. Where everything ran so smoothly and pleasantly, it would be an idle task to criticise, even if we were so disposed. The fifth May party of the Tecumseh Bi Club may be set down as the last, but by no means the least, of the series.

SIXTY YEARS OLD.

The Detroit Free Press issued its sixtieth anniversary edition last Sunday, which, as a journalistic feat, eclipsed anything ever before attempted in Michigan. It contained 64 pages of the usual seven-column size. The array of advertising was unprecedented, and the reading columns were filled with a most interesting variety of historical and biographical matter, contrasting the Detroit of sixty years ago with the beautiful city of to-day. The history of the Free Press establishment itself was especially full and complete. In fact the whole edition is a "stunner," from the date line on the first page to the misplaced switch at the bottom of the last column on page sixty-four.

These few facts will show the size and character of the great issue.

There were 243 columns of "ads."

These filled a space of 4,860 inches.

Of those "ads," 1,805 were separate, or special "ads."

Among the number were 523 display "ads."

Then there were 1,282 want "ads."

Making a grand total of 1,805, as given above.

The paper, as it comes off the roll, used in this vast edition, if stretched out in a straightaway grand ribbon, would reach 563½ miles.

This is farther than the distance from Detroit to Albany, N. Y.

It takes more than sixteen hours to go from Detroit to Albany via the New York Central.

In the grand edition were 510,000 sheets.

These represented 53,650 pounds of paper.

Or 29.25 tons.

The edition, placed in a special delivery room, occupied 1,960 cubic feet.

They made a grand aggregate of seven tiers, eight feet high, seven feet wide and thirty-five feet long.

In the handling of these papers thirty-three men were employed.

Each paper had to be handled nine times.

The Wolverine Hog Ringer Co. have found it necessary to enlarge their building, to put in new machinery to be used in connection with the foundry. The extension will consist of an addition on the west end of the old shop, twenty four by fifty feet in size, and two stories high. Ground was broken the first of the week and work will be pushed forward to an early completion.

The American Medical Association is in session this week in Washington city. Over two thousand physicians are in attendance, including many distinguished medical lights from abroad. Several Michigan men are down to read papers, among them Doctor Jenkins of this village. The doctor is unable to leave home this week, but his paper on the "Treatment of Spasmodic Asthma," will be read by a member of the association.

Geo. C. Pocklington has rented the Usborne store two doors east of the Herald office, where he will keep a full line of harvesting machinery and agricultural implements. He will sell this season, as last, the celebrated Milwaukee machine, which he claims to be inferior to none in the market. He will also keep on hand a general assortment of drills, cultivators, and other farm implements, and buggies and carriages from the Michigan Buggy Co. of Kalamazoo. He has good roomy quarters and proposes to give the farmers big bargains during the next six months.

A great many remedies advertised, to bring them before the public, who decides whether the article is good or bad. The good reputation which Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup enjoys is a standing guarantee of its merits. Price only 25 cents.

Pains in the back are frequently caused by a sudden wrenching of the spine. A few applications of Salvation Oil will give permanent relief.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

HAPPILY MARRIED.

The Heroine of a Nebraska Blizzard Wedded to a Michigan Man.

Many will remember that one of the heroic figures in the tragedies of the blizzard that swept from Dakota to New York in January, 1888, was a Nebraska school-teacher named Miss Lole M. Royce. She it was who gathered up the only three children who came to school on one of those bad days and started for the nearest house. Two of them froze in her arms and were so found when the party was discovered, while the third wandered away to die. The brave girl's own loss was that of her two feet, amputation being necessary. Her subsequent experiences, however, were of happier hue. Gifts, letters, offers of marriage and congratulations poured in upon her; she spent some time in California, and finally she was married to Charles S. Thomas, of Bay City.

SUICIDE OF A WIDOW.

A Woman Takes Her Life Because Her Betrothed Tires of Her.

Mrs. Ruth Ann McCreedy, of Lansing, a widow aged 46 years and the mother of four children, last fall become infatuated with George Ford, a fruit-tree agent sixteen years her junior. The woman's love for Ford increased as their acquaintance extended, and he apparently reciprocated her affection for a time. They finally became engaged and were to have been married. Lately, however, Ford's ardor perceptibly cooled and he tired of his fiancee. This so affected Mrs. McCreedy that she took her life with poison. She left a note addressed to Mayor Johnson in which she stated that she was dying and requested him to take charge of her affairs and concluded by saying: "George Ford is the cause of my death."

Two Prisoners Killed.

Moses Dennis and Edward Blackburn, two negroes in jail at Monroe awaiting trial on charge of burglary, made a desperate attempt to escape. When Turnkey Tedder went into the corridor where they were confined he was seized by both men, who tried to secure his revolver and keys. In the struggle Tedder was thrown upon the floor, but finally succeeded in releasing his arm and revolver from his assailants and at once opened fire upon them, firing five shots, killing Blackburn instantly and mortally wounding Dennis.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by fifty-seven observers in different parts of the state for the week ended April 25 indicated that cholera morbus, dysentery, whooping cough, diphtheria, typhoid fever and scarlet fever increased, and inflammation of the brain, membranous croup and cerebro spinal meningitis decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at eighteen places, scarlet fever at thirty-two, typhoid fever at nine and measles at forty-five places.

A Mountain of Charcoal on Fire.

A small mountain of charcoal containing over 250,000 bushels was slowly burning to ashes near the Pioneer furnace in Negaunee. The fire, though under control, might burn for a month. The charcoal belongs to the Pioneer Furnace Company, was worth $25,000 and was insured for $15,000.

The Michigan Woman's Press association will hold its annual meeting at Battle Creek June 9, 10 and 11.

The Muskegon lawyers have organized a bar association with Hon. Thomas L. Keating as president.

A new basket factory is to be started at Gobleville with a large force of men.

About 300,000 feet of lumber piled in the yards of D. Wright & Co., at West Branch, were burned.

The Grand Rapids Street Railway Company has made a contract that calls for $180,000 for electrical equipment.

Mark Pepin's house and saloon at L'Anse was burned with a loss of $4,000; insured for $3,100.

Rev. J. A. Ranney, of Kalamazoo, and Mrs. P. Y. Stewart, of Bloomington, Ill., were married. The groom is 82 and the bride 62 years of age.

Work on the new public building at Bay City has commenced.

The Calumet & Hecla pay roll is $200,000 each month. It is the largest in the copper country.

Charles E. Nash, aged 72 years, and a Lansing citizen for thirty-four years, was found dead in bed.

The new Presbyterian church in Bay City will be the largest edifice of the kind in the city, having a surface measurement of 95 by 165 feet.

Forest fires in Clare and Gladwin counties caused a loss of over $125,000.

Fire in the stock house of the Pioneer furnace at Negaunee destroyed $5,000 worth of property.

John Johnson was killed at Reed City by being struck by a piece of an emery wheel which had burst.

Grover Buell's house in Cheboygan was burned with a loss of $2,500; insured for about half.

TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., MAY 7, 1891.

Local and Miscellaneous

Did you attend the May party?

How do you like our new spring suit?

Jud. DePuy, of Detroit, was in Tecumseh over Sunday.

Geo. Heesen is visiting friends in Cleveland this week.

James Updike will have a big auction on his farm next Tuesday.

Our May weather took a serious setback the first of the week.

Business locals are coming in with a rush this week. Read them all.

Mrs. Hattie Hurd is making her home in Tecumseh for a few weeks.

Remember the sale of the Morse property which takes place on the 16th.

Of all sad words of tongue or lip, the saddest are these: "I've got the grippe."

Charley Joslin is home from Detroit for a visit. He is likely to remain five or six weeks.

Mrs. Wm. Smallidge, of Detroit, is spending the present week with her Tecumseh friends.

Editor Blosser of Manchester was in town last Thursday and remained over night to attend the Masonic lodge.

Fred Deuel expects to run his steamer on Devil's Lake again this summer. The season will open about the middle of June.

It is universally acknowledged that the May party was one of the most brilliant society events ever held in the Opera House.

Capable, energetic men wanted by R. G. Chase & Co., Geneva, N. Y. See their ad, in another column. They teach you how.

Mrs. J. M. Getchell was in town a portion of last week. Bro. Getchell and his wife like their new home at Marshall very much.

We are glad to see Samuel Holden out again. He had a pretty severe tussle with the grip, having been confined to the house over four weeks.

A special meeting of the Masonic Lodge will be held to-morrow evening (Friday) for work in the E. A. degree. An invitation is extended to all visiting brethren.

Prof. G. B. McElroy of Adrian filled the pulpit of the Presbyterian church last Sunday, owing to the illness of the pastor. He preached two very acceptable sermons.

The creamery is again becoming a hive of industry with the return of warm weather. It has one hundred patrons now and by the first of next month it will have two hundred.

The Masonic lodge held a very fine third-degree meeting last Thursday evening. One of our leading business men was the honorary guest of the occasion and the boys did the candidate full justice.

Uncle George Sheeler, of Cambridge, was in town last Monday and of course he gave the HERALD a call. He is enjoying remarkably good health for a man of his years and is apparently good for many years on this earth yet.

There was quite a frost in this section Tuesday morning, which did considerable damage to some of the early varieties of fruits.

Ice cream and cake will be served by the Epworth League in the Methodist Church parlors, Saturday evening. Refreshments ten cents. Come one and all.

The tulip tree on B. J. Bidwell's front lawn presented a beautiful appearance on Monday, being covered with blossoms, but the cold snap Tuesday ruined its beauty.

Advertising pays both buyer and seller. We sold out the entire lot of White Spreads, advertised last week, in four days. Hosiery sale this week. Come early.—Anderson & Co.

Munson P. Henry, of Easton, Md., is spending two or three weeks among old friends about Tecumseh. He likes the southern climate well and is now running a grocery store at Easton.

A number of the Knights Templar of Tecumseh will go to Adrian next Sunday to participate in Ascension Day services. Adrian Commandery will observe the day with appropriate services.

Prof. Skinner went to Detroit last Monday and secured a job for the kid band to play at the G. A. R. encampment to be held there next August. He made a three days' engagement for the boys.

James Cook of Raisin was in town last week. He is travelling this season for the Studebaker Bros., of South Bend, and has charge of the entire state of Michigan. We predict his success.

Uncle Billy Bresie went to Manitou Beach last Monday to overhaul his cottage, plant onions etc., for the summer campaign. Great activity prevails at the Beach and the season promises to excel former years.

A tent of the Knights of Maccabees has been organized here. It will be known as Tecumseh Tent, No. 142, K. O. T. M. The final organization will be perfected at a meeting this evening and a full list of officers chosen.

The special sale inaugurated last week by Anderson and Co. proved to be a winning card and the series will be continued for some time. They give the public due notice of what is coming by a change of ad each week.

The next meeting of Macon Grange will be on Friday, May 15th, at 7:30 p. m. All members are requested to attend this meeting, as the question of adjournment will come up for discussion and all members should be present and vote one way or the other.

F. A. Dewey of Cambridge drove down to Tecumseh yesterday and remained over night with his daughter, Mrs. Keeney. His health has been very poor all winter but he hopes to regain his strength with the approach of warm weather. He favored the HERALD with a short call.

The Detroit Times proposes to outdo itself in the gift line. By reading and paying for the Times two months the subscriber will receive two beautiful domestic pictures in ten colors, two engravings, war views, and the anniversary supplement and G. A. R. Souvenir. This book will be the finest effort of its kind ever published in Michigan.

H. E. Fox has opened his new laundry in the Cook building and is now ready to "do up" all the linen that comes. He has had considerable experience in this line of business and people who favor him with their patronage can rely upon getting first-class work. As this is a much needed enterprise we feel confident that our citizens will give it a liberal support.

Mr. and Mrs. Fay W. DePuy of Grand Ledge, Mich, spent last week with their many Tecumseh friends. The DePuy Bros. have bought the most desirable location in Grand Ledge and will build a new bank immediately to accommodate their rapidly increasing business. The building will be built of Ionia free stone, and will be thoroughly modern in all its appointments.

We have received from the secretary of state, Daniel E. Soper, the twelfth annual report of the State on farms and farm products. It is a very valuable compendium of statistics, showing up the agricultural resources of this great State to the best advantage. No one can study the tables in this report without coming to the conclusion that Michigan is the best farming state in the Union.

The HERALD greets its readers this week, attired in a new dress. Last January we got some new body type, which we have been using since on the editorial page, to test it. The type has worked so nicely that we purchased an additional invoice and this week the whole paper is set in the new type. It is the same body as the old, a brevier size, but it has a smaller and cleaner cut face and makes a very handsome page. We believe our readers will appreciate the improvement.

E. F. Kirchgessner opened his new jewelry store yesterday, and is now fully armed and equipped to receive his share of trade in the jewelry line. Mr. Kirchgessner is a practical watchmaker of several years experience, and hence is fully qualified to do all kinds of small repairing in a superior manner. He will also keep in stock a large assortment of watches, silver ware and other articles of a similar character. We welcome him to Tecumseh and believe he will prove a valuable addition to our business circles.

Jas. F. Cummins of Toledo is in town to-day.

Social and supper at the Baptist Church this evening.

The Circuit Court is in session this week at the county seat.

W. P. Cotton has a new card this week. Macon people will please take notice.

Fred Tiffany was at home from Orchard Lake last week to attend the May Party.

M. J. Tremaine is working up a fine trade with his sugar cured hams and shoulders.

Miss Hattie Dodds of Detroit was the guest of P. S. McKinnon's family a part of last week.

Miss Ada Henderson of New London N. Y. was the guest of Miss Hattie Woodard Wednesday.

B. J. Slater is now station agent at the Mackinaw depot. He is exactly the man for the place.

Wm. McCowen swings out a new card this week. If you miss reading it, you will certainly miss it.

Mrs. H. B. Root and her mother Mrs. Colgate spent a couple of days this week with friends in Adrian.

Rev. W. H. Babbitt has been quite ill for several days but we are glad to learn that he is now improving.

Among our new ads this week is one from Mac G. Fritz. Though modest in size, it is both useful and truthful.

Scove Walker was down from Brooklyn a portion of last week and timed his visit to take in the May party.

Manager Sutton was complimented on all hands for his admirable arrangements to accommodate the May party.

Miss Minnie Morrison has been obliged to leave school on account of ill health. She will probably return in the fall.

This is the season for new advertising and our readers will find it to their advantage to peruse the advertising columns with care.

Horace Weller was taken suddenly and seriously ill one day last week, but he rallied in a day or two and is now on the road to recovery.

Mrs. T. H. Mosher announces her summer opening May 12 and 13. You are cordially invited. Dont forget the place, first door east of the McClure grocery.

Rev. J. E. Parker of Adrian filled the pulpit of the M. E. Church last Sunday. He gave a portion of his sermon in the morning and finished it at the evening service.

The members of the programme committee of the Farmers' Union Picnic and all others interested are requested to meet at the HERALD office Saturday evening May 9th, at 7:30 o'clock.

D. L. Whitnack and Co. have got a corner on the kerosene and gasoline trade, and every housekeeper in town will be benefitted thereby. For full particulars consult their new card in to-days paper.

The W. R. C. will hold a social on Monday evening May 11th, to celebrate their second anniversary. The members of the G. A. R. Post and the S. of V. are invited to participate, and the public generally are invited to attend.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman visited Detroit last Monday to procure an additional lot of late spring styles for her already well filled rooms. Ladies wishing to purchase millinery will do well to bear this fact in mind and give her a call.

Mrs. Clara Hall, the venerable mother of A. D. Hall, was ninety years old last Monday. She enjoys good physical health and is in full possession of her mental faculties, which is somewhat remarkable for a woman of that age.

The millinery opening of Mrs. T. H. Mosher Tuesday and Wednesday May 12 and 13 promises to be a fine affair. The greatest attention will be paid to every one. The store is nicely fitted up with new goods. You will miss it by staying away.

We learn that Walter and Chas. Heck have purchased a photo gallery at South Bend and they will soon take their departure for that city. Walter is one of the best artists who ever handled the brush or camera in this town and we are very sorry to lose him. But we heartily wish him success in his new field of labor.

The changes in the interior of the Lilley House are now completed and they will be a great improvement. The stair way and hall now occupy the central part of the second and third stories, leaving space for three large rooms with windows on the north side of the building. When the painting and papering is finished, it will add very much to the appearance and convenience of the hotel.

Special services were held at St. Peter's Church last Monday evening at which time Bishop Davies made his annual visitation. The liturgical services were conducted by the Rector, assisted by Rev. A. Reeves of Clinton. At their close the Bishop made a very eloquent address, urging his hearers to faithfulness in keeping the divine commandments. The Bishop is a very easy and yet impressive pulpit orator and his sermon was listened to with wrapt attention. The rite of confirmation was then administered to two young ladies, followed by a few words of admonition and advice to the candidates, and the services were then closed. A large and interested congregation was present.

Tecumseh is to have a new jewelry store, which prompts neighbor Kempton, of the Addison Courier, also a jeweler, to remark that "three places will do business on tick instead of two."

The Loyal Legion will be held at the W. C. T U. Hall Saturday May, 9th, at 2:30. A good programme has been prepared. Saturday afternoon meetings free to all. Cordial invitation is extended to the parents, and all friends of the cause.

By the tenor of a letter received from H. M. Temple of St. Paul we infer that he is prospering in business and enjoying life generally. His business quarters are now in the Germania Life building, one of the stately blocks in the city. If we ever get as far west as St. Paul, we shall surely look him up and renew old acquaintance.

Co. C. had their regular drill Tuesday evening. As Doctor Tefft, who is a member of the company, was expected home from Washington on the night train, the boys prolonged their drill until train time, met the Doctor at the train and escorted him to his home. Dr. Tefft expects to open an office and begin the practice of his profession here at once.

The Masonic fraternity of Tecumseh will observe Decoration day this year in a more formal and extensive manner than ever before. They will hold their observance on Sunday, June 7th. The following committees have been appointed to have charge of the affair. On arrangements: J. A. Boyd, B. J. Garlinghouse, C. F. Field. On flowers: Ladies of the O. E. S. On records, locating and marking: Alfred James, W. C. Jordan. The brothers will meet at the lodge room at 2:30 p. m. and the public exercises will be held shortly thereafter. A full program will be given in due time.

DEMANDS OF LABOR.

Fewer Hours of Toil and More Wages Asked For.

May-Day Strikes in Many Cities—Illinois, Iowa and Indiana Miners Generally Suspend Operations—Labor Troubles Elsewhere.

IN ILLINOIS.

DUQUOIN, Ill., May 2.—Every mine on the prairie was closed down Friday morning and 1,400 miners and mine laborers came out on a strike for eight hours a day and weekly pay. All the miners south of here are out. Other points in the Illinois coal fields report a quiet condition of affairs. In Saline, Henry, Mercer, Vermillion and St. Clair counties not a mine has stopped operations.

DANVILLE, Ill., May 2.—The large coal mine operators at Grape Creek have suspended work indefinitely, throwing 1,000 men out of employment.

IN IOWA.

OTTUMWA, Ia., May 2.—The coal miners' strike is general throughout southeastern Iowa and covers the Des Moines valley coal fields. Miscreants set fire to shaft No. 7 of the Consolidated Coal Company's works at Oskaloosa and $100,000 worth of property was destroyed. The miners in the employ of this company had refused to join in the general strike of May 1. Attempts were also made to burn other shafts.

IN INDIANA.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 2. — Two thousand miners in Clay county went out yesterday. Building is stopped in Terre Haute by the carpenters' strike for nine hours at thirty cents. Friday the bosses offered twenty-five cents, but the men would not accept. The brickmasons and hodcarriers also went out for higher wages. These are the only labor troubles of importance in Indiana.

IN OHIO.

COLUMBUS, O., May 2.—The miners and operators of Ohio have adjusted their difficulties on a basis of seventy cents for mining in the Hocking valley and a nine-hour day. The scale for machine mining was left open for future adjustment between the operators and miners interested. No strike or trouble is anticipated in Ohio fields for the next year.

IN MISSOURI.

ST. LOUIS, May 2.—The carpenters and joiners have once more scored a victory against their employers. Two years ago they fought for thirty-five cents an hour and an eight-hour day and won. Yesterday they asked forty cents an hour and got it.

IN PENNSYLVANIA.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 2.—The strike in the building trades for eight hours was inaugurated yesterday. The number of men known to be out are: Carpenters, 1,800; stone masons, 700; bricklayers, 600 or 700; slateroofers, 400. Between 5,000 and 6,000 railroad miners of the Pittsburgh district went out pending an adjustment of wages, their strike having nothing to do with the eight-hour question.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., May 2.—The proposed general strike of the Pennsylvania bituminous miners has been indefinitely declared off, and the work will therefore continue as usual.

IN NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The battle of organized labor for the eight-hour workday in this city began yesterday. About 4,000 men in the building trades struck work. The housesmiths' union led the fight for eight hours, while the framers' union made a demand for an increase of five cents an hour.

THE DIRECT TAX.

List of the States and Territories Reimbursed and the Amounts Received by Each.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The following payment has been made by the treasury department up to April. 30 on the act of March 2, 1891, to reimburse the states and territories the amount of the direct tax levied under the act of August 5, 1861:

Arkansas, $156,272; California, $208,427; Colorado, $22,190; Delaware, $70,772; Illinois, $956,761; Indiana, $719,144; Kansas, $60,982; Maine, $357,702; Massachusetts, $696,108; Michigan, $420,865; Minnesota, $86,924; Missouri, $646,958; New Hampshire, $181,891; New Jersey, $382,615; New York, $2,313,331; North Carolina, $377,836; Ohio, $1,332,026; Tennessee, $392,012; total, $9,282,636.

Detroit's Big Tunnel.

DETROIT, Mich., May 1.—The first sod of the tunnel between Detroit and Windsor was turned at 11 a. m., Thursday 1 mile back of the river on the Michigan Central line. The mayor and several aldermen from Windsor were present, but there was no general celebration of the event.

Served Him Right.

WACO, Tex., May 2.—William Reel, of this city, who confessed to having slandered honest men and women, was whipped, ridden upon a rail, tarred and feathered and ducked in a pond by a posse of citizens.

Premier Rudini Gives Up.

ROME, May 4.—Premier Rudini says that while Italy's claim in the New Orleans massacre case is just, he will leave it to the judgment of public opinion, and will have no more controversy over the affair.

His Mother Pays His Debts.

LONDON, May 4.—Queen Victoria has placed £300,000 at the disposal of the prince of Wales with which to pay his creditors. The government decided that it was inopportune to ask parliament for a grant.

Found His Mother.

CHICAGO, May 4.—After seventeen years of separation Henry Pierce found his mother on Saturday by accident at the union depot in this city, where for a long time she had been selling apples.

Short in His Accounts.

TOLEDO, O., May 4.—William H. Cook, clerk of the police court, has confessed to the mayor that he is short in his accounts from $20,000 to $25,000.

STEM THE PAUPER TIDE.

No Room for Bad Foreigners—Secretary Foster to Enforce the Owen Law.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Secretary Foster has decided to stop the influx of foreign paupers and criminals notwithstanding several defects of the recently passed immigration law which were regarded as making it practically inoperative. Representative Owen, of Indiana, got up the law and inserted a provision that there should be a superintendent of immigration at a salary of $4,000 a year, but while thus fixing the amount of the salary the act failed to specifically appropriate the $4,000 necessary to pay the salary. Attorney General Miller has therefore ruled that the office of superintendent of immigration cannot be filled, as there is no way of paying his salary. It appeared to put an end to enforcing the law, for the entire theory of it was that the superintendent was the special officer to execute the law. Under these circumstances it has been feared by the treasury department that there could be no means of damming up the tide of pauper and criminal immigration which is flowing into this country.

Secretary Foster has concluded to take the office of superintendent of immigration upon his own shoulders, and has made his first ruling in the case of Josef Piasecki, landed in New York by the Lloyd Steamship Company. He is a cripple and so deformed that it is evident that he could not earn a livelihood. He has no money and no friends, and Secretary Foster ruled that the penniless cripple would have to be returned to Germany at the expense of the steamship company, unless the company furnished a $20,000 bond that Piasecki would never become a public charge.

Assistant Secretary Nettleton has gone to New York to make further arrangements to carry out Secretary Foster's plan of stopping immigration.

MILITARY AND MOB.

They Encounter Each Other in Several European Cities.

FORMIES, France, May 2.—There was a bloody collision here last night between miners and the police, in which seven persons were killed and twelve wounded.

PARIS, May 2.—A mob threatened the police station at Clichy and a pitched battle ensued in which four policemen were wounded and all will probably die.

ROME, May 2.—May day was a day of riot and bloodshed in Rome. Several conflicts took place between workmen led by anarchists and the authorities. Two men were killed outright and a number were fatally hurt, among whom was Sig. Cipriani, the anarchist leader.

FLORENCE, May 2.—The police of Florence dispersed a mob of 1,000 workmen, who fled, but broke all the store windows on the routes of their flight.

LONDON, May 2.—There was not a sign of Labor day here, and dispatches received here from all over the continent report as quiet a day as could be expected. Berlin advices state that everything was quiet, most of the workmen going about their occupations as usual. The Hungarian government forbade all demonstrations and processions and the police vigilantly enforced the order.

PROFITS OF THE SUGAR TRUST.

Net Earnings of $4,000,000 in Six Months in the Monopoly's Coffers.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The recent decline in American Sugar Refining Company's shares is attributed to the fact that the Havemeyer interests sold out all their speculative holdings above 90 and desired to get the stock down so that they might buy again. The company's earnings for the six months ended with June will not fall short of $4,000,000. This is at the rate of $8,000,000 for the year, and the most active season of industry is yet to come. On this basis the company, after paying $600,000 interest on the $10,000,000 of bonds which it proposes to issue and $175,000 as dividends on the $25,000,000 preferred stock, would have $5,650,000 to divide among holders of the $25,000,000 of common stock, or considerably more than 20 per cent.

SWEPT BY A HURRICANE.

A Tornado Wrecks Over 100 Buildings at Paducah, Ky.

PADUCAH, Ky., May 4.—Between 5 and 6 o'clock Saturday evening a hurricane with heavy rain and hail swept into this town from the west. The funnel-shaped cloud characteristic of tornadoes was present. In a few minutes the streets were rivers of water. One hundred buildings were either totally wrecked, moved from their foundations or unroofed. Mrs. Henry Meyers and her three children were badly cut by flying glass and debris on Third street.

Poisoned by Drinking Water.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 1.—The entire family of Louis Marble, eight in all, are at death's door from drinking poisoned water from a well long unused. One child died in ten hours after being taken sick and the indications are that at least two of the other cases will prove fatal.

Home Again.

CHICAGO, May 4.—B. P. Hutchinson returned to the city Saturday evening at 7:20 o'clock on the Chicago & Eastern Illinois train from Terre Haute, and was around his usual haunts in the neighborhood of the board of trade Sunday. Mr. Hutchinson would not talk about his trip.

Coinage During April.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Director Leech's statement of coinage during April shows that 117,000 gold pieces were coined, of the value of $1,920,000; 4,438,000 silver pieces, of the value of $2,893,000, and minor coin amounting to 2,072,000 pieces, of the value of $50,400.

Hanged by a Mob.

FRANKLIN, Tenn., May 4.—An unknown negro quarreled with a circus employe Wednesday night and then shot and killed Policeman Davis, who attempted to arrest him. A mob took the negro from jail and hanged him to a convenient tree.

SEEING THE SIGHTS.

Progress of the Presidential Party on Its Journey.

The Chief Magistrate Cordially Welcomed by Throngs of Enthusiastic People—Scenes and Incidents Along the Route.

HIGHLY HONORED.

MONTEREY, Cal., May 1.—President Harrison's reception at this place Thursday showed no abatement of the enthusiasm with which he has generally been greeted on the coast. He and the other members of the party spent the night at Delmontes, from where a delegation of the leading citizens of this place, headed by the mayor, escorted him to this city. Delegations from Salinas and Pacific Grove also were present. On arrival at Monterey the procession was met by a large delegation of school children, who strewed their path with flowers and led the way to the schoolhouse, where the public exercises were held. Mayor Hill, of Salinas, delivered the address of welcome, and on behalf of the three cities presented the president with a solid silver card containing an engraving of the old custom-house, inscribed as follows:

"Old custom-house where the first American flag was raised in 1846; greeting to our president, April 30, 1891."

The president replied in a brief but graceful speech. Postmaster-General Wanamaker and Secretary Rusk also made addresses. The party then drove to Cypress Point, where they had luncheon and spent the day.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—The president and party returned from Santa Cruz shortly before noon Friday. When the ferryboat reached the landing a committee of citizens headed by Mayor Sanderson met the party with carriages and the president, Postmaster-General Wanamaker and Secretary Rusk were taken to the rooms of the chamber of commerce, while others of the party proceeded to the Palace hotel, where they had lunch. President Harrison, accompanied by a committee of business men, ascended to the rooms of the chamber, followed by members of the commercial organization of the city and of the Mexican veterans, California pioneers, and scientific and other associations. President Taylor of the chamber of commerce then delivered an address of welcome, to which the president responded.

The banquet at the Palace hotel at night in honor of President Harrison was attended by 250 guests. The affair was conducted on an elaborate scale and was the closing feature of the president's visit to this city.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—President Harrison obtained much needed rest Sunday. In the morning he attended the First Congregational church. The rest of the day he remained in his rooms. In the evening he crossed over to Oakland, where his train was waiting, and shortly after midnight started for Portland, Ore.

FOUR VICTIMS.

Terrible Result of an Explosion of Powder in New York City.

NEW YORK, May 2.—An explosion of powder in a little one-story structure in the rear of the building at 902 Union avenue, near One Hundred and Sixty-second street, caused the death of four persons Friday and severely injured another. There were two small buildings back of 902, both occupied by George Kreamer, a manufacturer of fireworks, who lived over the store in the front building. Kreamer employed about a dozen young girls and two or three boys. Just before 3 o'clock in the afternoon there was a flash in one of the buildings, in which there were at the time six or seven persons. Three of the girls were stunned and blinded by the explosion and almost in a moment were burned to death. They were: Lillie Hammond, 19 years old; Mary Lynch, 17 years old; Jennie Harpley, 17 years old; Lottie Horn, aged 14.

Big Fire in Scranton, Pa.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 4.—A special from Scranton, Pa., says: Fire destroyed the barns of the Scranton Electric street railway, with over thirty cars damaged. The Republican building and many other buildings close by, St. Luke's Episcopal church and rectory and the Young Men's Christian association building had narrow escapes. The total loss will reach over $200,000.

Arbor Day in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, May 2.—Arbor day was becomingly observed by most of the public schools. Trees were planted in the school-house yards and literary programmes were gone through with by the pupils. At the high school class day and arbor day were celebrated jointly. Dispatches received denote a general observance of the day throughout the state.

Tragedy on a Train.

VIENNA, May 2.—A passenger on an express train between Cracow and Semberg, Thursday night, drew two revolvers and demanded the valuables of his three fellow travelers. The demand was resisted and two of the men were killed by the robber, who then jumped from the train and escaped.

A False Report.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., May 2.—Members of the Alaskan exploring expedition sent out a year ago from New York under the guidance of Hazard Wells have arrived here, thus contradicting the report that the party had perished.

The Failure Record.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 255, as compared with a total of 247 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 211.

Couldn't Stop Drinking.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 1.—A. B. Barnes, a young man of this city, committed suicide because he could not stop drinking liquor.

GOOD LOOKS.

Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the Liver be inactive, you have a Bilious Look, if your stomach be disordered you have a Dyspeptic Look and if your Kidneys be affected you have a Pinched Look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alterative and Tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures Pimples, Blotches, Boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at J. J. Orr's Drug store, 50c. per bottle.

MARVELOUS ENDURANCE.

The vast amount of labor performed by the heart in keeping all portions of the body supplied with blood is not generally known. It beats 100,000 times and forces the blood at the rate of 168 miles a day, which is 3,000,000,000 times and 5,150,880 miles in a life time. No wonder there are so many HEART FAILURES. The first symptoms are shortness of breath when exercising, pain in the side or stomach, fluttering choking in throat, oppression, then follow weak, hungry or smothering spells, swolen ankles, etc. Dr. Franklen Miles' NEW HEART CURE is the only reliable remedy. Sold by Baker & Hall.

Rev. P. S. Henson, D. D.

The Eloquent Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago, Does Suffering Humanity a Great Service by Telling His Experience with a Great Family Medicine. Read:

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability. "Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was indicted by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way. "Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used. "One of my sons, who has long been a sufferer from Catarrh, has received like signal relief from his old enemy. P. S. HENSON. "Chicago, Dec. 10, 1890."

GERMETUER cures by killing the disease germ and thus removing the cause. It is a specific for Catarrh, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Lung, Blood, Liver, Kidney, and Bowel Trouble. IT IS WOMAN'S BEST FRIEND, regulating all irregularities. It builds up from the first dose. For sale by druggists, or will be sent anywhere C. O. D. for $1.00 per bottle (concentrated, which makes one gallon medicine).

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I decline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world today.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault. Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

Reliable man wanted for Tecumseh and vicinity. Good pay to right party.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

A little dinner party was in progress down below,
While above-stairs, in the nursery, was a lonely little Fred.
"There is nothing left to do!" he sighed. "That clock is very slow,
And when nurse does finish supper, she will put me straight to bed!"

"Now, if they'd let me play with that!"—he looked up on the wall,
And gently pushed a chair along before him, as he spoke—
"I really would not mischief it, or worry it, at all,
And I feel quite pretty certain I could mend it if it broke!"

About five minutes after this, the door-bell rang, and low
The servant to the master whispered: "Sir, he's at the door—
The messenger you rang for." Replied the master, "No;
He's made some stupid blunder." And he thought of it no more.

Five minutes passed; a sound of wheels; the servant came to say:
"The carriage is a-waiting, sir, belike it's come too early,
But the man is very positive you rang for a cuppay."
"I didn't," said the master, and his look and tone were sur.y.

In the same mysterious manner a policeman came and went,
And a doubtful look was growing now upon the master's face;
An idea had occurred to him of what the mystery meant,
And he was just preparing to follow up the trace—

When, lo! "A burst of thunder-sound"—the engine drew up proudly,
Close followed by the hose-cart; and dire confusion grew.
But the master from his door-step, by shouting wildly, loudly,
Was in time to stop the deluge, and 't was all that he could do.

Straightway to the alarm he went, and captured Master Freddy,
Who sobbed: "I only gave it such a little, little jerk!
I didn't mean to start it—just to try if it was ready;
I wanted—all I wanted was to see if it would work!"

—Margaret Vandegrift, in St. Nicholas.

AN AWFUL EXPERIENCE.

The Memorable Ride I Took in a Paris Omnibus.

As I think of it now, though it occurred six months ago, I grow for a moment quite red with indignation and righteous anger at the thought that Joe should have caused me to be the laughing stock and amusement of all that crowd of grinning Frenchmen and Frenchwomen.

This feeling soon disappears, however, and the ludicrousness of the whole situation comes over me. I can see the puzzled conductor and the highly-amused countenances of the whole 'busful, and I just lie back in my chair and laugh until the tears roll down my face.

It is no more than a just compensation that I should be able to laugh at it now; for I am sure that at the time, while others evidently thought the occurrence very funny, I could not see anything but that I had been frightfully outraged, and that others were making sport of me—all through Joe's forgetfulness, too; that was the hardest part of it all.

I am not going to exaggerate or color my account of what took place, a single bit—it is not in the least necessary; and though to some it may seem that I have done so, I want to state that such is not at all the case; the following is simply a literal rendering of a funny experience that Joe and I had in a Paris 'bus when we were over to see the "exposition."

We were on our wedding-trip. I only mention this as showing, I think, that J. was all the more culpable to so completely forget all about me; if we had been married longer, I do not think that I should have taken the matter nearly so much to heart. Still, I suppose I ought to have remembered that Joe was given to fits of deep abstraction; he is an artist, you know.

It was a Porte Maillot omnibus, that starts near the gate of the same name and proceeds straight down the Champs Elysees, that J. and I boarded one lovely morning in June. We were in a great hurry to get down into the city, and as there only happened to be one seat vacant downstairs, J. suggested that I take it, and he would climb on top. In Paris, the outside as well as the inside of the conveyances is utilized for carrying passengers; and very novel and pleasant riding it is when the weather is warm, as you can see so much of the city from your elevated position.

Pretty soon the conductor came around to collect the fares, and when he asked for mine I told him in my very best French that my husband, who was upstairs, would pay it. When he had finished his collections downstairs he mounted "en haut," as the French would say, but in a few moments returned to me saying he could find no man on top who would acknowledge to having a wife downstairs whose fare it was his duty to pay; he declared he had asked everyone in turn.

Suddenly it came over me that of course poor J. did not understand what the conductor had said to him, as a thorough knowledge of the French tongue was not one of his accomplishments. I opened my purse and found a five-franc piece, which I offered for my fare, saying I thought it possible that my husband did not comprehend his demand. Whether it was that the sight of my five-franc piece appalled the conductor at the thought of having to make change to that amount, or whether it was the spirit of gallantry that they say is inherent in every Frenchman's breast, I never knew; but he suddenly turned on his heel, at the same time saying, loud enough for everybody in the 'bus to hear him:

"Madame, you do not look like an impostor. If you say you have a husband upstairs, I believe you, and will find him and compel him to pay your fare; it is his duty. The idea of a husband deserting the little madame in this way! It is a shame! Put away your money, madame, I will not have it; it is the money of monsieur I want." And before I could utter a word of explanation he had darted up the stairs at the back of the 'bus.

Pretty soon everybody in the 'bus was conscious of a tussle going on on these same stairs, and we could see the conductor forcibly pulling along a most irate little Frenchman, who was gesticulating in the wildest manner, at the same time giving vent to his feelings in the most expressive French. He declared he would have both the conductor and the woman who was trying to palm herself off as his wife arrested by the very first gendarme he saw. He would find out whether there was no protection for a respectable father of a family riding to his place of business in a public conveyance; it was an outrage of the most audacious kind, and somebody would have to suffer for it.

The conductor appeared just as calm as the old gentleman was excited, and never said a word in return, only tightened his grasp on the coat-collar he was holding, and never stopped his pulling and tugging until he had the old gentleman standing right in front of me; then he inquired in a loud voice: "Madame, is this man your husband?"

"Oh, dear! No!" I replied, in a shaking voice, almost ready to cry. "You have made a dreadful mistake! Please do take my fare out of this!" again presenting my five-franc piece. "My husband certainly does not understand you; that is all."

My evident distress must have mollified the old gentleman somewhat, for he slipped away quietly, only stopping once on the stairs to shake his fist at the conductor and call him "an old fool," which I certainly thought he richly merited; for why in the world would he not take my fare as I was begging him to, and thus have no more fuss about it?

By this time everybody in the 'bus was intensely interested in the proceedings. Old gentlemen laid aside their morning papers as if they had no further interest in them, and gave their glasses an extra rub so that they might have a better look at me; while fat old ladies nudged each other and chuckled. Even the babies stopped crying suddenly, to see the fun, for everybody seemed to feel that more was coming. As for myself, my face kept growing redder and redder, until I knew from the burning sensation that it must be a flaming scarlet; while instead of wanting to cry, I felt possessed of a strong desire to shake somebody—whether the conductor or J., or both, it did not much matter.

As soon as the old gentleman had escaped from him, the conductor, nothing daunted, and taking no notice whatever of my outstretched hand with its appealing five-franc piece, started for the stairs, repeating: "I go to search for the husband of madame."

All necks were craned forward as this time he appeared in view, leading, in the same captive manner, a tall, lean, lank, individual, apparently half scared out of his wits. All this poor fellow could say was: "Monsieur le Conducteur, I assure you I have no wife. I assure you, sir;" while his knees knocked together and his legs trembled so violently that he could hardly stand upright.

His feeble protest did not save him, however; he also was marched up in front of me; and the same question asked in the same loud tones; and when I made the same answer, disclaiming him as my legal protector, everybody in the 'bus tittered audibly at the relieved expression that came over the young man's face as he skipped away, and the puzzled look that settled on the conductor's visage.

If I had been at home and such a mistake had occurred I certainly would have left the car at once; but I did not dare to do so here, as I could not find my way about, and the idea of going boldly up those stairs and discovering J. myself never once entered my head, though that of course would have been the most sensible thing to have done.

The conductor after his second failure seemed dazed for a moment, and stood scratching his head; but in a little while he brightened up, saying: "I cannot stop now, as my honor is at stake as well as madame's, and find monsieur I must;" while several of the passengers cried out: "Bravo!"

Four more innocents in turn were brought before me; one, like the first old gentleman, wildly indignant, swearing dire vengeance on everybody; another was timid and scared; while two of them treated the whole thing as a huge joke, and did their best to afford the passengers all the fun possible, which of course only added to my misery.

Though we had gone some distance no one seemed to think of getting out; consequently no one could get in, as a Paris 'bus never carries more passengers than there are seats. While the people downstairs were enjoying themselves so much at my expense it seems that those on top were likewise having a pretty good time. J. told me all about it several days afterwards, when I had grown less touchy on the subject and could listen to him without flying into a passion.

It seems that as soon as he had found a seat upstairs he drew out of his pocket a book in which he was very much interested, something about "the unequal distribution of wealth among the inhabitants of the globe"—a most engrossing subject, I should say, and when the conductor came around he handed him only three sous, having completely forgotten all about poor me. He positively declares that the conductor never asked him if he had a wife downstairs, as of course that would have recalled me to his wandering senses; also that he knew quite enough French to understand such a demand had it been made; otherwise, how would he have been able to have enjoyed the fun that followed. That he had enjoyed it there was no doubting.

So absorbed was he in his book that he did not become aware that anything unusual was happening, until after the first two men had been led below; and as by that time everybody was laughing and talking so loud, he knew that something must be up, so asked his neighbor what was the joke. This Frenchman, by means of abundant pantomime and few words (J. always understands French when so expressed, quite readily), made him understand that there was a bold, bad woman downstairs, who was trying to make some man upstairs pay her fare; she could not get anyone down there to do it, so had declared that some one upstairs must; said she had a husband upstairs,—which of course was only a trick of hers, only the conductor, who was evidently a young innocent, seemed to believe her, and was trying to find a husband for her. This was the Frenchman's version of the affair. The conductor made several long speeches on top, only J. did not exactly catch their meaning; but, from the way everybody laughed, he judged the conductor must have said something very funny, so thought it would look smarter if he laughed, too. At last, a Frenchman with a little more politeness than the others, rose up, and said it was a shame that just for six sous a woman's fare should not be paid; he would go down and see her. If she was young and at all pretty, he would pay it himself; but if she was fat and ugly, alas! he could not; and as some of the men cheered this gallant little speech he followed the conductor downstairs.

The passengers downstairs, in the meantime, had been growing restless at the conductor's long absence on top; they were all wishing, I suppose, that they had the power to be in two places at once. How their faces did brighten when his legs first appeared in view! And as they saw the stylishly attired young man who was following in his wake, they looked at me as much as to say: "Now something interesting is surely going to happen."

Instead of the conductor leading this man before me, the latter stood in the open doorway, and raising his glass to his eye inquired of the conductor: "Which is the lady?"

"The little one in the blue dress, with the red cheeks, monsieur," replied the conductor; and before I could protest against this new form of insult, the young Frenchman had taken off his hat, and with a profound bow said: "It would afford me the greatest happiness in the world to be allowed the honor of paying mademoiselle's fare," and turning to the conductor handed him six sous. With another profound bow, and a broad grin playing over his face, he was off upstairs, while cries of "Bravo! bravo! Tres bien! tres bien!" went after him.

I tried to get the conductor to listen to me as I told him that he must return the money at once, as the young man was a stranger and had no business to pay my fare, and that I could see no reason why he should refuse to take my five-franc piece. But he only shook his head, and said he was fatigue and was very happy to have at last found a man who was jaunty enough to pay for me; he did not care any longer whether it was the husband of madame or not; the fare was paid, and that ended it—"c'est fini" and he shrugged his shoulders.

We had just two more streets to go before reaching our destination, the Louvre, and as I gathered up my parasol and hand satchel I could see that the passengers were again on the qui vive. As soon as I caught the very first glimpse of J.'s long legs on the top step I rushed out to the back platform; and when he had reached the bottom I grasped him firmly by the arm, demanding to know what he meant by denying I was his wife and refusing to pay my car fare.

The most startled expression came over his face as he stammered out: "Were you the woman they were hunting for a man to pay her fare? O good Lordy!" And he commenced to laugh quite foolishly.

The conductor looked as if he was going to faint as he feebly wailed: "I demanded of every monsieur but this one, and he was reading. Mon Dieu! I was bete."

"Joseph Livingstone (I always say Joseph when I am very angry), you pay my fare at once!—it will probably be for the last time—and take me away from this dreadful 'bus as quickly as you can, or I shall die!" By this time I could hear peals of laughter both from the inside and on top, as many of the passengers from above had crowded to the stairs to see what was going on below.

J., as if in a dream, slowly pulled the six sous out of his pocket and gave them to the conductor, who was looking very crestfallen. As we jumped off the 'bus, followed by the gaze of every passenger, I know they sympathized with me, for they must have thought I had for a husband "un homme un peu toque."

It is needless to say that we did not go to the Louvre to see the pictures that morning, but took a cab and drove straight home instead, where I comforted myself with a good fit of crying, between my sobs insisting that I was going right home to mother on the next steamer.

J.'s miserably dejected air, and his real penitence, had softened my heart by night, so I did not go; only ever after, when out sight-seeing, I never allowed him to become separated from me for a minute, as one funny experience, I thought, was quite enough in Paris.—Anne C. Goater, in Demorest's Monthly.

Don't Worry.

Don't worry, dear friends, because you are not exactly what the world calls great folks. You may not be likened unto great rivers that bear the great vessels, carrying the blessings of the nations, yet you may be what the rivers are not—little springs by the dusty waysides of life that sing merrily all day and all night, and are ready to give their cool draughts to every passing thirsty soul! —A Fortunate Loss.—"After all," remarked Mrs. Hojack, "it's lucky I lost that twenty dollar goldpiece." "How so?" asked her husband, surprised. "I read in a newspaper that you lose two cents' worth of metal off a twenty dollar piece every day you carry it."—Inter Ocean.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh. Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendrill, Perry Co., Ohio.

Remember the Demorest Medal Contest this week Friday evening. A splendid program has been prepared and admission is only ten cents.

The marriage of Miss Carrie Huntington and Ed. Parker was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Huntington Wednesday evening, May 6th., in the presence of a large number of guests. The happy couple have many friends here whom the HERALD correspondent joins in wishing them a long and prosperous life.

If all the skeletons in the closets about town do not receive an airing during the house-cleaning season they are the only things that are exempt, judging from the appearance of things. The sights that greet one's eye nowadays are mainly clotheslines filled with carpets, bed-clothing and garments of bygone generations that should long ago have been relegated to the limbo of the past and outgrown. Lawns are filled with furniture of all sorts and sizes, and erstwhile pleasant homes turned into a veritable pandemonium. Verily, "The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year."

The sickness of Dr. Adam, which was spoken of last week, terminated in his death last Saturday, at 5:30 p. m. The doctor has not been in his usual health for several months and about three weeks ago he was taken with la grippe. For several days he fought it vigorously but was finally obliged to give up, and Dr. Tuttle was called. At first it was thought that he might recover, but his extreme age and weakened condition were against him and from last Wednesday until the day of his death he failed very rapidly. Through the latter part of his sickness he was a great sufferer. He passed away very quietly. Dr. Adam leaves a wife and two daughters, Mrs. Mary Guiwits and Mrs. H. W. Stevens, of Tecumseh, his only son, Channing, having died while studying at Ann Arbor University 30 years ago. The funeral was held at the M. E. Church Monday at 2. p. m. Rev. A. W. Stalker conducted the service, assisted by Rev. H. R. Williams.

Dr. Thomas C. Adam was born in Paisley, Scotland, where his boyhood was spent until entering the University at Glasgow, from which he graduated at the age of 21 years. Shortly after his graduation he came to Rochester, N. Y., where he practiced medicine for a short time, returning in 1828 to Glasgow and practicing in the hospitals there for a period of seven years. He then returned to this country and came to Michigan in its earliest days. In 1836 he married Miss Delia Witherell and settled in Franklin, where the family remained until 1866, the Doctor in the meantime preaching in the cities of Boston, New York, Detroit, Ann Arbor, and in Manchester. Twenty-five years ago they purchased the home where they now live, of W. V. Fisk, and for a quarter of a century the Doctor's familiar figure has been seen on our streets. Who can say how much we shall miss him? Not alone in his bodily form but in the interest he had for his fellows, the good that he wished them, and his desire to serve them, and through them to serve God.

Around the County.

Lenawee is the banner county.

Now is the season for building fences and trimming orchards.

There are three hundred people in Adrian who own and ride bicycles.

Capt. E. P. Allen will deliver the Decoration Day address at Manchester.

Addison will indulge in a business men's carvival on the evening of the 12th inst.

The amended charter of the city of Adrian has become a law and goes into immediate effect.

Addison is growing apace. That burg will have three saloons this year instead of two as formerly.

The citizens of Blissfield want a resurvey of the village. The descriptions of village lots are badly mixed.

An Ann Arbor student received a black eye the other day, while kissing a pretty Brooklyn girl. Oh, my.

The Morenci saloons all closed up the first day of May. What the future will bring forth is still uncertain.

The Adrian wheelmen will have their lantern parade on the evening of May 8th. They expect to make it a brilliant affair.

Experienced fruit growers claim that if no killing frosts occur before May 10th the prospects of a large fruit crop are good.

Grant Fellows, having returned from the south, will take the lecture platform. Subject: What I know about raising whiskers in Florida.

—The reunion of the Second Michigan Infantry, heretofore announced to be held at Hudson this summer, has been changed to Detroit, where the reunion will be held during the national encampment.

The Adrian straw factory managers find it impossible to get enough girls in that city to do their work, and so have rented large floor space in one of the big buildings at St. Louis, Mo., where they will begin manufacturing.

A man near Munson, is afflicted with a singular skin disease, by which his body has become covered with what appears to be fish scales. The attention of the Morenci Black Bass Club is invited to this case.—Adrian Press.

—It is expected the new fast train and two fast freights over the Lake Shore, will be put on May 24th, when a new time card goes into effect. There will also be some slight changes in the arrival and departure of other trains.

The Hudson cheese factory is on the boom. Eleven cheese per day are being made and increasing daily. March cheese sold so as to net the patrons $1.12 per 100 pounds of milk. The prospects are good for a prosperous season for 1891.

Mrs. M. A. Hazlett arrived in town from Lansing, Thursday, and immdiately commenced preparations to re-establish herself and mother at her residence on West Main street. Addison society will welcome them back with outstretched hands, and Addison's interests be benefited thereby.—Addison Courier.

Suit has been begun in the circuit court against the Lake Shore railroad by Arthur Retan, of Hudson, for fifty thousand dollars damages. The suit is based on the accident which happened at Hudson last winter, when the fast mail cut off one of Mr. Retan's feet, and nearly all of the other.—Michigan Messenger.

The Congregationalists will have an experience social at the lecture room of the church next Wednesday evening, at which time there will be sundry and divers experiences. No one knows what the outcome will be, so it would be a good place to satisfy curiosity. All are invited to be present and see the fun.—Hudson Post.

Eight inches of water having accumulated in the basement of the Ridgeway school building, a special school meeting, in solemn conclave assembled, decided that as neither schoolma'am nor scholars could swim and the building was not provided with life preservers, the only course left to pursue, was to drain the water off.—Adrian Press.

Verne Allen, editor of the Morenci Observer, is an old-time Adrian college student, and rises to remark that "Cupid's Hill" is a very appropriate name for the region about the college. Verne knows, for he's been there.—Adrian Messenger. Yes, we know, simply from observation—"only that and nothing more."—Morenci Observer.

Tom Applegate, of the Adrian Times, offers his porch for sale. If he will throw in his bay window he can find a buyer in Hudson.—Hudson Post.

Consider the bay window in the deal, but it cannot be "thrown in." It isn't built that way, but that b. w. will be disposed of half off, quarter off, any way, my boy. Cost will not be counted, the owner is so anxious that it should be going, going, gone!—Adrian Times.

There is a red-hot war between the Seniors and Juniors of Adrian College. The Seniors charge the Juniors with purloining the class cane, which disappeared some time ago, and is apparently gone for good. Then the Juniors lost their new mortar-boards, which have apparently gone to join the class cane, and they charge the Seniors with the theft. The boys are saying and doing some things they will regret later.—Michigan Messenger.

—Letters-patent have been granted Elmer E. Cole and Ogden Cole, of this place, for a wire fence machine, which constructs the wire fence on the posts after they are placed in the ground, and does it in a rapid and substantial manner. Their device does away with the trouble of buying or manufacturing the fence beforehand and then putting it up, and the Messrs. Cole claim this feature makes it less expensive than other kinds of wire fence.—Hudson Gazette.

There is a Morenci family whose history discloses some peculiar numerical coincidences. The husband is seven years older than the wife, the first son is seven years older than the second one. Seven years after the second son's birth a daughter was born. Seven years subsequent the first son was married, and seven years later the second son's marriage occured. There is a difference of seven years in the ages of the son's wives and there are seven children in the family, of whom it may be said that they are never at "sixes and sevens."—Morenci Observer.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich., April 29.—The senate yesterday passed a bill for the purchase or condemnation of the purchase of plank toll roads by electric or street railway companies, and in committee of the whole agreed to the patrons of industry congressional apportionment bill; also a bill regulating the practice of embalming dead bodies, and a bill appropriating $5,000 for the purchase of books for the state library.

LANSING, Mich., April 30.—The bill providing for the election of presidential electors by congressional districts, with two delegates at large, one from the eastern, the other from the western district, passed the senate yesterday. It has already passed the house. The senate also passed the congressional apportionment bill which, as calculated, will give seven of the twelve districts to the democrats.

LANSING, Mich., May 1.—The senate yesterday passed by a vote of 18 to 13 the bill to divide the state into 100 representative districts. This measure, and that providing for the choice of presidential electors by congressional districts having passed both houses now go to the governor for approval. The senate also passed the Bastone general election bill, an almost exact copy of the Indiana law. The committee on the state mining school at Houghton submitted a report warmly commending the work of that institution and recommending a bill appropriating $118,397 for various improvements. Numerous petitions were received from the upper peninsula for the retention of the present law prohibiting the killing of deer in that section except between September 25 and November 15 of each year.

LANSING, Mich., May 2.—The senate yesterday passed bills authorizing the board of state auditors to adjust the claim of ex-Gov. Begole, amounting to $1,000, for expenses incurred in an unsuccessful suit to remove a member of the board of control of one of the state institutions; setting apart Warner island, in Wild Fowl bay, as a public shooting ground; to prevent fraudulent entries at speed contests. A resolution was unanimously adopted indorsing the effort of the United States senate committee now in session at Detroit, to secure closer commercial relations with Canada. Adjourned to the 4th.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., April 29.—The house yesterday passed the Carpenter bill prohibiting railroad companies from abandoning lines and taking up the tracks without paying to the subscribers any bonus they may have received and restoring to the donors the title to any right of way. The Cook bill for a consolidation of the boards of control of the state, public and blind schools and the deaf institute, was passed by a vote of 59 to 33.

LANSING, Mich., April 30.—The house yesterday passed the Richardson bill, which brings all the special charter railroads of the state under the general law for taxation purposes by a vote of 85 to 4. It is claimed by the author that it will bring into the state treasury the additional sum of $500,000.

LANSING, Mich., May 1.—The house yesterday defeated the bill to establish capital punishment for the crime of murder—yeas, 44; nays, 44. The house committee of the whole agreed to the bill which gives $30,000 to the grand army encampment to be held at Detroit next August. The bill providing for the creation of the office of commissioner of toll roads and bridges at a salary of $1,000 a year was passed, also the bill consolidating the cities of Au Sauble and Oscoda under the former name.

LANSING, Mich., May 2.—The house yesterday passed the bill allowing hotelkeepers to sell the baggage of guests who leave without paying their bills. A resolution was unanimously adopted indorsing the effort of the United States senate committee to secure closer commercial relations with Canada. Adjourned to the 4th.

PROF. RIDPATH HONORED.

The Well-Known Historian Celebrates His Fiftieth Birthday at Greencastle, Ind.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., April 29.—De Pauw university, of which Dr. John C. Ridpath is an honored alumnus and ex-professor, joined in honoring the distinguished historian on the occasion of his semi-centennial Monday night. Every seat in Meharry hall was taken, and President John presided. The testimonial took the form of congratulatory and literary contributions from his friends and neighbors, though the more substantial souvenirs of regard were not lacking. The autograph contributions consisted of two handsomely-bound volumes, which were presented by ex-Gov. Cumback in an eloquent address, to which Dr. Ridpath responded with an address and poem. Among the distinguished visitors who occupied seats on the rostrum were ex-Secretary of the Navy R. W. Thompson, who is also an alumnus of the university; Bishop Bowman, its former president; James Whitcomb Riley, Mary H. Catherwood, Alonzo H. Davis, H. W. Taylor, James N. Matthews and Dr. Henry A. Bachtel, late of Denver, Col.

COLLAPSED.

Two Endowment Societies Assign at Philadelphia—One Has Heavy Liabilities.

PHILADELPHIA, April 30.—Two more short-term endowment societies collapsed Tuesday. They are the Benevolent Order of Active Workers and the Bi-Monthly Benefit association. The former has a membership of 1,200 and its liabilities are $120,000. The funds on hand are $7,000. The Bi-Monthly Benefit association's first batch of certificates were to have expired today. Both concerns made assignments Tuesday, after which the supreme officers went into hiding to escape their angry dupes. The deluded members of the Order of Active Workers, whose expectations and hopes of sudden riches were blasted by the assignment of the order Saturday, are after blood. Warrants were issued Tuesday morning by Magistrate Pole for the arrest of Supreme President Edwin W. Harris, Supreme Secretary A. Judson Harris, and Supreme Treasurer Harry C. Gurk. The information upon which the warrants were issued was furnished by Dr. A. H. P. Leuf, who feared the departure of these officers from the city. The men were taken into custody and placed under $5,000 bail.

Kentucky Toughs Kill Each Other.

CINCINNATI, May 4.—A Middlesboro (Ky.) dispatch says: The little town of Walnut Hills, Va., near this city, was disturbed Friday by a sensational and tragic occurrence. For a long time an implacable feud has existed between Jim Jackson, alias "The Chicken Eater," and Jim Crabtree, alias "Big Bulldog," two of the most dangerous and notorious outlaws of the Cumberland mountains. Friday morning they met face to face. With terrible oaths they drew their revolvers and fired simultaneously. Crabtree shot Jackson through the heart, and Jackson's bullet penetrated Crabtree's brain. Both men died instantly.

OBITUARY.

Died, April 24th, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. B. Mize, in Tecumseh, Alva Raymond, in the 71st year of his age.

Deceased was born in Wheeler, Steuben County, N. Y. He came with his parents to Michigan when thirteen years of age. The family found a home in Raisin, settling on the farm now owned and occupied by A. Macham, and with the exception of a year in Wisconsin and a few years in Washtenaw County he has passed the years since then in Lenawee County. He was one of a family of thirteen children, only three of whom are now living. At an early age he was converted and united with the Presbyterian church in Raisin, and was a member of that church at the time of his death. July 9th, 1842, he married Miss Mary A. Iveson, of Woodstock, who died April 27th, 1889. In February, 1890, he suffered a severe stroke of paralysis, from which he never recovered. He was very deaf and that affliction, together with his bodily infirmities, made his life seem at times almost a burden. He longed to go and often expressed the wish that his Heavenly Father would call him home. A short time before his death, when trying to converse with one of the family, which was very difficult on account of his deafness, he said: "It is a great comfort to me to know that in Heaven there will be no deafness. I shall be able to hear as well as any of you there."

He was the father of six children, all of whom survive and all of whom stood around his dying bed and with sorrowing hearts watched him as his spirit took its flight. But they sorrow not as those without hope, knowing that their loss is his eternal gain.

The funeral service was held at the Presbyterian church in Raisin Sunday, April 26th, Rev. L. M. Belden officiating. We laid his body away in the beautiful cemetery in Raisin, by the side of her who was the companion of his life and whom next to his Saviour he so much longed to see. As we sadly turned away we felt not that we were leaving them there alone, for we know that God hath given His angels charge and keeping of their precious dust until the resurrection. M. E. M.

DIED—Early on Saturday morning, May 2d, Leonard Joseph, infant son of Arthur C. and Sarah H. Green of Raisin. The family being all afflicted with la grippe, a complication of other difficulties hastened the death of the little one—just two months of age. A tiny bud plucked to bloom in the Paradise of God. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the entire community, as was witnessed by the large attendance at the funeral, which was held at the residence on Sabbath afternoon at 4 o'clock. The services were conducted by Mary C. Wood, of Tecumseh, and participated in by Edward Mott, a minister and friend of the family from New York.

—A Wheeler and Wilson new No. 9 sewing machine can be bought at a very low figure if taken soon. Call at the HERALD office for particulars.

—We are again enjoying the sunny spring days. It is a pleasure to be out of doors. An opportunity to employ them pleasantly and with profit in a light, paying business is offered by Messrs F. S. Bronson & Co., the nurserymen at Geneva, N. Y. See their advertisement in another column.

NOTICE.

SEC. 301. PAYMENT FOR BOXES MUST BE QUARTERLY.—Postmasters must rent the boxes and drawers in their post offices for one quarter (three months) only, the money to be paid in advance. The Department will insist upon a strict compliance with this regulation. Boxes remaining unpaid for ten days from the expiration of a quarter will be declared vacated.

SEC. 302. BOX TO BE RESTRICTED TO USE OF ONE FAMILY, ETC.—A person renting a post office box is entitled to have the letters of his family put in it. Each box must be restricted to the use of one family, firm, or corporation.

DON'T BE GLOOMY.

Those who are the victims of mercurial poisoning, or who are suffering from mercurial rheumatism, are inclined to take a gloomy view of life when, as the poet says, "Winter is folding its white tents and spring getting its thunderstorms together." Yet these victims have no reason to despair. S. S. S. is a sure remedy for all forms of mercurial poisoning. Though it is purely a vegetable medicine, it is powerful, indeed, when called on to chase mercury, and the last lingering effects of mercury, out of the system. It performs the work with neatness and dispatch, as thousands of testimonials show.

GOOD NEWS

—ABOUT—

HARVEY!

The New Temperance and Manufacturing Town two Miles South of Chicago.

NEW RAILROADS—The Northern Pacific R'y Co. is extending the Chicago Central through the town. An exevated railroad chartered on Halsted street, with $10,000,000 capital stock. A local street car line to be completed in 90 days.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS PROGRESSING.

Two miles of Mason Sewerage already in, and contract let for twice as much more. Contracts have been awarded for paving Park Ave., 151st St., and 155th St. Water-works, side walks, shade treets and street grading to be pushed at once. The above improvements are being made without taxation or expense to lot owners or purchasers, which occasions the announcement that all lots included in Blocks 112 to 126 inclusive, still selling at first prices, will be advanced soon. This is the last chance to secure business or residence lots at first prices within a short distance of the center of the town.

PRICES TO ADVANCE SOON.

☞DO NOT MAKE THE MISTAKE of delaying longer your visit to the "MAGIC CITY," or of making an investment by mail if you cannot come. Spring is here; its just the time to come.

Read What Disinterested Newspapers Say of Harvey:

Last week we announced the coming of a very important railroad on the west side of Harvey, through Blue Island to Chicago. This week we can announce another, the Chicago North and South Elevated Railway, with a capital of $10,000,000. One million is already subscribed. W. C. Goudy alone taking $250,000. The road was projected by W. C. Goudy, J. A. Austin, Geo. C. Newberry, Samuel T. White and others. The proposed route will start at Harvey, about One Hundred and Fifty-Sixth and Halsted Streets. A perfectly straight route along this most populous street will bring Harvey within fifteen miles of the center of Chicago. The road is to be an elevated road and will not be obstructed by cross streets, or east or west lines of any kind. The stock is eagerly sought for, and will be a success.—Chicago Tribune, April 4th.

The thriving suburb of Harvey is getting a reputation for the solidity and permanency of its improvements. * * Last summer a four foot brick sewer was laid on 155th street from Ashland Av. Contracts have been let for a sewer on 157th street from Halsted street to the Illinois Central tracks. This makes nearly two miles already built, about six miles under contract, and two and a half to be built next summer, a total of ten miles of brick sewer in all.—From the Economist, Chicago, March 28, 1891.

REMEMBER!

It is necessary to buy in HARVEY PROPER to obtain ADVANTAGE of the ABOVE IMPROVEMENTS made by the Land Association. $40,000 WORTH OF PROPERTY sold by us to MICHIGAN PEOPLE in the past ten weeks, and yet it can be safely said that every lot sold by us can be resold before July next for an ADVANCE OF FROM 25 to 100 PER CENT. The BEST THING to do is to come and see for yourself. The NEXT BEST THING is to send for corrected plat and make a selection by mail. Only Two Weeks Remain to Secure Choice Lots at First Prices in the original tract of Harvey.

☞Call at our Chicago office by 9 a. m., get FREE TRANSPORTATION, and go with us to see the "Magic City." We are representing Walter Thomas Mills & Co., in Michigan, but all mail should be addressed to us to save confusion and delay.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Chas. Lester is quite sick at present writing.

A good rain fell here last Sunday evening.

Ezra Sink and Fred Dubois are very busy painting.

Geo. Smith visited Adrian last Saturday on business.

M. Hoagland, of Adrian, visited Britton last Sunday.

Dr. Hendershot visited friends in Macon last Sunday.

Dr. Hendershot has commenced work on his new house.

Our night operator is now a daddy. Where are the cigars?

Miss Gertie Saxton was visiting friends in Britton last week.

There is some talk of a celebration here on the 4th of July next.

Report says a new drug store will shortly be started in our town.

Miss Jennie Saxton went home to visit her parents last Saturday.

Henry Miller bought 1335 dozen eggs for W. Lenardson & Son last week.

Tramps have been quite numerous about our village the last few days.

Irv. Hause is suffering from a bruised leg, caused by braking on the road.

F. Brown, of Jackson, was visiting his parents at Britton last Sunday.

We are afraid the HERALD may be getting proud in its new spring suit.

A fight and a broken buggy were the two most exciting events of last week in our village.

Jos. Hunter and his carpenter will commence work on Walter Exelby's barn next week.

Dave Sloan and family are again living in our village and we sincerely hope he will regain his health.

We are glad to say our worthy Elder, Rev. Jas. Wright, is now on our streets again after quite a severe illness.

The person who stole a razor and shaving brush from the hotel office had better return the property, as he is known.

The section hands here, working on the Wabash railroad, put in six hours extra labor on Saturday night, caused by a wreck near Hand Station.

There will be a meeting of the G. A. R. next Saturday evening, to arrange business for Decoration Day. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

F. Brown & Son have now moved into their new store, which they have fitted up in an elegant manner. They are now carrying a larger stock than ever and we are glad to see their business increasing every day.

Rehearsals are progressing finely for the next play, "Never Too Late to Mend," May 29-30. Don't forget the dates. New scenery, strong cast and grand drama. The misery of prison life will be forcibly seen in this drama. Don't miss this grand play, the last of the season. Good music and no waiting between scenes.

B. D. Lefler, general agent for the Michigan nursery Company, of Monroe, Mich., with several men, have been stopping at the Exelby House for several weeks, taking orders for nursery stock. Farmers wishing to purchase nursery stock will do well to give this Company a call, for they send out nothing but first-class stock.

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

A. H. Squier is in very poor health.

John Wisner moved a barn for John F. Spafard lately.

The new dress of the HERALD looks as neat as a new pin.

L. D. Watkins spent several days in Lansing the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Holmes are very much indisposed at this writing.

We are pleased to hear that Richard Green and wife are improving rapidly.

Frank W. Dorr, of Detroit, visited his mother and other friends hereabouts last week.

Geo. Taylor, of Chelsea, was in town last Saturday on business. Mrs. D. W. Morgan has been sick but is much better.

George Huber narrowly escaped serious injury by a fall from a timber while assisting at Fred Maurer's barn-raising on Friday.

The Rev. Wm. Cope, of Fleming, Mich., exchanged with R. L. Cope, last Sabbath, preaching in the M. E. Church in the morning and at Sharon Center in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fellows, of Ypsilanti, attended the Baptist Association, which convened at Chelsea the fore part of last week; then came to Manchester to be present at the Farmers' Club held at Frank Spafard's on Friday, May 8th.

NOTICE.

Sec. 301, Payment for boxes must be quarterly.—Postmasters must rent the boxes and drawers in their post offices for one quarter (three months) only, the money to be paid in advance. The Department will insist upon a strict compliance with this regulation. Boxes remaining unpaid for ten days from the expiration of a quarter will be declared vacated.

Sec. 302. Box to be restricted to use of one family, etc.—A person renting a post office box is entitled to have the letters of his family put into it. Each box must be restricted to the use of one family, firm, or corporation.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

James Campbell, of Essex, Clinton Co., visited relatives here last week.

Last week's HERALD was the neatest issue of the paper for five years past.

W. J. Helm, wife and daughter, of Britton, spent Sunday with his parents.

Mrs. Will Harrington, of West Clinton, is visiting at Mrs. Wilson's at present.

W. L. Jones is at the front, having planted one piece of corn last week Thursday.

Ella M. Hall, of Brooklyn, N. Y., arrived Tuesday noon for a short stay with her mother.

Miss Dora Dewey, of Cambridge, was the guest of Miss Jennie Underwood during the past week.

W. J. Candlish and Joseph Billmeyer, Jr., who are attending college at Adrian, were in the village Sunday.

Minnie Barrett closed her school Thursday morning until Monday, on account of measles in the school.

H. J. Williams opened up the slating business for the season by repairing the Opera House roof at Tecumseh, the first of the week.

There was a large attendance at the L. C. S., held at the home of Chas. Underwood on Friday evening and an enjoyable time passed by all.

Mrs. Ella Waring, Mrs. Addie Kelley and Miss Ella Pattison went to Hillsdale Tuesday, as delegates to the W. C. T. U. 2d District Convention this week.

The annual missionary services will be held next Sunday. Rev. Oscar Willitts, of Detroit, a returned missionary from China, will be here to assist in the services.

There was a large attendance at the social at Mr. Chas. Underwood's last Friday night. The programme was very interesting and a pleasant time enjoyed by all. Proceeds, $3.64.

The mothers meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. John Arner, Supt. of the meetings, on Thursday afternoon of next week. A cordial invitation is extended to all, as some new members will be received.

F. J. Temple, who has been taking a course in pharmacy through the national lecture course, was in Ann Arbor last week, before the board of examiners of the University, and was one of 32 out of the class of 64 who passed the examination.

One by one the old landmarks pass away. The last one in our vicinity was the old orchard on the John VanVleet farm, west of the village, which has been cut down. It was set out by Mr. VanVleet's father, Peter P. VanVleet, upwards of sixty years ago, when this was a wilderness.

The Library Association was made the recipient of upwards of 80 volumes of books of ancient and modern history, biography, etc. The valuable gift came from Wendell Bush, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and is a collection of very fine works. It will be appreciated by the students of the village school very much.

The ladies' church social will be held at the home of Mrs. J. F. Temple on Friday evening, May 22d. The following program will be presented with the addition of appropriate music furnished by committee:

Essay "Our Physical Life"—D. W. Loree.
Reading—Miss Flora Chase.
Recitation—Miss Fannie Miller.
Reading—Mrs. W. R. Wilson.
Recitation—Miss Florence Beasley.
Charades.

MACON MUSIC.

Mrs. Will Chambers has the measles.

House-cleaning is the order of the day and as usual cats are very scarce.

Robert Bard and William Pratt visited friends in Deerfield last week.

M. V. Sickley is in the State of New York, introducing his famous washing machine.

There was no school last week on account of the sickness of the teacher, Miss Celia Brewster.

Mrs. Lavinia Jackson went to Tecumseh Monday to visit G. W. Jackson and family for a few days.

Through the management and influence of John Howell the school is to have a flag in a few days.

Decoration Day will be observed by singing and speaking, after which the graves of comrades and friends will be decorated.

Rev. Baldwin, of Deerfield, occupied the pulpit of the M. E. Church last Sunday by request of Rev. Stalker, who is in Detroit.

M. V. Sickley has been making some very necessary improvements on the interior of his house, also adding an elevator to the cellar.

Milan Sage has been enlarging his tile and clay shed and will soon be making what everybody knows to be the best tile in the country.

Mr. Kyle moved his household goods to Tecumseh the first of the week, where he expects to work at his trade, cigar making, the coming year.

The farmers are putting in fifteen hours a day now plowing, as it is time corn was planted. On account of rain and mud work is behind on clay ground.

Dr. Morden has a new sidewalk. After so much talk about building sidewalk by subscription, only about six rods have been built and that at the expense of Dr. Morden and Bradley, Scudder.

After the first of July Ace Smith will carry the mail, as he has the contract and bonds secured. Mr. Burgess has filled the bill to the letter and we regret that he could not afford to carry the mail for nothing. But in this country a man must be rich to hold office.

RAISIN RACKET.

The HERALD's new spring suit is a daisy.

Most of the corn in this part will be placed in Mother Earth this week.

Prof. White and Miss Edwards spent the Sabbath with Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Hathaway of Hudson.

Charles Williams had quite a serious runaway—at least Charles thinks so, from the way he is bruised up.

Rev. Edward Mott, of Glenn's Falls, N. Y., has been visiting here and attending Quarterly Meeting during the past week.

Rev. David J. Lewis will move his goods and family to Tecumseh to-day. What is the Valley's loss is Tecumseh's gain, and may the good work that he has started in Tecumseh continue and much good be accomplished.

Mrs. Sarah Mead returned to her home last Thursday, from a long visit with her sons at Manistee and Holly, and we are very glad to say that her health is very much improved under the treatment she received at her son's, Dr. R. T. Mead's.

THE S. W. FARMERS' CLUB.

The May meeting of the S. W. Farmers' Club was held at Frank Spafard's, three miles west of town, on Friday afternoon, May 8th. Elba Farm never presented a handsomer appearance than on that day. The green fields and the trees arraying themselves in verdure and bloom formed a beautiful setting for that fine old homestead, where skillful hands for more than half a century have busied themselves upon its adornment.

After the social which precedes the business meeting, the President, S. M. Merithew, called the club to order and announced the program.

Miss Mary Hitchcock read an interesting selection of press clippings, consisting of references to incidents in the lives of Mrs. Polk and C. H. Spurgeon, a sketch of the remarks of Dr. Thomas, of Chicago, at the funeral of Emma Abbott, Longfellow's first poem, a bit from one of Tennyson's poems, the history of trademarks and of the Scotch thistle, and several spicy anecdotes, all short and judiciously chosen.

Wm. E. Pease read his essay on "The Farmer in Society and Politics." Whoever has had the pleasure of listening to one of Mr. Pease's productions is certain that he never fails to deliver a logical, well-written paper and one drawn from experience and reflection. A synopsis, here, would not convey an adequate nor just impression of that excellent paper.

The question box next enlisted the attention. It will be impossible in this limited space to reproduce all the questions, so a few must suffice.

To the question—"Shall women vote?"—D. W. Palmer said he always maintained that taxation without the right of franchise was unjust and foreign to the policy of a government that allowed foreigners with neither education nor property to vote.

B. F. Mattison replied to the query: "Why is the apple crop a failure?" "Lack of fertilizers, ravages of the codling moth, too close setting of the small trees and decay of wood consequent upon the pruning of large limbs."

"What makes the best fence?" B. G. English said if one has long rails to use, build a straight fence with them; but when buying new material he considers a fence of boards and barb wire the best fence. He replied to a question as to the advisability of dehorning cattle in the negative. Thought nature had very wisely provided cattle with horns and it was a cruel proceeding to remove them.

W. E. Pease did not like the idea of removing the front yard fence, because it seemed more public and less like a home.

C. M. Fellows, of Ypsilanti, a former club member, was present and joined with others in discussing the various questions under consideration.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—B. G. English.
Vice-president from Manchester—W. E. Pease.
Vice-president from Bridgewater—H. R. Palmer.
Vice-president from Sharon—S. M. Merithew.
Secretary—Mrs. John F. Spafard.
Treasurer—Amariah Hitchcock.
Com. on Program—Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Pease and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Spafard.
Com. on Membership—Messrs. Frank Spafard, M. B. Wallace and J. G. English.

The Club, after partaking of most delicious refreshments, supplemented by ice cream, and listening to music upon the piano by Mrs. Eva Spafard, adjourned to meet at S. M. Merithew's, on Friday, June 5th.

Kyle, marshal, $10.50; and the following for street labor:—Dell Hubbard, $28.75; George Snell, $12.50; John Blessing, $12.00; John J. Hubbard, $11.25; Bert Bartholomew, $14.38; Edward Haines, $1.25; Chas. F. Skinner, $1.25; Chas. F. Skinner, Jr., $.63. Albert Hyde $29.50.

The liquor bonds of Jacob Cheever and Keyser & Kennedy, each in the penal sum of $4000, with two sureties, were severally presented and on motion approved and declared sufficient.

The resignation of H. E. Stout as a trustee of the village of Tecumseh, was read and on motion accepted.

W. P. Spalding asked permission to put a sign across the side-walk. On motion his request was referred to the street committee.

The question of putting in a steam pump at the water tank was referred to the committee on Fire and Fire Limits.

The president filled the vacancies in the standing committee's caused by the resignation of Mr. Stout by placing Mr. Heck on the committee on finance, Mr. Field on the committee on ordiances, and Mr. Bidwell on the committee on fire and fire limits, the said committe's being now constituted as follows:—

Finance—James, Smith, Heck.
Ordinances—Heck, Bidwell, Field.
Fire and Fire Timits—Bidwell, Shull, James.

A request was made that a street lamp be put on Brown street, West of Union street.

NEW BUSINESS.

The finance committee reported favorably on the above bills as read and on motion the report was accepted and orders directed drawn for the several amounts.

On motion George Heesen and Jehiel Davidson were appointed members of the board of review.

The council then adjourned.

CLARA SHEFFIELD, Sec'y.

Card of Thanks.

ED. OF THE HERALD:—Please allow me once more a little space in the columns of your paper to make mention of another pleasing incident which occurred on last Wednesday afternoon, by which we, as a pastor's family, were enriched by the bounty of the good people of the Reformed Church of Macon. They had conceived a plan, and carried it into execution well, to visit their pastor and family and spend an afternoon with them. They came en masse, with buggies and carriages and well-filled baskets of provisions, taking by complete surprise the dominie and his household. After a couple of hours of social enjoyment the provisions were served and a most bountiful supply it proved to be of the good things of earth. After the repast a neat speech was made by Mr. G. W. Harriott and a purse was presented to the pastor, containing $25, as a token of respect and love. Provisions of many kinds and varieties were left when the company departed, all making our hearts glad. These are some of the joys a minister's life affords, for which we desire to express our heartfelt thanks. J. I. GULICK.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, MAY 14.

Many honest, intelligent men believe that the tariff is a tax, while many others, equally sincere, believe it is not. But if the tariff is not a tax, then what's the matter with sugar?

President Harrison is having a gay and festive time in his swing around the circle. Would that he might make the patriotic sentiments expressed in his neat little speeches the basis of his political action hereafter.

The Illinois plan of electing U. S. Senators and the Michigan plan of choosen Presidential electors, would, if hitched together, make a mighty strong team. Both are destined to become popular, because both respect the rights of the people.

The "Michigan Plan" of choosing Presidential electors is just as legal, fair and equitable as the present plan of electing Congressmen. No political leader of any party would be so foolhardy as to advocate the election of all Congressmen from this State on a general State ticket.

The American Wool Reporter says that the strongest argument for free wool is to be found in the recent importations of wool. These imports have increased enormously since the duties were raised, and indicate, it says, that our American mills must have access to the wools of varied soils and climate to produce the variety of goods which the market demands.

The "Michigan Plan" is attracting much attention and is meeting with very general favor. The Boston Republic says of it: "While the existing electoral system prevails, the district plan comes nearest to the people. It secures to every voter a voice in the college. We should be glad to see it adopted in other States besides Michigan. It will be a stepping stone to the plan of election by the people."

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat (Republican) admits that the Republican party lacks "an influential and widely read press," and that the "young men, and the sons and founders of Republicanism are either acting with the Democratic party, or at least they are not actively supporting the Republican party." "This," it adds, "is both a warning and an indictment. A party which lacks an influential press and young, progressive men, has a fatal cause of dissolution, and is threatened with quick destruction."

The Richmond State says: "Grover Cleveland ought to be, and we believe he will be, the Democratic standard-bearer in 1892. He is the leader in the great Democratic issue of tariff reform; he is a statesman, honest, bold and wise. The man for Vice-President is John W. Daniel, Virginia's foremost orator and statesman. True, Daniel and Cleveland hold opposite views on the silver question. But on every other question they are close together, and represent perfectly the Democratic party. The silver agitation is very active, and the issue is important; but the Democracy has more important issues than silver, and we cannot afford, therefore, to let silver divide us.

The Macon (Ga.) Telegraph, (Dem.) quotes what the Evening Post has said about the new silver law influencing gold exports, and adds: "The Evening Post is a single standard paper, and its views as to exports of the precious metals are influenced by its prejudices, but in this particular matter it may be right. The present silver law does not strengthen the position of silver, because it does not restore any of its old rights, but it does increase the stock of silver money not worth its face value as bullion, and for that reason is more dangerous than the old law, if, indeed, there be any danger that gold may go to a premium. It has always seemed to the Telegraph that free coinage was safer than a compromise which continued the disabilities under which the white metal has suffered since 1873 while adding largely to the volume of silver money."

"THE MICHIGAN PLAN"

Causes Much Interest and Comment All Over the Country.

This editorial comment upon the new electoral law in Michigan is from the Boston Globe:

The Republicans of Michigan are greatly incensed at the law which provides that presidential electors of that state shall be chosen by congressional districts, each district choosing its own presidential electors as it does its congressman. They characterize it as "an outrage." The only reason for considering it an outrage is that it will prevent the Michigan republicans in 1892 from casting the entire electoral vote of the state for candidates who are supported by less than half the vote.

Who can say that the "Michigan plan" is not more fair than the unit rule which prevails in all the other states? Where was the justice in casting the entire electoral vote of New York for Harrison and Morton, as was done in 1888, when more than half of the voters of that state cast their ballots for other candidates? Had the electoral vote been cast in proportion to the popular vote, Harrison would have received 16 votes and Cleveland 17; or, possibly Harrison 18; Cleveland. 17, and Fisk, 1. That was the way the people voted, and that would have been the truest and justest way to represent them in the electoral college; but, as a matter of fact, Harrison received all the 36 electoral votes, and Cleveland and Fisk none. Michigan, also, and in many other northern states, a majority of the people voted against Harrison, yet Harrison got all the electoral votes. It needs no argument to prove that it would be more fair to choose electors by congressional districts, which would give both sides representation in the electoral college nearly in proportion to the popular vote.

If anybody now proposed to elect on one ticket all the congressmen that any State is entitled to, so that the party carring the state at large should have all the congressmen of that state, he would be considered a fool. Yet there is no argument to justify the present mode of choosing presidential electors that would not apply with equal force to choosing congressmen.

The practical advantage of such a change as Michigan has inaugurated are obvious. It would take it out of the power of one or two doubtful states like New York and Indiana to determine absolutely the result of an election. It would make at least half the area of the country debatable ground, and prevent the concentration of corruption funds, where they can buy the presidency, as was done in 1880 and 1888. Most presidential elections are practically decided in three or four congressional districts in New York and Indiana, because a change of a few thousand votes there means a gain of 36 or 51 electoral votes to the side that wins them. The Michigan reform that would make those congressional districts of no more importance than any others, and every district won and bought would have one electoral vote and no more. In short the Michigan plan would make it more impossible for corruptionists to Wanamaker a presidential election.

Some republicans, thinking only of the possible loss of advantage to them in Michigan, have hastily denounced the new plan as unconstitutional; but in fact its constitutionality is complete and beyond question. The constitution says that each state shall appoint its presidential electors "in such a manner as the legislature thereof may direct." Any state legislature, therefore, may order the electors chosen by congressional districts. In point of fact the electors in South Carolina were formerly, and down to very recent times, appointed by the legislature.

All the recent republican presidents have been minority presidents. There is a profound feeling among the people that this should not continue; and the "Michigan plan," if adopted throughout the country, would be a near approach to electing the president by popular vote, without the disadvantages of the latter plan. Something certainly ought to be done, and done at once, to make the presidential election of 1892 more truly expressive of the people's will than was that of 1888.

A TAX ON REAL ESTATE ONLY.

Last year, while Mayor of Boston, Mr. Hart appointed a commission to devise an improved method of raising revenues for municipal support. The Commission submitted its report to the Boston City Council last week in which the recommendation is made, in brief, that Boston's revenues shall be derived by a tax on real estate only, and that all forms of personal property be relieved from taxation. The report is summed up as follows:

In short, we believe that if the total tax levy should be laid upon real estate, and personal property wholly exempted from taxation, the State has a whole, would be more prosperous; labor would be better employed and better paid, and real estate, in spite of the greater burden laid upon it, would increase in value more rapidly than in the past, and would be a better investment than it is.

The Boston Globe enthusiastically endorses the recommendation of the commission, and says that the new idea, if adopted, "would prove so popular that other cities, and eventually the whole State (of Massachusetts) would adopt it." It then goes on to say:

There is a great deal to be said in favor of the plan. Boston would then become the most attractive city in the country for wealthy people to live in and for business men to start new enterprises in. Here alone could they be assured that they would not be taxed on anything but their land and buildings. Perhaps eventually it might be found advantageous to exempt the buildings also. Such a course would certainly do a great deal to "boom Boston."

A reporter of the World visited Tax Commissioner Coleman last Monday, and solicited his opinion on the recommendation of the Boston Commission. The Commissioner said it expressed the views he had entertained for the past twenty years. Personal taxation, he held, drives away capital, as was proved by his statement before the Fassett Committee, which showed that this city lost several hundred millions annually through this cause. As to where the line between the improvements of real estate and personal property should be drawn, the Commissioner said that which was movable and not essentially a part of the real estate he would consider personal property.

THE GREAT ISSUE GROWING.

The new converts to free trade fairly get the rabies in their zeal. Here is an organ warning democrats that they need not rejoice over emancipated sugar; it's none of their free trade. To be sure the idea of untaxing sugar because it cannot be produced here and paying a bounty to encourage its production is wholly republican. Barring this kind of logic and its sequence it is pure democratic reform.

When this one item, free from taxation, reduces prices to the consumer and causes such general rejoicing, why do not the organs advocate the untaxing of other commodities like coarse carpet wools and tin not produced here and not likely to be (with a bounty contingency). Why not make similar provisions for other articles which are under precisely the same conditions in relation to production and the tariff?

But Mr. McKinley said in his campaign addresses the people would not stand direct taxation in the form of bounties. The red tape and sophistry that is woven about the tariff fools them. And this has been the mission of the party for the last twenty years, to fool the people, and it has been most systematically and successfully fulfilled, until we see to-day in this broad, free and fertile country a class of millionaires whose treasure calls every year for more figures to express it, and an impoverished class of agriculturists groaning under the burden of toil and debt. And still they pipe the same old song into the ears of labor, but labor does not listen with the old-time trust and confidence. It sees more and listens less. It will take no back track. When Mr. McKinley says "the party" knows its greatest danger to be in the Farmers' Alliance, he augurs understandingly. The injustice of unequal taxation lies at the root of the farmers' trouble and he begins to fully realize the fact. The issue cannot be worn threadbare while the fact exists. Free sugar is all right; now for free wool, free salt, free tin and "free trade," with tariff for revenue only. Mr. Blaine's reciprocity tinkering is one step in the way of education. It has dealt the prohibitive-protection wing of his party a death blow. So far, the scheme has achieved nothing but a deal of maneuvering with the pen on the part of the secretary, who has garnered all the glory of the Harrison administration. It is no wonder that republicans pray that the tariff issue may be dropped and something—almost anything—be substituted. Their party iniquity is rooted in the monopoly-protecting tariff, a tariff as hotly denounced by Grant and Garfield as Democrats denounce it to-day.—Toledo Bee.

THE WOOL TARIFF SNARL.

News comes from Philadelphia that the carpet manufacturers and importers are alarmed by the prospects of being assessed double duty on the bulk of their imports of raw material. This danger confronts them as the result of a recent order of the Treasury Department directing the appraisers at the various ports to enforce the "sorting clause" of the McKinley Tariff law against this class of imports. This sorting clause provides that all wools which have been sorted or increased in value by the rejection of any part of the original fleece shall pay twice the duty to which they would otherwise be subjected. This act was originally designed to exclude English sorted wools or matchings, but as it was soon discovered that it would apply equally to every pound of Australian wools used by American mills—because these wools are improved in conditions by skirting, which is a rejection of the refuse portions of the fleece—a provision was inserted in the Tariff law exempting these skirted wools, as heretofore, from the operation of the sorting clause.

Ninety to 95 per cent. of the wool used by the carpet manufacturers of this country is imported. Not 10 per cent. of the American wool production can be used in the manufacture of carpets. If the sorting clause shall be arbitrarily applied to all of the East India and other foreign wools that are brought here for this purpose the Bromleys, the Dornans, the Dobsons and all the big mills in New York State and New England will have to pay 64 per cent. and 100 per cent. duty on their raw material instead of 32 and 50 per cent. as originally intended by the McKinley law. The effect upon the carpet men can be readily determined. The prices of carpets must be advanced in proportion to the senseless increase in the cost of wool.

It is thought that the Treasury decision was made at the instigation of the Ohio wool growers, backed by some importers who are loaded up with wools brought into the country under the old duties, and who expect to realize large profits from the sale of their stock should the decision be allowed to stand. The new appraisement has already been applied to several importations to this city and the Philadelphia appraisers have received instructions to take similar action. Many of the leading carpet manufacturers are indignant, especially those whose stock of material is low; and one firm—Sheble & Hill, of Philadelpha—say that this action will weaken the Protectionist sentiment in the wool trade and among the manufacturerers, who find their interest sacrificed to the gratification of the ultra-protective theories of the wool growers.—The Standard.

CLEVELAND AS A CANDIDATE.

Mr. Cleveland is evidently the strong man for the Democratic nomination. The situation is such that there is no other strong candidate, because under the circumstances to abandon Mr. Cleveland is to say that he does not represent Democratic views and policy. But it is because he is supposed to represent them that public confidence has largely returned to his party. That belief made Republican defeat easier last autumn. If a vote against a Republican candidate for Congrss had been thought to be ultimately a vote for Governor Hill, for instance, many a Republican candidate would have been elected who was defeated. No intelligent Democrat, it seems to us, can doubt that Mr. Cleveland would be the strong candidate. But nominations are not logical, and depend upon many things besides the general desire and expectation of a party. Indeed, the rule of important nominations is the selection of an available candidate, and available has a negative significance. It means less a real leader than a candidate without a record. It takes account of the fact that votes are cast for every kind of petty reason, and assumes that a positive prominent public man has probably made a host of enemies by the very acts and words which have given him distinction. This, however, does not change the fact that the abandonment of Mr. Cleveland as the Democratic candidate would give the greatest possible satisfaction to the supporters of President Harrison.—Harper's Weekly.

DEMOREST FOR JUNE.

How many really graceful people do you know? Are you graceful yourself? Do you know the proper and most graceful way to go up and down stairs, to walk, to stand, to sit, to bow, etc.? If not, be wise, and immediately read the article on "Health, Grace, Beauty: Delsarte Philosophy made Practical," published (with 33 illustrations) in the June number of that thoroughly wide-awake periodical, Demorest's Family Magazine; and you will want to begin practicing the exercises almost before you finish the reading. But it would be necessary to give the whole "Contents" in order to tell all the interesting things contained in the June number, and every number is quite up to the present high standard; and this valuable Family Magazine is published for only $2 a year, by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 East 14th St., New York.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

HOW TO GIVE LABOR ITS FULL EARNINGS.

Mr. J. H. Walrath, of Milwaukee, Wis., does not understand how society can take by taxation part of the wealth created by labor, and yet leave to each man his full earnings. He writes as follows:

The single tax platform declares "that each man is entitled to all that his labor produces," also, that the single tax would "solve the labor problem and raise wages in all occupations to the full earnings of labor."

Now, under the present system of private ownership of land, does not labor produce not only the wages paid to labor, but also interest realized for use of capital, profits to employers of labor, rents paid to landlords on land and the buildings thereon, and also all the taxes collected for the support of all governments, whether economically or extravagantly administered?

On page 40 of "Progress and Poverty" Mr. George quotes Adam Smith as follows:

"The produce of labor constitutes the natural recompense or wages of labor. In that original state of things which precedes both appropriation of land and the accumulation of stock, the whole produce of labor belongs to labor." And on page 156 Mr. George says: "Where land is free and labor is unassisted by capital, the whole produce will go to labor;" and on page 125 he formulates the produce problem thus: "Produce equals rent plus wages plus interest."

Now, under the single tax system the revenues for the support of government will be realized from land rents, but will it not be true then, as now, that such rents will be included in the total production of labor? And if so, then how can the adoption of the single tax result in giving "to each man all that his labor produces" and "raises wages to the full earnings of labor," as indicated in the platform?

All produce is divided into three parts—rent, wages and interest. It is a confusion of terms to speak of a further division into profits, or two kinds of rent. Profits is a term meaning partly wages of superintendence, partly interest. Rent is the payment for the use of land only; payment for the use of a house, as distinguished from the land it stands on, is interest, not rent, for a rented house is capital, it is wealth in course of exchange. As for taxes, they are drawn from either rent, wages or interest. The primary division of the entire product, therefore is always into these three parts, rent going to the landowner, wages to the laborer, interest to the capitalist.

Interest, the reward of capital, is earned by capital, capital being labor stored up in the form of wealth, and used in producing more wealth. Interest, therefore, is not drawn from the earnings of labor and does not reduce wages.

Economic rent is that part of the total product which represents the increased power with which the community, as a whole, aids the individual. Land bears no rent until the presence of population, the growth and improvement of the whole community, have made some locations more valuable and productive than the best locations which can be had free. By guaranteeing to certain individuals the exclusive possession of locations which it has rendered valuable, society increases their product. The excess of their product over that which the same application can secure from the least productive land in use is rent. As it is not the result of extra application of either labor or capital, rent is not part of the earnings of individuals. Therefore, taking rent for public purposes will not decrease wages. But the effect of leaving rent in the hands of individuals is to greatly decrease wages as well as interest, and the total product of the community. This results first, from the fact that the private ownership of rent causes the speculative monopolization of land; and second, from the fact that society, not receiving the rent which it creates, is compelled to levy taxes on production and products of industry, which eventually are drawn almost entirely from the earnings of labor.

Wages and interest are fixed and would be fixed under the single tax as well as now, by the rent line or margin of cultivation; that is to say, they are fixed by the reward which labor and capital can secure on the best land which bears no rent. Or, to put it more clearly, the average rate of wages of skilled labor is determined by the wages of unskilled labor; and the wages of unskilled labor are determined by what such labor could produce by employing itself on the best land that can be had free of rent; the general rate of interest being determined in the same way. The reasons why wages, at the primary distribution of products, are not the full earnings of the individuals to-day, is because the margin of cultivation is artificially lowered. The desire on the part of all men to hold all the land they can get, using to its full extent only a mere fraction of it, creates a speculative monopolization of land and lowers the margin of cultivation far below what it would naturally be if speculation in land were destroyed by the single tax. Hence, rents are artificially increased and wages and interest lowered, wages and interest being now fixed by what can be produced on the best unappropriated land, instead of being fixed by what could be produced on the best unused land, which is where the margin of cultivation naturally should be.

As long as land speculation exists the value of land increases in a greater ration than productive power, rent takes more than the increase, and wages and interest fall. Under the single tax, where land speculation was destroyed, the value of land would follow after the increase of productive power, not run on ahead of it, and while rent would increase so also would wages and interest.

"To raise wages to the full earnings of labor, then, we must destroy speculation in land and raise the margin of cultivation to the level of the best unused land; and, in order, to leave to the individual his full earnings, we must abolish all the taxes on the products of labor, which are paid out of wages in increased prices. All this we can do by taking rent for public purposes by means of a single tax, levied on all land, improved or unimproved, according to its value.

The effect would be, moreover, not merely to raise wages to the full earnings of labor, but to make these earnings enormously greater than at present. With production freed from every trammel; natural opportunities open to all; all the members of the community engaged in productive work—none living on rents as at present, the product both of society as a whole and of each individual would be the result of the most improved methods employed under the freest conditions. Rent, wages and interest would all be increased; and rent being distributed in public benefits equally among all the members of society, every man would receive far more than his individual earnings.—W. B. Scott.

Answering Mayor Sargent.

The New Haven Standard has undertaken to answer Mayor Sargent's recent message, and it declares that "thousands of mechanics and laboring men throughout the state own their little homes, with a small plot of ground which they can call their own, and which they have secured through thrift, industry and strict economy." The people, it thinks, will resist Mayor Sargent's proposal to release capital and labor from taxation, because, under the system of the single tax, "labor would pay heaviest on the only thing it ordinarily acquires—the land." Land, it says, "is the only thing that labor acquires in nine cases out of ten," and it asks "if that is to be the only thing taxed, where is the benefit to successful and ambitious labor?" It clinches its supposed argument with the declaration that under such a system as that proposed, "no one will care to own land at all, and all will desire to be tenants and not proprietors."

A correspondent at Bridgeport asks us to answer this foolish argument for the benefit of some who have been deluded by it. It would seem that anybody who had ever read a single tax tract might answer it for himself. In the first place, it is not true that land is the first thing that labor acquires; in nine cases out of ten it is the last thing that labor acquires, and very few acquire it at all, except enough for a grave. As to no one caring to own land, merely for the sake of owning it, what could labor ask better? Under such circumstances any laborer wanting to build a home would be able to take any lot that suited him, without the payment of a purchase price, and he would merely pay to the government, from year to year, a smaller amount than he now pays as interest on a mortgage, or as ground rent. Under such circumstances it is probable that the first thing that an ambitious working man acquired would be a home.

It is manifest to any one, who will think, that a proposal to tax land values only would reduce the taxation on mechanics and laboring men owning little homes. To say nothing of the enormous relief that such men would experience through the abolition of tariff taxes on all they consume or wear, local taxes would be less. Every man owning a small home, who will look about him, will find that his property is assessed at a higher price than other property equally well situated, but not improved. As soon as taxes are levied on land values, alone, his house and other improvements would cease to be assessed, and he would pay no more taxes on the plot of land he holds than his rich neighbor would pay on any similar plot that he is now holding out of use for speculation. The result of this would be the proportionate decrease of the poor man's taxes, through the addition to the general fund of the taxes that speculative holders would thus pay.—The Standard.

THE state must raise a certain fixed amount for public purposes. This amount, it will assess upon all the taxpayers, in proportion to the value of their property, as reported by the assessors; not in proportion to its real value, which the assessors, of course, are never able exactly to ascertain. If, therefore, experience proves that assessors are able to find twenty times as much land value in the possession of merchants as they can among farmers, but only ten times as much personal property among merchants as they find among farmers, it is a plain result, as simple as the rule of three, that the taxation of personal property will end in making farmers pay a larger proportion of the taxes than they would pay, if all the taxes were concentrated on land.

THE annual report of the New York State Assessors for 1890, shows the total assessed value of realty for the whole State to be $3,298,000,000, and of personal property, $385,000,000, the personal being 11 per cent. of the total assessment. In 1867 the assessed value of real estate was $1,237,000,000, the increase in the twenty-three years being over $2,000,000,000, or 160 per cent. The assessed value of personalty in 1867 was $436,000,000, as against $385,000,000 in 1890, showing a decrease in twenty-three years of $51,000,000. In 1867 real estate paid about 74 per cent. of the total taxes; personal property, 26 per cent. In 1890 real estate paid 89 per cent.; personal property, 11 per cent.

LOOK over the republic to-day. See great estates growing and multiplying, while an increasing proportion of so-called free and independent American citizens are destitute of all legal right to use the soil of their country, can only work on it, can only live on it, by paying tribute to some other human creature, and he often a resident of Europe for permission to do so. Is it any wonder that faith in democratic republicanism is weakening, that all the evils that our fathers thought of as belonging only to "the effete monarchies of the old world" are appearing here?

THE CAUSE OF SORROW.

LESSON VII, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 17.

Text of the Lesson, Hosea x, 1-15—Commit Verses, 12, 13—Golden Text, Isa. lix, 2—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "Israel is an empty vine; he bringeth forth fruit unto himself."

In Ps. lxxx, 9-11, and Isa. v, 1-7, Israel is compared to a vine for which everything possible has been done, but which after all yieldeth no fruit, or if any, only sour grapes. In Matt. xxi, 33-41, our Lord Jesus, in the parable of the vineyard, describes God's love to Israel and her treatment of Him and His servants and Son.

2. "Their heart is divided."

"With their mouth they show much love, but their heart goeth after their covetousness" (Ezek. xxxiii, 31). They were like those who try to serve God and mammon, to love God and at the same time love the world that hates God.

3. "For now they shall say, We have no king, because we feared not the Lord."

Jehovah was their king, He brought them out of Egypt, and they accepted Him as such; but when they wanted a king like other nations then they were guilty of rejecting the Lord as their king.

4. "They have spoken words, swearing falsely in making a covenant."

In chap. i, 1, we read that Hosea prophesied in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah; and in II Chron. xxvi, 16, we read that Uzziah, although for a while trusting in God, afterward transgressed against the Lord his God. And although Jotham did right in the sight of the Lord, yet the people did corruptly (II Chron. xxvii, 2). In the reign of the next king the Lord brought Judah low because of Ahaz, king of Israel (II Chron. xxviii, 19), and even the great and good Hezekiah failed sadly before he died.

5. "The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear because of the calves of Beth-aven."

The abounding judgment spoken of in the last clause of the previous verse (with which compare Amos vi, 12) would cause both people and priests to turn to their idols, the golden calves at Dan and Bethel, here spoken of as Beth-aven (the house of iniquity), but they would find no help.

6. "Ephraim shall receive shame, and Israel shall be ashamed of his own counsel."

Ephraim seems to stand here for the ten tribes, and Israel for the whole nation. Ephraim had relied upon Jareb the Assyrian instead of upon Jehovah (chap. v, 13), and the result was that the Assyrian would receive for himself that which Ephraim so highly prized.

7. "As for Samaria, her king is cut off as the foam upon the water."

Quickly cut off as the crest of the wave which is gone in a moment. In chap. vi, 4, the goodness of the nation is compared to a morning cloud and the early dew. In Jas. iv, 14, it is written: "What is your life? It is even a vapor which appareth for a little time and then vanisheth away." If we have Christ as our life, and delight to trust in Him and do His will, then, come what may, nothing can affect our welfare; but the ungodly when taken from this present life lose everything. See this in Deut. xxx, 19, 20.

8. "They shall say to the mountains, Cover us; and to the hills, Fall on us."

In I Kings xii, 30, the calves at Dan and Bethel are called a sin. While God may bear long with sin He will in due time surely destroy it.

9. "O Israel, thou hast sinned from the days of Gibeah."

The earliest story of Gibeah is in Judg. xx, where the sinful people gained two great victories over those who wanted the sin put away. The sense of this verse seems to be that because God in mercy restrained His wrath, Israel, instead of being by His goodness led to repentance, only increased in sin.

10. "It is in my desire that I should chastise them."

The last clause of this verse is in the R. V. translated, "When they are bound to their two transgressions," referring, no doubt, to Dan and Bethel as the two centers of their idol worship. He will chasten them that He may win them back to Himself, as when He says in Amos iii, 3, "You only have I known of all the families of the earth, therefore I will punish you for all your iniquities." "Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth" (Heb. xii, 6).

11. "I will make Ephraim to ride, Judah shall plow and Jacob shall break his clods."

The R. V. says, "I will set a rider on Ephraim." The people have been unsubdued, left to themselves, enjoying God's goodness to the full, but rebelling against Him. But now if they will not turn to Him, He will by their enemies subdue them.

12. "Sow to yourselves in righteousness; reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground."

The expression "fallow ground" is found only here and in Jer. iv, 3; but the same word is found in one other place and translated "tillage." "Much food is in the tillage of the poor, but there is that is destroyed for want of judgment" (Prov. xiii, 23).

"It is time to seek the Lord till he come and rain righteousness upon you."

"The righteous Lord loveth righteousness" (Ps. xi, 7), and the righteousness which He loves and requires of His people He provides for them.

13. "Thou didst trust in thy way, in the multitude of thy mighty men."

And therefore they reaped iniquity and ate the fruit of lies. On sowing and reaping see Gal. vi, 7, 8; Hos. viii, 7, and contrast John iv, 36. As to the folly of our ways and thoughts see Isa. lv, 8, 9.

14. "Therefore shall a tumult arise among thy people, and all thy fortresses shall be spoiled."

Their God and King is the Prince of Peace; the Lord will bless His people with peace; He will speak peace unto His people (Isa. lx, 6; Ps. xxix, 11; lxxxv, 8). But if they will not have Him, and choose lies instead of truth, they must accept tumult and spoliation as the consequence. "The hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place" (Isa. xxviii, 17). Happy the one who can truly say, "The Lord is my rock."

15. "So shall Bethel do unto you because of your great wickedness: in a morning shall the king of Israel utterly be cut off."

While this had a literal fulfillment a few years later, we are carried forward in thought to the great fulfillment when "the prince that shall come," "the man of sin," "the one coming in his own name" (Dan. ix, 26, 27; II Thess. ii; 3. John v, 43), shall make the seven years covenant with Israel, break it after three and a half years, and bring in the time of Jacob's trouble, after which he (the beast of Rev. xi, 4-6; xix, 20) shall go to the lake of fire, cut off in that morning when Jesus shall appear in power and glory as Israel's Messiah, and then shall He bring in everlasting righteousness (Ps. xlvi, 5, margin; xlix, 14; Dan. ix, 24; Isa. xlv, 17).

How plain to my mind are the scenes of my childhood,
As my recollection recalls them to view,
The soap-kettle hung on the poles of green basswood,
The Smoke and the Smell that my infancy knew!
But those days of SOAP and consequent anguish
Have long since departed, we pray and we hope;
The use of the stuff 'gan to wane and to languish
As soon as they offered us

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.
Over 40 Years,
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

The Adrian Press has just begun its nineteenth volume, and is just as full of genuine Democracy as ever. Bro. Smith still occupies the editorial tripod with his accustomed ability. We confess, however, that we are somewhat worried on one point. Will he season his jokes with justice hereafter, or his justice with jokes, or will he run both on an independent basis? We await his decision with interest, but without any forebodings, for the columns of the Press can never grow stale so long as Philander's hand is on the helm.

The Adrian Times says: Wheelmen feel very sore over the effort being made to compel them to keep off the sidewalk. They claim to have as much right on the walks as baby cabs and wheelbarrows." If the wheelmen will post themselves on the law, they may change their mind. The Courts have decided that a bicycle is a "vehicle" in law. It has the same right on the sidewalk that a two-wheeled gig, a hack or a lumber wagon has. A person riding a bicycle has the same right to the sidewalk that the same person would have, if riding horseback.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

Kiowa, Kansas, has elected a woman mayor and she has ordered all saloons and billiard rooms closed. Hence there is great grief among the fire-water contingent.

The prohibition of saloons within one mile of the Soldiers' Home at Washington has had the effect of advancing real estate several hundred per cent. Property cannot readily be purchased which was before seeking purchasers.

The sales of the whiskey trust for the past year aggregated 44,748,171 gallons—an increase of nearly 4,000,000 gallons over the sales of the preceeding year, and nearly 9,000,000 gallons over the sales of the twelve months ending two years ago.

Archdeacon Farrar, in one of his temperance addresses, remarks: "Cruikshank, the artist, offered £100 for proof of a violent crime committed by a total abstainer, and the money remains unclaimed to this day. I offer as much for proof of any one case, either in the church or out of it, where drunkeness has been cured without total abstinence. The only safe way of drinking, as an Irishman put it, is to leave off before you begin.

SUICIDE OF ELIJAH WILSON.

A sad event occurred at Elijah Wilson's last Monday morning. Mr. Wilson has suffered much during the last few years from physical misfortunes and financial troubles, and lately he has been afflicted with a severe attack of the grippe. This latter trouble, in addition to the rest, seems to have unbalanced his mind, and he determined to end his troubles and earthly existence at the same time. Monday morning about nine o'clock his wife went to the barn to care for the stock, and in her absence he arose from the bed, took a double barreled shot gun, and put a charge through his left breast. His wife heard the explosion of the gun, rushed back to the house and found him a lifeless corpse. It required strong nerves to do the deed, but he had nerved himself to it and watched an opportunity to carry out his design. The funeral services were held yesterday forenoon and were largely attended by the neighbors in that part of the township. Rev. Patchen of Franklin officiated. People who know the circumstances of the family will draw the veil of charity over the last earthly act of the deceased and will extend their sympathy to the family relatives in their affliction.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

THE MINING SCHOOL.

The Annual Report Shows the School to Be in a Prosperous Condition.

The annual report of the Michigan mining school shows that last year there were thirty-five pupils enrolled, and this year there have been sixty-two enrolled, which number will probably be increased before the close of the year. There are graduate students, four; class of '91, nine; class of '92, eight; class of '93, forty-one. This shows a great increase for this year, which is really the first that the school has had anything like proper equipment. It is expected, from statements received, that next year's class will be as large or even larger than this. The one hundred and eleven students who have entered since the school opened have come from eight states and from Europe, Canada and Japan, and of these eighty-nine are from Michigan.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by fifty-seven observers in different parts of the state for the week ended May 2 indicated that membranous croup, puerperal fever and inflammation of the brain increased, and cerebro spinal meningitis, typho-malarial fever, diphtheria, dysentery, scarlet fever, typhoid fever and whooping cough decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twenty-five places, scarlet fever at thirty-three, typhoid fever at five and measles at fifty-two places.

Went Down with the Atlanta.

Details of the schooner reported in distress by the Sitka were received at Sault Ste. Marie. Her name is the Atlanta. She left the Sault in tow of the barge Wilhelm and parted her tow line about 20 miles from No. 10 life-saving station, foundering shortly afterward. Five of the crew perished in attempting to reach the shore in yawls and two men were rescued by a life-saving crew. The Atlanta was coal laden for Ashland, Wis.

Wrecked by the Wind.

A terrific electrical and wind storm raged all over the copper country for two days, and at Dollar Bay a store and residence building were badly shattered and set on fire by lightning. The occupants were violently thrown to the floor and badly stunned. At Calumet several buildings were blown down and large trees uprooted. Telegraph and telephone wires were down in every direction.

Output of Copper Mines for April.

The combined product of the Quincy, Atlantic, Franklin, Copper Falls and Calumet and Hecla copper mines for April was 1,885 tons. The first shipment of refined copper by water was 400 tons on the Empire State, of Buffalo.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich., May 6.—A bill was favorably reported in the senate yesterday to engage women professors and educators in the state university. Bills were passed to provide for the incorporation of mutual provident associations of miners and those of other occupations, and laborers in and about iron, gold, silver, lead, copper and coal mines; to authorize the incorporation of companies for the construction of union railroad stations and depots; appropriating $46,000 for current expenses of the blind school for 1891-2. The bill regulating the hours of labor on street railways was amended and now provides "that nothing herein contained shall prevent or prohibit employers or employes from making such contract as they may mutually desire with reference to the number of hours of labor for each day and compensation to be paid."

LANSING, Mich., May 7.—Senator Brown's local option bill was killed by the senate yesterday. The bill practically established prohibition by requiring that no liquor should be sold in any county unless the people voted in favor of saloons at a special election. The house bill allowing hotel keepers to seize and sell the baggage of guests who leave without paying their bills was passed.

LANSING, Mich., May 8.—The senate yesterday passed the house bill changing the method of inspecting kerosene oil and reducing the test about 17 degrees, which will reduce the price 2½ cents per gallon.

LANSING, Mich., May 9.—Bills were passed in the senate yesterday abolishing the state forestry commission appointed four years ago to investigate the effect upon the water supply and climate of the destruction of Michigan forests; consolidating the boards of control of the three state prisons and the reform school and industrial home for girls into one general managing board; providing that in cases of abandonment of children by their parents the superintendents of the public institutions where the children are placed may take the place of the parents in making out adoption papers.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., May 6.—In the house yesterday a bill was formally reported requiring that all meats used in the state institutions shall be inspected before slaughtered. The bill amending the law providing for the relief of soldiers and their families outside the soldiers' home failed to pass. A bill was passed appropriating $30,000 for a new colony of cottages at the Kalamazoo insane asylum.

LANSING, Mich., May 7.—The house yesterday defeated the bill appropriating $30,000 to aid in entertaining the National G. A. R. encampment at Detroit in August. The vote was reconsidered and the bill tabled. Bills were passed creating the Thirty-first judicial circuit from the counties of Ontonagon and Gogebic; appropriating $10,000 for the collection of labor and industrial statistics. The joint committee on military and state affairs reported favorably the Dodge bill providing a bounty of $100 each to soldiers of the rebellion, and in committee of the whole agreed to the agricultural college appropriation bill. The bill increasing the specific tax on railroads from 2 to 3 per cent. of the gross earnings was passed, and if it becomes a law it will place $350,000 additional in the state treasury annually.

LANSING, Mich., May 8.—The house yesterday passed the once defeated bill creating the new county of Dickinson out of territory taken from Iron, Ontonagon and Marquette counties. The bill consolidating the cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor was also passed. The name agreed upon for the new city is Port Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., May 9.—The house yesterday passed the bill appropriating $50,000 for the agricultural college.

INJURED BY FROST.

Wheat, Corn, Fruit and Vegetables Suffer from the Cold Wave.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 9.—A summary of reports received from all sections of this state, northern Tennessee and southern Indiana indicate the destruction by the frosts of Tuesday and Wednesday nights of nearly all of the garden vegetables except strawberries, which will probably still average half a crop with favorable weather. Grapes are generally killed, but peaches and other fruits did not suffer greatly south of the Ohio river. In bottom lands along water courses and the lower valleys growing wheat and corn have received more or less damage, while on uplands tobacco and other crops and most forms of vegetation escaped comparatively uninjured. At numerous points ice was formed on Wednesday night, but, singularly, this did not appear to affect plants as unfavorably as might have been expected. The approach of higher temperatures and the prospect of showers will lend encouragement to fruit growers and market gardeners and without doubt eventually reduce the frost damages below present estimates.

RIVALS UNITED.

St. Joe and Benton Harbor Made One, with a New Name.

LANSING, Mich., May 9.—The house Thursday by a hasty vote passed the once defeated bill creating the new county of Dickinson out of territory taken from Iron, Ontonagon and Marquette counties. The senate passed the house bill changing the method of inspecting kerosene oil and reducing the test about 17 degrees, which will reduce the price two and one-half cents per gallon. The long-standing row between St. Joseph and Benton Harbor was settled in the house Thursday by consolidating the two. The proposed name of St. Joe Harbor for the new city was rejected and Port Michigan selected instead.

Messenger Boys Steal $1,000.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Charles Wagner, of No. 247 West Forty-first street, and his chum, Charles Gleason, of No. 351 First avenue, both of whom are 20 years old and were employed by the American District Telegraph Company, at Thirty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, absconded Wednesday afternoon with $1,000. Wagner had been intrusted with the package to deliver it to Miss May Kellard at No. 3 West Forty-sixth street. Late Thursday afternoon two Central office detectives captured Gleason on First avenue and took him to police headquarters. Wagner, who appears to have been the principal in the affair, has disappeared

His Life Crushed Out.

ASHLAND, Ky., May 11.—While workmen were engaged in dismantling the Methodist Episcopal church south, preparatory to rebuilding, the ceiling and timbers fell precipitating the manager, J. B. Stephenson, aged 65, killing him instantly, and fatally injuring the three Cumbo brothers.

Firemen Burned.

CHICAGO, May 11.—During a fire at the dye house of Hinle & Mueller, at 43 North Clark street, a quantity of gasoline stored in the cellar exploded. Ten firemen who were at work in the building were badly burned.

Anderson & Co. have been sock-in' it to 'em this week.

Mrs. W. C. Fisher has been quite ill for the past week.

Dr. H. L. Stewart is taking a trip to Mackinac this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hulbert of Adrian spent last Sunday with friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lancaster of Clinton were in town last Tuesday.

Robert King of Detroit is visiting friends and relatives in Tecumseh.

Remember the sale of the Morse property on Saturday afternoon next.

Wheat has taken a drop since last week, but it brings an even dollar now.

Rev. J. O. Heck of Rome is spending a portion of this week with his parents in Tecumseh.

Do you want to get rich? Then attend the sale of the Morse property next Saturday.

Mrs. Jas. W. Patterson of Elkhart is spending the present week with Tecumseh friends.

The Epworth League will serve ice-cream at the M. E. Church parlors next Saturday evening, May 16th.

Several Tecumseh Sir Knights attended the Ascension Day exercises held at Adrian on Sunday Last.

There will be a Demorest Medal Contest at the Friends Church in the Valley, Saturday May 23rd, at 7:30 p. m.

J. D. Arner has been a citizen of Tecumseh this week, as he has been assisting Mr. Williams in repairing the roof of the opera house.

John Hicks started his lightning rod wagons last Tuesday, and he opened the campaign by placing three rods on the M. E. Church of Ridgeway.

Miss Libbie Robinson, of Vineland New Jersey, arrived in town Tuesday to make the people here a short call. She only remains here two days.

Albert Vedder is able to be on the street again, and this fine weather is bringing him up rapidly. He has had a long and doubtful siege and his friends are right glad to see him recovering.

W. J. Candlish, an Adrian College student, was in Tecumseh last Saturday. It was his first visit here and he was most favorably impressed with the thrift and beauty of our little village.

The big bargains in real estate are not all to be found in the west. The Morse property here in Tecumseh will be sold next Saturday without reserve to settle an estate, and it will be a splendid opportunity to procure a good home cheap.

The Dundee reporter has begun its fifteenth volume. Bro. Carr makes an excellent country newspaper and if the Dundee people are wise they will keep him right there, and give him a big subscription list, lots of advertising and plenty of wood and potatoes.

The W. R. C. held a social at their hall last Monday evening, to commemorate their second anniversary. The members of the G. A. R. and S. of V. were also present and a most enjoyable evening was spent by those who participated.

Mrs. Sam. James of Detroit is visiting at her father's, O. B. De Wolf's.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Stoeple, of Detroit, spent last Sabbath with N. M. Sutton's family.

Mrs. O. B. Finch is seriously ill with an attack of pneumonia, and the family have fears that the attack may turn unfavorably.

The wise housekeeper will now gather in all the soap barrels within reach and lay in a supply of kerosene and gasoline to last through the season.

All wheelmen will please meet at M. E. Church corner to morrow (Friday) evening at 6,30 p. m, for a spin around the village. Let every wheelman turn out.

The new addition to Heesen Bros. & Co.'s new shop "went up kiting." The building was all enclosed within a week, and it is now ready to receive the machinery.

We have received from the author a copy of Rev. Fidelia W. Gillett's book entitled, Editorials and other Waifs. It is a very readable little book filled with the choicest gems of the writer.

Will J. Osborn has sold his south farm, consisting of 97 acres to G. H. Melody, the gentleman who has just sold the Comfort mill property. Will had better come down and buy the HERALD office now.

Rev. W. H. Babbitt is able to attend to his duties once more and took charge of his regular services last Sunday. Not only his parishioners but all others are glad to know that he is rapidly regaining his usual health.

Advertising pays both buyer and seller. We sold over one thousand pair of hose during our hoisery sale. Everyone pleased. Dress Goods Sale next, commencing to-day, Thursday.
ANDERSON & Co.

The kid band have raised about fifty dollars from outsiders to buy a new uniform with. They will use this as a starter, put a good purse with it and buy a fine uniform. They are getting ready for the G. A. R. Encampment.

The Picnic program committee met at the HERALD office last Saturday evening and blocked out their work. They will meet again at the same place next Saturday evening to finish their program. A full attendance is desired at that time.

Frank Smallidge of Detroit was shaking hands with his Tecumseh friends last Sunday. Frank is still running a drug store on Jefferson avenue, and he keeps his trotter for recreation. He is prospering, and always enjoys a visit at the old home.

A. W. Slayton has lately secured letters patent for an improved odometer, a machine to attach to a buggy wheel, which will measure the distance traveled. It is a very ingenious as well as useful contrivance, and he is now making his arrangements to manufacture and push its sale.

Strong and McNair have not been in business here fifty years, but they approach that figure nearer than any other firm. And by common consent they stand at the head of the clothing trade. They have a new card in today's issue, which every believer in bargains can peruse with profit.

Harry Stevens, of Detroit, who is now on the road for the Detroit Times, was in town three days this week, looking after the interests of that paper. It already has a good list in Tecumseh, which is growing rapidly. Harry has struck a good job and is evidently doing excellent service for the Times.

We understand that Rev. D. J. Lewis will soon take up his permanent residence in Tecumseh. The Friends also have in contemplation the erection of a new church this summer in a more central location than their present church site. Friends of that faith and all friends of religion are glad to witness these evidences of spiritual growth and prosperity.

We understand that Jas. A. Boyd and M. L. Root have purchased the old Comfort mill property, and will soon take possession. No business transfer has taken place in Tecumseh in a long time, that promised better results. They are both first class business men, are natural hustlers, and we believe they have the power to bring the property up to a paying basis. Success to the new venture.

At the last meeting of the school board, a vote was passed inviting the present teachers to remain another year. The list included every one, from the Superintendent to the primary grades. This action speaks favorably for the teachers and also shows the wisdom of the board. Taken all together, we doubt whether Tecumseh ever had a better corps of teachers than the present one, and it is to be hoped that they will all accept the invitation to remain.

In reply to our suggestion of last week, that the Brooklyn Exponent needed a new gown, Sister Clough retorts in this wise:

Dear Scove, our new spring suit will be delayed some three months yet; you know it takes money to make the press go. We have, however, the new "flat-iron" and a new rubber blanket for the cylinder. Any other suggestions?

We accept the correction and beg pardon. The flat-iron made the old dress look so nice and tidy that we mistook it for a brand new gown. May the new suit come too and that right speedily.

Last Saturday was another good day for trade.

Decoration Day is approaching. How will Tecumseh observe it?

The farmers are now in the height of the corn planting season.

May still lingers and Jack Frost loosens his hold very slowly.

Gen. F. B. Wood of Adrian was in town Monday on professional business.

Strawberry shortcake has appeared on the dinner bill of fare at the Lilley House.

John Blessing, who has been in feeble health for some time, died on Tuesday morning last.

Everybody says the HERALD's new spring suit is a beauty, and what everybody says must be true.

A situation that holds good year after year is offered by R. G. Chase & Co., Geneva, N. Y. in another column of this paper.

Quarterly meeting services were held at the M. E. church last Sunday. Presiding Elder Joslin was present and officiated.

Our new jewelry store is represented in the HERALD's columns this week. Do not overlook Mr. Kirchgessner's handsome card.

J. K. Cook had a tumor removed from his right eye, last Sunday. The operation was a very painful one, and was successfully performed by Dr. Woodward.

G. P. Waring of Chicago was in town last Saturday talking up his Harvey real estate business. The magic city is still on the boom and sales continue unabated.

Mrs. Dr. Woodward was called to Windsor the first of the week, by reason of the sudden illness of her daughter Edith, who is stopping with relatives there.

Mrs. Mary. C. Wood and Mrs. G. W. Jackson left for Hillsdale on Tuesday morning as delegates to the District W. C. T. U. convention to be held May 12, 13, 14, and 15th.

H. J. Williams of Ridgeway is fixing the roof of the opera house. Several pieces of slate have got broken so it leaks in places. Mr. Williams is an adept at fixing slate roofs.

Those ladies who wish to buy a new spring hat—and what lady does not? should examine the large and fine stock that Mrs. M. A. Freeman has just placed on her shelves. They can find anything they want.

Dr. W. A. Frost has recently procured an operating chair, to be used in performing surgical operations. It is one of the latest style and cost eighty dollars. It will be a valuable addition to his professional outfit.

W. J. Henderson will contribute to Harper's Young People a series of three articles on the "Mariner's Compass." The first of these articles, accompanied by illustrations and diagrams, will appear in the number of that periodical for May 12th.

Dr. Steinhoff has lately purchased a Long's apparatus for producing anaesthesia, which means in English, a machine to generate vitalized air. Although he can extract a full row of teeth without pain, he can hardly afford to do it without payin'. The machine is the best one made for that purpose.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman has conducted a millinery store in this vilage twenty-five years, and her long experience and acquaintance enables her to satisfy all tastes and accommodate the pecuniary condition of all buyers. Her stock was never more complete than now, and the ladies of Tecumseh should give her a call.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. Church will hold the regular monthly tea meeting in the Church parlors on Wednesday May 20th. It being also the yearly business meeting a full attendance of members and all interested in the welfare of the society is earnestly requested. Business meeting at 4 p. m. Supper served from 5 1-2 till 6 1-2 by Mrs. S. Whittier's committee.

From a late copy of the Battle Creek Journal we gather the intelligence that our old friend, Will R. Wooden, has been chosen secretary of the Nichols & Shepard Co. This is a big lift from his former position, and it will doubtless carry an increase of salary with it. The new position is one of much responsibility and the fact of his receiving it shows that the company have full confidence in his integrity and ability.

A tent of the Knights of Maccabees was organized in Tecumseh last week with twenty-five members. The following officers were chosen:

Past Commander—M. L. Root.
Commander—W. C. Burridge.
Lt. " —John Anderson.
Record Keeper—Fred Shepperd.
Finance Keeper—Thos. McClure,
Prelate—Wm. A. Frost.
Sergeant—Geo. Knapp.
Master at Arms—Levi Hayden.
1st. Master of Guards—E. W. Goff.
2nd " " Geo. V. Waldron
Sentinel—Ed. Holdway.

At the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning, May 17th, the pastor, Rev. W. H. Babbitt, will deliver (D. V.) the 9th anniversary discourse of his ministry in Tecumseh. Any member of that congregation young or old whose eye lights on this notice will please consider that a special invitation has been given to be present. Not only members of the congregation, but all who care to listen to the familiar suggestions and personal reminiscences and appeals of the discourse will be made welcome.

Geo. Spafford is making the most of his respite from work. He is visiting all his friends and taking a good old fashioned rest. At the end of three months he will be able to stick more type than ever.

Major R. H. Hendershot, the original Drummer Boy of the Rappahannock, has been engaged by the W. C. T. U. of Tecumseh to give one of his wonderful performances in the Opera House early in July. Particulars next week.

The Toledo Bee has lately been enlarged and adopted an improved style of make up, which adds very much to its beauty. The Bee is a first class newspaper, both in its news and editorial departments. It is one of our best daily exchanges and we could hardly keep house without it.

Dr. Tefft has made arrangements with Dr. Catlin and will open his office with the latter at Dr. Catlin's residence. This will doubtless prove an acceptable arrangement to both of them. Dr. Catlin will not be so closely confined at home as formerly, and Dr. Tefft will have the aid of an experienced physician in getting started. He begins his professional labors here under most favorable auspices and his friends will all extend a hearty welcome and wish him the best of success.

THE MAFIA MASSACRE.

The Lynchers at New Orleans Exonerated by the Grand Jury.

Citizens of the Crescent City Generally Commend the Finding of the Jury—The Feeling in Other Places—Rudini Calls for Help.

NOT INDICTED.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—The report of the grand jury, exonerating the Mafia lynchers, while just what was expected, is the subject of much comment. Citizens generally commend the action of the jury and indulge in considerable self-glorification over the exhaustive manner in which the subject is treated. The consensus of opinion is that the Italian government has little left to complain of, the report showing that only two of the prisoners killed were subjects of Italy.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Secretary Blaine is absent in New York, attending the Damrosch concerts, and there is no one at the state department who is authorized to give an opinion concerning the finding of the New Orleans grand jury. The official report is not expected to reach Washington for several days, and when it does will probably come in different form.

Had Marquis Rudini waited and been less insolent in his tone he might have made out a case based on the finding of the grand jury that would have been embarrassing to the administration. His attempt to make political capital at home has resulted in such a thorough drubbing at the hands of Secretary Blaine that nothing he may say based on the grand jury's defense of the lynching will now enable the Italian government to retrieve itself. In nothing Secretary Blaine has said has he shown any sympathy on the part of the federal government with lynch law, and in the future correspondence it may be taken for granted that the grounds on which the grand jury justifies the killing of the Sicilians will not be put forth. In his dispatch to Gov. Nicholls, of Louisiana, Secretary Blaine called the killing a "massacre," and there is no reason to believe he has changed his views. But this will not prevent him from setting forth in its strongest light the character of the men in whose behalf the Italian government has been making its ridiculous demands.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Judged by the temper of the Italian colony in Chicago, the Italian population of the United States are in no particularly amiable mood. The report of the special grand jury at New Orleans, which indorses the lynching of the Mafia murderers, has fanned the smoldering fires of resentment into a fierce and open blaze, and many leading Italians, who are bitterly disappointed at the outcome of the grand jury's deliberations, are outspoken in their condemnation of its failure to indict the leaders of the New Orleans lynchers.

LONDON, May 7.—The finding of the grand jury at New Orleans justifying the lynching of the Italian prisoners revives interest in the affairs and is commented on by the press in a not unfavorable manner. The St. James Gazette says the grand jury has done pretty much what was expected. It fears Marquis di Rudini will not appreciate the polemical interest of the finding. The situation so far as Italy is concerned stands as at the beginning of the controversy.

ROME, May 9.—The Italie says: "The Italian government is about to address a circular to the European powers submitting the conduct of the United States government in the New Orleans affair to their judgment. Italy will thus be the initiator of an international agreement to compel the United States to find means to guarantee the protection of foreign subjects."

SIX FEET OF SNOW.

Immense Drifts in Colorado Threaten a Flood in the Rio Grande.

SANTA FE, N. M., May 9.—Court officers who have returned from Tierra Amerillias say that the half has not been told of the flood that must soon sweep down into the Rio Grande. At Cumbress Hill, Col., the snow is 6 feet deep and covers the whole range for miles. All streams are running bank full. The Chama, Rio Brascos, Wolf creek and tributary rivers are rushing streams. In the lower Rio Grande the situation in the flooded districts is about the same.

Sacrificed Her Two Children.

BERLIN, May 9.—At Hardeleck the wife of a locksmith named Homfeld, while possessed with a religious mania, dressed her two children in white, held them over a vessel, and cut their throats, letting the blood fall into the receptacle. When life was extinct she endeavored to cremate the bodies, apparently with the idea of making a sacrifice. She was discovered before she could carry out this part of her tragic design.

Thirty Thousand More Pensioners.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The statement at the pension office shows that during the month of April last there were issued 31,415 pension certificates of all classes, the first payment on which aggregated $3,874,815. The average first payment to each pensioner was $122.83. Of the total number of certificates issued 11,167 were under the general law and 20,387 were under the act of June 27, 1890.

Not Prolonging the War.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The rumor that the civil war in Chili was being prolonged by W. R. Grace & Co., whose interests are favorable to the congress party, and Charles R. Flint & Co., who have supported Balmaceda and the government, is practically denied by the senior partner of each firm.

Six Blocks of Flames.

ALLISTON, Ont., May 9.—Six blocks of buildings were burned here Friday afternoon. They contained six hotels, forty-five stores, twenty residences, the post office, market buildings and town hall. The loss will run into the hundreds of thousands.

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR.

He Meets with Cordial Welcomes All Along the Route.

THE DALLES, Ore., May 8.—The president and party reached Portland from Seattle at 3 o'clock Thursday morning and left over the Union Pacific for the east at 7:15. One of the pleasantest incidents of the run from Portland was the visit of the president and party to Multnomah falls. The entire party left the train and spent several minutes admiring the slender veil of spray falling 850 feet from a cliff.

PENDLETON, Ore., May 8.—President Harrison's train arrived at Pendleton at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The chief executive was enthusiastically greeted and made a pleasant acknowledgment to the assembled throng.

SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., May 9.—President Harrison and his party reached Boise City, Idaho, at 7 o'clock Friday morning and were welcomed by Gov. Willey and Mayor Pinney. Two troops of the Fourth cavalry and a large number of civic organizations escorted the president to the state house, where addresses of welcome were delivered by the governor and mayor and replied to by the president. The latter, after holding a reception in the governor's parlors, assisted the school children in celebrating Arbor day by planting a tree on the capitol lawn. At 1 o'clock the train left for Salt Lake City. At Pocatello the party was met by a special train, containing large delegations from this city and Ogden, which preceded the president's train to this point.

SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., May 11.—The presidential train arrived at 8 o'clock a. m. Saturday and the party was welcomed by Gov. Thomas, Mayor Scott, Congressional Delegate Cain and a large reception committee. Many buildings were decorated, and for the first time in its history the Mormon tabernacle floated the stars and stripes from its roof. Public exercises took place at Liberty park and were witnessed by several thousand people. In his speech the president said:

"Purity of the ballot box, those wise provisions and that careful guardianship that shall always make the expression of the will of the people fair, pure and true, is the essential thing in American life. We are a people organized upon the principles of liberty, but, my fellow countrymen, it is not license; it is liberty within and under the law. I have no discord as a public officer with men of any creed, religious or political, if they will obey the law. My oath of office, my public duty requires me to be against those who violate the law. The foundation of American life is the American home. That which distinguishes us from the other nations whose political experience and history have been full of strife and discord is the American home, where one wife sits in single, uncrowned glory."

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Col., May 11.—The presidential party arrived here early Sunday morning. The president, Postmaster General Wanamaker and Mrs. McKee attended divine services at the First Presbyterian church, and in the afternoon a children's mass meeting was held at Durand's opera house in honor of the visitors, and it was attended by an immense crowd.

THE Y. M. C. A.

Nearly $60,000 Raised by the International Convention at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 9.—Indianapolis was chosen Friday as the place of meeting of the thirtieth biennial convention of the Young Men's Christian association. The most interesting feature of the day's meeting was the securing of money for the next two years' work. Almost $60,000 was raised in thirty minutes by general popular subscription. Among the heavy subscribers were: John D. Rockefeller, $2,000; Cornelius Vanderbilt, $2,000; W. K. Vanderbilt, $1,000; C. H. McCormick, Chicago, $2,000; C. L. Colby, Milwaukee, $2,000; Morris K. Jessup, New York, $2,000; J. A. Bostwick, New York, $2,000; Wagner Car Company, $1,000.

Tinware Melted by Fire.

MILWAUKEE, May 9.—Where at 7 o'clock Friday evening stood the large tinware manufactory of F. A. Walsh & Co., with its five floors of machinery and stock, at 10 o'clock were but a few jagged walls and a large pile of smoldering debris. Within three hours the factory, covering an entire block on Thirteenth street, between St. Paul avenue and North Canal street, was totally destroyed by fire, causing a loss of about $150,000.

Shot Her Husband.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Alfred Towsley, in jail at Austin charged with disorderly conduct, was shot and killed in his cell by his wife Saturday afternoon. Towsley twelve years ago married the widow of his brother, who had a daughter, now about 18 years of age, and his repeated attempts to ruin her caused his wife to leave him. He threatened to kidnap the girl when released from jail, and this caused the shooting.

Twenty Horses Cremated.

FORT DODGE, Ia., May 9.—Twenty valuable horses were cremated in a livery stable fire at Manson Friday morning. The fire was of incendiary origin, a man being seen to leave the barn just before the flames broke forth. A blacksmith shop and buggy factory were also burned. The loss will exceed $10,000, with only $2,000 insurance.

The Eight-Hour Law Sustained.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 11.—The supreme court of Indiana has sustained the new law limiting a day's work to eight hours. The court holds that unless there is an expressed agreement to the contrary, employes who are required to work more than eight hours a day must be paid extra.

Business Failures.

NEW YORK, May 9.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 242, as compared with a total of 255 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 209.

A Very Costly Fire.

ROTTERDAM, May 9.—The state bonded warehouse and the main portion of its contents have been destroyed by fire. The damage done is estimated at $1,250,000.

BLAINE TO JOHN BULL.

The Secretary of State Refutes the Claims of England.

Our Government Is Willing to Arbitrate the Behring Sea Question, but Insists on Its Right to Protect the Seal Fisheries.

THE BEHRING SEA.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Secretary Blaine has given to the public a letter which he has sent to Minister Pauncefote on the Behring sea controversy. It confirms what has heretofore been stated about the willingness of the United States to submit its claims to arbitration, but not on the misleading grounds laid down by Lord Salisbury. Mr. Blaine makes it clear that the closed sea theory which Prof. Elliott and other advocates of the late Alaska Fur Company have so persistently advanced forms no part of the national demand. On the contrary, it is specifically abandoned as untenable. This disposes of all arguments advanced by Lord Salisbury on the assumption that the United States claimed the right to consider Behring sea a closed sea because Russia, by a ukase issued in 1821 (which the United States itself vigorously contested) so declared it. Mr. Blaine rests his argument on the broader ground of public welfare and proposes that the arbitrators shall determine how far, if at all, outside the ordinary territorial limits it is necessary that the United States shall exercise an exclusive jurisdiction in order to protect the seals for the time being living and breeding on the islands of the United States and proceeding therefrom in search of food. He also submits to arbitration the question of prescribing a closed term for seal hunting and the limits over which it should extend.

Supplementing instances, already quoted in the correspondence, where Great Britain, as in the case of the Ceylon pearl fisheries, exercises by common consent exclusive jurisdiction many miles from shore, Mr. Blaine asks one very happy and pertinent question from British laws enacted barely two years ago, by which the British government assumes to exercise fishing jurisdictions over 2,700 square miles of water off the coast of Scotland outside the usual maritime jurisdiction, and he adroitly paraphrases the language of this act and applies it to the seal fisheries of the Pribiloff islands.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The answer of Lord Salisbury to Secretary Blaine's proposal for a closed season in Behring sea has been received. The reply intimates a willingness to accept the proposal for a closed season, but suggests certain conditions which our government is not yet willing to accept. What these conditions are will be made known at the first meeting of the cabinet after the president's return. While they may be regarded as embarrassing they probably will not stand in the way of a final agreement.

THE ESCAPED ITATA.

Has Uncle Sam a Right to Take Her on the High Seas?

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The question of the right of the United States to take the Itata, the Chilian vessel that escaped recently from the marshal at San Diego, on the high seas is not altogether settled. The state department people have searched their authorities and have scrutinized the facts in the case, and are inclined to doubt the right. The whole question arises from a dispute as to the character of the vessel. Were she a pirate, a ship in the service of an enemy to this country and a vessel of American register engaged in acts in violation of treaty stipulations, the case would be a simple one. But she is merely a Chilian vessel engaged in the transportation of a suspected cargo, a cargo that may possibly be contraband in the light of the treaty, and there is a very grave risk involved. No one doubts the right of the United States to arrest the vessel in our own waters for the purpose of examination, and her detention Tuesday afternoon was in accordance with this belief. But now that she has landed the deputy marshal and sailed along on her business she may prove a hornet that will sting in after years.

Burned to Death.

CHICAGO, May 9.—By the explosion from some unknown cause of a can of gasoline, Miss Jennie Tupper, aged 19 years, was burned to death Friday night. Miss Tupper's parents reside near Flint, Mich., but she had been in this city for some time attending school. The horrible accident occurred at the residence of her uncle, Prof. J. H. Loomis, principal of the Wells public school.

Mme. Blavatsky Dead.

LONDON, May 9.—Mme. Blavatsky, the noted co-founder of the Theosophical society, died at 19 Avenue road, Regent's park, three weeks ago. The fact has only now become publicly known. Mme. Blavatsky was 60 years of age. The cause of death was influenza, aggravated by kidney trouble. The deceased was cremated at Woking, according to her desire.

Died by the Rope.

OTTAWA, Ill., May 11.—Charles Ford, the murderer of David Moore, the Merrill (Wis.) traveling man, in June last, was hanged here Saturday. Ford's name was Charles Rudolph, and he was of German descent. Ford's father was hanged at Sing Sing prison years ago.

Two Children Killed by Lightning.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 9.—Two children aged 13 and 10, of Mrs. Susan Hardwick, residing on Sugar creek, were killed by lightning. The bolt came down the chimney into the room where the children were sleeping.

Railway Shops Burned.

GALVESTON, Tex., May 9.—The Santa Fe railway shops were burned in this city Friday. Value of the property, including rolling stock, destroyed will aggregate $100,000.

NOW TRY THIS.

It will cost you nothing and will surely do you good, if you have a Cough, Cold or any trouble with Throat, Chest or Lungs. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to give relief, or money will be paid back. Sufferers from La Grippe found it just the thing and under its use had a speedy and perfect recovery. Try a sample bottle at our expense and learn for yourself just how good a thing it is. Trial bottles free at J. J. Orr's Drug store. Large size 50c. and $1.00.

MARVELOUS ENDURANCE.

The vast amount of labor performed by the heart in keeping all portions of the body supplied with blood is not generally known. It beats 100,000 times and forces the blood at the rate of 168 miles a day, which is 3,000,000,000 times and 5,150,880 miles in a life time. No wonder there are so many HEART FAILURES. The first symptoms are shortness of breath when exercising, pain in the side or stomach, fluttering choking in throat, oppression, then follow weak, hungry or smothering spells, swolen ankles, etc. Dr. Franklen Miles' NEW HEART CURE is the only reliable remedy. "An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability. "Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way. "Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used. THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 18, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault. Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO.

THE TRUSTS.

Something of Interest Concerning These Business Combines.

The following communication on Trusts is taken from the Progressive Farmer. It is one of the best articles on that subject, in a brief space, that we have seen and we reproduce it entire:

The student of modern political economy, especially of American economics as compared with the teachings of Adam Smith, Malthus, Ricardo, and John Stewart Mill, recognizes a wide departure from the old school economics, resulting from radical changes going on in the existing industrial system now pervading all business.

There is a manifest growing tendency to eliminate competition as the controlling economic force; and, so far as possible, to circumscribe the area within which its influence is effectual. There is an impelling cause behind this movement, the chief economic reason for which is claimed to be the concentration and conservation of energy with the least expense and competitive waste—savings in the wages of officers, agents, traveling salesmen; and, above all, the expenses of competitive strife. But the real cause underlying the formation of trusts and combinations is the advantages and opportunities which come through the concentration of large amounts of capital in the hands of their controllers, by which they are enabled to over-reach and effectually crush out all competition, thus giving the power to monopolize and control the business for which the combines and trusts were formed.

The trusts have come; and, while there remains individual competition in a restricted sense, its social supremacy, as a factor in the life-work of these later times, is gone, and with it largely the power of the people to right themselves. Machinery has largely taken the the place of manual labor, and the progress of invention in all industrial development has largely increased profits under a pro rata reduction of manual labor, and thereby giving to manufacturers commanding large capital not only a more certain control but larger profits. The king of the trusts, "The Standard Oil," was formed in 1874, and since then more than three score trusts have been formed in many of the leading industries of the country, and they are still stretching their briarean arms "to grasp in all the shore."

It is but natural that the people mostly affected by the trusts should declaim against and abuse them; but have not organizers of syndicates simply adjusted themselves to prevent economic conditions, to avail of opportunities for personal gain, made possible under the politics—economic system now in vogue? There is a principle pervading all human nature, however civilized and cultured, that invites the individual to grasp all that is attainable and utilize every opportunity for personal gain not interdicted by law.

Success in war is greatly determined by heavy battallions skillfully handled, and the largest profits are realized from concentrated capital so employed as to crush out and defy competition. Then again capital—the money class—in this country has always received special favor and been granted special privileges. The tendency of economic development has for years been in the direction of combinations and trusts, and they have grown so powerful as not only to menace all individual enterprise but the public welfare.

To control trusts and keep them within the bonds of ethical economy—just and fair to all trades, industries and classes—is no easy problem, and is made more difficult since capital has learned its potency in controlling legislation in its behalf.

There seems but one way to successfully meet and oppose the encroachments of trusts, combinations and syndicates formed and forming to rob the people, and that is to increase, extend and magnify the functions and power of the State, or of the Union, to deal with them. Individual effort is powerless, and the way has not yet been opened for association and organizations of the people to successfully oppose monopolies.

The reader may ask, what is meant by a "sockdolager?" We reply, it is what old Tom Blackwell, the grandfather of Buck Blackwell, of Durham, was wont to call a knock-down. Here is a "sockdolager" knock-down for the trusts:

Let the State recognize trusts as it has railroad corporations, and then pass laws to effectually control them. "Fight the devil with fire," and big chunks of it well heaped on. Give to them distinct public functions and characters, as distinct from private business; require public supervision over them in order to rectify abuses and to protect the citizens and Commonwealth. There is no necessity to make a communistic State, but there is a palpable and urgent necessity to protect private property, individual rights and enterprise, and to promote the industrial welfare and well-being of all the people.

There is a growing inequality of condition of the people of this great republic that menaces its stability and the perpetuation of true Democracy. Something is imperatively demanded to correct the evil tendency in the aggrandizement of immense wealth in the hands of the favored few. Taxation is the factor needed as the great equalizer in solving this irregular social equation. Let the State levy a graduated income tax, cumulative on the amount taxed, on all corporations, trusts and individuals, tax all inheritances and bequests, and levy a special tax, on the succession of all estates over $100,000, and thus accomplish for the next generation what our forefathers so wisely and beneficiently did in the inauguration of this republic, in the abolishment of primogeniture and entail.

Desperate diseases require heroic remedies, and the diseased body politic must be treated accordingly. The economic conscience, at its best, is not above par; and "corporations have no souls," and therefore the State alone must govern them. The autonomy of the State, so greatly endangered by trusts, must be preserved at all hazards, and everything in conflict therewith must be suppressed or brought into subjection to law, or we will soon witness what is fast approaching, an aristocracy of wealth—a despicable plutocracy—that will crush out all enterprise and thrift outside of their favored arenas, and inaugurate a tyranny more cruel and enslaving than feudalism or serfdom, because of its being inflicted on a people that have once known and enjoyed the blessings of civil and industrial liberty.

THE TARIFF IN RHYME.

THE FREE LIST.

Albumen and Arsenic, Acorns and Aconite,
Asbestos and Asses' Skins, Ashes and Apatite;
Bolognas and Bullion and Brimstone beside,
Bladders and Bones, and Blood, if it's dried;
Cacao and C ral, and Curry and Cutch,
Civet and Cinnamon, Camphor and such.
Divi-Divi comes next, and Dragon's-blood rare;
Dear Diamonds follow for paupers to wear.
Excrescences, Emory ore, Etchings, if old,
Ergot and Ebony next we behold.
Farina and Fashion plates, Fossils from far,
(Forgetful of Washington's Fossils we are;)
Granadilla and Grasses and Glass, when it's broken,
Gems, Guano, and Ginger, and much more unspoken;
Hides are free now, but in ninety and two
Harrison's hand much mischief may do.
Iridium hard and Ipecac queer,
Ice, Insects and Indigo, have a place here;
Jet, Jalap and Jasmine oil, Joss-stick and Junk,
Just crowded together, and made free "all hunk."
Kernel of palm oil, Kyrolith, Kelp,
Keep up the free list the poor folks to help;
Lac, Lemon-peel, Lava, the juice of the Lime,
Live Leeches and Lichens, a hard word to rhyme;
Musk, Munjeet and Manna the Hebrews that fed,
Marshmallows and Meerschaum, Mahogany red;
Neroli oil, Newspapers, Nuts from Brazil,
Nux-vomica, needed by those who are ill;
Orchids and Osmium, Ottar of roses,
Of use to the poor man, McKinley supposes;
Pimento and Pumice and Pulu and Paste,
Pepper, Plumbago and old Paper waste;
Quinine for protectionists quaking in pain,
Quolts and Quills for reformers' stout muscles and brain;
Regalia for scholars, and Rags for the nude,
Railroad ties for the rich, Rattans for the rude:
Sauerkraut, Skeletons, Sea-weed and Spice,
Saffron, Spunk, Snails, and everything nice;
Turmeric, Turtles, Teeth, Tripoli, Thyme—
The importing of these is not called a crime;
Uranium oxide, Umbrella-sticks, too,
Uncle Sam's cruisers freely let through.
Valonia, Verdigris, Vellum and Virus,
Verily, verily, this will soon tire us;
Weeds, Whip-gut and Walking-sticks fit in just here,
Wax, Wafers and Whalebone also appear;
X comes in the midst of the taxes of all,
X then to the free list we never can call;
Yams—Yawning? Well, I am near through,
Yet I must finish this catalogue true;
Zaffer comes last on the free list so wrong,
Zanies are they who gave cause for this song.

THE TAXED LIST.

Astands for Anchors and Anvils and Axes,
B is for Blankets; on these we pay taxes.
Cottons, Coal, Carpets, begin with a C, sir;
Dress goods and Dye woods, neither are free, sir.
Earthenware pays per cent. five and fifty;
Flannels and Flax, Fish, food for the thrifty.
Glass to let light in, for light the blind care not,
Hardware and Harness and Hats—the poor wear not.
Iron in forms I'd weary in telling,
Jackets and Jolts, the last for my dwelling.
Knives for the boys, Knit-goods for mother;
Linen, Lead, Leather and many another.
Meats, Milk and Metals, enough to bewilder,
Needles for seamstresses, Nails for the builder.
Oatmeal for living and Ox shoes for labor;
Paper and Pens, making distant friends neighbor.
Quicksilver silvers rich barons Pacific;
Rice for the poor pays a duty terrific.
Salt, Saws and Steel, Screws, Soda and Shipping.
Tinned plate for workingmen, Tools for bold gripping.
Ulsters to warm us are padded with duties.
Vegetables feed, Varnish make us all beauties.
Woolens and Wools, Wood, Wire and Watches.
Xcellent are as tariff tax blotches.
Yarns you pay toll for when stockings are mended,
Zephyr is one of them; my yarn is ended.

A HOME MARKET STATE.

How Farming is Declining in Massachusetts—Decrease of Population in Farming Towns—Why the Home Market Theory Does Not Help the Farmer.

The Massachusetts bureau of statistics of labor has recently made a report on abandoned farms in that state which conveys a striking practical proof of the falsity of the "home market theory" of the protectionists. That theory is that if you build up manufactures by protection you make agriculture all the more prosperous by furnishing the farmer a home market for his produce. This theory has a show of plausibility about it when put on paper; but actual experience in Massachusetts shows that this "home market theory" will not hold water, since the agricultural population of the state is decling as the manufacturing population grows.

Several of the farming towns report as much as 20 per cent. of farm acreage abandoned, two towns as high as 22 per cent. and one even 32 per cent. In Berkshire county five towns show 16 per cent. of all farms abandoned, and four towns in Franklin county return 17 per cent. abandoned.

The changes of population in the state are still more striking. The towns in each county can be divided into two groups, towns devoted mainly to manufactures and towns in which farming is the leading industry. In the county of Dukes both classes of towns have declined, but in the county of Barnstable the towns in which manufactures lead have decreased 58.61 per cent., while those which depended entirely upon agriculture have increased 6.96 per cent. These are the only two counties in which agriculture has not lost as compared with manufacturing.

In Berkshire county the manufacturing towns increased 115.98 per cent., while the agricultural towns declined 35.41 per cent. In Bristol county the manufacturing towns increased 81.17 per cent., while the agricultural towns declined 8.68 per cent. In Essex county the towns reporting abandoned farms are all included in the manufacturing group, and exhibit an increase of 38.68 per cent. In Franklin county the towns in the manufacturing group, increased 103.65 per cent., while the other towns declined 23.30 per cent. In Hampden county the manufacturing towns increased 48.79 per cent., and the agricultural towns declined 26.67 per cent. In Hampshire county the increase in the manufacturing towns was 47.66 per cent., while the agricultural towns declined 30.17 per cent. In Middlesex county the manufacturing towns gained 87.26 per cent., while the agricultural group lost 0.42 per cent. In Norfolk county both classes gained, the gain being 37.99 per cent. in the manufacturing towns and 17.4 per cent. in the agricultural. In Plymouth county the manufacturing towns gained 14.47 per cent. and the agricultural lost 21.61 per cent. In Worcester county the manufacturing towns gained 41.81 per cent. and the agricultural lost 13.75 per cent.

Massachussets is the greatest manufacturing state in the union in proportion to its size and population. If the "home market theory" can vindicate itself anywhere it certainly ought to do so in that state. The mills are brought near to the farm, according to the ideal set forth by the protectionists; and yet agriculture is declining.

As the young lawyer said, "there must be a screw loose in the state of Denmark." The trouble with the "home market theory" is that while protection taxes the farmers in order to insure greater profits to the manufacturer, it offers to the farmer no guarantee whatever that this protected manufacturer will pay one penny more for farm produce than the foreigner will pay. The boasted home market for the products of the farm is simply a part of the great world's market; and not only is it not a better market than the foreign market, but the farmer seldom knows whether he is selling for export or for the home market, for the price will be the same in either case.

Hence it is clear that for the farmer the home market is no better and no worse than the foreign market, except in the case of very perishable products. As protection then does not make the home market any better to him than the foreign market, does not give him better prices here than abroad, it is clear that when the benefits of protection are counted up the farmer "is not in it." The manufacturer gets in most cases his higher prices, which the farmer must pay; the farmer sells and must sell at world-market prices, and at these the manufacturer fills his pantry.

And so farming in protected Massachusetts is declining.

Wool and Shoddy.

The New York Dry Goods Economist has set on foot an investigation which will certainly result in finding out some facts of great interest to the tariff burdened consumers of this country. This investigation is undertaken to show that without using shoddy the manufacturers cannot supply the place of the worsted goods shut out by the McKinley law.

The Economist says that until the manufacturers get free wool "clothiers will be compelled to manufacture their $15 suits out of pieces made of cotton and shoddy and a very small per centage of wool, and designers' abilities will be employed not so much in producing an attractive fabric as in hiding the inferior yarns, by the use of as much good material as the price will admit. Taxed wool is the greatest inducement to the use of shoddy, and in subsequent issues we shall endeavor to show how those woolen-manufacturers who were the greatest advocates of the wool schedules in the McKinley act are among the largest users of shoddy of our domestic manufacturers."

We are already the greatest shoddy-wearing nation on earth; and McKinley's increase of the wool duties will have the effect of making us wear more shoddy than ever. A prominent wool manufacturer of Massachussetts, Mr. Arthur I. Lyman, of the Lowell Manufacturing Co., has recently stated that a large part of the clothing of the people is made of shoddy. It was altogether natural that the shoddy men earnestly supported the McKinley bill last year when it was under discussion.

As the statement is often made by the protectionists that the manufacturers do not want free wool, it is well to quote here Mr. Lyman's indorsement of Cleveland's free wool message. He says: "President Cleveland's message on free wool states so well the case of the whole people against the wool-growers' selfish interests or the manufacturers' selfish interests that I need only ask the people to read and consider it."

Exporting Coal.

The uselessness of our duty on coal is shown by the fact that we are exporting considerable quantities of coal. Only a few years ago we began exporting it to Cuba. In 1889 these exports amounted to 198,000 tons; and in 1890 they reached 237,000 tons. Our total exports to all countries last year amounted to 1,931,000 tons, valued at $6,855,000. Our imports, on the other hand, were only 935,000 tons, worth $3,000,000. The duty on coal hurts nobody except the people on the coast and the people in New England, except when, as is usually the case, the home producers maintain a combination price. The removal of this duty of seventy-five cents a ton would prevent this trust method, except at points removed from the seaports; and New England and the Pacific states would have access to coal supplies, which they very much need.

As our exports are so far beyond imports it is preposterous to claim, as the protected mine-owners do, that the duty is the only thing that enables us to operate our mines.

How Farming Grows.

The claim of the protectionists that the farmer gets the principal advantage out of the tariff is decidedly "cheeky" even for the pretectionists. If the principal advantage goes to the farmer then agriculture ought certainly to be increasing more rapidly than manufacturers, but this is far from being the case. The eminent statistician, Mulhall, has shown that from 1850 to 1889 the population of the United States increased 170 per cent., railroads nearly 1,600 per cent., banking more than 900 per cent., steam power 685 per cent., manufactures 498 per cent., agriculture 252 per cent. and shipping 74 per cent.

—It seems that the growth of the deposits in the savings banks of the state have fallen to within a little of the vanishing point since the passage of the McKinley tariff. Before that time we were told, again and again, that protection was responsible for the great increase that has taken place in those deposits. Is overdone protection stopping their growth now? We don't see why, on the basis of the earlier argument. It is not fair to take that ground, but, to be candid, our belief is that protection had about as much to do with the matter in the one case as in the other, and that is very little, indeed.—Boston Herald.

SPECIMEN CASES.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his Stomach was disordered, his Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg Ill., had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Speaker, Catawba, O., had five large Fever sores on his leg, doctors said he was incurable. One bottle Electric Bitters and one box Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold by J. J. Orr.

I have been bothered with catarrh for about twenty years; I had lost sense of smell entirely, and I had almost lost my hearing. My eyes were getting so dim I had to get some one to thread my needle. Now I have my hearing as well as I ever had, and I can see to thread as fine a needle as ever I did, my sense of smell is partly restored, and it seems to be improving all the time. I think there is nothing like Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh.—Mrs. E. E. Grimes, Rendrill, Perry Co., Ohio.

BUCKLEN'S ARNICA SALVE.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, tetter, chappep hands chilblains corns, and all skin eruptions and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box for sale by John J. Orr.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY,

Dr. Brown Sequard's elixir of youth may be an important discovery, but every one knows that Dr. Franklin Miles' New Heart Cure certainly is. It has given thousands afflicted serious heart disease a New Lease of Life. Druggists who can observe its effects on many costomers everywhere speak very highly of it. Mr. John Weaver, Knightstown Ind., says: "I have sold much of Dr. Miles New Cure and have received many good reports." O. Monroe, of Dunkirk, N. Y., reports large sales. "And the best part of it is every bottle has given satisfaction. Sold and guaranteed by Baker & Hall.

"Diseased nature oftentimes breaks forth in strange eruptions," and the result of it all is pains. Now Salvation Oil will send this very pain to the right about at the trifling cost of only 25 cts.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Lancaster called on Tecumseh friends Tuesday.

Quartermaster General Fred B. Wood, of Adrian, was in town Monday.

Mrs. C. F. Field and daughter were at Mrs. J. S. Kies' the first of the week.

Mrs. E. M. Conklin, of Manchester, spent Friday and Saturday with friends here.

David Woodward has the wall laid for the house to be erected on the Blakeman lot.

Mrs. James Wadsworth and child, of Flint, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Prentiss.

Rev. A. W. Stalker's place was filled Sunday the by pastor of the M. E. Church of Ridgeway.

Mrs. A. W. Stalker's father, Mr. Hendrickson, of Ann Arbor, is making a short visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Becker and Mrs. Mary Pomeroy, of Ypsilanti, visited friends here last week.

Mrs. C. B. McMaster was quite sick Saturday and Sunday but is able to be at her store as usual this week.

George Codling was called to Manchester last week Wednesday to fill the place of the station agent, who was sick.

Mr and Mrs. Ed. Parker returned from Detroit Monday. Their home will be at A. C. Huntington's for the present.

Miss Augusta Bruce, who has been at Cottonville, Ala., for several months, came home last Friday night to spend a few days.

We learn that Carl S. Burton, who is at present in Philadelphia, expects to sail for Europe this week, to be absent about two months.

Mrs. Chas. Parker, of Eaton Rapids, came here to attend the Parker-Huntington wedding last Wednesday. She returned home this week.

A meeting of the Alumni was held last Saturday evening at Mrs. S. F. Marstellar's, for the purpose of making arrangements for their annual reunion.

Mrs. Charles Keysor and three children arrived here from Ontario last Wednesday. She expects to remain here some time with her mother, Mrs. Codling.

Mrs. Fox, who has removed her laundry from Manchester to Tecumseh, has left the Clinton agency with Chas. Thompson, in F. D. Lancaster's clothing store.

Mrs. T. C. Adam is making several improvements about her house and grounds. Old trees and buildings are being removed and the place much improved in appearance.

The outlook for a street sprinkler is now good. Our merchants have all contributed liberally towards one, realizing the benefit to be derived, and in all probability one will be run.

Clinton Chapter No. 42 was invited to attend work in 3rd degree by Monroe chapter at Detroit, Thursday evening. A special train run from Adrian to Detroit. Several Masons went from here.

Miss Bertie Johnston has been suffering for several days with a felon. Tuesday evening she went to a physician to have it lanced, but evidently prefered to perform the operation herself, as she took the instrument from his hand and made the incision. The hand is improving.

Accidents at the woolen mill seem to be the rule instead of the exception of late. Joe Jackson got caught in one of the looms Tuesday and had the flesh torn from one arm below the elbow, making a very ugly wound, which will necessitate his absence from the mill for several days.

Wednesday at one p. m. occurred the marriage of Mr. Fred Mahrle of Clinton to Maggie Stabler of Bridgewater. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. R. Williams at the Con'g parsonage. The happy couple were accompanied by Mr. George Stabler brother of the bride and Miss Emma Koernig. Mr. and Mrs. Mahrle with their friends drove to their home in Jackson immediately after the ceremony.

Tom Kirk, night-watch at the Woolen Mill, was burned quite badly Saturday night by an exposion in the engine room. He went down about 2 o'clock and was fixing the fire when the explosion took place. He lay on the floor insensible for some time, but finally came to himself and summoned help and he was assisted home. One hand and arm was severely burned, but he is able to attend to his work as usual.

The third Medal Contest was held last Friday evening at the Town Hall. The audience was not as large as the nature of the entertainment should have called out, but those who were present were well entertained. The musical part of the program was especially enjoyable, the Prohibition Glee Club furnishing some very fine selections, and our home quartette a medley that elicited a storm of applause. The silver medal was won by Miss Mabel Redick, and in the opinion of the audience was well bestowed. The young lady shows signs of doing good elocutionary work. The judges were Messrs. Steinhoff and Blood and Miss Dora Grayson, of Tecumseh.

THE LADIES DELIGHTED:

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

Hon. W. S. Wilcox, after fifty years active work as superintendent of the Adrian Baptist Sunday school, has declined to be re-elected. He retires full of years and honor in the work, and perhaps no other man in the state has served as a Sunday school superintendent so many consecutive years.—Adrian Messenger.

On dit that a new time table will go into effect on the Ann Arbor road about the middle of May, and that an additional passenger train each way will be added. One to arrive at Toledo about 9 o'clock in the morning, and one to leave Toledo about noon. Such an arrangement would be gratifying to the people along this end of the line.—Dundee Reporter.

Dr. Lacey performed a rather queer operation in tracheotomy one day last week, by which he saved the life of a valuable colt belonging to Wilen Myers. The colt's windpipe had swollen up so that the animal could not breathe, and the Dr. cut into the pipe, and having no tubes along with him, he placed a teakettle spout in the slit, thus allowing the colt to breathe freely and saving his life. The animal breathed through the spout for three days.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Don't grumble because The Messenger contains a good many advertisements. Remember it is the advertisements and job printing that has enabled us to put in new presses, new type, etc. When we once get done buying these things it will be the advertising and job printing that will enable us to enlarge the paper, and make it better. It takes time to build up a paper, and the advertising helps. If there were no ads in the paper you might fear for its success.—Michigan Messenger.

Here is a pointer for the Tecumseh Council:

The council have decided to set down on making the public streets a trading place for traveling pedlers, auctioneers, etc. Almost every week the village is invaded by some species of such dealers, inflicting great damage to regular merchants. It is proposed to charge the highest rate of license provided by the ordinances for doing business in the village by such customers, and that the public streets shall not be used for such purposes.—Dundee Reporter.

Rev. G. S. Bradley, in a Hudson sermon on "Religion and Business," claimed there should be no antagonism between the two nor any separation. There certainly ought not to be, Elder, "for a fact," but there is. If you preach the gospel, that's religion. If you receive your salary, that's business. If you preach the gospel and do not receive your salary, there is a disagreement between religion and business which no theology can patch up. It is just as well to look the facts squarely in the face.—Adrian Press.

Where will the Pioneer Society of Seneca, Dover and Medina hold its yearly picnic hereafter is a question for which there is now demanded a practical answer. The large grove at Seneca Station heretofore used has been sold to a lumberman, and that fact is indeed to be regretted by every friend of the society, as a more convenient or desirable place for that purpose it would be impossible to find. This is a case in which we sympathize with the sentiment and feeling of the poet when he exclaimed, "Woodman, spare that tree."—Morenci Observer.

Art Retan made a trip to Detroit Tuesday all alone, taking his wheel chair along. His business was to visit an artificial limb factory and see what could be done. He was told that putting a foot on the longest limb, which was amputated leaving part of the heel, was impracticable, but that the best thing to do was to have a limb fitted to the short leg, and after a time, if he saw fit, he might have the long one amputated above the ankle, and have two artificial feet. Art speaks highly of the courtesies shown by the train hands, and says as soon as they knew the nature of his mishap, they assisted him in every way, and made him so comfortable that it was a pleasure to travel.—Hudson Post.

FOLK-LORE AND FOLK-CURE.

Some of the scientists who make a specialty of folk lore have lately been making inquiries about the malady which the country people called spring fever. It is a genuine malady, though more disagreeable than serious. Yet it should be taken note of. While the scientists are inquiring about the tone of the malady, those who are suffering the lassitude, nervousness and melancholia, that are its symptoms, should run the disease out of their systems by means of that more subtle scientist and folk-curest—S. S. S. This is particularly necessary, since spring fever leaves the system in such a condition that it succumbs readily to diseases that are more dangerous and less easily controled. S. S. S. is a preventive as well as a remedy.

ESTATE OF ORRIN HISCOCK.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Saturday, the 9th day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Orrin Hiscock, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Fred'k B. Wood, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that he may be discharged and his bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 8th day of June next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

(A True Copy.)

MILWAUKEE JUNIOR!

Takes the Lead!

TO THE FARMERS:

I have sold these machines in Tecumseh and vicinity for six years past and my sales have increased each succeeding year. The farmers who have bought this machine know, from a practical test, that it is the best machine on the market, and I expect to make my seventh season take the cake in the number of sales. I have just been having a tussle with the grip, but am now on deck again. Life is too short to relate and the newspaper too small to print all the good points about the MILWAUKEE JUNIOR. But call at my rooms in the Usborne Block and I will SHOW you the machine and EXPLAIN its workings.

Yours, for a Big Wheat Crop,

GEO. C. POCKLINGTON.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Business is booming in our village.

Decoration evening: "Never Too Late to Mend."

William Smith will live in the new house of Irve Osborn's.

Dr. Smith has moved to Holloway and has a large practice.

Joseph Hunter has the house for Irve Osborne nearly completed.

J. M. Taggett, of Jackson, was visiting friends in Britton last week.

A Gun club has been organized here; shooting every Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Hendershot was visiting friends in Ohio the early part of this week.

The Wabash pay car came through last Monday and made the boys happy.

A number of our young people attended the Free Methodist meeting last Sunday.

Don't forget the last show of the season—"Never Too Late to Mend,"—May 29th-30th.

We hear that George Smith has won another lawsuit. Surely the Devil helps his own.

Henry Miller and his dog "Mugg" are buying a large number of eggs for W. Lenardson & Son.

There was a surprise party at Charlie Kniffen's last Monday evening. All report a good time.

Mr. Strong will remain in Britton for the present, having not yet got through with his detective work.

Miss McCutchon has now quite recovered from her severe cold and can converse as well as ever.

Corn is nearly all planted and the farmers are ready to come to the last show, May 29th-30th, at Exelby Opera House.

Our village band seems to be again awake and have favored us with music the last two Saturday evenings. Keep it up, boys.

F. Brown & Son are doing a rushing business in their new store. Persons in want of a good suit of clothes made to order will do well to give them a call.

Over 300,000 shingles have been shipped to Britton from the northern part of this State within the last four weeks. The shingles are of the best quality and the price is away down to hard-pan.

Edward Henderson's eldest daughter, Addie, has been very sick for the last few days, and at one time the chances for her recovery were very slight, but we are glad to say at present writing she is gaining and her speedy recovery is looked for.

At a meeting of citizens held at G. A. R. Hall, Britton, May 16th, for the purpose of making arrangements for the proper observance of Decoration Day, the following officers and committees were appointed:

President—Dr. E. E. Hendershot.
Marshal—Chas. DuBois.

Com. on transportation—Thos. Lee, Sam'l Kniffen, Geo. Exelby.

Com. to provide seats, etc. for wagons—Jos. Hunter, Wm. Nivison, John Winsley.

Com. to arrange Floral Wagon—Lewis Miller, L. E. Hause, J. Pool, H. Reynolds, N. H. Ackley.

Com. to arrange for children for Floral Wagon—Miss Maggie Bowerman.

Com. on Evergreens—Geo. Clark, Vern Gripton, Clyde Kniffen, Ernest DuBois, Will Winsley, Grant Ousterhout.

Com. on Music—Sam'l Kniffen, Wm. Osgood, Burt Nichols.

Floral Com.—Vie Underwood, Emma Hause, Libbie Underwood, Ella Exelby, Minnie Haight, Gertie Kniffin, Lulu Miller.

Com. on Wreaths and Emblems—The wives of members of the G. A. R. Post, with Mrs. W. J. Clark as Chairman. All ladies who are willing are cordially invited to assist this committee.

The people are invited to meet at G. A. R. Hall at 12 o'clock noon, in order that the procession may move promptly at one o'clock.

THOS. LEE, Chairman.
W. J. CLARK, Sec.

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson are sick with la grippe.

Prof. G. W. Loomis spent Saturday and Sunday in Ypsilanti.

Mrs. Conrad Lehn has moved into the south cottage on Water street.

Nettie Logan was badly bitten by an ugly dog on Wednesday of last week.

Mrs. Hollis and daughter Jennie started on Saturday for an extended visit East.

L. Whitney Watkins is at home for a week's vacation from the Agricultural College at Lansing.

Mrs. Leonard F. Baldwin, of New Troy, Berrien Co., is visiting relatives and friends at this place and in Saline.

Rev. R. L. Cope will address the Comstock Post, G. A. R., of Manchester, next Sunday, at the usual hour for services in the M. E. Church.

The frost on Saturday night was very severe in this section. Early potatoes, strawberries and grapes, as well as other tender plants and shrubs, have suffered.

Rev. I. L. Case was called away to attend the funeral of his mother, who lived near Marshall, so there were no services in the Universalist church last Sabbath.

Go to the HERALD office for your job work. Reasonable prices charged.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

N. M. Hindes doesn't improve very much of late.

W. F. Clack visited his parents at Plymouth Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. R. H. Nelson has built a walk in front of his residence on North street.

Geo. Field, of Tecumseh, called on friends in the village Sunday afternoon.

T. H. Temple spent a part of last week at Chicago and Harvey, returning Saturday.

The frost Saturday and Sunday night was a hard blow to fruit and garden vegetables.

H. J. Williams is putting the slate roof on Mrs. Sue Clark's new horse and carriage barn this week.

Emma Miller, who has been in Detroit with her sister, Mrs. B. J. Coller, for several weeks past, returned home Saturday evening.

J. F. Hicks, of Tecumseh, the lightning rod manipulator of Lenawee, was in the village Monday and rodded the church up in fine shape.

A. R. Arner has been doing some fine lettering for F. J. Temple. A call at the drug store will convince you that it is one of the finest places of business of the kind in the State.

The L. C. S. will be held at the home of W. L. Jones on Friday evening of the present week, instead of Mrs. J. F. Temple's as announced in last week's issue. An interesting literary and musical program is being prepared and refreshments, consisting of coffee and cake, will be served at 10c. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

The members of the Epworth League are making preparations for a patriotic social to be held at the church on Saturday evening of next week, May 30th, when the following program will be given, after which ice cream and cake will be served at 10c. a dish.

Sunday morning and evening Rev. Oscar Willitts, of Detroit, occupied the pulpit, giving a very interesting and instructive discourse on missionary work in China. On Monday evening he gave a lecture on China and the habits of the Chinese.

On Monday evening of this week Mr. and Mrs. George Cox were the victims of a complete surprise, their home, being invaded by about fifty relatives, preceded by Marshal Kyle, who took the family by force and at once claimed possession of the house during their stay. After a short visit the table was spread, and such a supper! No comment is necessary, as anyone acquainted with the Beevers family know that they never do such things by halves. Mr. and Mrs. Cox were the recipients of a complete set of decorated china dishes, also a fine large chair, for which the donors will accept their warmest thanks.

MACON MUSIC.

Quarterly Meeting at the M. E. Church next Sunday.

There is no meat market in Macon this summer, because there is no room in the inn.

The frost Saturday night did considerable damage to small fruit. Grapes are badly frozen.

Mrs. Geo. Harmon went to Church's Corners last Monday to visit her sister-in-law who is very sick.

MORGAN.—Joseph Morgan was born June 8, 1819, in the State of New York, and died at his home in Browne, Mich., April 28, 1891.

Bro. Morgan came to Michigan at the age of fourteen, where he has since resided. He was married to Elizabeth Kelley, April 10, 1845. Six children were born to them, of whom four are yet living. Bro. Morgan was converted more than forty years ago, and has been in the service of God ever since. The last few years of his life were spent in the M. E. Church. He was ready to go when the message came.—Michigan Advocate.

Mr. Morgan was for years a resident of Macon and had many friends and relatives here, among whom are John Morgan and Betsey Camburn. The stricken family have the sympathy of many friends and neighbors here.

THE LADIES DELIGHTED:

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT IT.

Below are a few kind words spoken by our local exchanges in regard to the HERALD's new spring suit:

The Tecumseh Herald looks very neat in its new dress.—Clinton Local.

Last week the Tecumseh Herald came out in a new spring dress, bright, clean and stylish.—Monroe Democrat.

The Tecumseh Herald comes out in a new spring dress that is as neat as a pin and fits exquisitely.—Brooklyn Exponent.

The Tecumseh Herald has a new dress, an improved make up, and a very presentable appearance all through.—Hudson Gazette.

The Herald came out last week in a new dress and a new make up, much to the improvement of its typographical appearance. Glad to see our neighbor so enterprising.—Tecumseh News.

The Tecumseh Herald is now printed from neat new body type, and Editor Stacy takes all the pride in it that his wife would in a new dress of the latest pattern—that is, if he had a wife.—Morenci Observer.

The Tecumseh Herald last week appeared in a handsome dress of new type. The Herald was before a good-looking and ably conducted newspaper, one that it is always a pleasure to peruse. May it continue to prosper.—Dundee Reporter.

The Tecumseh Herald has a new dress. That is, it is printed from new type. Anything which has a new dress is pleasing to the eye of the bachelor editor, and in the present instance he may well be proud of the improvement.—Hudson Post.

Mrs. Clough, of the Brooklyn Exponent, has lately been exhibiting her new "dress." This provoked the envy of Stacy of the Tecumseh Herald. "See my new dress!" now retorts the editor of our Tecumseh contemporary, as he flirts his brevier skirts in the faces of his exchanges. That paper never dressed so neat, nor looked so sweet, as when it came to us last week in brand new clothes. A large amount of 'cess to it.—Adrian Press.

The "Old Reliable" Tecumseh Herald comes out with a new spring suit, and is as welcome to its circle of readers as are the balmy May breezes. Brother Stacy represents the true type of stick-to-it-iveness, and richly merits success in the field of journalism. Without his fostering care in time of need the COURIER would have been numbered with the slain six years ago, and much of its present success is due to his wise painstaking.—Addison Courier.

Our Urbane Secretary.

The Detroit Sun has a neat little mention of a visit to that City by our Secretary of State, which will doubtless be of interest to Mr. Soper's Tecumseh friends:

Secretary of State Daniel E. Soper, notwithstanding the many buffetings that, according to his speech last night before the Newsboy's' Aid Association, the world has given, has retained a gentlemanly instinct and an urbanity of manner that it is refreshing for a newspaper man to meet. He is easily interviewed, and says what he has to say in a terse and easy manner.

When seen at the Cadillac Hotel this morning, and being asked if his visit to Detroit had any political significance, he stated that he came here only on invitation of the Newsboy's Aid Association; to whose fraternity he once belonged, and, as a consequence, took a special interest in their success. He regretted the small attendance last evening, but was satisfied that the institution was doing a power of good among the boys. He leaves for Lansing this afternoon.

The May Arena, which closes the third volume of this phenomenally brilliant and successful review, contains a remarkably fine picture of the Rev. Minot J. Savage, made from a recent photograph of the great liberal divine. In this issue Mr. Savage appears in a debate with Julian Hawthorn, on the subject "Is Spiritualism Worth Investigating?" An admirable picture of Julian Hawthorne and one of Prof. Abram S. Issac, are also features of the May Arena. Probably the four papers which will attract most attention outside of the Hawthorn-Savage debate in this issue are those by C. Wood Davis on "The Wheat Supply of Europe and America," Professor Emil Blum on "Russia of To-day; E. P. Powell's critical study of the political life of Thomas Jefferson and the editor's paper on "Is Socialism Desirable?

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, MAY 21.

Ohio is the twenty-fourth State in the ballot reform procession. Will Michigan be the twenty-fifth?

Whether the tariff is a tax or not is a very interesting theoretical question. But when we set aside theory and come down to a practical test, if the tariff is not a tax, then what's the matter with sugar?

Georgia ought to be a happy State. They "whooped 'er up" to President Harrison in his swing around the circle with genuine Yankee enthusiasm, and their water melon crop this season bids fair to be the largest ever grown.

The New York World says: If Foster and Sherman could change places for a while that new barn would be just as well built and the country's finances would be sooner straightened out. A good financier is wasting his time nailing clapboards on a barn, and vice versa.

When Grover Cleveland retired from the White House two years ago, he left a surplus of one hundred millions cash on hand. Secretary Foster is now raking together all the nickels and pennies in the bottom of the treasury chest with which to meet ordinary current bills.

President Harrison returned from his swing around the circle on Saturday last and the first news that greeted his ears was the big scandal in the Pension office. The President is said to have been greatly excited over it, and it is expected that several official heads will drop into the basket very soon.

Texas is a big State and the Texans are a big hearted people. The Fort Worth Gazette bid President Harrison a royal welcome but begged leave to add that the people in that neck o woods would be dropping their ballots in 1892 for a Presidential candidate who does'nt believe in Force bills and who does believe in tariff for revenue only.

"Wednesday the wholesale quotation for sugar in the Boston market was FOUR AND ONE-FOURTH CENTS per pound, the lowest price ever reached. McKinley law."—Adrian Times.

True, and the McKinley bill puts sugar on the free list. But it looks queer enough for a high tariff organ to be eulogizing the only free trade feature of that law.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, is a pretty good Alliance man on two very important points—the tariff and silver coinage. He says that no party can win next year that does not put a free coinage plank in the platform. He opposes both Harrison and Cleveland on this ground, and predicts that if they are the opposing candidates there will surely be a third party.

The status of the U. S. Senate in the fifty-second Congress will be 47 Republicans to 41 Democrat and Alliance members. On all tariff measures the Alliance men are certain to vote with the Democrats. Three Republican members also—Plumb, Paddock and Pettigrew—voted against the McKinley bill and will vote for its repeal. On the tariff issue, therefore, the Republican majority in the Senate has already reached the vanishing point.

Senator Peffer says there will be no third party organized at Cincinnati. "We have not come to destroy," says he, "but to build up. Our mission is not to compel the rich man to give up what he has, but to devise some way by which the poor and oppressed may be relieved. We are united upon the necessity of benefitting the condition of labor—and when I say labor, I mean the work of every one who helps to add to the wealth of the country by what he produces."

Representative Jerry Simpson made a hit among the old soldiers by a speech delivered before a meeting of John A. Logan Command, Union Veterans, at Washington, advocating the payment by the Government of the difference between the value of the greenbacks paid the soldiers during the late war and the value of gold at that time. He called attention to the almost forgotten fact that Gen. Scott had promised the soldiers that the dollars they received would be redeemed in gold, and said that now while so many newspapers were prating about the honest dollar, was a good time to make those dollars received by the soldiers honest.

BLAINE'S RECIPROCITY.

So much is being said just now about reciprocity and the benefits to our commerce that are expected to result from it, that it is worth while to look into the facts of existing commerce a little, and see who has hold of the long arm of the reciprocity lever.

The most conspicuous fact in all our commercial statistics for 1890 is that in our trade with all nations the balance in our favor was about $69,000,000, while with Great Britain and Ireland the balance in our favor was no less than $261,406,706. Our commerce with all countries besides the United Kingdom resulted in a large balance of trade against us, but the enormous balance of trade in our favor in dealing with this one nation wiped out this adverse balance and left us with a favorable balance of $69,000,000. The balance of trade in our favor in dealing with the United Kingdom was very much greater than the whole amount of our imports from that country; in other words, England, including Ireland and Scotland, bought of us almost three times as much as we bought of her. These are the figures:

Our imports from England, 1891	$186,488,956
Our exports to England	447,895,662
Balance in our favor	$261,406,706

Our total exports for that year were $857,828,684, so that England bought more of us than all the rest of the world put together did, while out of all our imports we got less than one-quarter from England.

It is evident, then, that England is the best customer we have in the world by all odds, both in the amount of the traffic and the terms on which it is carried on.

The next most conspicuous fact in our commerce to be observed is that England is far and away the best purchaser of those things which our farmers must sell in order to raise money to pay for their farms, buy clothes for their families and meet their tax bills. All the breadstuffs that we exported in 1890 were worth $154,925,927, and of this England took $94,151,897 worth. Of raw cotton we exported $250,963,892 worth, and England took $148,297,771. Of provisions we exported $136,264,506 worth, and England took $86,506,038 of this. Of cattle we exported $31,261,131 worth, and England took $29,767,461 of this.

The breadstuffs, provisions, cotton and cattle which England bought of us in 1890 amounted to $358,723,167, or about $35 for every farmer, dairyman and stockraiser in this country.

We do not hear a word about reciprocity with Europe. Mr. Carey, who was, a few years ago, the greatest apostle of protection in this country, expressed the wish that the Atlantic Ocean were a sea of fire, so that there might be no crossing it. Prof. Thompson, of the University of Pennsylvania, still insists in his essays on political economy that foreign commerce is an injury and that it would probably be better to hang a man than to make a sailor of him, and that the application of steam to navigation has been of no use to mankind. But the Republican politicians and business men stop a little short of this; they only insist that commerce with Europe is injurious; they are strongly in favor of commerce with South America.

Why is this? Why was the McKinley law with the reciprocity attachment passed in order to interfere with our European commerce and to extend our South American commerce? Why is it desired to reduce the rates of freight to South America while none of the Republican leaders want to reduce the rates of freight to Europe?

The answer is that while Europe is incomparably the best market for our agricultural produce, South America offers the more tempting field for our manufactured goods and the manufacturers own the Republican party body and soul. All of their interests are not the same and in the struggle the manufacturers of woolen goods and the New England iron manufacturers and several other classes got the worst of it. But the Republican party is dominated by certain manufacturing and speculative interests that see the possibilities of great profits in South America. They made the new tariff law to suit themselves; they passed the subsidy law, and the Republican party has sacrificed the farmer's market, the farmer's freight and all other interests of the farmer for the benefit of the wealthy manufacturers who come to Washington and live at the most expensive hotels while they are instructing Mr. McKinley's committee how to draw a tariff bill.

It is idle for the Republican politicians to say, as they do, that we are sure of the European markets for our agricultural products, anyway, and therefore ought to devote our attention mainly to finding other markets for our manufacturers. In each of the three years 1879, 1880 and 1881 England bought of us about 45,000,000 hundredweights of wheat and wheat flour. Her total importation in each of those years ranged from sixty-eight to seventy-three million hundredweights; so we furnished more than half. In 1889 England bought nearly seventy-seven million hundredweights of wheat and flour, but less than thirty millions came from the United States. In 1880 we sold to France more than 43,000,000 bushels of wheat and in 1880 we sold her less than four millions. Doubtless the French importation in 1880 was exceptional, but our wheat exports to France have been checked by the French duties which in large part, as the debates in the French legislative assembly show, are retaliations upon us for our high duties on French wines and manufactures.—National Democrat.

THE PRESIDENT'S SOUTHERN EDUCATION.

The only misfortune about the President's trip is the fact that he did not make it two years earlier. If he had done so he would have been saved from the folly of advocating the force bill. This is the view of the Philadelphia Inquirer, a Republican newspaper given to plain speaking, which says: "Had the President made this tour a year ago, we should not have had much talk about that elections bill. He would have known then, as he doubtless does know now—that is, if he has met the Republican business men, and not simply the postmasters—that no Republican in the South is in favor of that bill. If he gains the knowledge that he should from this tour, he will be convinced that there is but one way to break up the solid South, and that is by breaking down the barriers of sectionalism. Break down sectional feeling and the solid South is no more. The President by his speeches seems to be learning that lesson. If he learns it thoroughly he will deserve the plaudits of the people."—N. Y. Evening Post.

THE THREE SHEPHERDS' WOOL.

While the three political shepherds in Ohio who made the McKinley wool schedule are procuring the enforcement of the cunning clauses and changes of phraseology by which they sought to make some of the duties prohibitory, the price of Ohio wool continues to fall and the demand for Australian wool increases. A marked preference for the wool of Australia and a slackening demand for the similar fleeces of Ohio are prominent features in the trade. The Boston Commercial Bulletin points out that the prices of Ohio and Michigan fine fleece wools are lower by 1 cent a pound than they were one year ago. Ohio XX has dropped from 33-1-2 to 32 cents, Ohio X from 32 to 31 cents, and Michigan X from 30 to 28-1-2 cents. The quantity of these wools sold in the Boston market, "which is so much larger than any other in the country that its statistics are a fair indication of an alteration in demand," was less by nearly 12 per cent in the first three months of this year than in the corresponding months of 1890. On the other hand, the following figures show the demand for Australian wool:

AUSTRALIAN WOOL IN BOSTON.

	1891	1890
Stock on hand Jan'y 1	861,700	1,853,000
Total imports to April 1	9,436,384	2,897,659
Total supply for three months	10,298,084	4,750,659
Sales to April 1	5,887,000	2,883,000

In addition, the reports for April show a still further increase of the quantity of Australian wool received, although the duty is higher than it was last year, and Ohio wool is quoted at a low price, while the price of Australian wool is comparatively high.

All this is very irritating to the Ohio political shepherds and can scarcely have a soothing effect upon the Cleveland Leader, which explained last October that "the special object of the tariff on wool and woolens was to raise the farmers' wages." It causes the shepherds to redouble their exertions for the exclusion of carpet wool and to devise tricks that shall make the importation of fine wool more difficult.

The manufacturers buy the Australian wool because they can use it with wool of cheaper grades to better advantage than Ohio or Michigan wools of the same class can be used.—New York Times.

A BANKRUPT TREASURY.

The situation is a most humiliating one, for the Government is for the moment in the plight of a poor Power which has just been defeated in a bloody war. That the Secretary of the Treasury should be receiving suggestions from all parts of the country as to the best mode of meeting the ordinary and foreseen expenses of the Government in order to avoid a confession of national bankruptcy is, in fact, one of the most curious incidents of recent history. But it is also a most impressive and imposing spectacle. It brings home to the public as nothing else could the danger of "business" congresses, which do not deliberate. There is no doubt now that Reed's House of Representatives was a "business" body, for no parliamentary body has ever done as much business in the same length of time. In one winter it emptied the richest treasury in the world, and compelled the Finance Minister of the richest country in the world to borrow for his daily needs, for borrowing is apparently what he will have to come to. What he is considering now is at what rate and in what way he can best borrow.—N. Y. Evening Post.

TARIFF TAXATION.

One of Lincoln's sensible remarks was "you may fool all the people some of the time, and some of the people all the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time." And the truth of the remark is being justified in the views of the people as to tariff taxation. Such taxation for revenue—reasonable and liberal revenue to carry on the government—most, if not all, approve, though not a few think that direct taxation for this purpose would be both cheaper and more equitable to all classes of the population. But why protect and enrich certain classes of manufacturers at the expense of the farming population, who are suffering from the burdens McKinley would impose on them, for the benefit of those far more able to bear them? The formation of farmers' associations and the growing influence of the agricultural interest, as shown by the votes of the last and present years, begin to make plain the fact that high tariff politicians "can't fool all the people all the time."—Detroit Free Press.

TARIFF REFORM THE WATCHWORD.

The Republicans who bolted the Convention of Agricultural States at Kansas City on the ground that it was "a Democratic pow-wow," are entirely unreasonable. It indorsed a reform of the tariff to a revenue basis and demanded economical government, it is true, but if this makes "a Democratic pow-wow," there are nine chances out of ten that every meeting held in the West and not deliberately packed with Republicans, will be "a Democratic pow-wow." Republicans are becoming so scarce and Democrats so plentiful, the advocates of a Tariff for Prohibition Only are so fast vanishing from the West that if the few survivors of them wish to keep out of Democratic pow-wows, they must either meet by themselves, turn the dog loose and warn everybody else to keep out, or else they must stay away from meetings altogether. The case may be hard for them, but it is clearly the case.—St. Louis Republic.

WHO STRUCK BILLY PATTERSON?

A Carnesville (Ga.) correspondent of the Cleveland Press triumphantly answers the oft asked question, "Who struck Billy Patterson?" and tells the story of the memorable blow. He says that many years ago Billy Patterson, a rich Baltimore lumberman, was on the edge of a crowd at Carnesville, and was suddenly struck to the ground. He offered a reward for identification of the man who struck the blow, but it was never claimed, and at his death some years later it was found he had left a reward of $1,000 for anyone furnishing the desired information. Two men, now old, have recently testified that when boys they witnessed the affair, and that the striker was a big fellow named James M. Stovell. They were "afraid to tell on him" during his life, and it is only since his demise that the fact comes out.—Chicago Tribune.

PETERSON FOR JUNE.

The June Peterson is as bright as the month which it ushers in. This general favorite of half a century deservedly gains each year a deeper hold on the reading public. This number opens with two beautiful engravings, a double colored fashion plate and attractive needle works designs. "In Hereford and Huntingdon," by Harriet Lathan, is an instructive sketch of noted English shires, and is well illustrated. "A Complete Cure," by E. C. Creighton, is a first class story. The history of the tulip and the craze of tulips which once nearly ruined Holland, is delightfully told, and the long series of illustrations renders it still more interesting. Terms $2.00 a year. $1.00 for six months Address, Peterson's Magazine, 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

SINGLE TAX AND SOCIALISM.

Commenting on Mr. Shearman's article on "The Coming Billionaire," the Galveston Daily News thinks that the inevitable corruption and inefficiency that would attend an attempt to raise all public revenues by a single tax on incomes would cause general disgust. After that, if the people still adhered to direct taxation, the News says they would necessarily be confronted "with the alternative plan of a single tax on land values." We can not quite make out whether or not the News thinks that such a consummation would be alarming to Mr. Shearman. It apparently would alarm our Galveston contemporary, for it thus continues:

"And here, if the tax problem is to wax to this shape and complexion, the final struggle must come between the party of individualism and the party of socialism over the issue of taxation. The individualists will insist that taxation on any kind of value shall be for no other purpose than to supply the fiscal needs of government, limited to its primary and necessary functions of police authority. The socialists will insist on using the single land tax, if that is adopted, for the purpose of an all-round social readjustment. They will propose to tax away for the benefit of the community all value accruing from social wants, social congregations and industrial concentrations."

If the News will familiarize itself with the theory and programme of the single tax movement it will dismiss all such fears. The single taxers are individualists, not socialists. They are utterly opposed to the assumption by government of the conduct of private business. Most of them, however, protest against the continuance of the practice that transfers to private individuals and corporations the transaction of public business and the performance of public functions, and they demand that the government shall resume its proper functions and cease to farm out the taxing and other powers to private individuals to be used for their personal advantage and profit. On this general principle they are all agreed, though there may be differences as to detail. For instance, they are all agreed that the maintenance of public highways is a function of the state, but many insist that highways thus maintained shall be operated by private enterprise, while some (mistakenly, we think,) regarding this as impracticable, insist that the state shall not only own the road bed, but that it shall operate its own rolling stock on railways. All are, however, agreed that the principle involved is that private parties shall not own and monopolize public highways. If the Galveston News calls this socialism it ought to insist on the sale of the Mississippi and other rivers to private parties, who would doubtless pay the federal government an enormous sum for the privilege of exacting tribute from all craft sailing on their rivers.—The Standard.

The Law of Rent.

This is the law of rent: As individuals come together in communities, and society grows, integrating more and more its individual members, and making general interests and general conditions of more and more relative importance, there arises, over and above the value which individuals can create for themselves, a value which is created by the community as a whole, and which, attaching to land, becomes tangible, definite and capable of computation and appropriation. As society grows, so grows this value, which springs from and represents in tangible form what society as a whole contributes to production, as distinguished from what is contributed by individual exertion. By virtue of natural law in those aspects which it is the purpose of the science we call political economy to discover, as it is the purpose of the sciences which we call chemistry and astronomy to cover other aspects of natural law—all social advance necessarily contributes to the increase of this common value; to the growth of this common fund.

Here is a provision made by natural law for the increasing needs of social growth; here is an adaptation of nature by virtue of which the natural progress of society is a progress toward equality, not toward inequality; a centripetal force tending to unity, growing out of and ever balancing a centrifugal force tending to diversity. Here is a fund belonging to society as a whole from which, without the degradation of alms, private or public, provision can be made for the weak, the helpless, the aged; from which provision can be made for the common wants of all as a matter of common right to each, and by the utilization of which society, as it advances, may pass, by natural methods and easy stages from a rude association for purposes of defense and police, into a co-operative association, in which combined power guided by combined intelligence can give to each more than his own exertions multiplied many fold could produce.

By making land private property, by permitting individuals to appropriate this fund which nature plainly intended for the use of all, we throw the children's bread to the dogs of greed and lust; we produce a primary inequality which gives rise in every direction to other tendencies to inequality; and from this perversion of the good gifts of the Creator, from this ignoring and defying of his social laws, there arise in the very heart of our civilization those horrible and monstrous things that betoken social putrefaction.

THE Cincinnati Commercial Gazette tells the story of a corner lot in that city that is more than unusually interesting. The lot is at the corner of Fourth and Home streets, and it was bought by the Methodist Book Concern two weeks ago for $90,000, or over $2,300 per front foot. The records show that this same lot was sold in 1799 for $4; in 1801 for $80; in 1804 for $300; in 1862 for $11,000; in 1891 for $90,000. There is a story between the lines of this paragraph that our single tax friends can read to the uninitiated.

Why the Farmer Should Favor the Single Tax.

The farmer is apt to cry out against what he calls the injustice of exempting the magnificent buildings, sometimes erected in cities, from all taxation, forgetting that such buildings always stand upon the most expensive land, while his own farm house and barns stand upon land of utterly insignificant value. In adjusting taxation, the only question of importance is as to the relative proportion which will be borne by different classes; and it is of no importance whatever that any single piece of property should pay much or little, provided all other properties of the same kind pay in exact proportion with it. A farm house, costing $1,500 to build, will stand upon a piece of land which, including the surrounding garden, on an ample scale, would not be worth more than $15. But an average city house, costing $10,000 to build, will stand upon a lot worth at least $5,000; while a warehouse, costing $50,000 to build, will frequently stand upon a lot worth $50,000. So far, therefore, as the mere value of the land which is required for the purpose of supporting the house or building of any kind is concerned, the farmer would gain largely by concentrating taxes upon that and exempting all buildings. But he holds, in addition to the land upon which his house stands, a number of acres, which he uses for farming purposes; and he assumes that these will be heavily taxed under a system of taxation upon land values alone, and that thus a larger proportion of the burden will be thrown upon him. This is an entire mistake. When buildings are exempt from taxation, all other improvements on the land must also be exempted; and the result of this would be to assess improved farm lands at no higher value than perfectly wild, uncultivated land, in the same immediate vicinity. All fences, all growing crops, all improvements of every kind would be left out of account; and his land would be assessed only at the value which it would bring if it had been just swept clean by a prairie fire. Very little consideration is required to enable any one to see that, under such a rule of assessment, the taxes levied upon farms would be much less, in proportion to those levied upon town lots, than they are to-day, and that such a change in the methods of assessment and taxation would result in lessening the burden of farms and increasing that of the large towns.

Taxing Vacant Lots in Burlington, Iowa.

Frank S. Churchill, of Burlington, Iowa, writes: Our morning paper in reporting the proceedings of the city council at their regular meeting, contains the following:

A resolution was introduced which will warm the hearts of the single tax advocates, and shows the effect of the published arguments of the local adherents of the theory. It was introduced by Alderman Mercer, and reads as follows: "Resolved, That the assessor of the city of Burlington, Iowa, be and is hereby directed and instructed to mark his books before presented to the city council, so as to indicate which lots have improvements and which are vacant, so that the council, when acting as a board of equalization, may act intelligently and place upon vacant lots held for speculative purpose their share of municipal taxation." The ordinance was adopted without dissent.

Our single tax men feel that they have not labored in vain, and we will now do our best to drive home the wedge and aid the city council in placing upon vacant lots "their share of municipal taxation."

The Indians and the Land.

With the Indians, land was the property of all. It was one of the original elementary gifts of the Creator to man, and hence the birth-right of every child born. It was grouped by them with air, sunshine, wind and rain. It was a wealth, a right, a property that no power could alienate from them. The earth under their feet on which they were born, in which were the graves of their sires and in which their dust would finally repose, was God's gift to them and loved with a passionate devotion. Even war could not obliterate this primal right. No victorious tribe ever took the land from the conquered band. They might not take what the Great Spirit had bestowed. "Sell a country!" indignantly exclaimed Tecumseh, when protesting against the sale of land to the whites: "Why not sell the air, the clouds, the sea as well as the earth? Did not the Great Spirit make them for all his children?"—Mr. Murray, in New York World.

THE Ohio senate, last Wednesday, passed the Rawling's (assembly) bill, with amendments. As it passed the senate, the bill provides that manufacturers shall pay taxes on raw material and manufactured goods which are on hand on the first Monday in April, except those articles which have been manufactured subsequently to the first of January preceding. The bill was passed as a concession to the Farmers' Alliance, who claimed that the manufacturers did not pay their share of taxation; but if the manufacturers are sharp they will see that the bill gives them an opportunity to get off with even less taxes than they pay now, for they can run on full time and force during the winter and avoid paying taxes on the goods manufactured during that time. Cute manufacturer! Poor farmer!

THERE is a way of securing the equal rights to all, not by dividing land up into equal pieces, but by taking for the use of all that value which attaches to land, not as the result of individual labor upon it, but as the result of the increase of population, and the improvement of society.

"THE greatest glory of America," said Carlyle, "is that there every peasant can have turkey in his pot." Alas, that glory is passing away and we are rapidly tending towards conditions in which the lot of the masses will be harder than it is in Europe.

CAPTIVITY OF ISRAEL.

LESSON VIII, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 24.

Text of the Lesson, II Kings xvii, 6-18. Commit Verses, 16-18—Golden Text, II Chron. xxiv, 20—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

6. "In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria took Samaria, and carried Israel away into Assyria."

After more than 250 years of continued rebellion against God, during which time nineteen kings reigned over them, not one of whom did right in the sight of the Lord, Shalmanezer, king of Assyria, besieged Samaria, the capital of Israel (I Kings xvi, 24) in the sixth year of Hoshea, and after three years took it and carried Israel into captivity (vs. 1-5). That God would do this if they refused to obey Him He had plainly foretold by His servant Moses (Lev. xxvi, 27-33; Deut. xxviii, 63, 64), and by the prophets He had given them many a warning, so that they were without excuse.

7. "For so it was, that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, etc."

God through Moses, and through his servants Hosen, Amos and Jeremiah, makes frequent reference to His bringing them out of Egypt as a reason why they should obey.

8. "And walked in the statutes of the heathen, whom the Lord cast out from before the children of Israel."

9. "And the children of Israel did secretly those things that were not right against the Lord their God."

Not only publicly but secretly were they "mingled among the heathen and learned their works" (Ps. cvi, 35). In the dark they did wickedly, saying, "The Lord seeth us not: the Lord hath forsaken the earth."

10. "And they set them up images and groves in every high hill and under every green tree."

Even Judah did this also in the days of the son of Solomon (I Kings xiv, 22, 23), and then followed the plundering of the temple by the king of Egypt, only thirty-four years after its dedication (I Kings vi, 38; xiv, 25, 26). When we consider the plain commands of God not only not to set up these places, but to destroy all such things and places which the heathen had set up (Deut. xvi, 21, 22; xii, 2), we are apt to ask, "How could they thus fly in the face of God?" But we had better ask our own hearts.

11. "And there they burnt incense in all the high places, as did the heathen whom the Lord carried away before them; and wrought wicked things to provoke the Lord to anger."

12. "For they served idols, whereof the Lord had said unto them, Ye shall not do this thing."

Besides the second commandment recorded in Ex. xx, and Deut. v, listen to Lev. xxvi, 1, "Ye shall make you no idols nor graven image, * * * to bow down unto it, for I am the Lord your God." Jehovah their creator and covenant keeping God desired to be their portion. He wanted them all for Himself, and He would be wholly for them. He would be their shield and their exceeding great reward, as He said to Abram.

13. "Yet the Lord testified against Israel, and against Judah, by all the prophets, and all the seers, saying, Turn ye from your evil ways."

See some of His pleading with them in Isa. i, 16, 17; lv, 7; Jer. iii, 12; xxv, 5; Ezek. xxxiii, 11; Hos. xiv, 1. "Thus saith the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel, In returning and rest shall ye be saved; in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength; and ye would not" (Isa. xxx, 15).

14. "Notwithstanding they would not hear, but hardened their necks, like to the neck of their fathers, that did not believe in the Lord their God."

On the last verse we quoted from Isaiah the sad words, "And ye would not." It was the same all through their history, till Jesus Himself uttered the same words shortly before they crucified Him.

15. "And they rejected his statutes, and his covenant, and they followed vanity and became vain."

He is wisdom, and wisdom is the principal thing, better than rubies or gold or silver; but fools despise wisdom; it is too high for them (Prov. iv, 7; viii, 11, 19; i, 7; xxiv, 7). In Jer. x, 8, 14, 15, idols and idolatry are called lies and vanity. When the people of Lystra took Paul and Barnabas for gods, and would have worshiped them, Paul exhorted them to turn from these vanities unto the living God who made all things (Acts xiv, 15).

16. "And they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, and made them molten images."

The calves at Dan and Bethel, and the idol groves everywhere, proclaimed their folly. They turned their backs on the Creator and worshiped the works of His hands, sun, moon and stars, rather than Himself. It seems to me that if we as believers think more of the gifts of God than of Himself; if it is Heaven or happiness, or our own personal welfare we are chiefly seeking, we are in danger of committing Israel's sin. God Himself is our salvation, and His commandments should be our delight because He has given Himself to us; and obedience to His last command, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature," should give us the greatest joy of all. But if we are more concerned about our idols, our own peace or happiness, or it may be the molten images we carry in our purses, what does He think of us?

17. "And they caused their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire, and sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the Lord."

The Molochs of today are society, fashion, pleasure, the dance, the theatre, the card table, and to this destroying fire from the pit how many sons and daughters are consecrated God only knows. For an evening's pleasure many who bear the name of Jesus will for the time being sell themselves to the devil. Jesus has bought our bodies and souls, and He wants all there is to us for His glory. Neither the world, the flesh, nor the devil has the least claim upon us, nor any right to us.

18. "Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel and removed them out of his sight."

He could see them as well in Assyria as in Samaria, so in that sense they were not out of His sight, but His face did not shine upon them, nor did they enjoy His favor (Num. vi, 24-26). They despised Him and His blessing, so he finally withdrew and left them to the idols they had chosen. So will He do with all who persistently turn their backs upon Him.

"There was none left but the tribe of Judah only."

These He would spare a little longer, for they had not sinned as grievously as Israel, and they had not been without sincere repentance on the part of some. Hezekiah, who did right in the sight of the Lord, was now their king (chap. xviii, 1-3), while in past days such kings as Asa, Jehoshaphat, Joash and others had led them in the right way.

MARSHALL'S HOOF CURE

cures sand and quarter cracks, split hoofs, sore and contracted feet, corns and all hoof troubles. Stops cracking, shelling and scaling hoofs. Softens and toughens brittle hoofs. It is better than soaking with oil, meal, etc. Should be used on all horses standing on hard floors or driven on hard roads. It also cures scratches, tetter, galls of all kinds, bruises, etc.
TOLEDO, O., April 6, 1891.
I had a horse in my stables that had hoofs so brittle that it was impossible to keep a shoe on his feet. I have used one can of Marshall's Hoof Cure on his hoofs and the horse has been shod for four weeks and the shoes stay on all right. I consider it the best hoof cure I have ever used.

KING OF THE BLOOD
The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.
Cures all Humors, from a Cold in the Head to the worst Scrofula.
It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.
Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.
Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.
It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.
It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.
It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the surgeon's knife.
It cures DROPSY, general or partial.
It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.
It reduces in a safe and effectual manner all swellings, external or internal.
It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons and establishes a sound constitution.
Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.
Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or 50 doses. Sold by druggists or sent by express on receipt of price.
If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you and it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

D. RANSOM'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.
It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.
The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.
WHAT IT CURES.
All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.
It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.
Over 40 Years.
This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.
Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

"Always aim a little higher than the mark," says a philosopher. What, kiss a girl on the nose? Never.—Times.

Aim at her nose, you idiot! and if you have unusually good luck you may land on the mouth.—Press.

Pshaw! any young man of experience would know that the foregoing items were written by novices. Don't aim at all. Just shut your eyes, pucker your lips, and if the girl is willin'—you can't miss the mark. At least that is the prescription of the unmarried dudes about this shop.—Messenger.

We cannot speak from experience, but viewing the matter from a theoretical stand-point we should say that the Messenger was right.

Geo. Spafford is rapidly approaching the three score mile stone of life. Last Sunday was his fifty ninth birth day and he decided that to celebrate it properly would be a very proper thing to do Having received an inkling of what was coming, we took a stroll over to his house in the afternoon, and found a bevy of old and young folks and children, who had assembled to help him enjoy the occasion. Strawberries, ice cream, bannanas, oranges, cake and flowers constituted a printer's menu, to which all present did ample justice. About forty guests were present and a right jolly afternoon was passed by the fortunate ones who were called.

In accordance with a call from Miss Willard, the ladies of the W. C. T. U., will hold a temperance meeting in the Baptist church, Sunday, May 24th, at 3 o'clock P. M. "The meeting is in the interest of universal total abstinence and the outlawing of the liquor traffic and the opium trade; also for the uplifting of mankind to the level of the White Cross pledge, and the protection of the home from its two allied enemies, intemperance and impurity." An interesting program will be given, and a collection taken to aid Miss Willard in her work as President of the World's Christian Temperance Union, which meets in Boston, Nov. 12th. The meeting is neither sectarian nor political, and every one is most cordially invited to be present.

Prof. Melvin M. Bigelow and wife drove over from Ann Arbor one afternoon last week and remained over night, as the guests of Mrs. Fisher. He is the son of Rev. W. E. Bigelow, now deceased, who was pastor of the M. E. Church here in Tecumseh before the war. Prof. Bigelow himself graduated in our High School, afterwards went through the University and then drifted to Boston, Mass., where he has been a lecturer in the Boston law school for several years. He is also the author of some legal text books. He has lately accepted a position as lecturer in the law department at Ann Arbor and has taken up his residence in that city. His visit to Tecumseh last week was the first time he had been here, since he left town thirty one years ago next fall. He found that many remarkable changes had taken place during his absence. We hope to see him more frequently hereafter.

THE HOME COMFORT RANGE CO.

The first week in January last Mr. J. H. Odor, of St. Louis, Mo., alighted from the Lake Shore train and registered at the Lilley House. He was a perfect stranger here, but he soon became acquainted and the nature of his business very soon developed. He came as the manager of the St. Louis Home Comfort Range Co., and his business was to supply the people of this section with the celebrated Home Comfort wrought steel range. The territory in which he designed to operate was Monroe, Lenawee and Washtenaw counties and a part of Jackson. He put eight traveling salesmen with teams upon the road at once and the above territory has been thoroughly canvassed. Mr. Odor himself made the Lilley House here in Tecumseh his headquarters and managed the sales from this point as a center. For over four months his salesmen have been at work and during that time they have sold several carloads of ranges, and not a single purchaser has taken occasion to express a word of dissatisfaction with the range or its workings. It is undoubtedly a superior cooking range and scores of families all through this section are now provided with them. Mr. Odor expects to close the campaign here the first of next week and will then seek fresh fields and pastures new. We believe that success awaits him wherever he may choose to go. During his stay here he has boarded at the Lilley House and has become one of the fixtures of that popular hotel. By his gentlemanly demeanor and strict business integrity he made friends of all with whom he came in contact. We take the liberty of saying further that he has been aided very materially by his wife, who is a lady of fine social accomplishments. During their brief sojourn among us they have both made many friends, who will view their departure with much regret. It may not be out of place here to state that his salesmen were gentlemen of tact and experience, thoroughly posted on the peculiar duties of a canvassing salesman. Mr. Oder's good management, supplemented by their efficient labors in the field, has resulted, as such a combination must, in a very successful season.

ANNIVERSARY SERMON.

An audience that nearly filled the auditorium assembled at the Presbyterian church last Sabbath forenoon to listen to the anniversary sermon by the Pastor, Rev. W. H. Babbitt. It was an able, scholarly discourse, well worthy of the Pastor, the church and the occasion. We present below a brief synopsis, showing its salient points.

The theme of remark this morning is not the revision of the Westminster confession or an examination into the orthodoxy of Prof. Briggs of Union Seminary N. Y. but a brief glance at the condition of the Presbyterian church of Tecumseh.

By the help of God some progress has been made. The church numbers 300. Forty new members were added this last year, 22 of them on profession. Four members have been dismissed to other churches and five have died—one of them an Elder of the church—Mr. Chas W. Culbertson.

The church has not accomplished the full amount of good she ought to have done considering her opportunities, but has been a promoter of peace and purity in this place. On every Sabbath no less than four services or meetings are held. During the week there is a proneness to forget that every one still is a servant of God.

There is a high pressure of enthusiasm that is consuming to him who feels it. Though we cannot have such zeal as Christ had, nothing desirable can be accomplished without some degree of real enthusiasm.

The Pastor has various duties to perform. One of the foremost is preaching. This is a difficult duty for the reason that he has to address persons of different classes and shades of belief and all in the same congregation. It helps a preacher to have kind, uncritical, attentive hearers. A first class hearer will get much good from a third class preacher; much more good will be brought about in this way than if the preacher is first class and the hearer is third rate. When both preacher and hearer are first-class the very best results are sure to follow. So let the preacher take heed to his preaching and the hearer to his hearing. The present Pastor was received with a warm welcome nine years ago. At his installation promises were made by him and by his people which both have tried to keep; the result has been harmony and a healthful prosperity and growth. The ministry has its peculiar trials but its peculiar compensations also; among these last is to be numbered the love and sympathy of his people.

After a trial of the ministerial work extending over a long period the speaker can say he loves his profession above all others and "Thanks Christ Jesus our Lord who has enabled him, for that he counted him faithful, putting him into the ministry."

It is easier to speak about the past than to predict about the future. But the outlook of this church is encouraging. Some of its best workers are dead; others will soon pass away. But when one pillar falls another is provided to take its place. The large Sunday School of this church ought to supply many new members and did supply 14 this year. The Society of Christian Endeavor, through scarcely a year old, has done nobly—having over 30 active members. The church looks for trained workers to be raised by this Society from the ranks of the young, to take the place of those who are one by one being called home to their reward. May God's peace descend on the aged whose sun is setting, may courage and strength be given to those in their prime who are bearing the burden and heat of the day, may He who loves the little ones give His blessing to the children and cause them to grow up in His likeness.

The following circular is in preparation and will be distributed, it is said, to every employee of the Milwaukee & St. Paul system: "This company will not, under any circumstances, employ men who are in the habit of becoming intoxicated. All employees known to frequent drinking places must be warned to discontinue the practice or quit the company's service. Employees will be discharged if intoxicated, either on or off duty. No person discharged for intoxication will be re-employed."

The Decoration Day issue of the Albany, N. Y., Telegram will be the most original, unique and popular paper ever presented to the American public. Nothing like it ever attempted by a newspaper in the nineteenth century. As a mechanical wonder and a military literary library there will be nothing to even compare with it issued in this country. It will be printed on red, white and blue paper and consist of 16 pages. If there is no agent in your town you can have the paper mailed to you at 5 cents a copy.

A blessing to humanity is what Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup can well be termed, for it has done more good already than any other medicine. One trial will convince any one of its efficacy. Price 25 cents.

"There's no terror, headache, in your threats,"
For I am armed so strong with remedy
That I pass pain by, as an idle word,
Since the discovery of Salvation Oil.

If everybody improved the minutes with the zeal that a hen puts into her work while making a surreptitious five-minute call in a flower-garden, what a world this would be.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by fifty-seven observers in different parts of the state for the week ended May 9 indicated that inflammation of the brain, cerebro spinal meningitis, typho-malaria fever and pneumonia increased, and diphtheria, puerperal fever and cholera morbus decreased in area of prevalence. MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich., May 13.—The senate yesterday by a unanimous vote passed the bill increasing the specific tax on palace, chair and sleeping car companies and fast freight lines from 2½ to 6 per cent. of their gross receipts on the business done exclusively in Michigan, and requiring them to file an annual statement of their earnings with the railroad commissioners. The bill has already passed the house. The bill providing for a uniform bounty of $100 for every Michigan soldier no matter whether a volunteer or a drafted man, was referred back to the committees on state affairs and judiciary jointly. A bill annexing 4,000 acres to the territory of Detroit was passed.

LANSING, Mich., May 14.—The bill granting municipal suffrage to women was for the second time defeated in the senate yesterday by a vote of 15 to 14.

LANSING, Mich., May 15.—The senate yesterday passed a bill providing that all arrears of state bounties due soldiers under a recent decision of the supreme court shall be paid at once. The amount due under this decision will foot up about $100,000. The house bill creating the new county of Dickinson in upper peninsula was reported.

LANSING, Mich., May 16.—No business of importance was transacted in the senate yesterday. Adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., May 13.—The house passed bills yesterday reducing the legal rate of interest to 5 per cent., and prohibiting the importation of Pinkerton men to do police duty in Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., May 14.—Representative Doyle's local option bill for the protection of fish in the inland waters of the state was defeated in the house yesterday. Mr. Richardson's bill increasing the specific tax on gross earnings of railroads was passed by a vote of 81 to 10.

LANSING, Mich., May 15.—The house yesterday passed the bill appropriating $30,000 for the expenses of the national G.A. R. encampment in Detroit next summer. The committee of the whole agreed to the bill for the protection of game after amending it so that deer may be killed on the upper peninsula only. Wild turkeys may be killed from November 1 to December 15, woodcock from August 15 to December 15, wild duck, wild geese and other water fowl and snipe from September 1 to December 15.

LANSING, Mich., May 16.—The house yesterday passed the general game bill, which is a substitute for all the bills that have been introduced this session under that head and provides for the killing of game as follows: The opening season for deer in the lower peninsula is November 10 to December 1 inclusive; in the upper peninsula the entire month of September; wild turkeys, November 1 to December 15; woodcock, August 15 to Dec. 15; ducks, wild goose, snipe, or other wild water fowl, September 1 to December 15, but the open season for snipe, redhead, bluebill, canvas back, pidgeon and pintail ducks and wild ducks and geese, to continue until May 1 of the year following. Partridge, October 15 to December 15, except in upper peninsula September 1 to January 1; quail, November 1 to December 15. The senate bill abolishing the state forestry commission was favorably reported.

SHOULD BE RESTRICTED.

New York's Union League Club to Petition Congress for Laws to Stem the Tide of Undesirable Immigration.

NEW YORK, May 14.—A committee of the Union League club have prepared the form of a petition to be circulated among citizens throughout the country, regardless of party affiliations, asking congress to pass laws that will protect this country from the tide of undesirable European immigrants. New laws, it is declared, are needed, although there are laws on the statute books which should be enforced as they are intended to be. The committee, after further reviewing the situation, append the following petition for circulation among all parties throughout the United States:

"TO THE HONORABLE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES: Your petitioners, citizens of the United States, native and naturalized, respectfully represent: That it is alleged and generally believed, and as we are convinced can be proved, that for several years past gross frauds have been perpetrated upon the suffrage by the naturalization of persons not entitled to citizenship according to law, upon evidence manifestly insufficient and false, and by the careless, corrupt and wicked use of power by the state courts and their officers in relation to the administration of the existing laws permitting and regulating the naturalization of aliens. Every good citizen should abhor such acts as monstrous crimes against the safety of a nation and the liberty of a free people. We believe that the existing laws upon the subject of naturalization are inadequate to prevent the repetition of such crimes, and we suggest the enactment of a general law to be made more certain, stringent and efficient, to embody the following and other necessary provisions. We respectfully ask your honorable body to enact a law or laws:

"1. Which shall restrict the power to the federal courts of conferring citizenship of the United States.

"2. Which shall require a longer residence in the United States, by all persons desiring to become citizens, than is now prescribed by law, and also provide that all applications be made in the handwriting of the applicant, who must be able to speak, read and write the English language.

"3. Which shall authorize any citizen to appear in open court in order, in good faith, to contest the right of any applicant to a certificate of naturalization, or to set aside any such certificate improperly granted.

"4. Which shall authorize any court having jurisdiction to declare null and void any certificate or order of naturalization made in fraud or in violation of existing laws."

Wool buyers throughout the state have received notice from eastern dealers that farmers should do up their wool with wool twine instead of binding twine, as they will be forced to discount wool tied with the objectionable twine two cents per pound.

Abner Wilson had the misfortune to lose a valuable cow last Monday, by bloating on new clover pasture. He had the satisfaction however of netting $2,70 out of her hide. Farmers cannot be too careful about turning stock into new clover. The better the pasture, the greater the risk.

The Young People of the M. E. church will hold a lawn social at the residence of Fred Rosacrans next Tuesday evening, May 26th. A good musical program has been prepared to which every one is cordially invited. Refreshments will be served (on the lawn, if pleasant) for ten cents.

In response to the invitation for Friday last, about thirty wheelmen met at the M. E. Church corner and proceeded to capture the town. They made quite an imposing appearance as they rolled down Chicago street. It was a fine evening for a little out door recreation, and the company made the most of it.

Chas. Burridge Jr. left home last week for Princeton, Ill., where he has engaged to work for Mr. Travis, who is putting in a new electric light plant in that city. He has become very proficient in that line of work and Mr. Travis can make a useful hand of him. We regret exceedingly to have him leave Tecumseh, but are glad to know that he is prospering.

E. D. Brooks, who has been working for Norm. Bailey, met with a serious accident one day last week. As he was driving into town his horse became frightened at a bicycle, and he was thrown from the buggy. As he went out he must have been caught on the corner of the dashboard, tearing the lower part of his body in a shocking manner. Dr. Woodward was called and performed the operation of "Perineorrhaphy", and the patient is now doing as well as could be expected.

Mr. and Mrs. Odor went to Toledo yesterday to visit friends.

Walter Burridge was at the county seat yesterday on business.

Dr. R. H. Nelson attended the meeting of the Pension Board at Adrian yesterday.

Dr. Perry's house is putting on airs. Geo. Bangs is doing it with his little paint brush.

The Linton-Wyrill nuptials take place this evening at the residence of Thos. Wyrill.

Epworth League held a very pleasant social at the M. E. church parlors last Saturday evening.

Jehiel Davidson goes to Bay City next Monday to officiate as juror in the U. S. Circuit Court.

Special attention is called to the notice of the temperance meeting at the Baptist church, next Sunday afternoon.

Rev. F. Adkins started for Cincinnati yesterday morning to attend the Baptist anniversary meetings in session there this week.

Major Hendershot will give a concert under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., on July 10th. The program will be announced in due time.

Anderson & Co., sold over one thousand pair of hose at their special hosiery sale last week. Dress goods sale continued another week.

A big Clinton delegation went to Adrian yesterday morning to attend the Reed-Payne contested will case now on trial in the circuit court.

Ab. Wilson planted four acres of potatoes last week with a potato planter. The machine will plant about six acres a day, and does the work very nicely.

Miss Ella Hall, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is spending a few days at the old home in Ridgeway. She was in Tecumseh Sunday and assisted in the Presbyterian choir.

Nellie Lawrence now has a position with Park, Davis & Co., of Detroit, as typewriter and stenographer. She is getting good wages and likes the position very much.

James W. Patterson, of Elkhart, is making quite a visit here this trip, having remained about a week. He sold the Morse property to A. W. Mills for two thousand dollars.

Will Hall, son of A. D. Hall, has an office position in the counting room of the Kentucky Post at Covington. He likes the place tip-top and intends to stick to it and work up.

The President's private desk in Lilley's bank has been changed in location, which makes it much more convenient and pleasant, both for Mr. Lilley and for visitors at the bank.

C. A. Sharp is now working for the Page Woven Wire Fence Co., of Adrian, in the capacity of stenographer and typewriter. His son, who is taking medical treatment, is on the gain.

The picnic committee met at the HERALD office last Saturday evening and made very commendable progress in their work. They will meet again next Saturday evening at the same place.

The District Lodge of Good Templars met at Britton on Tuesday. The following delegates attended from the Tecumseh Lodge: Mesdames Ide, Crossman, Gaston, Caldwell and Ford, and Messrs. Ford and Smith.

All citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity who are interested in decorating the graves of our fallen heroes, are requested to bring flowers to Armory Hall, upon the morning of May 30th, and assist in making floral offerings.

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps are requested to meet at the Methodist church, at 7 o'clock P. M., May 24th, to attend Memorial Service, which is to be held at the Presbyterian church, on that evening, at 7:30.

The frost last Sunday morning did serious damage in this locality. The grape crop is probably ruined, strawberries are badly damaged and other small fruits injured. Early garden truck that had got out of the ground was badly cut down.

A postoffice has been established at Newburg, with Mrs. Helen McNeil as postmistress. As soon as the necessary papers can be forwarded to Washington the postoffice will commence business with one mail a day. At present it will be made up at Tecumseh.

Adamson Bros. began moving their stock of goods yesterday morning, and if they have good luck they will get settled in their new quarters by Saturday night. It will seem rather queer to have them vacate the old corner, but they expect to open an elegant store in the new location. But we will not anticipate. When they open their new rooms we can see and judge for ourselves.

Mrs. O. B. Finch, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, was called home on Sunday last. The funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist Church, and were very largely attended. The deceased was a woman of sterling christian character and fine attainments, and her demise will be a severe blow to a large circle of friends and relatives. The floral tributes were very beautiful. The members of the W. C. T. U. and the Baptist Social attended in a body.

AT LINCOLN'S TOMB.

President Harrison's Tribute to His Martyred Predecessor.

Progress of the Distinguished Traveler Through Illinois—He Pays a Flying Visit to His Townsmen at Indianapolis.

HOME AGAIN.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 15.—After short stops at Colorado Springs and Denver, in Colorado, and at Lincoln and Omaha, in Nebraska, the president and his party reached this city yesterday morning and were welcomed by thousands. On the arrival of the train a presidential salute was fired by state troops. The distinguished guests, on alighting, were conducted to carriages in waiting and were escorted through the principal streets to the Lincoln monument. Gov. Fifer delivered the address of welcome. The president gracefully acknowledged the complimentary greeting tendered him by the citizens of Springfield and vicinity. This, he said, was properly the culmination of his tour. In the presence of the tomb of Lincoln he was inspired, and in adverting to the martyred president he paid an eloquent tribute to his memory. He and his traveling companions had been from the northwest to the limits of the western states, and had stopped at many spots of interest and looked upon many scenes that were full of historic interest. The interest in the journey though culminated when they stood there for a few moments at the tomb of Lincoln. As he passed through the southern states and noticed centers of business industry, which had been builded since the war, as he saw the fires and furnaces kindled where there had been solitude, he could not but think and say that it was the hand that now lies in ashes beneath these stones that kindled and inspired all that he beheld. The president continued:

"I come here to this consecrated and sacred spot with my heart filled with emotions of gratitude that that God who wisely turned toward our eastern shore a body of God-fearing and liberty-loving men to found this republic did not fail to find for us in the hour of our extremity one who was competent to lead the hearts and sympathies and hold up the courage of our people in a time of greatest national peril. [Applause.] I think the character of Abraham Lincoln is one that touches more people as we study it than any other character in American history. Washington stands remote from us. We think of him as dignified and reserved. But when we think of Lincoln we think of one whose tender touch the children, the poor of all classes of our people feel at their fireside. I think the love of our people is drawn to him because he had such a great heart—such a human heart. The trials and hardships of his early life did not seem to dull his sensibility or his sympathy, and he was to the last great-hearted. That sense of justice, that love of human liberty which dominated all his life is also another characteristic that our people will always love. You have here in keeping a most precious trust. Toward this spot the feet of the reverent patriots of the years to come will wend their way, and as this story of Lincoln's life is read there will continually be spread through all our country influences and hopes and inspirations to the generations of children that are yet to come. We can say nothing here that will deepen the impressions of this great life. I have studied it and been filled with wonder. His life was an American product. No other soil could have produced it and the greatness of it has not yet been discovered or measured. As the inner history of the time in which he lived is written we find how his great mind turned and moved in times of peril and delicacy the forces of our country in their home and in their foreign relations with that marvelous tact, with that never-failing common sense which characterized this man of the people.

"And what an impressive lesson we have this morning as I see in the uniform of my country standing as guards around this tomb the sons of that race that had been condemned to slavery and was emancipated by his immortal proclamation. What an appropriate thing it is that these who were once a despised race, whose civil rights were curtailed even in this state, are now the affectionate guardians of the ashes and the tomb in which they sleep. If we will all again and again read the story of Lincoln's life we will find our minds and hearts enlarged, our life and character deepened and our consecrated devotion to the constitution and the flag of the government which he preserved to us deepened and intensified. [Applause.]

"I shall go from this tomb impressed with new lessons and new thoughts as to the responsibilities of those who have the honor and bear the responsibility, though in less troublous times, of that great man before whose memory my soul bows down this morning." [Applause.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 15.—President Harrison entered his own state shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and fifteen minutes later, at Montezuma, he was surrounded by friends who had come down from Indianapolis to welcome him home. The Indianapolis contingent was composed of committees from every political society and business organization in that city.

At Montezuma the president spoke briefly. At Rochedale the president received another welcome. The train arrived at Indianapolis at 4:45 o'clock. Booming of cannon and shrieking of whistles announced the approach of their distinguished townsman to the Indianapolis people. In response to addresses of welcome by Gov. Hovey and Mayor Sullivan the president made a speech. After speeches by Postmaster General Wanamaker and Secretary Rusk the president and party entered carriages and were escorted by military and other organizations through the principal streets and back to the station. At 5:30 a parting cheer burst from the concourse and the president's brief visit to his old home was over. Mrs. Harrison and the ladies' party held an informal reception on the train.

WASHINGTON, May 16. The president and party arrived in Washington at 5:30 o'clock Friday evening, exactly on schedule time. When the train was nearing the national capital, and the journey was almost at an end, the president summoned to the observation car every person who had accompanied him on the trip, including the ladies and all the employes of the railroad and the Pullman Car Company and made them a short address. He said he found that he had made just 139 speeches since they left Washington the 14th of April last, and he thought this a good occasion to make the number a round 140. He then referred to the unprecedented excellence and perfection of the railroad service throughout the entire trip, and said that the fact that they had been able to travel over 10,000 miles of territory in a splendidly equipped train without an accident or mishap of any kind and without one minute's variation from the prearranged schedule must always be regarded as a most remarkable achievement.

The president gave all the employes a substantial token of his appreciation of their attentions. The postmaster general, the secretary of agriculture and the other gentlemen of the party also remembered the employes in the same way.

OLD HANDS DROPPED.

Every Switchman on the Northwestern Railroad Discharged.

CHICAGO, May 15.—At precisely 7 o'clock yesterday morning every switchman in the employ of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company—200 in this city and 300 employed at points along the line—was discharged and paid off. The company chose this hour as the most convenient to notify both the day and night men that their services would no longer be required.

General Manager Whitman, of the road, reports that so far there has been no trouble or disturbance occasioned by the lockout. The road has been preparing for this action during the past two months, and for every man discharged there was another ready to take his place. Mr. Whitman said the company would no longer put up with the state of things that has existed during the past three years and its action is a practical demonstration of its intention to run its own business. On account of the men being always ready to strike on the slightest provocation the train service has been unsatisfactory to the public and to the company itself, and now he proposes to put a stop to it.

This wholesale discharge of men is one of the most important events that has occurred in the railroading history of this city, and if the company comes out ahead will be followed by results of the utmost importance to the traveling public. No railroad company in the United States has ever had the nerve to discharge at one time all the men in any single department of the road. This fact makes this affair of worldwide interest, and the fact that this is not a strike, but a plain discharge for insubordination, places the company on an entirely different footing than has been the case heretofore when trouble between the management and employes was pending.

CHICAGO, May 18.—After a session which lasted from 11 o'clock Saturday morning until 9 o'clock Saturday night the supreme council of the United Order of Railway Employes decided to disapprove the grievance of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid association against the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad Company.

A NOBLE BAND.

Charities and Corrections Conference at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 15.—Reports from the different states on the condition of their charities were read Thursday at the session of the national conference of charities and correction. They showed that there is an utter lack of uniformity in the methods of doing charitable work. The attendance at the conference is the largest in its history.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 16.—At the morning session the charity conference listened to a paper on the "Care and Treatment of the Insane" by A. R. Moulton, of Boston. Dr. Dewey, superintendent of the Illinois insane asylum at Kankakee, Ill., followed this with a paper on voluntary or self-commitment to insane asylums. He said that the idea that a person would voluntarily enter an insane hospital unless he were a newspaper reporter would be commonly received with incredulity.

Mr. Oscar Craig, of Rochester, N. Y., read a paper highly commendatory of the New York law for the care of the chronic insane, and ascribed to it especial advantages. Mr. H. H. Giles presented a paper advocating county care of the insane and strongly denunciatory of what he termed the "palace prisons" where from 500 to 2,000 human beings are herded together.

"The Child Problem in Cities" was the topic for the evening, and was opened with the report of the committee having the question in charge. An interesting paper was read by Mr. Homer C. Folks, of Philadelphia, on the "Care of Delinquent Children." In the nine years since its organization the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania has made provision for 3,927 children.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 18.—The attendance and interest in the national charity conference continue. The next session will be held at Denver. The custody and care of idiots was handled at Saturday's session.

Good News for Consumptives.

PARIS, May 16.—Prof. Bernheim has submitted a report to the Paris Academy of Medicine on the treatment of consumption by the transfusion of goat's blood. The experiments made by him lead to the conclusion that the treatment has an important beneficial effect on the first stages of tuberculosis.

Hurled to His Death.

JOLIET, Ill., May 16.—Just before noon Robert Morrison, a stone contractor and an old Joliet resident, 50 years of age, while engaged on a building in the eastern section of the city, was struck by a timber and thrown on the stonework, fracturing his skull. Death was instantaneous.

Oceans of Whisky.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The internal revenue department estimates that the amount of whisky manufactured in the United States during the present year will be 120,000,000 gallons, being 5,000,000 gallons more than was produced in the United States in any previous year of its history.

Devoured by a Shark.

HAVANA, May 15.—A workman rode a horse into the bay here to give him a bath, when a shark seized the man, pulled him from the horse's back and devoured him.

ACRES OF FLAMES.

The City of Muskegon, Mich., Swept by a Terrible Fire.

Fourteen Blocks in Ashes—Fine Business Houses and Elegant Residences Destroyed—The Loss Estimated at Over $600,000.

A STRICKEN CITY.

MUSKEGON, Mich., May 18.—Fourteen squares in the heart of this city, including much of the best business and residence property, covering from thirty-five to forty acres of ground, were devastated Saturday afternoon by a fire which ceased only because nothing remained in its path. Stores, residences and public buildings were swept away like chaff, and when at last the conflagration ended property valued at over half a million dollars had vanished and hundreds of people were homeless. A strong wind was blowing and the flames spread with such appaling rapidity that many people barely escaped with their lives. Citizens whose houses were not destroyed promptly came to the relief of the unfortunates, and all found shelter.

Fire started at 6:30 o'clock in the Lankawell hotel barns, just off Pine street, from some unknown cause, and, aided by a strong wind, swept away ten blocks up Pine street, one of the chief business streets of the city. Then, by a sudden shift in the wind, the flames were driven toward Terrace avenue, one of the finest residence streets in the city, where they destroyed many houses. By 9 o'clock fire had reached the southern district of the city, where there was more space between the houses, and the firemen succeeded in considerably reducing the progress of the flames. As the high buildings burned there was great danger from flying firebrands and the firemen were obliged to continually shift their positions. The Grand Rapids engines were put to work as soon as they arrived.

The total number of dwellings burned was 275. The total loss is $625,000. The total insurance is about $275,000. Many of the burned places have no insurance. Hundreds of families are thrust upon their friends for accommodations.

Among the sad incidents connected with the fire was the death of Harry Stevens, assistant postmaster, the son of Postmaster Stevens. He was very ill with pneumonia, and the flames made it necessary to remove him to a place of safety, and he died while being carried through the streets.

[Muskegon is situated on the Muskegon river about 4 miles from lake Michigan and about 120 miles by water northeast of Chicago. It contains eleven churches, two national banks, several factories, machine shops, numerous steam saw, planing and other mills. Lumber is its chief article of export, and about 400,000,000 feet are sawed there annually. Several lumber merchants in this city are interested in the industry and many steamers and sailing vessels ply between there and Chicago. The city has a population of 15,000.]

A Point for Boyd.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Justice Brewer of the United States supreme court has granted the application of counsel for Mr. Boyd, who was elected governor of Nebraska, for a writ of error to the supreme court to test the questions involved in the decision of the majority of the supreme court of Nebraska, who decided he was not an American citizen and therefore not eligible to the office of governor of Nebraska.

Kentucky's Democratic Convention.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—The state democratic convention resumed its sessions Friday morning, and after much sharp maneuvering on the part of the managers of the candidates nominated ex-Congressman John Young Brown, of Henderson, for governor. The convention then adjourned to 8 p. m. At that hour M. C. Alford, of Lexington, was nominated for lieutenant-governor with little opposition.

Two Thousand People Homeless.

SANTA FE, N. M., May 18.—Sheriff Luna, of Valencia county, reports 2,000 people homeless in his county on the east bank of the Rio Grande, opposite Los Nunas, the county seat of the county. Their houses and crops have been destroyed by the flood in the Rio Grande. The river is now slowly falling.

Value of Exports.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The chief of the government bureau of statistics reports that the total value of the exports of domestic mineral oils from the United States during the month of April was $3,898,259. The value of beef and hog exports for April was $9,299,781.

Failed for $100,000.

ST. LOUIS, May 18.—The Milburn Manufacturing Company, wagon and carriage manufacturers, Seventh street and Cass avenue, have made an assignment to Charles A. McNair for the benefit of their creditors. Liabilities, $100,000; assets, $150,000.

Why Fava Was Recalled.

ROME, May 15.—In the Italian chamber of deputies Premier Rudini said that the New Orleans affair was simply a legal question, and that the departure of Fava from Washington had been ordered as a protest against the action of the United States.

Violated the Lottery Law.

WHEELING, W. Va., May 16.—Warren M. Frame, of Raleigh county, this state, was convicted of violating the lottery law by sending a letter through the United States mails to the Louisiana lottery and was fined $25 and costs.

Deserved a Better Fate.

ALCANO, Kan., May 15.—Mrs. Arthur Briscoe, aged 81 years, was drowned in the river near here yesterday. Mrs. Briscoe had been married six times and had thirty-one children, four of whom died. All her husbands were dead.

The Failure Record.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number 237, as compared with a total of 242 last week, and 212 for the corresponding period one year ago.

LA GRIPPE AGAIN.

During the epidemic of La Grippe last season Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and colds, proved to be the best remedy. Reports from the many who used it confirm this statement. They were not only quickly relieved, but the disease left no bad after results. We ask you to give this remedy a trial and we guarantee that you will be satisfied with results, or the purchase price will be refunded. It has no equal in La Grippe, or any Throat, Chest or Lung Trouble. Trial bottles free at J. J. Orr's Drug Store. Large bottles, 50c. and $1.00.

MARVELOUS ENDURANCE.

The vast amount of labor performed by the heart in keeping all portions of the body supplied with blood is not generally known. It beats 100,000 times and forces the blood at the rate of 168 miles a day, which is 3,000,000,000 times and 5,150,880 miles in a life time. No wonder there are so many HEART FAILURES. The first symptoms are shortness of breath when exercising, pain in the side or stomach, fluttering choking in throat, oppression, then follow weak, hungry or smothering spells, swolen ankles, etc. Dr. Franklen Miles' NEW HEART CURE is the only reliable remedy. Sold by Baker & Hall.

The Eloquent Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago, Does Suffering Humanity a Great Service by Telling His Experience with a Great Family Medicine. Read:

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability.

"Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way.

"Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used.

"One of my sons, who has long been a sufferer from Catarrh, has received like signal relief from his old enemy. P. S. HENSON.

"Chicago, Dec. 10, 1890."

GERMETUER cures by killing the disease germ and thus removing the cause. It is a specific for Catarrh, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Lung, Blood, Liver, Kidney, and Bowel Trouble. IT IS WOMAN'S BEST FRIEND, regulating all irregularities. It builds up from the first dose. For sale by druggists, or will be sent anywhere C. O. D. for $1.00 per bottle (concentrated, which makes one gallon medicine).

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With seal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

Reliable man wanted for Tecumseh and vicinity. Good pay to right party.

MY OTHER CLO'ES.

I like my other clo'es fust-rate,
O' course they ain't as good as these
Fer playin' er fer workin' in,
Er diggin' caves or climbin' trees;
I couldn't wear 'em fishin', er
Fer anything that's work or play,
But they're all right fer Sundays when
A feller jes' loafs 'roun' all day.

They're almos' new. It's jes' six years
I've had them other clo'es o' mine;
I'm goin' on fifteen now, you know,
An' then I wasn't only nine;
The only thing that I don't like
About my other clo'es is that
When they are on, my ma eyes me
'Bout as a terrier does a rat.

I can't ride our old hose bare-back,
Er go in wadin' in the slough,
Er tumble down a high hay-stack—
My ma'd think I was crazy to,
If I lean up agin a fence,
Er lie down the grass to doze,
My ma comes to the door and yells;
"Be careful James—your other clo'es!"

But, say, I like them other clo'es
When I ain't had 'em on fer long;
I look through all the pockets; that's
When that there suit comes out real strong;
For in those pockets I kin find
Things that I lost and wanted bad,
An' things I found an' put away,
An' things I didn't know I had.

To-day I was to Sunday-school,
An' when the teacher wan't about
I 'mused the class fer quite awhile
By emptyin' all my pockets out;
I'd crumbs an' sticks an' stones and shells,
An' buttons, keys an' gum an' strings;
I don't see, come to think of it,
Where there was room for all them things.

O' course, my old clo'es suit me best,
The new ones are fer style, you know;
But then its bully fun to search
Them pockets onct a week er so.
My little brother, what's jes' six,
He'll have 'em now soon as he grows.
I'm sorry for the boy, I am,
What hasn't got no other clo'es.

RUTH KYLER.

A Story Showing That "Truth Is Stranger Than Fiction."

CHAPTER I.

"Whosoever hath any thing fixed in his person that doth induce contempt, hath also a perpetual spur in himself to rescue and deliver himself from scorn."

Ruth Kyler, a girl of seventeen, sat in her wheel chair, restless and uneasy as people of spirit who are physically disabled are apt to be, until the question as to whether or not they are incurable is settled beyond a doubt.

"No letter from the surgeon yet, mother. What does it mean?" said Ruth, as she turned her head to hide the hot, scalding tears and quivering lips. "Do you think it is a part of God's plan that I should be as I am? You say my condition is not the result of carelessness, ignorance or sin. I believe I might accomplish a great deal if I were well."

"Ruth, I do not know God's plans regarding such things, but this I do know, His plans for making you a Christian and for your happiness are perfect. Whether or not this is a means to accomplish that end, I can not tell. You think you might accomplish much if you were well, but pehaps you will be able to do more good now than you would or could under other circumstances. Possibly we who are to care for you need this to make us what He would have us be. But we will continue to hope that you will yet be able to walk. However, if that can not be,"

——The sentence was not finished, as their conversation was interrupted by callers.

Their home, which was in one of the central States in the small college town of O——, overlooked a black, sluggish stream noted only for its blackness and its beautiful water-lilies which Ruth watched, studied and admired.

The injuries that she had received during a terrific storm when a child were of such a nature as to cripple her hands and feet, and partially stop the growth of her limbs. She could not walk and had but slight use of her hands. By constant effort, however, she had learned to write by holding her pen between her hands. She could also grasp and hold any small light object in the same manner, but farther than this her hands were useless; but although crippled in body, Ruth was not crippled in mind, as people with original deformity are sometimes. She had a quick, clear intellect, suffered and enjoyed keenly and had a strong will, which at this time was bent upon regaining the use of her hands, if possible.

She had a fair education and was seldom idle. She read the latest medical authorities touching cases like her own, and often talked with her mother, as we found her doing to-day, about her condition and what she would do when she was well, but alas! for the castles she was building. They were destroyed in an instant by a few lines which said:

"DEAR MR. KYLER: We regret to say that we can not relieve your daughter. We fear her case is hopeless. You have our heartfelt sympathy. Very respectfully yours,

As the contents of their message was made known to Ruth she felt for a moment her strength leaving her, for she realized that from their decision there was no appeal, and that all had been done for her in the three previous trials; that she must ever be a helpless cripple. O, had God forgotten her indeed? She did not wish to talk about it now, she could not cry and she could only half think. She tried to be brave for her mother's sake, for she saw that she, too, was suffering, but as the time passed, the awfulness of her condition seemed to be forcing itself more and more upon her, and for days she seemed like one stunned by some heavy external blow.

All efforts to interest her were unavailing until at last her brother, remembering her fondness of certain flowers, threw a bunch of water-lilies into her lap, saying, "Chick, would you like some flowers? I gathered them all for you, see. Are they not beautiful? And just think, they came from the blackest place in the river. Strange, isn't it?"

Looking at them a moment as though they were old friends from a dead past, for the first time she lost control of her feelings, and the storm that shook her frail person was in proportion to the time during which it had been gathering; but with its subsidence a change was noticed in Ruth—a change that became more marked as the weeks passed, and one which told the ever-watchful mother that a battle was being fought by her child and oh, how earnestly that mother prayed for her afflicted daughter!

"It is an interesting question," says some one, "when a human soul thus finds its way of life hedged, in to see what course it will pursue. It is more than an interesting question, it is a test question, for the littleness or the greatness of that soul will show itself at this point, and a vast number of lives are brought to some such test or trial."

Again he says: "When a soul reaches such a point in life as this, it is met by one uniform and powerful temptation, viz., the temptation to sit and brood over the calamity, to shut one's self up from the sunshine of the outer world and to live in an unhealthy atmosphere of grief and complaint. Sometimes the temptation results in a simple moping melancholy, sometimes it produces a fierce rebellion against God who allows such unequal chances of outward life."

Mrs. Kyler, fearing that Ruth's great disappointment might cause her to be rebellious or despondent, put forth every effort in her power to convince Ruth that God really loved her, and allows no sparrow to fall to the ground without His notice.

CHAPTER II.

"MAN'S EXTREMITY IS GOD'S OPPORTUNITY."

About three months after the event recorded in the first chapter, Ruth's mother, in order to lighten expenses, decided, after much persuasion, to rent their first floor front, which was remarkably large, pleasant and well lighted, to be used as an artist's studio. As time passed, Ruth spent much time watching the pupils at their work, and before the close of the first term's lessons had become so interested that she asked Miss Crawford, the artist, with much fear and trembling, if she might be allowed to join the class.

The reply was all that her saddened, aching heart could wish, but as she took her place among them keenly did she feel the contrast between herself, with her pencil or brush pressed between her hands, and the graceful, happy girls near her. Many times did she feel her cheeks crimson as she became conscious of the curious gaze of some stranger in the room. Fortunately, however, for her, she was influenced to begin at the foundation, to see and represent correctly, instead of being encouraged to paint a few pictures to hang upon the walls to show her friends, as specimens of her work, when, in reality, more or less and often times the most of the work would be that of the teacher.

Her progress at first was slow, very slow, indeed, and at many times discouraging, but as the months passed she saw a new world opening to her view, a world of beauty of which she had never dreamed, but a world which she, yes, even she, might enter, if nothing unforeseen occurred.

* * * * * * *

Fifteen years have passed and we will enter the pleasant south room again. Miss Crawford is not there, neither are there any pupils, but Ruth is there, looking out of the same window as when we first saw her, but with a much happier, although paler, face. Before her is an almost finished picture representing water lilies growing in a river. If we will look out of the window, too, we shall see her model. Her brightest hopes have been more than realized. She had accomplished more, much more than she had thought possible when she began. She has had many pupils, (the writer of this being among the number), filled many orders, and is now competing for a prize. The conditions are that the pictures must be original paintings representing flowers. She would have preferred faces if the privilege of choosing had been hers. The reward is to be such that she will be able to assist greatly, if she be the successful one, the parents who have given so much of their time and strength to her, and as she works there all by herself, this petition is offered many times:

"O God, may this picture not only be an inspiration to others in trouble, but the means of relieving the loved ones so dear to me. Yet, not my will, but Thine be done."

There are to be five judges, and one week from this time finds her picture on its way to its destination. It also finds Ruth weak, very weak, from exhaustion. This last great strain upon her vitality, and her previous confining work, are giving her warnings which she can not understand.

With your permission we will now enter another room—a room many miles from here and one in which the judges are deciding in regard to the merits of sixty or seventy flower pieces. The pictures are numbered and hung in the best light possible, and there is a numbered and sealed envelope fastened to each picture. These contain the names and addresses of the competitors, and are arranged in such a manner that their decision must be according to their judgment. The less deserving pictures are being taken from their places one by one, until at the close of the first week fifteen only remain.

These are carefully and conscientiously compared until four others are put aside, later six others have their faces turned to the wall, and so on until at the close of the second week only three remain. Of these three, one represents sunflowers, another Easter lilies, and the third, water lilies. Then the merits of these three were discussed many times, until it was decided that as there was but little difference in the work, the thought expressed and brought out must decide the question. "And now, if you please, what object had the artist who painted these sunflowers," said one who seemed to be a recognized leader among them? Each expressed himself freely, and the general opinion was that the object was to represent nature as perfectly as possible.

The Easter lilies were then put to the test. Again there was a general expression, but this time opinions differed widely. All saw in them a partial representation of the Resurrection Morning, but farther than this they did not agree. It was then discovered beyond a doubt that this was a copy to a certain extent of a picture that had been painted several years previously, by a master hand, and a little later it had been chromoed. The would-be artist had re-arranged the flowers, and in so doing, because he did not feel and see it himself, had failed to show the one grand thought of the original.

The water lilies were then put in the crucible.

Not a word was spoken for fully five minutes, then one said: "Wonderful. Do you see? Do you get the artist's conception? Look at this deep, dark, foul water. From the blackness of sin and the depth of human sorrow, come, as the result of love, light and help from above, a beautiful character. Do you see how it is expressed? The blossoms which have received the most light are larger, whiter and more nearly perfect than the others, while the buds are just beginning to openly respond to its influence. We may not all believe the statement they make, but it is the artist's thought and he believes it with his whole heart, and I will venture to say, without knowing the circumstances, that these flowers have in some way been an inspiration to this person, in days of deep distress. "I am ready to make my choice now," said he.

"So are we all, I think," said another.

An expression was then taken in writing and the water lilies were unanimously awarded the prize.

The envelope was then opened and the artist's name and address read.

We will now return to our pleasant south room.

Ruth was gradually becoming weaker, yet she anxiously watched the mail for news of the judges' decision. At last, it had seemed ages to her, their report came, and with it congratulations, and this poem:

"O star, on the breast of the river,
O marvel of bloom and grace,
Did you fall straight down from Heaven
Out of the sweetest place?

You are white as the thought of an angel,
Your heart is steeped in the sun,
Did you grow in the Golden City,
My pure and radiant one?

Nay, nay, I fell not out of Heaven,
None gave me my saintly white;
It slowly grew from the blackness
Down in the dreary night.

From the ooze of the silent river,
I won my glory and grace,
While souls fall not, O poet,
They rise to the sweetest place."

"They did get my thought," said she, "and perhaps others will see it, too. O my dear mother and father. For myself it does not matter, 'twill soon be over."

As was feared, the excitement was too great for her. She sank rapidly and in three days had passed beyond the help of human hands. Yet she lives in the hearts of those who knew her, and her life will ever be an inspiration to the many students who attend the college and hear the story of her life.

Who can measure the influence of such a life?—Laura I. Bartlett in Christian Evangelist.

A LANGUAGE OF MUSIC.

The Association of Certain Airs with the Different Nationalities.

We may call "music" the language of the world, for it speaks as many idioms as there are nations, races and even individuals. One single detached note, intoned by different voices or instruments, will convey as many meanings as there may be ears to hear it. It may sound martial upon the "trumpet," sylvan upon the "horn," feminine upon the "clarinet," naive upon the "hautboys," sublime upon the "organ," mysterious upon the "æolian-harp," prosaic upon the "street organ," and common upon the "banjo." The specific timber of these instruments and their handling may invest that one tone with volumes of images and poems, to a certain degree akin among cultivated listeners, and quite contradictory to others. Sweetest remembrance may be recalled by it upon the banjo, terpsichorean inspirations roused upon the street organ, and a chorus of angels may descend from it upon the worldly cornet-a-piston. The simplest song, although provided with words, will scarcely ever repeat analogous sensations in the same person, and probably never in a large audience, in which traditions, associations, historical or national influences, will more or less increase or lessen the receptive powers. Adding to this the numerous conditions under which the performance of that song may take place—such as the singer's voice, disposition, art and personal magnetism the audience's number and kind; the locality, its atmosphere, light, etc.—it is evident that even if the en gros effect may be of a homogeneous nature, in details it will be quite kaleidoscopic.

The "pibroch," the "Marseillaise," "Die Wacht am Rhein," the "Rakoczy March," speak each its own special language, untranslatable in its real essence. It takes a Scotchman, a Frenchman, a German, and a Hungarian to understand their full meaning, although their governing spirit may be valued by everybody. This is, of course, more applicable to national than to cosmopolitan music, which may be also the subject of local, political, or other influences. National music, the source of all cosmopolitan music, is in the same measure attached to language and poetry as race characteristics, fine arts and sciences depend upon climatic, geographical and political conditions. Thus it is a nation's language which generates its musical rhythm; its poetry which creates its melody; and its temperament, the spirit of its dignity, tenderness, mirth, sadness or flightiness, whichever may express the respective people's national character.—Francis Korbay, in Harper's Magazine.

HAPPY HOOSIERS.

Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that bad feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie farmer and stockman, of the same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine, made me feel like a new man." J. W. Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care hether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life.

A VALUABLE DISCOVERY,

Dr. Brown Sequard's elixir of youth may be an important discovery, but every one knows that Dr. Franklin Miles' New Heart Cure certainly is. It has given thousands afflicted serious heart disease a New Lease of Life. Druggists who can observe its effects on many costomers everywhere speak very highly of it. Mr. John Weaver, Knightstown Ind., says: "I have sold much of Dr. Miles New Cure and have received many good reports." O. Monroe, of Dunkirk, N. Y., reports large sales. "And the best part of it is every bottle has given satisfaction. Sold and guaranteed by Baker & Hall.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH. MAY 21, 1891

Miss Agrie Stevens was in town Tuesday.

Will McAdam is clerking for S. W. Demuth.

Miss Lizzie Kirk went to Toledo Tuesday.

Mrs. W. H. Katner spent last Thursday in Tecumseh.

George Kelly of Wheatland is spending a few days with his mother here.

Louise VanDeMark has taken Anna Kirchgessner's place in the new store.

Guy Katner has been having a severe tussle with the measles for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Stoner, of Quincy, Mich., are visiting relatives here this week.

H. R. Ballard of Toledo was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Lancaster over Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Guiwits attended the funeral of Mrs. Ornan Finch at Tecumseh Tuesday.

Miss Augusta Bruce is packing up her household goods and preparing her house for rent.

Miss Mae Morey spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Hyndman, at her home in Brooklyn.

Miss Nellie Kishpaugh has been in Ann Arbor for several days, the guest of Miss Laura Clark.

Charlie Silvers, who has been sick for several weeks, is able to sit up for a short time each day.

There was a meeting of Clinton Chapter No. 40, Tuesday evening, for work in Mark degree.

Mrs. J. W. Bradner left here last Thursday to make an extended visit among friends at and near Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Jennie Kimball has sold her house and lot on Franklin street, to Alonzo Marshall and will give possession June 1st.

Mrs. and Mrs. S. W. Demuth went to St. Louis, Mich., Tuesday, where Mr. Demuth will take medical treatment for rheumatism.

Miss Anna Kirchgessner, who has been clerking for Geo. T. Clark since the opening of his store, expects to go to Tecumseh in a few days to assist E. F. Kirchgessner in his new jewelry store.

S. W. Demuth has a lot of National Mercantile Coupon pass books, issued by the Historical Publishing Co., Dayton, Ohio, which he is selling to his customers. It is a great convenience to both merchant and customers.

The Alumni are preparing an especially fine program for their reunion this year. A reception to the members and those assisting them in their entertainment will be given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. VanTuyle.

The interior of F. D. Lancaster's clothing store presents a fine appearance since the jewelry stock has been removed. The window in the west side has a fine display of spring and summer hats. The safe and writing desk have been moved to the west side. The genial proprietor and his competent clerk, Chas. Thompson, have on their summer smile and customers are assured of courteous treatment and a "perfect fit."

The next meeting of the Blue Ribbon Club will be held Sunday at Town Hall, at 3 p. m. The program is as follows:

Recitation	Ella Tuttle.
"	May Waterhouse
Song	Litt'e Boys.
Reading	Sadie Huntington.
Recitation	Blanche Muir.
Duet	Cora and Imo Vest.
Recitation	Eda Kirk.
"	Mabel Monroe.
Solo	Minnie Humphrey.
Reading	Ollie Mills.
Song	Little Girls.
Reading	Mrs. C. S. Burroughs.

A large attendance is desired.

At a meeting held last Friday evening at the Town Hall, for the purpose of making arrangements for Decoration Day, the following committees were appointed:

Lady teachers of the Union School, committee on flowers; W. R. Muir, committee on speaking and Memorial service; D. M. Bainbridge, committee on music; Millspaugh and Stewart, committee on flags; Shove Alvord, committee on stand at cemetery; M. F. McCure, committee to notify Beers Post, No. 140, G. A. R. Rev. A. W. Stalker and Rev. H. R. Williams are to give addresses. Rev. Stalker will act as chaplain. Decoration services will commence at half-past nine o'clock. A full program will appear next week.

Monday afternoon a couple of very smart alecks were in town from the land of "Egypt." They for some time found business for themselves by imposing on and roughly handling the old hero survivor of the Toledo war. Finally forbearance ceased to be a virtue and the old hero became a law unto himself and proceeded to administer the remedy for the rowdy conduct; he plied his cane vigorously over the head of one of the pair, causing blood to flow freely. It is generally regretted that the Capt. did not have a heavier cane and that both had not received the same sort of treatment. Moral: smarties should not attempt to monkey with old warriors for they are sometimes loaded for business—Dundee Reporter.

THE TRIALS OF WINTER.

Winter is a trying period, even to those who have strong constitutions, but it is doubly trying to those who are weak and delicate, or who have a tendency to the various diseases that are bred and fostered in the stagnant atmosphere of closed and heated houses. The system should be kept strengthened and toned up with a liberal course of S. S. S., the great blood tonic and purifier. It acts like a charm. It increases the appetite, soothes the nerves, and beautifies the complexion—in short, it makes life well worth living.

Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is a staple article in the market. The demand for it was never greater than now. The people find it indispensable, and will not be without it at any price. Only costs 25 cts.

Around the County.

Britton pineth for a base ball team.

Judge Robbins of Adrian will deliver the Memorial Day address at Onsted.

Lenawee has twenty cheese factories and is the banner dairy county of the State.

A Toledo man has purchased 23 acres of land near Palmyra, upon which he will raise celery.

The Adrian Knights Templar will camp at Devil's Lake this summer. Last year they camped at Sand Lake.

Burglars stole about $200 worth of cheap jewelry and other articles from the store on the "East Side," Hudson, Saturday.

A spouting well, which throws an inch and a quarter stream five feet high, has just been struck at Morenci, at a depth of 94 feet.

Our exchanges note the fact that a swindler is traveling through the country selling a thistle exterminator for $3.50 a bottle. It is no good, and farmers should beware.

So neatly did Peter Bellman, of Riga amputate the middle finger of his right hand between a couple of stones last week, that all the doctor had to do was to dress the wound.

A Michigan editor wrote the manager of the Western Newspaper Union at Detroit the other day to cut off two "Choirs" from his run. He must be interested in church music.

Is the law against spearing fish a dead letter or not? If it still exists it is being ruthlessly broken by young and old, saint and sinner—all for the want of deputy game wardens.—Brooklyn Exponent.

The official canvass gives Montgomery, republican candidate for Judge of Supreme court, 4,940 pluralty over Champlin, the democratic nominee. The "Salary Grab" amendment was carried by a majority of 1,287.

"Women as publishers of Country Newspapers" will be the subject of a paper by Mrs. Ethlyn Clough, of the Brooklyn Exponent, at the next annual meeting of the Woman's Press Association, to be held at Battle Creek June 9, 10, and 11.

James M. Turner, of Lansing, late Republican candidate for Governor, has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, and his affairs are found to be in very bad shape. Did the party "bleed" him too heavily in the campaign last fall?. It looks that way.

—Prof. Fred R. Hathaway, of the East Side schools, has a very fine collection of specimens of ores and minerals. Recent additions are a box full from attorney Woodward, of Iron Mountain, and a box full each from Houghton and Alabaster, Mich.—Hudson Post.

—Workmen are hoisting the iron casing in the oil well with a derrick, and will ship the pipe to the Ohio oil field. They can have the 2,000-foot hole, too, of they will take it away. It will be valuable down there, but here in Hudson it only serves to recall our blasted hopes.—Hudson Gazette.

—Sammy Perkins is a kid with an inquiring mind. A few days ago he undertook to investigate the mysteries of steam, and put his face to the escape vent of the engine at the water works station. The result was a badly scorched phiz for the lad, but he acquired considerable experience.—Hudson Post.

G. B. Cadwell, of Adrian, is still in this part of Lenawee representing the interests of his proposed county atlas. Among the substantial citizens of Medina and Seneca, as in other townships where he has been, his enterprise meets with high favor, it being recognized as entirely meritorious and deserving of patronage.—Morenci Observer.

J. M. Henson, of this city, was gored to death by a vicious bull which he was leading out of his barn Friday morning, on his premises on North Winter street. The accident happened at about eight o'clock in the morning, and the wounded man was so fearfully gored and lacerated that he died a little before noon. Mr. Henson was a colored man, about 60 years old, and was an honest, upright gentleman, respected and esteemed by all who knew him.—Messenger.

Tom Baker, of Morenci, who has sometimes done a little law business in the long ago, was a witness in the Boody case in the circuit last week. "Mr. Baker," said the questioning lawyer, rather sarcastically, "you are a lawyer, I believe?" "I used to be," replied Tom, coolly, "when the profession was honorable," at which retort there was a snort from the spectators and the judge looked far from grave.—Adrian Press.

—At this time of the year, when people are doing little jobs of painting, the following may be of advantage; "The smell of paint may be taken away by closing up the room and putting in the center of it a pan of lighted charcoal, on which has been thrown some juniper berries. Leave this in the room for a day and a night, when the smell of the paint will be gone. Some people prefer a pail of water in which a handful of hay is soaking. This is also effectual in removing the odor of tobacco smoke from the room."

Hing Lee, the Ypsilanti laundryman, was the guest of B. W. Amsden yesterday. He was on his way to Tecumseh to visit his brother. Hing Lee is said to be proprietor of several shops, besides part owner in a tea store in Pittsburg and a drug store in China. He has but lately returned from the Celestial Kingdom, where he went to look after his business and visit relatives. He says that his cousin, in Hillsdale, talks of coming here to start a laundry.—Manchester Enterprise.

J. R. Bennett intends to remodel his residence on South Main street. Meeting Uncle Joe, yesterday, a TIMES man asked him if this was true. "Yes," said he, "it's as certain as taxes. I'm going to take the three or four roofs on the building now entirely off, and put the shanty under one roof, with a good big garrett over the whole house. And then I'm going to put on a porch in front that three sets can dance on by the music of the piano inside. Yes, and then I'm going to put up a tower with a flagstaff on it high enough so the eagle can look down on Gilderoy's kite. And I'm going to put up a lot of jimcracks all around, like they're doing nowadays. In fact I shall have everything on it but a mortgage, and I don't know but I'll conclude to have that on before I get through.—Times.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Delilah X. Finch, wife of Ornan B. Finch, fell asleep in Jesus at her home near this village, Sunday, May 17th.

Mrs. Finch was the eldest daughter of Mr. Samuel Bryan. Next Saturday will be the 41st anniversary of her birth and the 20th of her marriage. In the early morning of her life she gave her heart to her Savior and was baptized into His church. Her entire life has been spent in this community. To it she has left the legacy of a life's record without a spot and without a blemish. As a daughter and sister she was loving and dutiful; as a wife the heart of her husband could safely trust in her; as a mother her love became to her children their best teaching of the Divine Love that came to die that we might live. Beside the record of such womanly life, the current talk of woman's sphere and woman's rights seems inexpressibly cheap and contemptible. Her sphere and right it was to be God's best earthly gift to her home and loved ones, worthy member of the Church of Christ, and a helpful friend to all whom she influenced. Of her we may fitly use Whittier's words of his friend:

"The dear Lord's best interpreters
Are humble human souls;
The gospel of a life like hers
Is more than books and scrolls.
From scheme and creed the light goes out,
The saintly fact survives;
The blessed Master none can doubt,
Revealed in holy lives."

China Wedding.

The appended notice is taken from a late issue of the San Jose Mercury. Brock Anderson has a host of friends among the older residents here, who always peruse any news about him with pleasure, and they will all join the HERALD in hearty congratulations to himseif and his family over the happy outcome of his china wedding—

Saturday evening, May 2d, being the 20th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Brock Anderson, a few of the relatives, together with a number of the G. A. R. members and friends, gathered at their beautiful little home on South Fifth street to extend congratulations and pass a pleasant evening. The house was decorated beautifully with flowers and foliage. The figures 1871-1891 were conspicuous on one of the walls, wrought in green. Cards and tiddle-de-winks were thoroughly enjoyed by all, and the famous donkey game afforded a great deal of amusement. Mr. Hoyt received the first prize and Mrs. W. H. Brown the booby prize. Many beautiful pieces of china were received. At 11 o'clock refreshments were served to which all did justice. At a late hour the guests departed pronouncing the host and hostess capital entertainers and wishing them many happy returns of the day.

Town Talk.

We clip the following from the Monroe Commercial, which will be of interest to many of our readers.

Mrs. General Custer said farewell for summer to a limited number of her friends at a charming tea given her on the afternoon of Tuesday, the 21st of April, by Mrs. Candace Wheeler and Mrs. Boudinot Keith (Dora Wheeler) at their charming home on East Twenty-seventh street, New York. Mrs. Custer sailed for Europe on the Brittanic May 13th, and will probably spend several months in travel abroad. Her last summer's journeying in the West verifying literary data proved very fatiguing, and she feels a complete rest and change will be necessary before she can finish her researches in early pioneer history. Thus charmingly did one of the ladies present chat about the distinguished lady:

One of the delightful women present was Mrs. Custer, widow of the famous general. She has a sweet, strong face and a pleasant voice. She was quietly dressed in black and her manner was as quiet and unassuming as one would expect who has read her books. Among the guests were others equally well known, but to my mind Mrs. Custer was the queen of the occasion. I am very glad that the government has seen fit to render her coming years free from pecuniary worry.

A Beautiful Boat.

Interest in boating at Sand lake seems to be taking an early startt this year. The latest addition to the yacht fleet at that popular Adrian summer resort, has just been purchased by George W. Larwell, of The Times, from the famous Spring Lake Clinker Boat Company. It is known as their "Baby" combination sail and row boat, and is as handsome as a picture. Twelve feet long over all, with four feet of beam, she will ride the water like a duck. The metal trimmings are in polished brass, and the decking, coaming, thwarts, etc., are finished in natural wood. The craft comes complete with sails, spars, folding anchor, rudder, center board, oars, &c., and besides possessing the qualities of a fast sailer, is a safe and roomy all-around useful family boat. The boat will be stored at the corner of Butler and Clinton streets for a few weeks, and the owner will be pleased to show it to any persons interested in boating.

She was purchased through Mr. Frank Bury, who is interested in the Spring Lake company, and who, as he frequently visits Adrian, his former home, will be glad to see any who think of investing in such an acquisition. This boat was bought with the proviso that if not satisfactory in every detail it could be returned at the company's expense. The result is that it more than meets all expectations.—Times.

"What Country Girls Can Do" is the title of an article in the May Lippincott by Miss Grace Dodge, in which she describes various societies organized by country girls for mutual improvement, and shows how country girls can greatly add to the interests and pleasures of country life. Frank A. Burr, the well-known journalist, who has recently returned from Europe, gives his impressions of the Prince of Wales in an article called "The Personality of the Prince of Wales." Mr. Burr greatly admires the democratic traits in the prince's character, and paints a pen-picture of the prince which differs essentially from the generally accepted pen-portraits.

The North American Review for May is an extra strong number. The gospel of wealth is ably discussed by Bishop Potter. Lynch law by Henry Cabot Lodge. The politican and pharisee by Hon. J. S. Clarkson. Our business prospects by Henry Clews. It is full of intellectual meat, from cover to cover. Buy a number and read it.

MILWAUKEE JUNIOR!

Takes the Lead!

TO THE FARMERS:

I have sold these machines in Tecumseh and vicinity for six years past and my sales have increased each succeeding year. The farmers who have bought this machine know, from a practical test, that it is the best machine on the market, and I expect to make my seventh season take the cake in the number of sales. I have just been having a tussle with the grip, but am now on deck again. Life is too short to relate and the newspaper too small to print all the good points about the MILWAUKEE JUNIOR. But call at my rooms in the Usborne Block and I will SHOW you the machine and EXPLAIN its workings.

Yours, for a Big Wheat Crop,

GEO. C. POCKLINGTON.

Neighborhood News.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

Mrs. R. H. Nelson spent Saturday in Toledo.

F. J. Temple was in Detroit Wednesday, on business.

The frost Tuesday night slightly damaged the potatoes.

N. M. Hindes is very poorly, with but slight hopes of recovery.

H. J. Williams made a flying trip to the county seat, Saturday.

Dr. Begel, of Holloway, occupied the pulpit last Sunday evening.

Agent Will Allen and wife, of Moscow, visited their parents the fore part of the week.

Mrs. Phoebe Allison is quite sick with but little hopes of her recovering, at present writing.

'Squire W. H. Arner has improved of late, so he is able to walk down to the store, occasionally.

David Allison and family, of Ypsilanti, was at his mother's, Mrs. Allison's, Saturday and Sunday.

Desa Chedister, of Tecumseh, and Jennie Reynolds, of Dundee, visited their cousin, W. L. Jones and family, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Babcock, a sister, and Mrs. Ingals, a cousin, of Dundee, were called to the home of Mrs. Allison by her sickness, the first of the week.

Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Loree were called to Wyandotte, Monday, by a telegram from Prof. Martin Palmer, stating that their daughter, Mrs. Palmer, was sick with typhoid fever.

The attendance at the L. C. S., held at Mrs. Jones', on Friday evening, was very good for the busy time of year. The evening was pleasantly spent and the exercises passed off nicely.

We understand the arrangements for the Epworth League ice cream social, to be held at the parlors of the Church on next Saturday evening, are completed and a cordial invitation is extended to all to come and help make it an enjoyable and pleasant occasion.

A shooting club having been organized, the members met Saturday afternoon for practice. W. J. Andrews carried off the honors, he being the best shot, Spencer second and Guy Davidson third. We understand they will meet next Saturday afternoon for another practice.

The Ladies' Church Social will meet at the home of Mrs. Samuel Barlow, on Friday evening, June 5. The following program will be presented:

TIPTON TOPICS.

Arrangements are in progress to observe Children's Day at the M. E. Church.

Young People's Epworth League will meet next Saturday evening, at the usual hour.

The M. E. Church was well filled Sunday last to listen to the memorial services conducted by Rev. Gibbs. The few remaining soldiers attended in a body.

Thursday last Tipton was the center of quite an exciting scene. The little two-year-old daughter of R. Butrick and the four-year-old daughter of J. Kinney, wishing to find out a little of the world for themselves, made up their minds to take a ramble without consulting anyone. They went east as far as the Center, turned and went south, crossed the railroad, and when discovered were resting upon J. M. Burn's steps, apparently tired out. Though they probably will never ramble away again, may the same spirit of bravery attend their efforts through life.

The following will be the plan for Memorial Day, as arranged by the committee. People will gather at the Methodist church at one o'clock p. m., form procession and march to the cemetery.

Decoration of graves and monuments under direction of committee.

Assemble at the stand for exercises.

Opening words by President of the Day and Invocation.

Quartette—male voices, "Peacefully Sleep 'Neath the Roses and Lillies."

Recitation—Miss Morseman, "Decoration Day."

Recitation—Miss Daniels, "The Canteen."

Quartette—male voices, "Cover Their Graves with Flowers."

Recitation—Miss Alexander, "Cover Them Over with Beautiful Flowers."

Recitation—Miss Vedder, "The Boys Across the River."

Quartette—"Dropping from the Ranks One by One."

Exhibit of the 4th Mich. Flag and historic sketch by Comrade Daniels.

Solo and chorus—"Oh, Starry Flag!"

Oration—Rev. J. S. Joslin, of Tecumseh.

Closing quartette—"Let Them Rest."

President of the Day, E. A. Wilson; Marshal, D. Preston.

For burns, scalds, and other wounds Salvation Oil has proved itself to be the best remedy ever used. All druggists sell it for 25 cents a bottle.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Dr. Hendershot returned from Ohio last Saturday.

Are we to celebrate the 4th of July in Britton this year?

Charlie Beasley is driving the dray wagon in our village.

The Britton gun club met again last Saturday and some fine shooting took place.

Our new butcher shop, under the management of Ousterhout and Lenardson, are working up a fine trade.

There is another Brown in town. He came to Chas. Brown's house last Saturday evening,—weighs nine pounds.

This is a busy week. Decoration Day and Never Too Late to Mend are keeping the young folks hard at work.

"Never Too Late to Mend" Friday and Saturday at Britton. Only 15 and 10 cents. Good music. Don't miss this last chance.

Richard Wiggins and his hands are getting along rapidly with Dr. Hendershot's new house. Rich. is a hustler and does first-class work.

Joseph Daykin left a self-loading pencil on the desk of the postoffice counter last Monday. The finder is kindly requested to return it to Mr. Daykin.

Dr. Thomas has just received from Chicago a set of floating instruments for floating horse's mouths and setting wolf teeth, and he is now ready to wait on his numerous patrons.

Joseph Hunter and his carpenters were busy working on the barn of Walter Exelby last Thursday afternoon, having no thought of danger and paying no regard to the dark clouds that gradually spread themselves over the horizon. Suddenly, in the flash of an eye, a cyclone burst upon them and taking a patch of timber about ten feet wide, it came directly toward the once gay and careless workmen. A spectator who was safe out of harm's way thus describes the scene: Joseph Hunter threw himself on his knees and trembling like an aspen leaf he muttered a prayer, or rather a cry, of supplication for his safety. His hat blew off and his hair fairly stood on end. After being on his knees about the fifteenth part of a second he seized a few tools and started to run for dear life. He was afterward found in a fence corner some three miles from the farm, and it took a good deal of persuasion to get him to return to his duty. John Exelby, who was bossing the mason work, secured himself to a tree by throwing his arms around the trunk, and after the wind was over it took two strong men to pry him loose from the tree. The other carpenters were well scattered, some being found within ten rods of the house and others between Dundee and Clarksville. We are glad to say no one was seriously hurt, but they were all pretty well scared, you bet!

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

Mrs. A. F. Freeman is the organist at the M. E. Church now.

Louis T. Freeman, of Chelsea, was in town several days this week.

Milo Rowe has treated his handsome residence, north of town, to a fresh coat of paint.

George St. Clair and family, of Ishpeming, Mich., were recent guests at J. R. Holmes.'

Mrs. Hiram Martin visited her son, Webster, a medical student at the University, last week.

Mr. Rowe and family, from Sylvan, have moved upon the VanWinkle place, on Territorial road.

Miss White, of Adrian, is visiting friends in town before starting for her future home in Sioux City, Iowa.

Charles Kirk and his sister Esther, of Chicago, were called to Manchester to attend the funeral of their uncle, William Kirk.

Julius C. Mattison and wife, of Norvell, and Miss Fannie Mattison, of Grass Lake, visited friends in town over the Sabbath.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kirk and their son Frank, of Toledo, arrived in town on Saturday, in response to a telegram informing them of the death of William Kirk.

Rev. R. L. Cope was called to Adrian to preach the funeral sermon of an aged minister, and O. J. Perrin, who is visiting relatives here, preached in the M. E. Church Sabbath morning.

William Kirk, who lived in the north part of the township, died suddenly while assisting at the morning chores on Saturday. Funeral on Monday, May 25th, at 9 a. m., from St. Mary's church.

A. H. Squier, one of Manchester's pioneer residents, died at his home, four miles west of the village, on Sunday night, of heart failure. Funeral from the house at 1:30 p. m., Wednesday, May 27th.

BRADFIELD'S FEMALE REGULATOR has won, on merit alone, a widespread and enduring reputation. It is a combination of vegetable agents, the result of the experience of one who made the diseases of women a life-long study. Taken according to directions the organs awake to new life and energy, leaving the woman free from pain at these periods. Sold by Jno. J. Orr.

MACON MUSIC.

Jesse Frost will work the rest of the season for Peter Snaubles.

Geo. Harmon went to the bedside of his sick sister in Hillsdale, Monday.

Lilburn Hatch has the agency for a wheel hoe, called the "Weed Slayer."

John Day and daughter Minnie are visiting friends at the former home of Mr. Day, in Ohio.

Chas. Slaigh, our popular veterinary, is the right man in the right place. He has all the work he can do in his line.

The first show of the season was two Italians and a bear traveling the streets and giving ten cent shows at farmers' residences.

The wind and rain storm last week Thursday didn't do any damage here but north and east it blew down windmills, fruit trees, etc.

Wm. Niblack, who has been clerking for Mr. Randall, in Clinton, for the past six weeks, is here packing up his household goods and will move his family to that place.

One of our townsmen thought he would try his hand at fishing. Digging a basketful of worms and procuring a gross of fish hooks, he started, rod in hand, for Camburn's Lake. Arriving there he baited his hook and cast it into the lake, his eyes projecting beyond his nose, expecting every minute to get a bite But having waited for some time in vain, he thought he would rest his arms; so laying his rod down he straightened himself, gaped a time or two, then discovered his pole going into the lake. The mud was too thick to swim in after it, and having no boat he was obliged to bid good-bye to his whole fishing equipments and retrace his steps, but with altogether a different gait than when he went, declaring that would be his last fishing expedition.

RAISIN RACKET.

Several of the seniors of the Seminary attended church in Adrian on Sabbath evening.

T. I. Sutton and Mrs. T. G. Mead have been entertaining relatives from New Jersey and Richmond, Ind.

Prof. Kelley delivered a class address at Monrovia, Indiana, where he taught school last year. This speaks well for the Professor.

The Hill family did themselves credit last Saturday evening at the contest by the manner in which they assisted in the musical program.

Nellie Smith and Jennie Pawson spent several days at their old field of labor. The Seminary has quite an attraction for the old students.

Rev. Edward Mott is expected at the Valley church next Sabbath. He comes from Glenn Cove, N. Y., and all wish him success in his new field of labor.

Monday's Detroit Tribune gives a long account of the Kalamazoo Celery gardens. They ought to see what we can do around Tecumseh in that line.

The contest at the Valley church last evening drew out a large crowd. It was quite difficult to decide between three or four of the contestants. The name of the successful one we have not learned.

Grand Matinee.

The Milan Driving Park Association will open the season of 1891 on Saturday, June 6, with the following attractions:

Two-year-old trotting race, 1-2 mile heats, best 2 in 3. 1st prize, cooling suit; 2nd prize, blanket.

Three-year-old race, trotting mile heats, best 2 in three. 1st prize, cooling suit; 2nd prize, blanket.

Three-minute class, trotting mile heats, best 3 in 5. 1st prize, cooling suit; 2nd prize, blanket.

Green race, trotting or pacing, open to any horse that has never won a place in a public race. 1st prize, cooling suit; 2nd prize, blanket.

In each of the above classes, if four or more horses start, a third premium will be added.

The track has been refitted and is in good condition, and the management will spare no pains to give their patrons a first-class exhibition.

Entries must be made in person or by letter with the Secretary before 6 p. m. June 5th.

Race called at one o'clock sharp. Admission, 25 cents; vehicles, and children accompanied by their parents, free.

NOTICE.

Sec. 301, Payment for boxes must be quarterly.—Postmasters must rent the boxes and drawers in their post offices for one quarter (three months) only, the money to be paid in advance. The Department will insist upon a strict compliance with this regulation. Boxes remaining unpaid for ten days from the expiration of a quarter will be declared vacated.

Sec. 302. Box to be restricted to use of one family, etc.—A person renting a post office box is entitled to have the letters of his family put into it. Each box must be restricted to the use of one family, firm, or corporation.

A. D. LAWRENCE, P. M.

THE LADIES DELIGHTED:

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

"What you coughing yet my friend?" "Of course! my cold is no better." "Well, don't stand on the order of going, but go to the druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, quick." He went, and was straightway made happy.

BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

JOHN STEWART KILLED.

We gather from the Adrian Press the following particulars in regard to the accidental death last week of John Stewart.—

John Stewart, a resident of Macon, aged about 65 years, was in Adrian Wednesday, and about 11 o'clock left as was supposed, to take a train for home. It was observed and remarked that Stewart was under the influence of liquor. In the evening, word was sent to assistant prosecutor Westerman and other officers, that the Wabash work train hands had discovered on the long bridge, north of the city, the body of a man who had been found there.

Prosecuting Attorney Wood and Dr. Hull were notified and the company proceeded to the Wabash depot. The work train was run back to the point where the body was found. It was immediately recognized by Mr. Westerman as that of John Stewart. It lay head downward, on the bridge, outside of the rails. The top of the head was crushed and a portion gone. A pool of blood on the bank below the body, showed where the life blood had poured out.

Justice Robertson impaneled a jury and took evidence including that of the engineer and fireman of the work train, and W. S. Westerman. At near midnight the case was adjourned to the following afternoon. It was reported yesterday morning that on the afternoon of the casualty, a person had been ejected from a Wabash train, north of Adrian, and this person may have been Stewart.

Stewart's pipe and glasses in his pockets were unimpaired. A bottle, with a little whiskey still remaining, was also found on the body.

The dead man has a family but has not lived with them for sometime past.

Later:—It has been learned that Stewart was put off the east bound, afternoon passenger train, being drunk and having no money. He seems to have gone forward on foot, and on reaching the bridge was struck and killed by another train. The engineer says he saw Stewart on the bridge, and he was out of the way of the engine, which passed him. He must have been hit with the step of one of the cars.

THE JUNE ATLANTIC.

If Carl Schurz's article on "Abraham Lincoln" is the first thing to which the reader naturally turns in the June Atlantic, it is not alone because it occupies the first pages of the number. It is fitting to give so interesting a survey of Lincoln,s life and work the place of honor, and we think of no magazine article which has appeared for a long time which will command such attention, not only from its subject, but from the fact of its being written by Mr. Schurz. It is a review of the Life of Abraham Lincoln, by Nicolay and Hay; and the result of their survey, which in the "Life" extends through ten volumes, is reduced by Mr. Schurz to about thirty pages of compact interesting narrative, with a summing up of Lincoln's place as a statesman and the work which he did in conducting the goverment safely through the perils of the Civil War. One of the concluding paragraphs is worth quoting: "A few days after the fall of Richmond," says Mr. Schurz, "Lincoln pointed out to a friend the croud of officeseekers besieging his door. 'Look at that,' said he, 'Now we have conquered the rebellion, but here you see something that may become more dangerous to this republic than the rebellion itself.'" And the concluding paragraph of the paper will always live as a most brilliant and striking characterization of Abraham Lincoln.

There is no real joy in giving, to the man who does not give half enough.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, MAY 28.

The Farmer's Alliance is likely to hold the balance of power in Ohio this year, and may upset the calculations of the politicians badly.

Here is another "remarkable coincidence," as Sam Weller would put it. The McKinley law doubled the duty on oat-meal and a nice little oat-meal trust has just been formed.

Scratch a friend of the McKinley tariff law, and he will always point to the free trade feature of the bill as its crowning glory — the clause putting sugar on the free list.

The Cincinnati Convention christened the new party, "The People's Party of the United States." That is a good name certainly. Time alone can demonstrate what the party itself will be.

The reciprocity annex to the McKinley law resembles a big yellow patch on the bulge of a pair of black pantaloons. There is a certain incongruity about it which borders on the ridiculous.

The Healey Motor of Detroit, which does go, should not be confounded with the Keeley Motor of Philadelphia, which does'nt go. There is a similarity in the names but no similarity in the motors.

An Ohio editor traded his paper for a mule a few days ago. Whether his paper was a high tariff sheet, or what he did with the mule is not stated. We await further information with considerable anxiety.

To Major McKinley: Grant, if you please, for the sake of discussion, that "the tariff is a tax" is not sound theoretical politics; but if the tariff is not a tax, for pity's sake tell us what's the matter with sugar.

An enthusiastic Patron says: "Every one must see a peculiar poetic fitness in the present gathering of the farmers in the Queen City of the West. It will be remembered that the ancient Cincinnatus was found plowing when called upon by the Roman legates to be Dictator."

Who was it that said Spain was a century behind the rest of the world? They are plowing by electricity over there, which would seem to indicate that they are up-to, if not a little in advance of the head of the procession. America is highly progressive, but we haven't a monopoly in that line.

The Dayton Times says: "The late republican candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania is likely to go to the penitentiary, and the republican candidate in Michigan has made an assignment. This is a pointer to Mr. McKinley." And they were both handsomely cleaned out at the polls. This is another pointer for the Major.

What effect the late Cincinnati convention will have upon the campaign of next year, is very difficult to tell at present. It will depend greatly upon the action of the Alliance convention to be held February 22d, 1892. If that body shall endorse the work of the late convention the third party will assume mammoth proportions at once.

Grover Cleveland never made a better speech than his Buffalo speech at the dedication of the Cleveland Club House. The key note of his remarks was a denunciation of "public extravagance," and he handled the subject with a master hand. His new apothegm, "Public Extravagance is a deadly, dangerous thing," will be one of the rallying cries of the next campaign.

Major McKinley will be the Republican nominee for Governor in Ohio this fall and Gov. Campbell will undoubtedly be his opponent. A legislature is also to be elected which will choose a U. S. Senator. It will be a square-toed fight on the McKinley tariff bill, in the Major's own State. Politics in Ohio will be hot enough this fall to suit the most fastidious Ohio man.

THE MINER ELECTORAL BILL.

The New York Evening Post gives the arguments for the constitutionality of the Miner electoral bill and the precedents for it, and completely demolishes the arguments of Gen. Cutcheon, in a leading editorial last week, which is so good that we quote it entire:

The Michigan Republicans show a disposition to test in the courts the validity of the law passed by the democratic legislature providing for the choice of presidential electors by districts next year, but there is little prospect of the success of such a movement. The man who is put forward to make the argument of unconstitutionality is ex-Congressman Cutcheon, who has written a long letter on the subject to the Detroit Tribune, but his whole argument is based upon an ignorance of our political history which is as astounding as it is discreditable in one who is a graduate of the Michigan university and of its law school. He begins with this statement:

"The bill is revolutionary in its character, and if carried out and extended to other states would effect a radical change in our form of government. Hitherto, in the fifty-five years of the history of the State of Michigan, under whatever political party, presidential electors have been uniformly chosen by the state at large. I am not aware that any State since the formation of the Government has ever departed from this rule. In some states electors have been appointed by the legislature of the state, representing the state at large, but never before, to my knowledge, has it been attempted to confer the power to appoint presidential electors upon congressional districts and vulgar fractions of a state. It remained for the illustrious legislature of 1891 to initiate this great reform and to reconstruct the constitution of the United States."

This ignorant statesman will be interested to learn that at the very first presidential election, in 1789, the state of Massachusetts adopted the district system, the people of each congressional district bringing in their ballots for two candidates and the legislature choosing one of these, as well as the two electors-at-large; that the system of choice by districts continued in Massachusetts for many years; and that several other states chose presidential electors by popular vote in the congressional districts, exactly as is now proposed in Michigan, until well on in the present century. North Carolina was so accustomed to the system of choice by districts that great excitement was caused in 1811 when, upon the excuse that there would probably be an increase in the number of the state's electoral votes by the new apportionment based on the census of 1810, but that it would come too late for a redistricting of the state, the legislature passed a law that the electors in 1812 should be chosen by the legislature. So late as 1828 New York and Maine in the north, and Maryland and Tennessee among the slave states, clung to the system of choosing electors by districts, with the result of a divided vote, except from Tennessee's unanimity for her "favorite son," New York choosing 20 Jackson electors and 16 for Adams, Maine 1 Jackson and 8 Adams, and Maryland 5 Jackson and 6 Adams. Maryland did not finally abandon the district system until after the election of 1832, in which year she chose three Jackson electors and five supporters of Clay, her vote having been divided between the candidates also in 1796, 1800, 1804, 1808, 1812, 1824, and 1828. What shall be thought of a man who has been four times elected to congress, and yet who confesses that he never even heard of such a thing as an attempt to confer the power to appoint presidential electors upon congressional districts, when it was a common thing in our early history?

Naturally enough, Mr. Cutcheon's constitutional argument is as weak as his historical one. The constitution provides that each state shall appoint its presidential electors "in such manner as the legislature thereof may direct." Story, the great commentator upon the constitution, in his remarks upon this clause, points out that it allows the legislatures to "prescribe the mode in which the electors should be chosen, whether it should be by the people at large, or in districts, or by the legislature itself.' Story wrote in 1840, in the light of fifty years' experience by the nation of all three of these systems, and after observing the operation of the district system, not only in his own state of Massachusetts, but in several other states, until Maryland at last gave it up after the election of 1832. It is to be remembered that the method of choice by congressional districts was adopted and maintained while the men who framed the constitution were still alive and active in public affairs, and that nobody ever questioned the fact that it was justified by the constitution. The Michigan republicans have a good argument against the justice of a democratic law introducing the district system in a single state for the avowed purpose of securing a temporary partisan advantage; but they should not make themselves ridiculous by ignorant claims that the action of the legislature is without precedent in our history or warrant in the constitution, when it is abundantly sustained by both.

A VALUABLE OBJECT LESSON.

Recognizing the fact that refined sugar has fallen two cents a pound, in consequence of the repeal of the tariff tax on raw sugar, we may properly inquire what it demonstrates? It is an object lesson of the greatest educational importance to the people on the effect of the tariff. The democratic view is vindicated, that reduced duties mean lower prices, and that the American consumer, not the foreign producer, pays the tariff tax. No amount of pettifogging can evade the conclusion.

The sugar trust is protected by a duty of half a cent a pound on the refined article. All sugar below No. 16 grade comes in free. Under the old law No. 13 to 16 was dutiable at 2 3-4 cents a pound. All above No. 16 at 3 and 3 1-3 cents a pound. Really the sugar trust receives nearly as much protection as under the old tariff law. The sugar trust was not harmed by the McKinley act. If the protective duty of half a cent a pound had been repealed, sugar would have dropped still lower. The tariff enables the trust to increase the price above what it would be if entirely repealed. It is expected that, after the trust has made sure of the market under the new conditions, prices will probably rise again. To prevent competition and not let the people have sugar as cheap as absolute free trade would allow, is, beyond any doubt, the reason why the trust and Claus Spreckels have formed a combination, pooled their products, and agreed on a division of territory. Spreckels will hold the Pacific coast and the trust the rest of the country. The half cent a pound protection is an ample stimulus for the high contracting parties to make such an arrangement. On the sugar consumed in the United States it amounts to over ten million dollars a year.

Clearly the sugar trust has not been harmed by the McKinley act. A paternal government still stands back of it and aids it in getting a large sum annually from consumers. A mistake was made in not removing the tariff tax entirely. The government will get no revenue, as only the untaxed raw sugar will be imported, and the people will be compelled to pay an extra ten million dollars a year to the combination. It is evident that the position and power of the sugar trust has not been weakened, but its evils have been perpetuated to the detriment of consumers by the protective duty it receives under the McKinley tariff. The decline of two cents a pound on all the sugar used in this country is a great boon to the people, as it saves them forty million dollars a year, and also furnishes an unimpeachable object lesson that the tariff is a tax paid by American consumers.—Jackson Patriot.

M'KINLEY AND THE FARMERS.

Mr. Mc Kinley's speech at the late Belshazzar feast was doubtless intended mainly for the enlightenment of Ohio farmers, in view of that eminent monopoly taxer's candidacy for Governor. His description of the advantages to the manufactures of export goods under his bill will afford a glowing vision to the Ohio rustic of the future home market for his produce, to be created by the prosperity of the manufacturer and his multitudinous employees.

The drawback upon imported materials of domestic manufactures exported makes the materials, Major McKinley contends, practically free. But he does not show how, in the greater part of these goods, in which domestic and foreign materials are mingled, they are to be separated and distinguished at the Custom-House. And he took care not to notify the agriculturists of Ohio that this neat scheme is quite as much a "protection" to the foreign consumer as to the domestic manufacturer. Perhaps the best illustration of this is the foreign as compared with the domestic prices of American agricultural implements.

For some light upon this phase of the monopoly tariff the Bulletin, published at Dennison, Crawford County, Ia., addressed an inquiry to the firm of A. B. FARQUAR & Co., Limited, York, Pa., which it describes as the "largest manufacturers of agricultural implements in America, and one of the largest exporters." The answer was that in the Latin countries south of us, and in south Africa, fully three-fourths of the ploughs in use are of American manufacture, and the proportion of other implements is nearly as great. The prices obtained for them are from 5 to 10 per cent. less than what they are sold for in this country. But for the tax upon raw materials, the firm states, it could sell "implements and machinery considerably cheaper to the American farmer." And the writer, Mr. A. B. FARQUHAR, concludes with a sentence which every Ohio farmer ought to read and hand to his neighbor, as follows: "As I have several times had occasion to observe, the manufacturer who is able to export his goods can have no use for protection except to enable him to extort more money from home purchasers than he is able to get from those abroad."—N. Y. World.

THE MICHIGAN PLAN.

Michigan is getting an enormous amount of free advertising over its break in the monotonous system of choosing electors. The partisans who have to revise their programmes are out of humor, but find little room for attack on this method in itself, although they are indignant at the source of the movement. One of the most beneficial results likely to come from it is to lead to consideration of the unfairness of the common plan, in that it ignores the minority entirely. Attention has occasionally been called to the matter for many years, but it has soon been lost sight of in the presence of exciting issues. The Pennsylvania or Buckalew plan is the most simple and fair, apparently, of any of the propositions. This would allot to the candidate of each party in the election of President electoral votes in proportion to its numbers. This method has the advantage over the district system that it removes all chances for gerrymandering the districts. The most important and beneficial result that would ensue from it would be the removal of the growing evil and danger of pivotal states. A bare plurality, not a majority, in two states has decided several national elections. The fact that the result hinges upon the electoral vote of a few doubtful states concentrates unhealthy efforts in them. If there are millions of money to be used for corrupt ends, it flows to those states. If the contest is diffused over nearly all the states, there would be little inducement for the fraud and bribery so often alleged in the close states. The Democrat in Vermont and the Republican in Texas would alike have a voice in the result. The discussion over the Michigan departure will go on, it is hoped, until a uniform and better system than the present is adopted.—St. Paul Globe.

CLEVELAND'S BUFFALO SPEECH.

As a party man, the probable candidate of his party next year for the Presidency, and addressing a party association which bears his name, Mr. Cleveland spoke of politics, but upon broad principles and without acrimony. The significant remark in the speech, regarded politically, was this: "The axe will not be laid at the root of the unwholesome tariff tree, with its vicious inequality and injustice, until we reach and destroy its parent and support." This support Mr. Cleveland stated to be Public Extravagance, and it has been surmised that he meant to suggest that the Democratic cry for the campaign of next year should be economy and denunciation of the "billion" Republican appropriations rather than tariff reform. But tariff reform is in itself an effective check upon the spirit of extravagance. The enormous pension grants and the operation of high tariff duties are bribes for the support of classes of voters, and opposition to them is opposition both to extravagance and its consequent demoralization.

The chief interest of Cleveland's speech, however, lay in the impression, which he always produces, that he means what he says. His public career illustrates his belief that politics is something more than adroit jugglery, and that official duty means obligation to the people. The secret of his undoubted popularity is popular confidence in his political honesty. He may make mistakes, and his party sympathy may sometimes cause him to hesitate to trust the general good sense. But no public man is more universally believed to have political convictions and to be true to them, and it is very long since any Democratic leader has commanded so much sincere respect among his political opponents as Mr. Cleveland.—Harper's Weekly.

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

THE SINGLE TAX BEFORE THE ILLINOIS LEGISLATURE.

Letter of Warren Worth Bailey in The Standard.

The expediency of adopting the single tax will be investigated by a committee of the Illinois legislature. This much we are sure of as the result of our trip to Springfield on Tuesday, when the question of appointing a special committee to inquire into the subject was set for a hearing in the house. Our club sent a delegation of five, consisting of Messrs. John Z. White, Edward Osgood Brown, Herbert Darlington, Frank W. Irwin and W. W. Bailey. Several others had intended to go, but could not get away. The single tax delegation was reinforced by Mr. John C. Harding, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, the whole crowd going down Monday night on the legislative train from this city. At Springfield they were joined by Messrs. Hill and Buchner, of the Peoria club, and a number of the local friends, who treated the visitors very kindly during their short stay. The resolution calling for the appointment of the desired committee was introduced by Hon. John T. Norsworthy, editor of the Carmi Partisan, and the matter was in his hands. He had succeeded in having it made a special order and it was arranged that the house should go into committee of the whole for its consideration. This was done immediately after the reading of the journal, on Mr. Norsworthy's motion, the republicans voting solidly against it, as they did when the question was on the adoption of the resolution itself. Valuable assistance was lent to Mr. Norsworthy by Representatives May and O'Donnell of Cook and Gehr of Peoria, and Speaker Crafts was obviously inclined in our favor. When the house went into committee of the whole Representative Craig was called to the chair, and then we were invited to address the house in behalf of the matter under consideration.

John Z. White was the first speaker. When he began his argument I noticed that at least a third of the members were engaged in anything but listening. Some of them were reading, others were writing, still others were chatting with neighbors or moving about the chamber. But Mr. White's first sentences and the voice in which he delivered them, very quickly commanded attention. The gentlemen who were looking over their mail laid it aside, newspapers were folded up, writing was suspended and conversations were stopped abruptly. The faces of the scornful took on first a look of curiosity and then one of thoughtful interest. In a little while nearly the whole body was intently listening, and I particularly observed that none were more absorbed in following Mr. White than the legislators who wore upon them the air of the farm.

Mr. White in opening his remarks explained that we were not there to advocate the single tax, but to ask the appointment of a committee to investigate and report the facts from which might be drawn a conclusion as to the merit of the single tax system as compared with the present. Chicago's valuation, Mr. White declared, four years after the fire was $306,000,000, in 1884 $203,000,000, and last year $196,000,000. This, the speaker maintained, would indicate that Chicago was growing steadily poorer, something that was manifestly absurd. It was patent that the wealthy of this city were escaping taxation for obvious reasons. If a person went into any of the large houses and tried to justly levy an assessment the word of the owner or his hirelings was all that could be secured. It was different with the farmer. His property could not be secreted and all his neighbors were taxed with some show of fairness. Mr. White showed in the local valuation in the six most populous counties in the state, Cook, Peoria, St. Clair, Kane, McLean and Adams, that but 15 per cent. was personalty, whereas in the six least populous the personalty amounted to 20 per cent. Mr. White contended that the repeal of the personalty taxes would relieve six rural counties of 20 per cent. and six urban counties of but 15 per cent. of their present burdens. The single tax advocates would also like to have the committee of investigation report in favor of local option in the matter of taxation, allowing each town to raise revenue for its own expenses in such manner as might be deemed best. With this much accomplished the single taxers would undertake to secure a trial of their plans, and in this way demonstrate their truth or fallacy. He cited two cities—Aurora and Elgin—by way of illustration, and held that if the former adheres to the present system and the latter relieves all industries of public burdens Elgin would be preferred by manufacturers. "If this is true," inquired Mr. White in conclusion, "is it not an admission that the present system is a hindrance to production, and that our proposed system would encourage manufactures to the same extent? Do you wish to encourage or retard the development of the various enterprises in which our citizens are engaged?"

Mr. White was followed by President Harding, on behalf of the Federation of Labor, which, after a full discussion, had asked for the special committee, not because it was prepared to accept the single tax, but because it was ready to receive light from any and every source. "I can not say that I fully believe in single tax," said Mr. Harding, "but I can say that I believe it would be a great improvement upon the system now in vogue. No man will deny that taxes now fall heaviest on those least able to bear them, nor will any one maintain that these taxes do not hamper, discourage and retard industry. The single tax promises relief from obvious and terrible evils, and I am therefore here to urge upon the legislature the duty of giving the new method the fairest and fullest investigation."

Mr. Brown closed the argument in favor of the appointment of the committee in an admirable speech that held the attention of the house. He said he thought no more important question would or could be presented to the Legislature than the most expedient and just method of raising the revenues for governmental purposes. Government had but two duties—to raise sufficient revenue, and to spend it for proper purposes. The single taxers simply desired to have a legislative committee investigate the best means of performing one of these duties. They were not asking the legislature to-day to indorse their ideas, but only to name a special committee, before which they would promise to present their reasons for believing as they did. Such a committee was being demanded by the Illinois federation of labor. It was being petitioned for by the single tax men of the state from Chicago to Cairo, and the single tax men, Mr. Brown assured the legislators, were a rapidly-growing class in the community. That something was wrong was undeniable and undenied. The burden rested most heavily with the consumer in proportion to his consumption. This was making the rich richer and the poor poorer. It was ruining the farmer and the agricultural districts. The wealthy citizens of the great cities concealed their personal property and evaded most of their taxes, but the farmer and laborer paid more than their share.

When the committee of the whole rose it recommended that the resolutions be referred to the committee on revenue.

"That gives you fellows a black eye," said the representative of the Chicago News when the result was announced, and so we felt at first. We had asked for a special committee, but instead of giving us that the whole matter had been referred to the revenue committee, "and there it will sleep," was the opinion of my journalistic friend. But this happened prior to the announcement of the house committees. When this came our disappointment quickly vanished, for we found at the head of the committee to which our petition had been referred no less a personage than Farmer James Cockrell, who made haste to assure us that he would do all in his power to meet our wishes for an investigation. "I have been studying the single tax for four years," he said in his hearty and earnest way, "and I am anxious to learn more about it. The present system of taxation is as rotten as hell and it ought to be wiped out altogether. You must supply me with all the information at your command, and as soon as possible I will arrange to have you present your case in full. If it can be done I hope you will get Thomas G. Shearman to come out here and address us on the subject of taxation. He could do great good." As Mr. Norsworthy is also a member of the committee we feel that the able gentleman who moved to have the question referred as it was rather than to a special committee has been hoist of his own petard. In any event we will get the most that we expected, a hearing, and that is enough just at present.

The Decadence of the Roman Empire.

The idea of absolute individual property in land, which modern civilization derived from Rome, reached its full development there in historic times. When the future mistress of the world first looms up, each citizen had his little homestead plot, which was inalienable, and the general domain—"the corn-land which was of public right"—was subject to common use, doubtless under regulations or customs which secured equality, as in the Teutonic mark and Swiss allmend. It was from this public domain, constantly extended by conquest, that the patrician families succeeded in carving their great estates. These great estates by the power with which the great attracts the less, in spite of temporary checks by legal limitation and recurring divisions, finally crushed out all the small proprietors, adding their little patrimonies to the latifundia of the enormously rich, while they themselves were forced into the slave gangs, became rent-paying colonii, or else were driven into the freshly conquored foreign provinces, where land was given to the veterans of the legions; or to the metropolis, to swell the ranks of the proletariat who had nothing to sell but their votes.—Progress and Poverty.

The Natural Source of Revenue.

In a rude state of society where there is no need for common expenditure, there is no value attaching to land. The only value which attaches there is to things produced by labor. But as civilization goes on, as a division of labor takes place, as men come into centers, so do the common wants increase, and so does the necessity for public revenue arise. And so on in that value which attaches to land, not by reason of anything which the individual does, but by reason of the growth of the community, is a provision intended—we may safely say intended—to meet that social want.

THE duke of Bedford, who died recently, owned 118 acres of land in the very heart of London, and over 156 square miles, or 100,000 acres of agricultural lands. His income from both sources was said to be over $4,000,000 a year. On his London estates his tenants had erected some 30,000 buildings of every description, and a large number of these had, by expiration of leases, become the property of the duke. So that he was probably the largest house owner in England. The famous Covent Garden market was on the duke's property, and the ownership of this carried with it the right to levy tolls on every cart approaching within a quarter of a mile of the market, as well as the produce sold in the market. From these tolls he derived an income of over $100,000 a year. As a man he was reserved and eccentric, and took no part in public affairs. The man who succeeds him, the present Lord Travistock, is not much better. The old duke did as much to make landlordism odious as probably any land owner in the world. He was rapacious and grasping to the last degree, and took every advantage that law allowed him to take; but, while his tenants suffered, the community at large have gained in having so conspicuous a "bad example" of landlordism.

THE TEMPLE REPAIRED.

LESSON IX, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, MAY 31.

Text of the Lesson, II Chron. xxiv, 4-14. Commit Verses, 8-10—Golden Text, II Cor. ix, 7—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

4. "And it came to pass after this that Joash was minded to repair the house of the Lord."

We now go backward in the history to a period about a hundred years earlier than the last lesson. Joash was the seventh king of the two tribes, and began to reign about a hundred years after the death of Solomon. Only seven years old when he began to reign, he reigned forty years (vs. 1).

5. "And he gathered together the priests and the Levites,".

"Go out unto the cities of Judah, and gather of all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see that ye hasten the matter."

This would have been a sort of compulsory taxation for the house of God, and was contrary to the principle laid down in Ex. xxv, 2—"Of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart ye shall take my offering." And again in Ex. xxxv, 5, "Whosoever is of a willing heart let him bring it, an offering of the Lord."

6. "And the king called for Jehoiada, the chief, and said unto him, Why hast thou not required of the Levites to bring in out of Judah and Jerusalem the collection?"

The priest and the Levites probably understood their business better than the king did. It was not in their commission to go out collecting money, but it was commanded that the people should bring in their offerings according to their ability (Deut. xvi, 16, 17; Mal. iii, 10).

7. "For the sons of Athaliah, that wicked woman, had broken up the house of God."

This was the woman who counseled her son Ahaziah (the last king) to do wickedly, and who, after his death, reigned six years (chap. xxii, 2, 3, 12). See her miserable end in chap. xxiii, 15. She was the daughter of Ahab (xxi, 6), and when we remember that Jezebel was Ahab's wife we cannot wonder at her conduct and that of her sons.

"And also all the dedicated things of the house of the Lord did they bestow upon Baalim."

8. "And at the king's commandment they made a chest, and set it without at the gate of the house of the Lord."

There was a hole in the lid of this chest, and it was set beside the altar on the right side as one cometh into the house of the Lord (II Kings xii, 9). Things are looking better now; this is more like God's way, and there will surely be a blessing.

9. "And they made a proclamation through Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in to the Lord the collection that Moses, the servant of God, laid upon Israel in the wilderness."

This is more fully stated in II Kings xii, 4, 5, and carries us back to Ex. xxx, 11-16, where all who were numbered were to give a half shekel as an offering unto the Lord to make an atonement for their souls, the rich not giving more and the poor not giving less than half a shekel.

10. "And all the princes and all the people rejoiced, and brought in and cast into the chest until they had made an end."

This pleased the Lord, for "God loveth a cheerful giver," and "if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not (II Cor. ix, 7; viii, 12).

11. "Thus they did, day by day, and gathered money in abundance."

As the chest was filled it was emptied, counted, put up in bags and set in its place again (II Kings, xii, 10). At the building of the tabernacle of Moses the money and material from the willing hearted offerers came in so abundantly that orders had to be issued to restrain the people from bringing, for they brought much more than enough (Ex. xxxvi, 6, 7).

12. "And the king and Jehoiada gave it to such as did the work of the service of the house of the Lord."

And they laid it out to the carpenters and builders, and to masons and hewers of stone, and to buy timber and hewed stone to repair the breaches of the house of the Lord (II Kings xii, 11, 12). They did not, like many nowadays, get the work done first and then look for the money to pay for it, but they first saw the wherewithal on hand and then went forward with the work. It does seem so unscriptural to have a debt upon any building dedicated to God, or to undertake any work for God without seeing how to pay for it.

13. "So the workmen wrought, and the work was perfected by them."

King, priest, people and workmen, all laborers together. So now every preacher, teacher, missionary, evangelist, or the humblest scholar who gives a penny to help send the gospel to others, are all laborers together in building up the great temple, the church or body of Christ, which shall in due time be perfected (Eph. ii, 19-22; I Cor. iii, 9). A strange thing is written concerning the overseers of this work to whom the money was given to pay the workmen, which is also written of others in the days of Josiah—viz., that they dealt so faithfully that no reckoning was kept with them (II Kings, xii, 15; xxii, 7).

"And they set the house of God in his state and strengthened it."

In the margin of the R. V. "His state" is "according to the proportion thereof." The Spirit had given David the plans for the temple (I Chron. xxviii, 12-19), and they now repaired it according to the design of the Spirit. When we by the Spirit act and speak according to His will we shall then glorify God.

14. "And when they had finished it they brought the rest of the money before the king and Jehoiada."

Why did they not use up all the money, or put in a bill for extras? What fools they would be in the eyes of many today! How easy to say that the work cost more than they expected! But see their faithfulness. The surplus was made into vessels of gold and silver for the house of the Lord. Let the surplus of wealthy Christains be devoted to sending forth vessels of mercy to the unsaved, and what joy such faithfulness would bring both in heaven and on earth!

"They offered burnt offerings in the house of the Lord continually all the days of Jehoiada."

This good priest lived to the extraordinary age of 130 years, but when he died there was a sad change in Judah, both on the part of the king and the people. See the rest of this chapter, and notice the idolatry, and the murder of the priest Zechariah, the son of Jehoiada, and also the murder of Joash, the king. How sad a termination to a reign that began so well! We are Christ's disciples, indeed, only if we continue in His word (John x, 27-29). If, on the other hand, we are only good because an older and wiser friend is controlling us then when we lose that friend we shall be apt to fall. Let us hide in Jesus, Rock of Ages, our Great High Priest, lean only on Him, trust Him fully, and all will be well.

MARSHALL'S HOOF CURE

cures sand and quarter cracks, split hoofs, sore and contracted feet, corns and all hoof troubles. Stops cracking, shelling and scaling hoofs. Softens and toughens brittle hoofs. It is better than soaking with oil, meal, etc. Should be used on all horses standing on hard floors or driven on hard roads. It also cures scratches, tetter, galls of all kinds, bruises, etc.

TOLEDO, O., April 6, 1891.
I had a horse in my stables that had hoofs so brittle that it was impossible to keep a shoe on his feet. I have used one can of Marshall's Hoof Cure on his hoofs and the horse has been shod for four weeks and the shoes stay on all right. I consider it the best hoof cure I have ever used.

RIDING ON THE RAIL.

The Pleasures of Traveling on an Electric Motor Street Car.

Business calling us to Adrian, one day last week, we took the early Jackson Branch train and arrived at the Lake Shore depot in that city without encountering any startling incident. A large delegation of Clinton people was on board, bound for the county seat to attend court as witnesses in the Payne will case. The street car was awaiting the arrival of the train as usual and it was soon filled with a cargo of the citizens of Northern Lenawee. Nearly, if not fully, twenty passengers were on board. They hustled around, went down into their vest pockets, got change from the conductor, and all dropped their nickels in the slot according to the rules in such case made and provided. The engineer then opened the break, turned on the electric current, and —— the car went backwards six inches and stopped. The pilot then turned the helm to starboard, and —— the vehicle went ahead three inches and stopped again. The fireman then turned on both the break and the electric current at the same time, and —— the coach stood still. He next turned off both the break and current simultaneously, —— with the same result. He then stepped out upon the Hotel platform and scrutinized the overhead wire. The wire was there all right. He stepped back into the car and carefully investigated the contribution box. That was all right too. It contained at least eighteen nickels—only two of which were bogus—and not a solitary button. He then took a carpet tack hammer and tested the car wheels. They were all right. Every wheel was on its axis, and in proper condition to revolve. He then examined the rails underneath the car. They were all right too.

The gripman then announced, in a voice trembling with emotion, that something "ailed the critter." What did the passengers do in this emergency? Did they heap words of kindness upon his head? Not much. Did they bedeck his manly brow with a chaplet of flowers? Nary chaplet. Did they anoint his pallid cheeks with the balm of Gilead? Not quite. On the contrary they began to pepper him with an unseemly fusilade of words. Some of their remarks were exceedingly discourteous and rattled the young man badly. "Pull down yer vest," "Trim yer mustache," "Wipe off yer chin," "Shingle yer top-knot," were a few of the epithets hurled at him.

Frank Lancaster allowed that it was worse than trying to make a four foot suit fit a six foot customer.

C. S. Burroughs: 'Tis as bad as chewing one's own gum.

Thomas Roper: 'Its as trying on a man's conscience as shaving an insurance agent.

Geo. Calhoun: I would rather trim blackberry bushes on the Kies fruit farm.

Merrill Estabrook: And I would sooner tend a potato patch down in Louisiana.

A. P. Halladay: Well, I would sooner serve as a Republican on the Board of Review in a Democratic town.

Robert Ellis: Laying cobble stone is easier work by half.

Will Muir: So is peddling ice on a May morning with the thermometer at freezing.

Ben Woodward: Or tinkering old teapots with soft solder.

Conductor Sackett: Its almost as big a nuisance as that squad of Tecumseh girls who ride on my train four times a day between the depot and Chicago street crossing.

F. L. C. X. Y. Z. Rising: I would as soon tote drummers' trunks up two flights of stairs at the Lilley House.

Walter C. Burridge: Managing a May party is'nt a circumstance.

At this juncture three Clinton men became impatient, basely deserted their comrades and set out for Adrian via the Walker line. Thereupon the driver began to show signs of desperation. He rolled up the wooden matting on the car floor, lifted a trap door, and wildly gazed down into the cog wheels beneath. But the car refused to budge a peg. Another squad of three Clinton men then left the vehicle and started down town. At this point it occurred to us that Rev. H. R. Williams, who was among the passengers, might be called upon to invoke the aid of Providence. We felt delicate, however, about making this suggestion to the conductor because our knowledge of electrical science is very limited; and the conductor himself never thought of it. It is wonderful how heedless high officials are sometimes in cases of emergency. Another squad of three deserted the craft. Thereupon the captain took a telescope from the tool-chest, dropped upon his knees in the center of the street and took a searching gaze underneath the car until his vision gathered in the switch engine in the depot yards, —but the car still stood still. Another squad then alighted. The first mate next examined the electrical cupboards over the doors and spit on the crank handle; all to no purpose. Another squad then left. The pilot here announced his opinion that the critter's rudder was disabled. This was the last feather. The few passengers remaining then solemnly left the hulk and wended their way Northward on Tecumseh street. We can never forget, to our dying day, the manager's woe-begone countenance as the last passenger disembarked. He looked as though he had just buried his mother-in-law. And no wonder. The young man was placed in an awfully awful situation. The passengers had paid their nickels like honest men. He couldn't refund their money, for the contribution box was locked, and the hostler down at the barn held the combination. He couldn't start the car, for Satan or some other evil disposed person had hypnotized it and there it stuck, as immovable as an orthodox mule team.

We have only a hazy recollection of how we got down town. On the corner of Maumee and Main streets we met Ex-Clerk Geo. W. Westerman and his son Walter, the attorney. To them we unfolded our tale of woe, and sought their legal advice. As George had not fully recovered from the Odd Fellows banquet on Monday evening, he begged leave to be excused, but assured us, as he dropped a big tear on the flag stone side walk, that we monopolized his heartfelt sympathy. Walter advised that we proceed without delay to the President's office and file a claim against the street car company for exemplary damages. This advice was accepted with gratitude, for contrary to the usage of the legal profession, he charged us no retainer fee. Accordingly we sallied down Main street, looked through the big plate glass window of Mark Chittenden's office, and found Mark NON EST. Not deeming it prudent to broach such important legal business to a subordinate, we stepped back into the Central Hotel, sat down in a big arm chair and ruminated. It was evident that something had got to be did. How should legal proceedings be instituted? and where? and when? Should the suit be commenced by capias, or attachment, or warrant, or simple summons? Should it be commenced before Justice Smith, or Judge Lane, or the County Coroners? For obvious reasons, we should repose the most confidence in Philander's justice. Should the suit be commenced at once, or not until after the Ohio election? A glance at the clock showed that train time was approaching and our final decision was necessarily deferred. We rushed down to Mulligan & Roesch's store for a new ad. which we did'nt get; thence to Stebbins' for another new ad. which we did get; thence to John Kinsel's where we purchased two sticks of braided molasses candy; thence to the depot. On the way up we encountered the same car, motored by the same young man, but it had the Wabash sign on. He evidently considered discretion the better part of valor and wisely kept the Lake Shore depot at a distance. We then learned that a box (of some kind), the sweat box, or swill box, or switch box, had burned out. We did'nt exactly catch the word, but it was some kind of a box. The mystery was thus unraveled, and we returned home greatly relieved.

A word in your ear, Mark! Send us a year's pass over your lines and we'll drop this delicate subject forever.

Orange Blossoms.

Last Thursday afternoon and evening the residence of Thomas Wyrill, on Pearl street, was the scene of a very enjoyable social event, at which time Mr. John Linton led to the marriage altar Miss Julia Wyrill. A beautiful floral arch was suspended from the ceiling in the southwest corner of the parlor and other floral decorations adorned the rooms. Promptly at six o'clock, the bride and groom, preceded by Mr. John Wyrill and Miss Anna Beland, were ushered into the parlor and took their place beneath the floral arch. Rev. J. S. Joslin then pronounced the words, briefly but yet most happily, which made the twain husband and wife. Congratulations followed from the large company present and then came a wedding luncheon, to which all did ample justice. The remainder of the evening was pleasantly passed in a social way. It was a happy, congenial company, and we venture to say that Mr. Wyrill's residence will not witness another such a house warming in some time. The wedded couple took the night train for Jackson, returning on Saturday.

The groom is a comparative stranger here, but he is a young man of excellent character and holds a good position in the handle factory. The bride has lived in Tecumseh all her life, is a member of the M. E. Church choir and is a favorite among her acquaintances. The large array of wedding gifts, both useful and ornamental, betokened the fact she had formed many warm friendships, not only among her youthful associates, but among those of maturer years. Over eighty guests were entertained, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Oliver, of Ridgeway, and Mrs. A. B. Hoyt, of Bellevue, Mich. The HERALD joins their many other friends in wishing the happy pair their full measure of health, wealth and prosperity.

While standing near the Saunders' mill last Monday, a team belonging to, and in charge of Welcome Wooster, of Woodstock, took fright at a passing train of cars and ran away. The horses, harness and wagon were alike injured but fortunately for the driver he escaped unhurt.—Addison Courier.

Alex. Richards of Raisin has received the appointment of deputy oil inspector for this district. This appointment could not possibly be bettered. Mr. Richards is abundantly qualified for the place and his appointment is a proper recognition of the farming element in this agricultural county. He will make a first-class official.

Memorial services were held last Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church. The large auditorium of the church was filled to its utmost capacity, and a very able discourse was delivered by Rev. Frank Arnold of the Baptist church. The major portion of the body slips was reserved for the organizations and these turned out in full numbers. Co. C. the G. A. R. Post, and the W. R. C. were all represented and the S. of V., were also in line. The music, under the direction of J. S. Strong, had been especially selected and prepared and added much to the interest of the services. This memorial occasion was never more fittingly observed since its first inception here in Tecumseh.

T. I. Sutton, of Sutton, was here Monday and had a streak of good luck all the way through. He had a little business with one of the banks, depositing $100, and was given a certificate for $1000. He went to a hardware store and handed out $10 on a bill, got back $5 and a receipt for $10. He had some dealings with a wood dealer, and was handed out a $5 bill for $1. He paid a small bill at this office and carefully examined his receipt for fear he had been given a promissory note, things had been going so much his way. T. I., however, discovered the mistakes and being a square Prohib straightened them all out on short order, but it isn't often that everything goes so much one way, right at the first of the week, anyhow.—Adrian Messenger.

G. W. Jackson has in his possession a newspaper relic which is worth preserving. It is a copy of the Adrian Daily Expositor of the date Oct. 25, 1862. S. P. Jermain and Co. were the publishers. It contains a large amount of war news, and also a full list of the premiums awarded at the county fair, held the fore part of that month. That time was in the height of the fall campaign of that year, and the paper has a long list of Republican meetings soon to be held. Among the speakers named in this list are Judge Beaman, Judge Beecher, C. M. Croswell, Royal Barnum, and Geo. Kingsley, all of whom have since passed to their final reward. The names of Andrew Howell and Thos. F. Moore also appear in this list. The paper will become more of a curiosity as the years go by.

The Young People of the M. E. Church held a very enjoyable social gathering last Tuesday evening at the residence of Fred Rosacrans. For two hours or more, the house was crowded to overflowing, and a merrier company one seldom sees. As it was regular drill night for Co. C. the boys marched up to Mr. Rosacrans' and were invited in doors, an invitation which was accepted with pleasure. Refreshments were served through the evening and about nine o'clock a musical program was presented. All who were present voted it a very enjoyable time. The program was announced by Mr. Tremaine, as follows:

Song—Miss Ella Fowler.
Inst. Solo—Miss Ella Jackson.
Song—Miss Dora Grayson.
Inst. Solo—Miss Maud Eccles.
Song—Miss Grace Heck.
Inst. Solo —Miss Nellie Anderson.
Vocal Duet—Misses Jackson and Grayson.
Quartette—Mrs. Jno. J. Orr and Misses Grayson, Jackson and Heck.

A SICKENING SIGHT.

The Rope Breaks at the Hanging of Albert Havenstine, and 5,000 People See Him Fall to the Ground Alive.

OMAHA, Neb., May 23.—A special to the Bee from Broken Bow says: Albert Havenstine, the murderer of William Ashley and Hiram Roten, was hanged at 1:30 o'clock p. m. When the trap was sprung Havenstine's body shot down 6 feet. There was a snap and a groan and the body fell to the ground. The rope had broken. Havenstine, half conscious, was at once picked up by the sheriff and his deputies and brought back on the gallows. The rope was doubled and the trap was again sprung. This time his neck was broken and death was apparently painless. Fully 5,000 people had gathered from the surrounding country, but in order to witness the hanging they were obliged to resort to mob violence. A stockade 16 feet high had been erected around the gallows just outside the jail. The crowd made a dash at the frail structure and in a twinkling it was completely torn down, exposing the gallows to view.

SET A DEATH TRAP.

A Michigan Man with a Spring Gun Kills the One Who Wrongs Him.

BAD AXE, Mich., May 21.—John Castle, a rich farmer of Grant township, this county, was shot by a spring gun while entering the yard of Walter Richards Tuesday night. Castle and Richards are neighbors, and of late stories have been circulated connecting Castle and Richards' young and pretty wife. These stories reached Richards and he quarreled with Castle and forbade him the house. Castle gave no heed to the order, and Tuesday night he was on his way to call on Richards, when he was shot. Castle bled to death in fifteen minutes, and did not make any statement. Investigation showed that Richards had set a gun in the path loaded with buckshot, and then attached a string and lever to the gate to shoot whoever came in. He said he was afraid of incendiaries. He is now in jail.

James Hunter, of Franklin, was the guest of H. E. Stout's family over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Woodward, of Battle Creek, are visiting at A. D. Hall's this week.

The big Union Picnic at Sand Lake has been definitely fixed for Saturday, June 13th.

A big storm left the Pacific coast yesterday and will be due in this longitude about next Saturday.

Misses Etta Coddington and Rhoda Benedict attended the teachers' institute at Adrian last Saturday.

When one young man meets another young man now, the first salutation is: Where did you get that collar?

Mr. J. H. Odor left last Saturday for Ann Arbor and will make that city his headquarters for the next few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Whelan of Detroit are spending the present week with Tecumseh and Franklin friends.

Prof. L. M. Kellogg was at Lansing two days last week, attending the state meeting of the school superintendents.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kies of Elkhart, who have been visiting in Tecumseh for a few days, returned home yesterday.

An excellent program has been prepared for Memorial day exercises next Saturday. So let everybody turn out and enjoy it.

Rev. W. H. Babbit, H. C. Conkling and E. Tindall have been and are attending the meetings of the Presbyterian Assembly at Detroit.

J. W. Wightman had the grippe last week. It settled in his throat and he could not speak aloud. Rather a bad fix for an attorney to be in.

M. P. Henry, who has been spending the past four weeks with his old Tecumseh friends, left last Tuesday for his home in Easton, Maryland.

There will be a special meeting of the Masonic blue lodge on Friday evening May 29th. Work in the third degree. A cordial invitation is extended to visitors.

Fifty dollars in cash premiums can be obtained by good canvassers with very little labor. For particulars, read Geo. G. Steketee's card on another page of this issue.

Mr. Dickinson has placed a neat wooden screen in front of his work bench in Hosmer's store, which is a very neat piece of workmanship. It was made at the Table Co's shops.

The seventh annual meeting of the Michigan Pioneer society will be held at Lansing next week Wednesday and Thursday, June 3 and 4. A lengthy and interesting program has been prepared for the meeting.

Eli Gray has just sheared his flock of Shropshire sheep and they averaged nine pounds of wool each. Manistee Chief, a two year old, sheared thirteen pounds. The forty three ewes of the flock raised fifty one lambs.

Roy DeWolf of Detroit was at home over Sunday.

Miss Nellie Rue, of Battle Creek, is the guest of Mrs. Abbie Fisher this week.

I. P. Keyser was home over Sunday. He has put out thirty-four acres of celery this spring.

The largest and handsomest merry go-round ever in this place is coming next week. It is run by steam and has a $400 organ.

W. M. Starr will please accept our thanks for a late copy of the Baxter Springs (Kan.) News. He is now a resident of that thriving city.

Mrs. Wheeler returned yesterday from Chicago, where she has been spending the winter with her son, Laverne, and intends to pass the summer at her old home here in Tecumseh.

The grammar and primary grades of the Tecumseh schools will give a concert at the Opera House, Friday evening, June 12th, under the direction of Miss Dora Grayson. Further particulars next week.

A change of time will take place in the Lake Shore time table June 24. The time has been postponed from June 7, as some foreign lines wish to make some changes and arrange for connections with this road.

Tecumseh tent K. O. T. M. had a house warming last Thursday evening. About twenty Adrian bretheren came over to assist in the initiation of a candidate. The ritual was gone through in a very creditable manner and the exercises closed with a banquet.

Wm. Sutton of Battle Creek, Edward Sutton of Philadelphia, David Sutton and Richard Sedgwick of Richmond, Ind. with their families, are visiting relatives in Raisin and Tecumseh a week or so. They were all entertained yesterday at a family party at N. M. Sutton's.

G. W. Jackson has moved his wagon shop into the building formerly occupied by Albert Hyde, Jr. on Railroad street, where he has much more convenient and commodious quarters. His friends are requested to remember his new location and also to favor him with their patronage as heretofore.

An Edison Phonograph is on exhibition at the Lilley House and the man in charge expects to remain about two days. People who have never seen one work should by all means avail themselves of this opportunity to converse with this wonderful talking machine. It is one of Edison's most remarkable inventions.

W. G. Blymyer, formerly of the Defiance (O.) Express, is now connected with the Tecumseh Herald, S. C. Stacy publisher. Mr. Blymyer is an old newspaper man and a thoroughly efficient one. He is a practical printer of many years' experience and he cannot but be of value to any paper obtaining his services.—Kellogg's Auxiliary.

That sterling farm newspaper, the Michigan Farmer, has caught the fever of improvement and donned a new spring suit. Every farmer's bookcase in the state should have a corner set apart for the files of the Michigan Farmer. It is one of the best farm journals in the west and seems to improve with every number. May it continue to wax strong and prosper.

Rev. S. E. Wishard D. D. formerly pastor of the Presbyterian church in Tecumseh, and at present Synodical Missionary in the Territory of Utah, will preach to his former people next Sabbath, May 31st, morning and night. The morning subject will be Home Missionary work in the west. At night he will speak on Utah and the Mormons. All are cordially invited.

Joe. Sage of Macon is selling the Keystone Woven Wire fence. What Joe. doesn't know about a fence is hardly worth knowing and he claims to control the best wire fence made. He has this portion of the county to work in and is prepared to answer all calls to put up wire fences, with promptness, and to string the fences with neatness and dispatch. Take our advice and call on Joe.

The Detroit Tribune appeared last Thursday enlarged to an eight page paper and attired in a new spring suit. The Tribune has improved wonderfully since the last change in management took place, and is now a paper which fitly represents the Republican party of Michigan. It has a good field to work in, and the paper as now conducted is abundantly able to cultivate it properly. The new Tribune will fill the bill.

During our visit at Dundee the other day we met Dr. John B. Haynes. The grippe has given him an unusual run of practice, and he has been so driven since New Years that he hardly had time to keep up his book accounts. Like most other doctors this spring he can say: It is an ill wind that blows no good to somebody. He is getting his share of official honors also, for he has been elected a member of the village council.

We were at Dundee the other day on a short business trip and while there called in to shake hands with our old friend, Mr. Gainsley. He is evidently taking the lead now in the dry goods trade in that town, has one of the best locations and a large stock of goods. The family occupy a pleasant home on Tecumseh street, and the whole establishment carries an air of contentment and prosperity. Geo. is now in Toledo, but the other boys are with him in the store.

The late refreshing rains did a world of good.

Now is a good time to put up your screen doors.

The lawns about the village present a beautiful appearance now.

A. J. Coddington of Toledo was in town last Sunday and Monday.

This week's issue of the HERALD is the first issue of the forty second volume.

The children will be happy next week for the merry-go-round is coming.

Mrs. J. W. Crane of Chicago, is visiting at the old home for about three weeks.

Mrs. H. S. Cheever of Ann Arbor is spending a few days among her old Tecumseh acquaintances.

The Tecumseh Kid band have been engaged to furnish music at the Union Picnic at Sand Lake on June 13th.

Our Dress Goods Sale has been a success, and as our stock is large we will add to our sale and continue another week. ANDERSON & Co.

The old City band have two jobs on hand Decoration Day. They will play at Clinton in the forenoon and at Tecumseh in the afternoon.

Lieutenant Byron L. Reed, of the revenue steamer Johnson, gave an interesting lecture at Raisin Valley Seminary Thursday evening, his subject being: "The United States Signal Service."

Miss Hattie Bassett, a sister of Mrs. Ed. Hollister, who has been visiting friends in Sarnia for several weeks, has returned. Fred Hall, a nephew, came back with her and will remain through the summer.

Some of our readers remark that moisture seems to evaporate with unusual rapidity this spring, and that crops generally are suffering in consequence. More rain appears to be the general necessity.

A salary with expenses paid will come handy to anyone who is now out of employment, especially where no previous experience is required to get the position. If you want a position, see advertisement headed, "A Chanee to Make Money."

G. P. Waring spent three hours in Tecumseh last Saturday, between two trains. He has sold about fourteen hundred lots in Harvey thus far and he has lots more just as good still on hand. The most desiroble locations, however, are going rapidly.

Parties from New York State will be in Tecumseh all of next week with a large, steam merry-go-round. They have rented the vacant lot east of the Union School building, on Shawnee st., and will have everything in running order next Monday afternoon.

The Union Picnic committee met at the HERALD office last Saturday evening and made good progress with their work. They will meet next Saturday evening at the same place. A full attendance is desired, as the program must be completed at that time.

Adamson Bros. have got their entire stock moved into their new quarters, but they are not yet settled. They find it no small task to move and clean house at the same time. Our reporter took a stroll down there last evening, and from what he saw it is evident that the boys will not get left on a nice store.

Frank Bryan, who is the path-master in the road district west of the village, came round about six o'clock this morning and ordered us out on the road to-day. It is rather tough on a printer to be asked to work his poll tax on press day. We will settle with Frank for this offense, later.

Pursuant to order given last week, a number of our wheelmen met at the Council Rooms last evening to organize a wheelmen's club. A. James was chosen chairman and Fred McNair, secretary. A committee of three, consisting of Fred Mc Nair, B. F. Steinhoff, and Geo. Field, was appointed to draft by-laws and report at another meeting. Adjourned until Thursday evening of next week.

Mrs. A. D. Lawrence, after an illness extending over several months, departed this life for a home above, yesterday morning. Her death has been expected for a long time. The funeral services will be held at the family residence tomorrow (Friday) afternoon, at four o'clock. Postmaster Lawrence will receive the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in his sore bereavement.

H. L. Jones has enlisted in the bicycle army. He has purchased an American Challenge Tandem, which is a double tricycle. It will be as handy as a family carriage to have about the premises. He and his wife can together enjoy a little out door recreation now whenever the spirit moves and the weather permits. When the wheelmen turn out for a parade hereafter the Jones tandem ought to lead the procession. It was purchased through Geo. Merritt's agency.

Improvements are the order of the day at the Lilley House. Arrangements are now in progress to put in a Smead closet crematory. The rear part of the store vacated by the jewelry stock of Adamson Bros., will be used for that purpose, and the necessary doors cut through the partitions into the hotel hall and office. This system has been tested in some large hotels and found to be both practicable and wholesome. It will be a great addition to the conveniences of the house.

It has been reliably ascertained that out of 185 cases of successful swindling throughout the state by traveling sharpers, in various ways, by which people of the rural districts were robbed, some to the extent of thousands of dollars, only nine or ten were subscribers or readers of the home country papers.

The TECUMSEH HERALD is to be congratulated. It is the happy possessor of a new spring suit, which becomes it with the grace of a sixteen-year-old. The HERALD is also to be congratulated on the fact that it has lived to the age of nearly three times sixteen, and is yet young, vivacious, and entertaining as ever. Long may it flourish.—Adrian Messenger.

A Flying Trip around the World, by Elizabeth Bisland, is announced for publication, May 26th, by Harper & Brothers. Miss Bisland's journey, it will be remembered, was one of the quickest on record, outdoing, by some four days, the famous performance of Jules Verne's hero. Her story of the experiences which were crowded within that brief period, no less than the marvellous feat itself, is but another illustration of the familiar saying that truth is more wonderful than fiction.

A NEW PARTY.

The Third National Political Organization Is Born.

The Cincinnati Conference Forms "The People's Party of the United States"—It Will Have a Candidate for President—The Platform.

WILL GO IT ALONE.

CINCINNATI, May 21.—"The People's Party of the United States of America" was born and christened yesterday afternoon. The great convention representing the farmers and workingmen of the United States has completed its work, the result being the certainty that a third party ticket will be in the field in 1892. After several speeches the report of the committee on platform was presented. It is as follows:

"1. That in view of the great social, industrial and economical revolution now dawning upon the civilized world and the new and living issues confronting the American people we believe that the time has arrived for a crystallization of the political reform forces of our country and the formation of what should be known as the 'People's Party of the United States of America.'

"2. That we most heartily indorse the demands of the platforms as adopted at St. Louis, Mo., in 1889, Ocala, Fla., in 1890, and Omaha, Neb., in 1891, by industrial organizations there represented, summarized as follows:

"(a) The right to make and issue money is a sovereign power to be maintained by the people for the common benefit, hence we demand the abolition of national banks as banks of issue, and as a substitute for national bank notes we demand that legal tender treasury notes be issued in sufficient volume to transact the business of the country on a cash basis, without damage or special advantage to any class or calling, such notes to be legal tender payment of all debts, public and private, and such notes, when demanded by the people, shall be loaned to them at not more than 2 per cent. per annum upon non perishable products, as indicated in the subtreasury plan, and also upon real estate, with proper limitation upon the quantity of land and amount of money.

"(b) We demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

"(c) We demand the passage of laws prohibiting alien ownership of land, and that congress take prompt action to devise some plan to obtain all lands now owned by alien and foreign syndicates, and that all lands held by railroads and other corporations in excess of such as is actually used and needed by them be reclaimed by the government and held for actual settlers only.

"(d) Believing in the doctrine of equal rights to all and special privilege to none, we demand that taxation—national, state or municipal—shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another.

"(e) We demand that all revenues—national, state or county—shall be limited to the necessary expenses of the government economically and honestly administered.

"(f) We demand a just and equitable system of graduated tax on income.

"(g) We demand the most rigid, honest and just national control and supervision of the means of public communication and transportation, and if this control and supervision does not remove the abuses now existing we demand the government ownership of such means of communication and transportation.

"(h) We demand the election of president, vice president and United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

"3. That we urge the united action of all progressive organizations in attending the conference called for February 22, 1892, by six of the leading reform organizations.

"4. That a national central committee be appointed by the conference, to be composed of a chairman to be elected by this body and of three members from each state represented, to be named by each state delegation.

"5. That this central committee shall represent this body, attend the national conference February 22, 1892, and if possible unite with that and all other reform organizations there assembled. If no satisfactory arrangement can be effected this committee shall call a national convention not later than June 1, 1892, for the purpose of nominating candidates for president and vice president.

"6. That the members of the central committee of each state where there is no independent political organization conduct an active system of political agitation in their respective states."

Additional resolutions were carried as follows:

"Resolved, That the question of universal suffrage be recommended to the favorable consideration of the various states and territories.

"Resolved, That while the party in power in 1869 pledged the faith of the nation to pay a debt in coin that had been contracted on a depreciated currency basis and payable in currency, thus adding nearly $1,000,000,000 to the burdens of the people, which meant gold for the bondholders and depreciated currency for the soldiers, and holding that the men who imperiled their lives to save the life of a nation should have been paid in money as good as that paid to the bondholder; we demand the issue of legal tender treasury notes in sufficient amount to make the pay of the soldiers equal to par with coin, or such other legislation as shall do equal and exact justice to the union soldiers of this country.

"Resolved, That as eight hours constitute a legal day's work for government employes in mechanical departments we believe this principle should be farther extended so as to apply to all corporations employing labor in the different states of the union.

"Resolved, That this conference condemns in unmeasured terms the action of the directors of the World's Columbian exposition on May 19 in refusing the minimum rate of wages asked for by the labor organizations of Chicago.

"Resolved, That the attorney general of the United States should make immediate provision to submit the act of March 2, 1889, providing for the opening of Oklahoma to homestead settlement, to the United States supreme court, so that the expensive and dilatory legislation now pending there be ended."

A national committee consisting of three members from the several states was appointed, and H. E Taubeneck, of Illinois, was chosen as chairman.

A few moments of confused preparation for adjournment sine die ensued, then the chairman's gavel fell and the first convention of the people's party of the United States had passed into history.

A Church Damaged by Fire.

CHICAGO, May 25.—Immanuel Baptist church, Michigan avenue and Twenty-third street, was damaged by fire at 9:30 Sunday morning to the extent of $45,000. One hundred children who had assembled in the Sunday-school room on the second floor in the rear of the church escaped without injury, but a panic was only averted by the skill and good management of the teachers. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a defective flue in the basement.

Over a Century Old.

BROOKLYN, May 23.—Mrs. Charlotte Smith celebrated her 101st birthday yesterday at the house of her granddaughter, Mrs. E. J. H. Stecher. There were five generations represented at the domestic gathering.

Ten Negro Convicts Killed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 23.—At the Pratt mines Friday an explosion of gas in a shaft where convicts are worked killed ten negro convicts and one free miner named Tom Moore.

A BANKER MISSING.

Flight of the President of a Busted Philadelphia Bank.

PHILADELPHIA, May 22.—A great sensation was created in financial circles when it became known Thursday afternoon that G. W. Marsh, president of the defunct Keystone national bank, had forfeited his bail and fled to parts unknown. The excitement was intensified an hour later, when a brief line was read in the common council of the city from City Treasurer Bardsley announcing his resignation of his office, to take effect on the 30th inst. The sensation was increased when the people read a statement in the morning papers in which Mr. Bardsley virtually confesses that he has embezzled $930,000, money belonging to the state, and announces his purpose to assign his property and such restitution as is in his power. Since the failure of the Keystone bank, in which Bardsley had on deposit $441,000 belonging to the city, he has confessed that he had deposited, in the same institution, in his own name and mixed up with his private account, all the state money he has collected, but he has persistently refused to tell the amount, until in his statement just issued he places the amount so lost at $930,000. As the statement of the bank shows no such amount of deposit to the credit of John Bardsley at the time of the failure, the inference is irresistible that Mr. Bardsley has drawn the money out and used it. In fact, as before stated, he has admitted that the state, funds were deposited to his private account in the bank.

Mr. Bardsley is responsible for the following sums: Due the state for taxes, $931,000; due the city for deposits in the Keystone bank, $441,000; due the city for deposits in the Spring Garden bank, $140,000; total, $1,512,000.

REVISION DELAYED.

The Question of Changing the Presbyterian Confession Postponed.

DETROIT, Mich., May 22.—The 103d annual meeting of the Presbyterian general assembly convened in this city yesterday. Rev. W. H. Green, of the Princeton theological seminary, was chosen moderator.

DETROIT, Mich., May 23. — In Friday's session of the Presbyterian general assembly, the report of the committee on revision of the confession of faith was read by the chairman, Rev. William C. Roberts, D. D., president of the Lake Forest university. The expected debate on the revision of the confession was no doubt closed for this year by the adoption of Dr. Hayes' motion that the report of the committee be sent down to the Presbyteries for criticisms, etc., during which the committee—continued at its request till next assembly—can then make its final report. President Patton, of Princeton, probably represented those who would have urged important modifications of the report if there had been any proposition that the assembly should adopt as its own the recommendations of the report before sending it down. He made the principal address urging that it be sent down without any adoption or indorsement.

CARRIED OVER THE FALLS.

Five Men Drowned While Crossing the Kettle River Near Sandstone, Minn.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 25.—A terrible accident occurred in the Kettle river near Sandstone, Minn., Saturday evening. A boatload of men were crossing the river at dark and ventured too near Kettle falls. The boat was caught in the rapids and whirled over the falls. Thomas Barney, of Chippewa Falls, and Charles A. McGraw, of Augusta, Me., both prominent lumbermen, and Swan Peterson were drowned. A boy named Whitesides and a man whose name could not be learned are missing and are probably drowned.

Much Valuable Lumber Burned.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., May 22.—News has reached here of the burning of $30,000 worth of pine logs at Deer park, an isolated point 60 miles from here. The logs were owned by C. H. Bradley & Son, Bay City.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 22.—The lumber stock of J. W. Day & Co., consisting of 19,000,000 feet, burned Thursday. The loss was $220,000, on which there was $112,000 insurance.

Trade Is Healthy.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade report that in most places business appears to be healthy, with no more than the usual complaint about collections. The iron trade is dull at Pittsburgh and Cleveland, but active at New York and Philadelphia. Crop reports are very satisfactory, the recent rains having been of inestimable value.

Voting Preachers Suspended.

ALLEGHENY CITY, Pa., May 25.—Seven ministers of the Reformed Presbyterian church have been suspended for voting at a political election, and Prof. McClurkin, of the Allegheny theological seminary, will present his protest against this action by resigning.

Shot by Mistake.

DUNNING, Neb., May 25.—Judge C. W. Aikens of this place, treasurer of Blaine county, while acting as custodian of a stock thief whom he had assisted in capturing was shot through the body at night by citizens, who, in the darkness, mistook him for a desperado.

Lived to Be 108 Years Old.

BERLIN, May 25.—In a Lithunian village in east Prussia a veteran named Kleinbauer has just died at the age of 108 years. He fought in all the Napoleonic wars. He retained his mind almost to the last and was fond of relating his experiences in the field.

Death of a Polish Poet.

WARSAW, May 23.—Count Johann Alexander Fedro, the Polish patriot and poet, died Friday at Siennawice, aged 62 years. Besides being renowned among his countrymen as a soldier and a poet, the count was a playwright of ability.

SWEPT BY WIND.

A Cyclone Passes Over a Portion of Missouri.

A Dozen or More Lives Lost and Many Persons Wounded—Houses and Barns Crushed to Pieces, Trees Uprooted and Live Stock Killed.

VICTIMS OF A STORM.

MEXICO, Mo., May 21.—A terrific tornado passed 3 miles northeast of this place at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, in the vicinity of Bean creek. So far as heard from fifteen houses in the vicinity of that place were destroyed, about ten or twelve persons killed, an equal number fatally injured and large numbers badly hurt.

CENTRALIA, Mo., May 21.—A funnel-shaped cyclone one-half mile wide passed a mile north of this place Wednesday. Fifteen or twenty dwellings were totally destroyed by it and many persons were injured, some fatally. Barns and fences were swept away, chickens, hogs and stock killed in large numbers and a number of large trees torn up by the roots.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 21.—At 2 p. m. Wednesday a cyclone wrecked the telegraph lines of the Chicago & Alton and also those of the Wabash at Centralia, Mo. At 3 p. m. another cyclone swept across the Chicago & Alton at Laddonia, again completely cutting off communication. At both points great damage was done to houses, barns and trees, and at Laddonia at least many people were injured and some are reported killed. Owing to prostration of the wire further particulars are not obtainable here.

BENTON, Ill., May 21.—A hail and windstorm passed over this place Wednesday afternoon, doing thousands of dollars worth of damage. The hail was the heaviest ever known here. From reports so far received the wheat and strawberry crops, which a few hours ago were worth thousands of dollars, are utterly ruined. Peaches will yield one-third of a crop and the apples are one-half destroyed. Other crops are badly damaged, but to what extent cannot be told as yet. If the damage is as heavy in the surrounding country as near this place the loss to this county alone will reach $500,000.

CRESTON, Ia., May 21.—A small cyclone passed from west to east about 4 miles south of this city Wednesday morning, unroofing houses and barns and destroying shade trees and fences. Many unroofed buildings were flooded with water during the heavy rainstorm that followed, but no fatalities have been reported.

ST. LOUIS, May 22.—A special from Morely, Mo., says: A most destructive wind, rain and hailstorm passed over this place Wednesday. Hailstones as large as eggs fell, completely demolishing crops of every description. The wind blew a perfect tornado. The rain fell in such quantities as to completely inundate fields, drowning small stock. During the storm, which lasted about an hour, the darkness was appalling. It is believed the damage in this vicinity will reach $300,000. Fortunately no lives were lost. All telegraph wires were torn down.

EMPORIA, Kan., May 22.—A terrific wind and rainstorm visited this city and vicinity late Wednesday evening. A great deal of damage has been done to crops, buildings and fences. The storm seems to have been worse a few miles south of here. On the farm owned by Dr. McCloudless, of this city, the house occupied by R. L. Dain was completely demolished. One of Mr. Dain's daughters was fatally crushed. Another daughter is seriously hurt. Everything about the place is blown to fragments.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., May 23.—A heavy windstorm passed over a section of country 25 miles north of this place, wrecking houses and barns and devastating fruit orchards.

MUNCIE, Ind., May 23.—A severe wind and hailstorm passed over this city Friday afternoon, doing thousands of dollars of damage. Cherry, pear, plum and peach trees were entirely stripped. Quite a number of houses were unroofed, and hundreds of dollars' worth of window glass was destroyed.

Killed His Bride and Then Himself.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Frank Turke, a shoemaker at Englewood, N. J., murdered his wife at that place Friday evening and then fatally wounded himself, dying an hour later. Turke was married but two weeks ago to the woman he killed. His first wife died but four weeks ago, and he brought the murdered woman there forty-eight hours afterwards to assume charge of his household affairs.

Crushed by the Cars.

WATSEKA, Ill., May 25.—Three young men hailing from Hamilton, O., who were stealing a ride on a Chicago & Eastern Illinois freight Saturday night in a box-car filled with lumber, were crushed while the train was switching at this place. Their names were Hofmeier, Bisdorf and Eldridge. Hofmeier was killed, Bifdorf is dying, and it is doubted whether Eldridge can survive.

Mormon Church Members.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—A statement issued by the census bureau shows the members of the Mormon church in the United States to be 144,352, of which 117,629 are in Utah, 14,805 in Idaho, 1,912 in Wyoming, 1,629 in Colorado and the remainder scattered through nearly twenty states.

Flames in a Prison.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 25.—A fire broke out in the J. S. Sullivan Saddletree Company's shop at the state penitentiary Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, and in an hour the state had lost nearly $100,000, the Saddletree company $60,000, and the Strauss Harness Company about $10,000.

Deputies Acquitted of Murder.

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 25.—The jury in the case of Capt. Loar and deputies, charged with murder at the Morewood riots, after deliberating five hours, returned a verdict acquitting all the defendants.

The Eloquent Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago, Does Suffering Humanity a Great Service by Telling His Experience with a Great Family Medicine. Read:

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure would develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability. "Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's Lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way.

"Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used.

"One of my sons, who has long been a sufferer from Catarrh, has received like signal relief from this old enemy. P. S. HENSON.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

ESTATE OF ORRIN HISCOCK.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Saturday, the 9th day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one

Present, Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Orrin Hiscock, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Fred'k B. Wood, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and that he is now ready to close said estate and to render his final administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that he may be discharged and his bond canceled, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 8th day of June next, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

(A True Copy.)
RICHARD B. ROBBINS, Judge of Probate.

SOME MORE TALK ABOUT MONEY.

It seems Z. N. Allen is not satisfied with my previous definition of money, and calls me to account for what I say in STOCKMAN of April 9. I still maintain my position, however, and will more clearly define my views.

Money, a circulating medium, has at least two values, and ought always to have three. (1) Legal, (2) exchange (3) relative. In my article of March 12 I noticed the legal and representative values. Mr. Allen finds fault with the definition of the legal value, and wholly ignores the sentence following, "Its value relative to commodities rises and falls according to the supply [volume in use] and the stability of the creating sovereign." I said, "The value of money is legal not material, and does not change, save by act of the sovereign will by which it was created." I say so still. Judge Tiffany, in his "Government and Constitutional Law," sec. 402, says the same thing. You will find the same in 12 Wallace pp. 548, 549, 552 and 553.

The Law of the United States of April 2, 1792, made 27 grains of gold, 11-12 fine, equal to 412 1-2 grains of standard silver, each one dollar, and the money of account throughout the United States. It so remained till June 28, 1834, when Congress, by its sovereign power, declared 25.8 grains of gold, 9-10 fine, equal to 412 1-2 grains standard silver, and each to be one dollar and the money of account. Here was a change in the sovereign will making 27 grains gold, 11-12 fine, equal to 25.8 grains, 9-10 fine. But the legal value was the same, and each filled exactly the same office. Allen's cited case of the greenback is just the same. The law called the greenbacks money for all debts public and private, except duties on imports and interest on the public debt. It never depreciated for what it was—money. One dollar of greenbacks paid one hundred cents in every case where it was money, and certainly one dollar of gold or silver did no more. The legal value never changes, except by act of the sovereign will.

Thad. Stevens, of your own state, Cong. Globe, p. 900, said that if Congress put the exception clause upon the greenback, and made duties on imports and interest on the public debt payable in gold, the holders of gold, the philanthropic and patriotic(?) bankers, would set their own price upon their gold for those purposes, to the injury of the people and discredit of the nation, and they did it. Wm. Pitt Fessenden, Secretary of Treasury, Financial Report 1864-5, says: "It is quite apparent that the solution of the problem [the rise and fall of gold compared with greenbacks and the commodities of the country] may be found in the unpatriotic and criminal efforts of speculators to raise the price of coin regardless of the injury of the country."

Did the treasury notes, made legal tender for all debts public and private without any exception, ever depreciate as compared with gold? You may say they were payable on demand in gold or silver, but the government as well as the banks had suspended specie payment, which left them on par with greenbacks save the exception clause. And did not the "patriotic and honorable" bankers refuse the same demand notes before they were made legal tender by act subsequent to their issue till Secretary Chase ordered them to be received in payment of duties on imports, when they immediately went to par with gold and remained there?

So much for legal value of money. Now about your hypothetical case of bullion. Mr Hixon or any one else who would go to speculating in the commodities out of which money is made by law would at the present time under the existing conditions of things lose as you say. But what has that to do with our money, save to illustrate the danger of making any commodity the basis of money? The people do not want bullion, but money, and gold or silver stamped by the government and put on the same legal basis will perform exactly the same office regardless of bullion value, except in payment of the balance of trade with foreign nations when it is against us—a thing we suppose Mr. Allen does not desire. Besides we can not afford to jeopardize the interests of our producing classes and the stability of our government for the sake of a little balance of trade with foreign nations. Give us a proper amount of money and we will never lack for gold to pay for foreign goods when needed.

The volume of money in use principally determines its relative value. When the volume is small a dollar buys more of the products of labor but pays no more debt than when the volume is large; hence the owners of money and creditors are benefited by keeping the volume small, as they do not produce anything or labor for dollars. Human nature is about the only constant factor in the whole social and economic problem. That a conspiracy on the part of the aristocracies and capitalists to demonetize silver existed is proved by the reasonableness of the thing, the highest ground for belief. When the volume of gold and silver was within their control no effort was made to demonetize it, but when gold was discovered in California, Australia and elsewhere in such quantities as to excite their alarm, the question was, "What should be done?" Some nations more excitable than others hastened to demonetize gold. But the amount discovered was not so great as anticipated, and it was remonetized. Subsequent discoveries of silver induced the demonetization of that metal. The idea of making money of paper redeemable in gold was developed more fully, and placed the wealth of the nations and the labor and prosperity of peoples in the hands of the owners of the base, which better suited their purposes. The effect is so well known, and the cause so clearly evident, and the power so revealed, that conspiracy or agreement is axiomatic.

I have nothing to say concerning a vast number of bankers who are perfect gentlemen, and would not say anything against their personal character; but they are not the ones we speak of as controlling affairs. It is a system and its possibilities that we war against, not men. I may say something about government loans and interest at another time.—H. F. HIXON, in National Stockman.

It speaks for itself is what a lady said of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup the other day. A single bottle had cured her child of a most dreadful cough. It never fails to give speedy relief and permanent cure.

The man who lives continually on good terms with himself is not causing the devil much uneasiness.

"He is well paid that is well satisfied." This is what a happy man up-town said when he threw away his empty bottle after he had cured his cold with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the favorite.

CARPET PRICES.

"McKinley Prices" Still Prevail For Brussels Carpets—McKinley's Duty on Wool the Cause—A Piece of Stupid Protection.

The protectionist papers have recently been trying to make it appear that no prices have been raised by the McKinley tariff law. They even claim that the "free trade papers" have abandoned the cry of "McKinley prices" and thus practically confessed that the whole thing was from the first a humbug, gotten up last fall to influence the election.

Whatever the "free trade papers" may leave unsaid, however, the trade papers are supplying. These journals are devoted to business and not to politics, but they still print facts which show that "McKinley prices" have not yet disappeared. One of these journals, the New York Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review, has recently had something to say on the subject of the increased prices of Brussels carpets. This paper represents the interest of American carpet manufacturers, and as such is a supporter of protection. What it says therefore is free from the suspicion of being "in the interest of foreign manufacturers" or as being "an attempt to break down American industries."

Here is what the Review says:

Brussels manufacturers have been as firm as a rock on prices this season, for the reason that it is the only salvation for their business. Buyers may think the advance on Brussels is abnormal, but such is not the case. The increased duty and cost of wool on the other side will foot up considerably more than the advance, as computation will quickly show. The advance on carpeting was compulsory and not in the nature of an attempt to get extra profit, and it is more perceptible on Brussels owing to the fine quality and large quantity of wool used in the goods.

The Review is entirely right in saying that this advance was compulsory. The old duty on the better class of carpet wools was 5 cents a pound, which was equal to 30 per cent.; the McKinley duty is 50 per cent. ad valorem.

Mr. George D. Bromley, a prominent carpet manufacturer of Philadelphia, has been recently interviewed on this subject. McKinley having raised the duties on carpets to compensate the manufacturers, as he said, for the increased duties on wool, Mr. Bromley was asked whether the McKinley law had helped the carpet manufacturers. His answer was as follows:

We have have not been benefited directly by the present tariff, as it has necessitated an advance on carpets. Indirectly we may possibly be benefited, as there may be more of a demand for carpets as business generally improves, but only in this way can we expect any benefited. The advance on carpet wools has lessened importations and made it hard for carpet manufacturers to obtain supplies. The only way to do with carpet wools is to let them come in free of duty.

The absurdity of the duty on carpet wools is that we do not produce this grade of wool, except to a very limited extent. The increased protection concerns only a few ranchmen and Mexican herdsmen in the far southwest. Americans who find it profitable to raise wool at all confine their attention to the higher grades of wool, worth 25 to 35 cents a pound. They would be great fools to abandon the raising of wool of this kind and take up a breed of sheep producing wool worth only 15 cents a pound or less.

Yet it is precisely this latter kind of wool which forms the bulk of our imports. We imported 81,000,000 pounds of it last year, against only 24,000,000 pounds of the finer grades of wool.

THE "FARMERS' TARIFF."

Exports and Imports of Farm Produce—McKinley Duties to Humbug Farmers—Enormous Exports Make Duties on Farm Products Worthless—Figures For Farmers Who Think.

The pretense that our farmers derive any substantial benefit from the duties on farm products is one of those cheapest tricks of the protectionists. A few cold facts and figures will expose the shallowness of this attempt to gull the farmers.

Uncle Jerry Rusk, the secretary of agriculture, applauded the increase of the duties on farm products. He referred to the increased prices prevailing for many farm products, and was so simple as to claim that the McKinley duties had something to do with raising prices. Pointing to these higher prices, he said with confident simplicity: "It is impossible not to see the beneficial influence of the tariff protection awarded the farmer under the present law." He also professed to see that the "wise, economic legislation already secured hold out still brighter promise for the future."

But how can any possible duties on farm products help the farmer? We send out of the country every year millions of dollars' worth of those products over and above what we import. How can duties in such cases affect the price of the home product? Do the McKinleyites take the farmer to be such a fool as not to be able to draw this evident conclusion from the treasury reports of our trade?

The farmer needs only to know what is in those reports, needs only to know the figures showing our imports and exports of farm produce in order to understand what an ill-disguised humbug McKinley's so-called "farmers' tariff" is.

Here is a statement of our imports and exports of the products for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1890, together with the old duty and the McKinley duty in each:

Barley—Old duty 10 cents a bushel, McKinley duty 30 cents; imports, 11,330,000 bushels; exports, 1,400,000 bushels.

Corn—Old duty 10 cents, McKinley duty 15 cents; imports, 1,626 bushels; exports, 101,900,000 bushels.

Oats—Old duty 10 cents, McKinley duty 15 cents; imports, 21,000 bushels; exports, 13,690,000 bushels.

Oat Meal—Old duty a half cent per pound, McKinley duty 1 cent per pound; imports, 2,360,000 pounds; exports, 25,460,000 pounds.

Wheat—Old duty 20 cents a bushel, McKinley duty 25 cents a bushel; imports, 157,000 bushels; exports, 54,380,000 bushels.

Flour—Old duty 20 per cent., McKinley duty 25 per cent.; imports, 1,219 barrels; exports, 12,231,000 barrels.

Hay—Old duty $2 per ton, McKinley duty $4; imports, 124,000 tons; exports, 36,000 tons.

Hops—Old duty 8 cents per pound, McKinley duty 15 cents; imports, 6,539,000 pounds; exports, 7,540,000 pounds (in 1889, imports, 4,000,000 pounds; exports, 12,500,000 pounds).

Potatoes—Old duty 15 cents per bushel, McKinley duty 25 cents; imports, 3,415,000 bushels; exports, 406,000 bushels.

Apples—Old duty none, McKinley duty 25 cents per bushel; imports, none reported; exports, 453,000 barrels.

Dried apples—Old duty none, McKinley duty 2 cents a pound; imports, none reported; exports, 20,800,000 pounds.

Butter—Old duty 4 cents per pound, McKinley duty 6 cents; imports, 75,523 pounds; exports, 29,748,042 pounds.

Cheese—Old duty 4 cents per pound, McKinley duty 6 cents; imports, 9,263,578 pounds; exports, 95,376,053 pounds.

Eggs—Old duty none, McKinley duty 5 cents per dozen; imports, $2,074,000; exports, $58,000.

Bacon—Old duty 2 cents, McKinley duty 5 cents; imports, too insignificant to get into the treasury reports, but all "meat products" were about $600,000 worth; exports, 531,899,000 pounds.

Hams—Old duty 2 cents, McKinley duty 5 cents; imports, none reported; exports, 76,591,000 pounds.

Beef—Old duty 1 cent, McKinley duty 2 cents; imports, none reported; exports, 353,500,000 pounds.

Mutton—Same duties as beef; imports, none reported, exports, 256,000 pounds.

Tallow—Old duty and McKinley duty 1 cent per pound; imports, none reported; exports, 112,000,000 pounds.

Pork (fresh and pickled)—Same duties as beef; imports, none reported; exports, 80,000,000 pounds.

Lard—Old duty 2 cents, McKinley duty 2 cents; imports, none reported; exports, 471,000,000 pounds.

In only four products did imports exceed exports. These were barley, hay, potatoes and eggs, neither one of which can ever become a product of general interest to all farmers. Moreover, if it can be shown that the tariff on these products raises the price to our producers, it must be remembered that many farmers are themselves buyers of some of these articles. This is especially true of potatoes, since the potatoes grown in a more northern climate are always best suited for planting or seed.

In this way the farmers in the south use northern grown seed almost entirely; and many northern farmers get their seed potatoes from Canada.

Eggs are a product in which only a limited number of farmers along the Canada border need fear competition. Eggs can never become a subject of deep interest to the farmers; the business is too small an industry.

The imports of hay are too insignificant to effect the prices of our home product; and barley is a crop in which our farmers as a whole have but little interest.

McKinley's "farmers' tariff" is an open, undisguised attempt to deceive. The great outward flow of farm produce makes McKinley's duties on these commodities extremely ridiculous, and to suppose the farmers are going to be deceived by this is to credit them with a very small measure of intelligence.

The Latest Freak of McKinleyism.

The copyright law, which was passed by congress just before adjournment, contains one provision more extreme in the line of protection than anything in the wild measure known as the McKinley tariff law.

In the tariff law only two things are absolutely prohibited from coming into the country. These are obscene books and pictures and drugs or instruments for producing abortion.

The prohibition of these is, of course, proper enough; but now the copyright law adds another to the list of prohibited articles. What is this which, of all things in the world, is selected to go in the same class with obscene books and pictures and drugs and instruments for producing abortion?

English books! In granting the English author the benefit of copyright in the United States the McKinleyites compel him to have his book printed in the United States from types set in the United States or from plates made in the United States from types set in the United States! The only exception to this Chinese rule is that any person may import one or two copies of an English book for his own use. All copyrighted English books less than twenty years old are absolutely prohibited from importation for purposes of sale. They stand with things obscene and immoral.

This wild freak of the McKinleyites was opposed by so sturdy a protectionist as Senator John Sherman. His amendment allowing the importation of copyrighted books upon payment of the McKinley duty of twenty-eight per cent. was passed by the senate but was rejected by the rabid McKinleyites of the House, and Senator Sherman for this reason voted against the bill.

Obscene books, immoral drugs and implements, copyrighted English books—what a classification!

—The agricultural department has issued its bulletin showing the number of sheep in the country on January 1, 1891. The total number is 43,431,136, showing a decrease from 1890 of 904,936. As there was an increase of 1,736,993 on January 1, 1890, as compared with January 1, 1889, the result is very discouraging to the advocates of high duties on wool. There are 7,195,490 fewer sheep in the country than there were in 1884. This loss has been attributed to the reduction of the tariff of 1883. That the gain in 1889 under the tariff of '83 should be followed by a relapse in 1890 disturbs all the calculations of the protectionist prophets. The sheep growers who refuse to respond to more tariff with more sheep are guilty of rank ingratitude.—Philadelphia Record.

Too much for the McKinley Whistle.

The New York Merchants' Review gives a good illustration of what protection costs. This is in California raisins and prunes. That state produced last year $2,990,000 worth of raisin and $1,595,000 worth of prunes—total, $4,585,000. The McKinley duties on raisins and prunes on last year's imports would have amounted to $2,858,000, which is the sum we must now pay in order to get $4,585,000 worth produced at home at McKinley prices.

Clinton Column.

CLINTON, MICH., MAY 28, 1891

W. J. Kies, of Elkhart, was here Monday.

D. H. Davis is home from Chicago this week.

C. S. Burroughs visited the County seat Wednesday.

Miss Meme Bradner, of Manchester, was in town Tuesday.

E. F. Muir returned from Eaton Rapids the first of the week.

Ned Newcomb, of Brooklyn, was here from Saturday until Monday.

There will be no evening service at St. John's church for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton, of Detroit, are spending a few days here.

Mrs. C. S. Burroughs and Mrs. Hattie Johnston spent last Friday in Manchester.

Service at the M. E. Church was conducted Sunday by Presiding Elder Joslin.

Mrs. Maggie Mulligan, of Newark, N. J., is visiting relatives in and about Clinton.

Mrs. Newcomb, of Brooklyn, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. T. Clark, this week.

Mrs. Franc Hollenbeck, of Perrysburg, Ohio, is the guest of her sister, Miss Augusta Bruce.

E. W. Freese & Son have secured the services of Mr. Hynd, of Chelsea, as clerk in their store.

Several G. A. R. members went from here to the Memorial service at Tecumseh Sunday evening.

Mrs. James Walker is visiting friends in this vicinity. Mr. and Mrs. Walker's home is now in Muskegon.

Miss Anna Kirchgessner went to Tecumseh Monday to assume her duties as clerk in her brother's store.

William Kirk, of Iron Creek, died very suddenly last Saturday of heart disease. The funeral was held Monday.

Miss Lina Jones has been absent from Freese's store for several days. She visited friends in Manchester last week.

George T. Clark has decided to sever his business relations with Clinton and will sell goods at cost for the next sixty days.

Mrs. Helen Rowland, who has been spending a few weeks with relatives here, left last Friday for her home in Caro.

Andrew McFaul was in town over Sunday. Mrs. McFaul and children left Tuesday for Detroit, their future home.

A contract has been made with Robert Redick to run a street sprinkler here this summer and he commenced work Monday.

All those who will contribute flowers for decoration are requested to bring them to the Town Hall at 7:30 a. m., May 30th.

The verdict in the Payne-Updike suit, which has been on trial in the Circuit Court, was given Tuesday in favor of the defendant.

E. T. VanDeMark has suspended a fine new sign across Chicago street, advertising the Burrough's Hoof and Healing Ointment.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Reeves have been moving into part of Sylvanus Howell's house. Mr. Reeves expects to go on the road this summer.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry returned the first of the week from Bowling Green, Ohio, where they had been to attend the funeral of Mrs. Perry's sister.

The ladies of St. John's church will hold their next social at the residence of Mrs. C. S. Burroughs, Thursday afternoon, June 4th. All are cordially invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram Reeves are expecting their granddaughter from Grand Rapids in a short time, to remain with them indefinitely. Mrs. Reeves' health is very poor.

Memorial services will be held at the Baptist church Sunday evening, May 31st. All members of the G. A. R. and old soldiers will meet at Bainbridge & Hause's store at 6:30 p. m.

The Woolen Mill will not be closed for Decoration Day, according to the usual custom, but will run until the regular time of closing and will not open until the machinery in the new part is all in place. It will probably take about two weeks.

Miss Emma McCollum, who has been studying in the medical department at the University, has obtained a position in the hospital of the Coldwater State School. She will go there soon after her graduation in June. Miss McCollum's efforts toward obtaining her medical education have been most praiseworthy and her many friends will rejoice to hear of her good fortune.

Mr. Clint. Walters received a telegram Sunday morning announcing the death of his daughter Octavine, who has been at Columbus, Ohio, for several weeks, taking medical treatment for rheumatism. Mr. Walters left Monday morning for that place, returning Tuesday night. The funeral was held Wednesday, at 2 p. m., at the Congregational church.

All members of the G. A. R. and old soldiers will meet at the Town Hall at 9 a. m., May 30th. The procession will form in front of Hall at 9:30, headed by Tecumseh Cornet Band, and will march to the cemetery, where the following program will be given.

Song—Choir.
Prayer—Rev. J. Ward Stone.
Address—Rev. H. R. Williams.
Reading—Mrs. Genevieve Burroughs.
Selection—Tecumseh Band.
Address—Rev. Stalker.
Song—Choir.
Benediction—Rev. Wastell.

The undersigned wishes all persons owning lots in the Clinton cemetery to mow them or have them mowed, as we are trying to get it in a condition to compare favorably with the cemeteries in other towns. Those who are unable to care for their own lots may call at the store and I will see that the work is done. F. D. LANCASTER, Sexton.

Around the County.

Blissfield will have a big game of base ball on Decoration Day.

Hudson will observe Decoration Day this year on Sunday afternoon, May 31st.

Clinton is putting on metropolitan airs. She will have a street sprinkler hereafter.

The Blissfield canning factory is materializing very perceptibly, the main building being nearly completed.

Carl Burton, of Clinton, who has been spending the winter in Philadelphia, is about to take a two months' trip to Europe.

The Hudson cheese factory is turning out fifteen cheese a day. April cheese sold so as to net the patrons one dollar per hundred pounds of milk.

Two Hillsdale ladies were riding near the cemetery, when the horse shied and the buggy struck a post, overturning it. The ladies were considerably bruised.

The man with the iron jaw and steel muscles gave a street exhibition Wednesday evening. No, it wasn't the Advance publisher.—Blissfield Advance.

Will Todd, formerly of Adrian, has leased the Jackson opera house. Lenawee county young men usually manage to have a show when they leave home.

Several of the new looms received last week by the Clinton Woolen Mill were broken on the way and the railroad company will have to make good the loss.

Stick to your flannels until the warm weather becomes a settled fact. A cold spell every few days, for a person wearing summer clothing, means a dose of the grippe.

The Addison Courier says: "The cow has begun to supply the town with butter again." If one cow can supply Addison she must be a good one, or else the citizens spread their bread mighty thin.—Hudson Post.

A few days ago, while digging a grave in Maplegrove cemetery, the workmen found, at a depth of four feet and a half, a pair of bullet moulds, and the earth about them resembled ashes. Evidently they were Indian relics.—Hudson Post.

The people of Tecumseh and Macon have been buying kerosene and gasoline for the past week for six cents a gallon, owing to the fact that the Standard Oil Co. are trying to freeze out another oil company. Clinton, evidently is not in luck this time.—Clinton Local.

D. Woodward has examined his fruit trees and finds that the late frosts have been a benefit rather than a damage to him. His strawberries escaped the frost entirely, as the straw caught fire about two weeks ago, and burned them up, slick and clean.—Clinton Local.

The Free Methodists will conduct a camp meeting for one week, commencing June 17, on the Robt. Street farm, one mile east of Lenawee Junction. Huckstering will not be allowed on the grounds. A. B. Matthewson, pastor of the Free Methodist church, Holloway, will be in charge.

The Recreation Park Hotel at Sand Lake will have a grand opening on Friday, May 29th, 1891. The Brooklyn cornet band has been engaged for the day. Games and races will also be leading attractions, and in the evening a grand dance will be given. Baker & Smith's orchestra will furnish the music.

The veteran showman, A. O. Miller, and his family will appear at Carpenter's Hall, Saturday evening, May 30th, in that famous old play, "Rip Van Winkle." This familiar drama has not been produced in Blissfield for many years and it will now undoubtedly be well patronized by our citizens and our neighbors. Admission as usual.—Blissfield Advance.

The kerosene war at Tecumseh having brought the price of oil to six cents per gallon, the News believes that something could still be saved by keeping the lamps burning and sparing the matches. That is not all that would be gained; there is another end to be kept in view—the saving of clothing, otherwise worn by the friction of the match.—Adrian Press.

Seth W. Lyon drove over to the residence of his grandfather, the celebrated centenarian, Uncle John Brooks, of Waldron, last Saturday, and reports the old gentleman very feeble. He momentarily drops into sleep while sitting in his chair, and is losing his mind almost entirely. He is undoubtedly the oldest white person in the state—will be 105 on the 18th of June next. His history has often been published since his 100th anniversary.—Hudson Gazette.

Prof. Hathaway's pupils on the East Side have given him some valuable "pointers" on the question, "How shall we obtain apparatus for public schools?" which he is to discuss at the Lenawee Institute to-morrow. Their answer, as indicated by their own achievements, is briefly but positively, "make it." They have manufactured several pieces of electrical apparatus in the past few days and done the work well, and saved $10 or $15 by their enterprise and ingenuity.—Hudson Gazettee.

Our newly-dressed contemporary, the Tecumseh Herald, compliments the 19th volume of the PRESS with good words, which are "like apples of gold in pictures of silver." It also inquires whether the editor will mingle jokes with justice, hereafter. Can't do it, dear Scovel; don't hope for it. In the case of a brother editor gladly would we permit Mercy to touch the scale with her downy hand and turn the balance on the gentler side. But duty will compel us to enforce the "horizontal tariff." Terms: $0.25, invariably in advance, or 30 days. With us as J. of P., all sentiment has fled and the heart of justice is a stone.—Adrian Press.

The postmaster general is determined to put a quietus upon the lottery business, so far as its operations through the mails are concerned. A notice has accordingly been issued from the department, copies of which will be found posted conspicuously in every postoffice, calling attention to the fact that a law lately enacted, prescribing penalties for using the mails for the transmission of lottery matter of any kind, applies as well to the person mailing money, money orders, postal notes, or drafts, to lottery companies or their agents, as it does to the lottery companies or their agents. All persons are therefore warned not to use the mails for such purposes.

Society is what people are when they think they are watched.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by seventy-one observers in different parts of the state for the week ended May 16 indicated that inflammation of the brain, diphtheria, membranous croup, cholera infantum and neuralgia increased, and typho-malaria fever and erysipelas decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at seventeen places, scarlet fever at twenty-eight, typhoid fever at ten and measles at forty-six places.

The Muskegon Fire.

Insurance adjusters were settling losses occasioned by the great fire at Muskegon. The insurance foots up to $370,000. The loss would not fall short of $500,000. The Morning News is custodian of a relief fund and subscriptions were coming in generously. There would be some suffering, but wants would be relieved as rapidly as possible. There were 275 buildings burned and the homeless number about 1,200.

His First Offense.

Fred Skelton, a farm hand near Milford, was arrested by Marshal Van Buren for making and passing counterfeit silver dollars. Skelton says he got the counterfeiting idea from reading sensational papers. He used putty molds and had made only five coins. Two of them had been passed on local merchants, but he was detected in passing the third. This was his first offense.

Fire at Red Jacket.

George Demarois' blacksmith shop in Red Jacket caught fire, and before the flames were extinguished Mrs. Crowlen's two-story dwelling, three barns and Bat Quello's two-story saloon were in ashes. Fully twenty families moved out of their homes and moved back again when the fire was out. The loss was $10,000, with $500 insurance. Cause unknown.

Received a Fortune.

Austin Mereness, for sixteen years an inmate of the Kalamazoo insane asylum, was recently granted a pension of $72 a month with $12,800 back pay. He was taken to southern Wisconsin by Charles Wales, and will be cared for by his parents. The officials of the asylum exacted $1,250 from Mereness' friends before they would give up their charge.

Slew His Father.

The grand jury failed to indict William Coulter, of Sault Ste. Marie, for the murder of his father. Coulter was on a load of hay when he met his father at a gate. The old man had an ax in his hand and told his son he would kill him if he passed the gate. When the old man attempted to strike the horses with the ax the son shot him dead.

Caused by a Boy's Bonfire.

A small boy's bonfire almost destroyed the village of Howell. The village rink, containing 5,000 bushels of wheat belonging to the King Milling Company, two livery stables, three houses and the barn to Train's hotel were burned to the ground. The loss was $20,000, with little insurance.

Short but Newsy Items.

A new steamship, the City of Berlin, has been launched at Bay City.

The sheriff on Tuesday took possession of the dry goods store of John J. Tuomy, at Jackson, on judgments aggregating $13,554.

Carl Eberle's brewery at Jackson was burned, causing a loss of $18,000; insurance, $12,500.

The Durand block at Jackson was damaged by fire $6,000.

Gov. Winans has vetoed the bill making an appropriation for the home for discharged prisoners on the ground that this is a private charity.

Henry Hogue, of Jackson, died of the grip. He had resided in Jackson county nearly forty years.

A box car that arrived in Bay City from Detroit was found to contain a full set of burglar's tools.

While delivering supplies to the schooner Crossthwaite at Port Huron the boat of a young man named Kirby was swamped and he was drowned.

Wilhelm Linsted, of Manistee, was carrying a keg of beer upon his shoulder, when he slipped and fell, probably fatally injuring himself.

Thomas Jarret, of Grand Rapids, celebrated his 99th birthday anniversary.

Daly's plaster mill at Grandville burned, causing a loss of $15,000; insured for $10,000.

Mrs. Hester Smith, the mother of Robert Smith, who murdered his brother last December at Linwood and was sentenced to life imprisonment, died of a broken heart.

John Sherer, of Kalamazoo, was fatally hurt while loading logs.

The Michigan Great Council of Red Men at Lansing elected A. F. Shaffer, of Grand Rapids, great sachem.

Marquette is to have a new $30,000 hospital.

William Coulter, on trial at Sault Ste. Marie for the murder of his father, was acquitted.

Mear's shinglemill at Boyne Falls was burned, causing a loss of $4,800; partly insured.

At Sault Ste. Marie George W. Blake was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for bigamy.

Forest fires destroyed the plant of the Hancock chemical works at Houghton; also 1,000 cords of wood. Loss, $20,000, with no insurance.

A carload of blasting powder on the Wabash road exploded near Romulus, sending three cars into the air in thousands of pieces.

Wells W. Leggett, the noted patent lawyer and once president of the Brush Electric Light Company, died at Detroit.

Conductor Charles Colson, of the Michigan Central, had his head badly crushed while coupling cars at Bay City.

In Benzie county the houses of Daniel Sherman, at Inland, and Peek, at Platte township, were burned by prairie fires, and three highway bridges were also destroyed.

FIENDS LYNCHED.

Two Brothers Shot to Death at Sandy Hook, Ky., for a Most Brutal Crime.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 23.—One of the most fiendish crimes ever known in Kentucky is reported from Sandy Hook, the seat of Elliot county. A young school-teacher, Miss Maud Eleanor, was thrown from a horse, frightened by two Wilcox brothers, each of whom the girl had refused to marry. With a leg and arm broken she was chained in a deserted cabin, where she has been kept a prisoner since the middle of April, and, slowly dying, was made the victim of her captors' desires. Last Tuesday a posse, headed by her brother, found the girl, who died fifteen minutes later. The Wilcox brothers were captured, confessed, and were promptly shot to death.

Flames in a Prison.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 25.—A fire broke out in the J. S. Sullivan Saddletree Company's shop at the state penitentiary Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, and in an hour the state had lost nearly $100,000, the Saddletree company $60,000, and the Strauss Harness Company about $10,000.

THE GERM DESTROYER.

In the field of discovery and invention, medicine has not kept pace with surgery. That, perhaps, is natural; service surgery is the mechanical branch of medicine. The general acceptance of the germ theory of disease, however, opens a new field for medicine, and will take it completely away from the mediæval superstitions that still cling to its skirts. And yet medicine is not without its discoveries. It has long been known, and the fact is now recognized wherever the test has been made, that Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) will destroy the germ of malarial disease, the microbes of skin disease, and the bacilli of contagious and other forms of blood poisoning, ejects them from the blood, and purifies and builds up the system. No medical discovery of our day has achieved such remarkable success.

MILWAUKEE JUNIOR!

Takes the Lead!

TO THE FARMERS:

I have sold these machines in Tecumseh and vicinity for six years past and my sales have increased each succeeding year. The farmers who have bought this machine know, from a practical test, that it is the best machine on the market, and I expect to make my seventh season take the cake in the number of sales. I have just been having a tussle with the grip, but am now on deck again. Life is too short to relate and the newspaper too small to print all the good points about the MILWAUKEE JUNIOR. But call at my rooms in the Usborne Block and I will SHOW you the machine and EXPLAIN its workings.

Yours, for a Big Wheat Crop,

GEO. C. POCKLINGTON.

RIDGEWAY RAMBLES.

G. C. Arner spent Saturday at home.

The recent rains make everything look fresh.

Mrs. Phœbe Allison is no better at present writing.

Fannie Kelley, of Holloway, called on friends Monday evening.

Rhoba and Lou Arner went to Toledo Wednesday to visit relatives.

Mrs. Wm. Connell, of Stoney Creek, is with her mother, Mrs. Allison, at present.

Wm. Riggs, wife and daughter Daisy, visited relatives at Saline Saturday and Sunday.

Jennie Osgood, of the Normal, Ypsilanti, spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents.

Home grown strawberries made their first appearance on the tea table the first of the week.

Look out for the change in the time card of the C. J. & M., which goes into effect next Sunday.

Eva Pocklington, who has been on the sick list for the past few days, is able to be out again.

W. P. Cadmus returned Saturday from a trip to Harvey, and reports everything booming in the new city.

Remember the L. C. S. to be held at the home of Mrs. Samuel Barlow, on Friday evening of the present week.

H. J. Williams was in Tipton Tuesday, completing the contract for slating a fine farm residence under construction.

Those who attended the play at Britton last week were well pleased with the drama and the manner in which it was presented.

Mrs. Ida Arner Anderson and daughters Vera and Reta, of Detroit, arrived Friday for a few days' stay with her mother, Mrs. Jacob Arner.

The latest and much needed improvement that has been completed at the Library is a cistern pump, and all the work of construction was completed Monday.

We are sorry to hear that Mrs. Martin Palmer, of Wyandotte, is very low. Her father, Dr. Loree, who was called to her bedside last week, has not returned yet.

We are informed that orange blossoms are soon to make their appearance at one of our pleasant homes on North street. It isn't the one we are in suspense over, but we extend congratulations, however.

The attendance at the Epworth League entertainment, given Saturday evening, was far beyond expectation. The exercises were fine and all enjoyed the occasion very much. The proceeds amounted to upwards of $14.00

F. E. Pocklington arrived home Friday night for a few days' stay. He has been at work at Wheeling, Virginia, for the past few days, where he has engaged to superintend the brick work for a large building there, which will keep him nearly all summer.

A good many from the village attended the Decoration exercises held at the cemetery Saturday, conducted by the G. A. R. post at Britton. The exercises passed off very pleasantly. The cemetery, under the management of sexton S. P. Smith, presented a very fine appearance.

ONSTED ODDS.

Ed. Harris sports a lovely cart.

How do you like the new People's party.

Howard's brick and tile yard is again in operation.

A. P. Onsted and wife visited friends in south-west Rome last Sunday.

Jacob Maxwell and wife are visiting at St. Johns at present.

Jack Ayres and family now occupy the Randolph farm, northwest of town.

Some farmers have commenced to cultivate their corn where it has come up.

Mrs. Emma Walker and children spent Sunday with relatives in west Rome.

Mrs. Isaac Russell, of Alma, Mich., is visiting among old neighbors in this vicinity.

William White, a prominent farmer living north of here, died very suddenly Saturday morning.

Fred Daniels and wife are now in North Dakota and will probably make it their home there.

About half of the sheep in this vicinity have been relieved of their burdensome fleeces and the clip will be a good one here this season.

The old Mosher barn, that has stood so long between this place and Springville, has been torn down and removed. It was an old landmark and the pioneers will miss it from the place it so long occupied.

Decoration Day services were held here as usual and everything passed off very nicely. There was one more soldier's grave to strew with flowers than heretofore, as comrade Lee joined the silent corps during the past year. Judge Robbins, of Adrian, delivered the address, which was very appropriate for the occasion.

Gov. Winans gained more friends in this locality by vetoing that G. A. R. appropriation bill and if the legislature passes it over the veto it will do so against the wishes of many people in these parts, as they are getting tired of extra taxation. If the State of Michigan has any extra money to expend it had better be given to the sufferers by the late northern fires and not to a certain class that has already been provided for by law, both by the state and general government.

BRITTON BUDGET.

M. Hoagland, of Adrian, was visiting friends in Britton last Sunday.

We have a new night operator here who is quite a musician on the guitar.

Miss Jennie Saxton was visiting friends in Britton last Saturday and Sunday.

Dr. Thomas Smith was visiting in our village last Sunday. He reports good business.

Geo. Bauchman, of Milan, has again come to Britton to reside. We extend him our hearty welcome.

Luke Bannister and family, of Ridgeway, were the guests of George Exelby last Saturday and Sunday.

Ed. Henderson's eldest daughter, Addie, who has been sick for some weeks, is improving very slowly.

Will Osgood has been suffering from a severe cold but was well enough to go to Wampler's Lake last Monday.

Walter Exelby raised his barn last Wednesday. When completed it will be one of the finest in the country.

Mr. Zeluff, Jr., was visiting his parents last Sunday. He returned to his business in Toledo on Monday morning.

A meeting to organize a library for Britton will meet on Saturday evening, June 6th, at the Exelby Opera House. All are invited.

One of the high bloods of Ridgeway hired a conveyance in the shape of a wheelbarrow to bring him to our village one day last week.

A number of our young men are spending the present week at Wampler's Lake, camping out and enjoying their time by fishing.

We wish to correct a mistake which appeared in our items last week. The butcher's shop is carried on by Messrs. Ousterhout & Larrabee, and not Lenardson, as reported.

There was a general meeting of the members of the Britton Amateur Dramatic Society last Monday evening, but it being too late for press, the particulars and business transactions will be given next week.

It now seems a certain thing that Britton will celebrate on July 4th. Let our merchants and citizens subscribe liberally and have a celebration which will be a credit to our village. Further particulars next week.

Decoration Day was observed here last Saturday and a large procession followed the G. A. R. to the Ridgeway cemetery. The members of the G. A. R. wish to thank the citizens for their kind help, which largely contributed to make the decoration a grand success.

The annual reunion of Co. F., 26th Mich. Inft., will be held at Britton on the 13th day of June. Any of the boys seeing this notice will report themselves for roll call. By order of President Commanding Company.

J. BRITTON, Sec'y.

The Britton Amateur Dramatic Society closed the season last Saturday night under the most favorable circumstances. One of the largest assemblies ever seen in Britton was present at the Exelby Opera House to see the last show of the season, and the two performances netted the Society the handsome sum of $57.10, leaving a balance, after paying all expenses, of something over twenty dollars. This money should be used at once in buying a first installment of books for the Library Association. The play was somewhat long and tedious, considering the warm weather, but the parts were well rendered and the acting members deserve great credit in putting on such a heavy play and acting it out so well. It is of course an impossibility to select and stage a play to suit everybody, but we believe that "Never Too Late to Mend" gave general satisfaction. The company will not put anything else on the boards until the end of September or the first week in October, when a play will be chosen with a view of suiting the community at large. The Society desires to thank the public for their kind patronage and will endeavor to make themselves worthy of its continuance in future. The Society also wishes particularly to thank the Misses Bailey and Miller and Mr. Easlick for the splendid music furnished by them. The stage manager and members of this troupe also wish to thank Mr. W. Barrett, of Ridgeway, for his valuable services last Friday and Saturday evenings.

NORTH-EAST FRANKLIN.

Sheep shearing has begun.

Watson and Mrs. Hunt lately visited friends in Macon.

Hudson Davenport was calling on Franklin friends Sunday.

Mart Whelan and wife went to Petersburg Saturday to visit Mrs. W.'s sister, Mrs. Laura Barlow.

Farmers will need to put on their blue glasses if they wish to find any fault with the season, so far.

Levi Bowen is busy setting celery plants. Levi is one of Franklin's most successful growers of that toothsome edible.

S. N. Munger expects to go to Coldwater this week on business connected with his grandfather Hunt's estate, of which he is administrator.

SPRINGVILLE SIFTINGS.

Flower Sunday will be observed at the M. E. church, June 14th.

Mrs. A. Bryant, of Plainwell, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Ellen White.

Adrian's popular summer resort, at the Lake, has opened, judging from the loads of household goods which wend their way in that direction Sundays.

The reading circle recently organized is a success. By a clever plan of circulation a class of twelve derives the benefit to be obtained from the reading of six of the leading monthlies, at very low cost.

Died, at his home in Cambridge, Friday evening, May 29th, from illness of a brief half hour's duration, Wm. B. White, aged 56 years. Mr. White was born in the State of New York. When two years old his parents moved to this township where he has since resided. He was married to Ellen Lewis in 1860, and was well prepared for a prolonged and happy life in this world, but he was compelled to leave a devoted wife and a lovely home when the call came, "come up higher." The funeral took place at his home June 2d, Rev. Eichbaum, of Brooklyn, conducting the services. In his death the wife loses a true husband, the children an indulgent father and the community one of the best of citizens. The large company of sympathizing neighbors who paid the last tribute of respect bore testimony of the esteem in which he was held.

MANCHESTER MATTERS.

The S. W. Farmers Club will meet at S. M. Merithew's on Friday June 5th at 1 P. M. Program consists of an essay by Mrs. C. D. Watkins, Paper by John G. English on the subject for discussion.

The Ladies Home Journal.

A never failing charm of The Ladies' Home Journal is that it is always abreast of the season; somehow it presents just the things one wants most to see at the particular time it comes out; this seems especially true of June. Florence Howe Hall's "In Church, or at Home?" Mrs. Mallon's suggestions for brides and their maids, and Ella Wheeler Wilcox's clever comparisons between women and flowers. Quite as timely, also, are the portrait sketch of Lady Agnes Macdonald, the wife of Canada's Premier; Sister Rose Gertrude's description of "Life Among the Lepers at Molokai"; Charles J. Dumar's article on "Women as Typesetters," and William H. Rideing's "Hints on House Building." Those whose thoughts are turning towards summer outings, will find helpful suggestions in "Horseback Riding for Women," by Carl A. Nyegaard, of the New York Riding Club, and Miss Le Garde's "How to Dress for Bicycle Riding"; Helen Jay and Kate Upson Clark have treated very acceptably the two sides of the farmer vs. summer-boarder controversery, and the same breezy out-door spirit pervades also the usual department pages. Mrs. Whitney's "A Golden Gossip." and "A Soul from Pudge's Corners," Jessie F. O'Donnell's strong serial are both continued, and "Buck" Ewing, of the New York Base-Ball Club, contributes an article which will delight the boys. The Journal promises also some particularly delightful things for each of the coming summer numbers. Issued at One Dollar a year, or Ten Cents a copy, by the Curtis Publishing Company, 435 Arch street, Philadelphia Pa.

—Change of time on the C., J. & M. R. R. will take effect on Sunday, June 7th. The following is the time of trains passing Tecumseh: West bound, No. 22, 9:03 A. M. East bound, No. 21, 7:03 P. M. On Sunday, between Toledo and Addison. No radical change in other trains. june4-4t

An Explanation.

EDITOR HERALD:—James Edwards (alias "Jakes Eloard), charges me personally with his downfall in Tecumseh in his business, of what I, with many others, believe to be swindling the people, and as he has taken me to task for allowing Rev. Dr. Rexford's letter to me to be published in the News, and also for not having Dr. Rexford's second letter to me published also, and not wishing to injure anyone unjustly, I request the publication of the accompanying letter from Dr. Rexford to Prof. Kellogg, of this city, which was written after Dr. Rexford's second letter to me was penned, and as it embodies all, and nothing contrary to the contents of that letter, it will, I think, satisfy that gentleman as well as the letter addressed to me, which I have unfortunately mislaid. I cannot just now put my hand upon the document. Of course I must believe the reverend Dr.'s statements in this letter to Prof. Kellogg, and, as before stated, the letter having been written after Dr. Rexford's last or second letter to me was written, it should satisfy "Ze Frenchman," as well as all others interested Dr. Rexford's name is mentioned thus prominently, as many of those who subscribed for "Ze Frenchman's" book did so on the supposed recommendation of the above mentioned gentleman.

Respectfully,

C. M. WOODWARD.

L. M. KELLOGG, Tecumseh, Mich.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of the 13th inst. is just at hand. I have a faint recollection of a man named Edouard calling on me some seven or eight years ago, when I was a resident of Detroit. I wrote one of your citizens to this effect last week—a physician, I believe. I think the Frenchman was interested in getting classes in languages, if I remember correctly. I have no remembrance of reading any manuscript of the kind you name and I could not have given my endorsement to a work of that sort. I wrote this physician first that I had no recollection of the name whatever, but the next day I wrote him that some indefinable memory of such a man did appear in my attempts to recall him. He might have had some paper, or essay, or article, and might have asked my opinion of it, as such requests have often been made of me. I have no memory of the sort in his case, and my "endorsement" of the book of the title you name is certainly unauthorized. Very truly yours,

E. L. REXFORD.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 22, 1890.

A WRETCHED STATE OF AFFAIRS.

The Senate Committee on the Industrial Home Make Some Grave Charges.

LANSING, MICH., May 27.—(Special.)—The senate special committee, consisting of Gilbert, Milnes, Mugford, Porter and Morrow, this morning presented the report of their investigation into the alleged abuses at the Industrial School at Adrian, of which Miss Scott is superintendent, and state that the difference of opinion between Miss Scott and the local member of the board, John G. Mason, has caused a bad feeling in the school. The report continues:

"We find the management relating to punishment extremely cruel, unwarrantably unnecessary, and also the avowed policy of the superintendent. As for instance we found the case of two girls who were placed in a dark cellar for 20 consecutive days and nights with no furniture other than a bare plank and who were kept on a diet of bread and water. We find when girls became boisterous or violent in temper they were, by order of the superintendent, treated with hypodermic injections of a fluid, the nature of which was unknown to the person administering the same.

"We found extreme negligence in the case of a girl who, after being an inmate of the home for six months and while undergoing a physical examination as an epileptic, was discovered to be suffering from a loathsome disease. Questioning brought out the information that she had been under treatment for this disease for but one month previous to this time and under the advice of the attending physician, who gave directions for treatment without knowledge of the nature of the disease other than as stated by the matron. It would seem to the committee that a disease of this nature and of as long duration would have excited a deep professional interest and great caution in the healment of this case instead of the negligence shown.

"We find extreme negligence in placing girls in homes, without proper application, or endorsement by county agents. For instance, we found a girl returned to the home in an unfortunate and delicate condition and immediately replaced by another girl in the same home without further recommendation or endorsement. Among others an application was shown the committee as the authority and recommendation for placing a girl in a home in Lenawee county, on the back of which appeared the endorsement of the county agent, but upon the opening of this particular blank there was found within nothing but the printed blank form used for filing applications at the home. Neither the name or location of the family, name of the girl or information of any kind was expressed therein."

The board winds up its report by advocating the dismissal of Miss Scott and the employment of a man and his wife to run the school, and calls the attention of Winans to the report by sending him a copy.

TECUMSEH, THURSDAY, JUNE 4.

Philadelphia may be rather slow in some things, but in wrecking banks, she has toed the line of progress as set by New York and Chicago.

Either the tariff is a tax, or it is not a tax. This is good logic which no man can dispute. But if the tariff is not a tax, then what's the matter with sugar.

Representative Jerry Simpson has announced that he would make a free trade canvass in Ohio this fall in opposition to Major McKinley, if the latter runs for governor.

The protected interests are all opposed to Roger Q. Mills for Speaker. Perhaps they are afraid that the Mills would grind too fine for them with Roger Q. in the Speaker's chair.

Queen Victoria celebrated her seventy-second birth-day on the 24th of May, and her physical and mental faculties are unimpaired. Meanwhile the Prince of Wales keeps on spending money and waiting for his venerable mother to abdicate.

It looks now as though Commissioner Raum would soon have to go. The President has difficulty in finding a man to accept the place. It is a thankless position to fill, and no man who desires a political future for himself can be found to accept it.

Republican organs declare that the Farmers' Alliance is rushing down hill. To which the Chicago Times replies: There is a tremor of anxiety in the statement which is pathetic. Suppose the Alliance should crash into the poor old elephant at the bottom of the hill!

The Chicago Times has this interesting bit of Alliance news: Farmer Ingalls was in town yesterday and it is said that he came hither from his potato patch in Kansas to lend his valuable council to Farmer Medill, who is striving to pick the bugs from the republican potato vines.

Henry George went to Bermuda last winter for his health, taking his bicycle with him. On his return he was compelled to pay a tariff tax upon the same bicycle. It is a reasonable supposition that Henry George's opinion of the McKinley tariff law will not be enhanced by this experience.

Dr. Phillips Brooks can well afford to relinquish the Bishopric of Massachusetts and remain in his pulpit, for he is the foremost pulpit orator in the New England States to-day. But can the Episcopal Church afford to withhold the Bishop's mitre from him? That is a question of vital moment to the Episcopal body.

The Assembly refuses to approve the appointment of Dr. Briggs to a professor's chair in the Union Theological Seminary. Will the trustees of the Seminary ignore this action and sustain Dr. Briggs? If so, a schism will result which will shake the church to its foundations. But whatever the outcome may be, Dr. Briggs is right. The most advanced thinkers and the ripest scholars of the present day are with him.

Hon. Wm. McAdoo says in his article in the June Forum: We have reared around our custom houses, by our inhibition of foreign goods, adamantine walls high enough to stop the free movements of the winds of heaven, and deep enough to shut out natural gas or drinking water from Canada and Mexico; but around our immigrant depots, against the great swelling tide of immigration, we have strung a few statutory cobwebs!

Gov. Winans' veto of the G. A. R. appropriation bill is based upon solid ground. The appropriation would be diverting public money to private uses and would establish a precedent that might lead to untold extravagance hereafter. The Governor's sympathies were undoubtedly in favor of the bill, but his official duty left him no alternative. He obeyed the dictates of duty rather than his personal sympathies and the people will honor him for it.

SECRETARY RUSK AND THE FARMERS.

Our venerated friend, Uncle Jeremiah Rusk, Secretary of Agriculture, has written an article for one of the magazines on "The Duty of the Hour" in regard to agriculture. This duty appears to consist in thinking a great deal about the farmers and appreciating earnestly the fact that agriculture is the foundation of all national prosperity, and sympathizing profoundly with the farmers.

To use a simile borrowed from Secretary Rusk's department, we do not believe these things amount to a hill of beans. If there be a duty of the hour in relation to the farmer, it is something a good deal more substantial than thinking earnestly and appreciating fully and sympathizing deeply, and outside of his magazine article Mr. Rusk himself has given us a pretty good idea of what the real duty of the hour is.

Secretary Rusk remarked some months ago that if the farmers found out that protection was a one-sided affair that didn't benefit them they would soon kick it over. That he had correctly sized up the situation is shown by the fact that in his own State, hitherto Republican, the Democrats last fall elected eight out of nine Representatives in Congress and the Legislature that elected a Senator.

A year ago Secretary Rusk issued a proclamation to the farmers of the country in which he admitted that as we raised a surplus of wheat for export the price of that article could not be increased by tariff legislation. Major McKinley thought the farmers were not smart enough to understand this, and he increased the duty on wheat with the idea that it would fool the farmer into thinking a great thing had been done for him. The election returns indicate that the farmer wasn't fooled much.

Well, in this official proclamation of a year ago Secretary Rusk admitted that the tariff couldn't increase the price of wheat because we raise a surplus of wheat for export. But the same thing is true of pork and beef products, dairy products and cotton, and it is substantially true of corn, for, while we export but little corn, the price of corn is necessarily affected by the price of wheat.

So Secretary Rusk has admitted the impossibility of helping the farmers to any appreciable extent by the tariff policy to which his party is absolutely committed. But in this magazine article on "The Duty of the Hour" he makes this admission of the impotence of his own party more specifically. He says:

For the last twenty-five years you have been giving the farmer and his needs little or no thought. You have been letting agriculture take care of itself and him. All other classes, all other interests and industries, existing though they do only by reason of the fact that agriculture has called them into existence and supports them, have received your consideration and your special duty. Is it surprising, then, that as the result of your selfishness the farmer should be indisposed to trust anybody but himself?

For the last 25 years the power of legislation has been in the hands of Secretary Rusk's party friends. When the Democrats had Congress the Republicans had the President, and when the Democrats had the President the Republicans had the Senate. For most of the 25 years the Republicans have had the President and the Senate, for about half of that period they have had all three branches of the Government, and at no moment during the 25 years have the Democrats had the White House and both branches of Congress. Who is it that has been neglecting the farmers? All the tariff legislation of the past 25 years has been enacted by the Republican party, professedly in the interest of the agricultural Northwest, including Secretary Rusk's State, which was blindly supporting that party. And now Secretary Rusk confesses that all this tariff legislation of 25 years has been useless to the farmer.

But there is more than this. In an interview a few months ago Secretary Rusk talked with a good deal of heat about the harvester combination against the farmer. "I had an opportunity to take some stock in the combination," he is represented in the interview as saying, and I know what inducements were offered." He added:

An investigation will show that this same combination is now selling or offering to sell machinery in Russia and Australia and other wheat growing countries at a lower figure than they do in this country. This won't do, and I need not offer any argument to prove the weight or truth of the assertion. The first thing the farmer will do when he is acquainted with these facts will be to make a howl against trusts and protection that does not protect. Whether justly or not, he will charge it to the Republican party. I am as certain as I can be of anything that this mower and reaper trust will cost the Republican party hundreds of thousands of votes at the next Presidential election unless it takes a firm stand against it and trusts in general.

The protective tariff, which the farmer of the Northwest has supported till recently, increases the prices the farmer is obliged to pay for his agricultural implements by means of the taxes it imposes on wood, iron and steel. By means of the duties imposed upon agricultural implements, it enables the manufacturers to extort from the American farmers higher prices than those which the manufacturer is willing to sell for abroad.

It strikes us, from the various deliverances of Secretary Rusk himself, that "The Duty of the Hour," as regards agriculture, is not to think and feel, and appreciate and sympathize, but to get up and do something; to drive Secretary Rusk's party from the power it has used improvidently for 25 years; to abolish billion-dollar Congresses and carry on the Government economically; to reduce taxation, and as the tariff can't help the farmer, to see that it hurts him just as little as possible. If we can't increase the price of wheat—and Mr. Rusk admits that we can't—by all means let us reduce the price of the things the farmer buys, and the only way to do this is to drive Secretary Rusk's party from the control of the Government.—National Democrat.

OPEN THE WORLD'S MARKETS.

Roger Q. Mills begins his paper, in the May Forum, on "Reciprocity—Why Southward Only?" with this eminently sound generalization:

All trade is advantageous to those engaged in its exchanges. It is profitable to him that sells, and to him that buys. Without this reciprocity of benefit, trade could not exist. The sum of its benefits is in proportion to the value of the articles exchanged, and depends upon the presence or the absence of obstructions in the way between consumer and producer. If obstructions, either natural or artificial, should prevent all trade, domestic and foreign, civilization would be extinguished, and human life would go out with it. The converse also is true. If no obstructions, either natural or artificial, should exist, prosperity would touch its highest possible point, and civilization would attain its highest possible development. The mutual profits derived from trade are not restricted to any particular articles, nor confined to any particular country. They are not controlled by degrees of latitude, of longitude, or of altitude. Trade is the same in the frigid, the temperate and the torrid zone. It owes no allegiance to any king, prince, potentate or power; and yet it is the surest and best supporter of all. It speaks a universal language, which, like that once heard at Pentecost, is understood by every people in its own tongue. Wherever it goes—north, south, east, or west; at home, or abroad—its message is: "On earth, peace; good will toward men."

Proceeding from these postulates, Mr. Mills refers to the time when many of our statesmen, while regarding home trade as a benefit, regarded foreign trade as an unmixed evil. There has been a slight relaxation of this iron-clad idea. The Executive and the Department of State urge the importance of trade in certain articles with the republics to the south. This is a breach in the walls so long erected around the home market. It was made necessary in order to quiet the discontent of the Republican farmers of the West, by opening a market for "another bushel of wheat and another barrel of pork."

If the advocates of reciprocity are sincere in wanting to find larger markets for agricultural products, Mr. Mills asks why they do not move for reciprocity with Europe instead of with South America. The best markets for farm products are to be found, he says, not among agricultural, but among manufacturing, mining and mercantile communities. But the South American markets are not really intended for farmers. Under the McKinley law, whenever any country in the American hemisphere shall admit our "agricultural and other products" free of duty, we are to reciprocate by admitting the products of that country free of duty. The scheme is to induce our Southern neighbors to keep up their tariffs against the manufactures of all other people, while admitting ours free, which will give our manufacturers the power to plunder their people as mercylessly as as our own are now plundered. The proposition for reciprocal trade is a proposition to extend the protective system of our country over theirs. The "other products" will get the benefit, and the farmers, as usual will receive all the compliments of the season. The cry of "Home markets for home products" has been abandoned by Protectionists, and they are now demanding foreign markets for home products, while closing the home market against those foreign products that our people want.

We should enlarge all markets for all products. We should deal frankly with the people, and not call a steel rail "a bushel of wheat," nor a locomotive "a barrel of pork." We ought to secure the markets of the South for our manufactures, for the benefit of all our people, and not for the benefit of monopolies. The right way to do this is to produce our goods at less cost and to carry and offer them for sale. We can produce at less cost by removing all taxes from the material used in making them. This would both open the foreign and enlarge the domestic markets for our goods.

The interest of protected manufacturers points southward; that of the farmer points eastward. The administration asks that the interest of the manufacturer be subserved by expanding his market, while the market of the farmer is contracted. Wise statesmanship asks that all markets be enlarged, and that every obstruction to trade be removed at every point of the compass; that no burden except taxation for the support of Government be imposed on any article; and that when it is imposed for revenue, it be placed on such articles and at such rates as will, with revenues from other sources, be sufficient to support an honest and economical administration of Government, with the least possible disturbance of private business.

If reciprocity with one country is good, reciprocity with another country is also good; and we should direct our negotiations toward England, France, Germany, Belgium, Austria, Italy, and the other countries of Europe. We should lower our barriers against trade, and then urge them to lower theirs. To emancipate the people is the duty of American statesmen.—The Standard.

The New Protectionism.

It is astonishing with what rapidity the clearer-headed advocates of protection are in one form or another approaching the position of the friends of a tariff for revenue only. Mr. Blaine leads off as the champion of "reciprocity," which he explains as a cunning and superior sort of protection. Mr. Wharton Barker has recently written a very interesting open letter to Colonel Du Pont, of Wilmington, in which he advocates "true protection" by a repeal of protective duties on all articles of which trusts have been enabled to monopolize the production, and by putting on the free list from time to time such articles as iron ore, carpet wools and lumber. He also favors reciprocity, not only with our neighbor countries to the southward, but with countries to the northward also. Other distinguished protectionists, not of the hide-bound McKinley persuasion, are equally outspoken. Our esteemed townsman and contemporary, Mr. Dolan, for example, sees free wool coming and is not terrified at the prospect.

Now these things rejoice the Record greatly. When persons of weight and authority in the inner temple of Republicanism openly demand the enlargement of the free list, and wink at "free trade" by calling "reciprocity" "true protection," there is reason for rejoicing. It will not be long until the whole lump of protectionism shall have been leavened.—Philadelphia Record.

ALFRED JAMES,

SINGLE TAX DEPARTMENT.

ECONOMY OF THE SINGLE TAX.

With, perhaps, the exception of certain licenses and stamp duties, which may be made almost to collect themselves, but which can be relied on for only a trivial amount of revenue, a tax upon land values can, of all taxes, be most easily and cheaply collected, for land can not be hidden or carried off; its value can be readily ascertained, and the assessment once made, nothing but a receiver is required for collection.

And as under all fiscal systems some part of the public revenues is collected from taxes on land, and the machinery for that purpose already exists and could as well be made to collect all as a part, the cost of collecting the revenue now obtained by other taxes might be entirely saved by substituting the tax on land values for all other taxes. What an enormous saving might thus be made can be inferred from the hords of officials now engaged in collecting these taxes.

This saving would largely reduce the difference between what taxation now costs the people and what it yields, but the substitution of a tax on land values for all other taxes would operate to reduce this difference in an even more important way.

A tax on land values does not add to prices, and is thus paid directly by the persons on whom it falls; whereas, all taxes upon things of unfixed quantity increase prices, and in the course of exchange are shifted from seller to buyer, increasing as they go. If we impose a tax upon money loaned, as has been often attempted, the lender will charge the tax to the borrower, and the borrower must pay it or not obtain the loan. If the borrower uses it in his business, he in his turn must get back the tax from his customers, or his business becomes unprofitable. If we impose a tax upon buildings, the users of buildings must finally pay for it, for the erection of buildings will cease until building rents become high enough to pay the regular profit and the tax besides. If we impose a tax upon manufactures or imported goods, the manufacturer or importer will charge it in a higher price to the jobber, the jobber to the retailer, and the retailer to the consumer. Now, the consumer, on whom the tax thus ultimately falls, must not only pay the amount of the tax, but also a profit on this amount to every one who has thus advanced it—for profit on the capital he has advanced in paying taxes is as much required by each dealer as profit on the capital he has advanced in paying for goods. In this way all taxes which add to prices are shifted from hand to hand, increasing as they go, until they ultimately rest upon consumers, who thus pay much more than is received by the government. Now, the way taxes raise prices is by increasing the cost of production and checking supply. But land is not a thing of human production and taxes upon rent can not check supply. Therefore, though a tax on rent compels the land owners to pay more, it gives them no power to obtain more for the use of their land, as it in no way tends to reduce the supply of land. On the contrary, by compelling those who hold land on speculation to sell or let for what they can get, a tax on land values tends to increase the competition between owners, and thus to reduce the price of land.

Thus in all respects a tax upon land values is the cheapest tax by which a large revenue can be raised—giving to the government the largest net revenue in proportion to the amount taken from the people.

Taxation in New York.

The New York Times in an editorial on the various tax bills introduced in the present legislature, says:

The most sensible bill that has been introduced is that presented in the assembly by Mr. Stein, "by request," proposing a kind of local option as to the assessment of property for taxation. It provides that assessors shall state in separate columns the value of land exclusive of improvements and the value of land with improvements and gives county authorities the right to levy all taxes upon land alone; upon land with the improvements thereon, that is, upon real estate; upon personal property alone, or upon the assessed value of land, improvements and personal property. Due provision being made for the equitable contribution of each county to the revenues of the state, there are many reasons why the control of assessment and taxation might be left to the local authorities. The conditions differ widely in different counties, and the difference is especially great between the great commercial towns and the rural communities. A method of assessment which is entirely practicable in one may be very badly adapted to the other. In this city the amount raised for local purposes is about seven times as great as that raised for state purposes. Provided the city contributes its just share to the state treasury, there is no reason why it should not be permitted to raise the money for the purpose and for its own expenses in the way best adapted to the protection and promotion of its own interests.

In support of this bill the Advance Labor Club, Knights of Labor of Brooklyn, adopted unanimously the resolution below, and caused copies of it, with the assembly's seal attached, to be forwarded to the legislature, D. A. 59, and all the New York and Brooklyn newspapers:

BROOKLYN, March 14, 1891.

To the HON. ASSEMBLY OF NEW YORK—GREETING:

Whereas, Assemblyman Stein has introduced into the assembly of the state of New York a bill providing for the enactment of a law giving to the counties of this state local option in the matter of taxation of personal property and real estate within their borders; therefore be it

Resolved, That this Local Assembly, 1562, Knights of Labor, recommend to the assembly and senate of the legislature of the state of New York the favorable consideration and adoption of said bill as a measure to the best interests of both labor and capital in this state; and we hereby impress upon the members of the assembly and senate that they work and vote for the enactment of said bill into a law, in the interests of giving home rule to all the counties of this state in this matter of taxation of real estate and personal property.

Respectfully,
THOS. J. MEANY,
Secretary of L. A., 1562, K. of L.

Is All Property a Trust?

In a sermon on "Socialism," delivered by Rev. Lyman Abbott to a wealthy Boston congregation on Sunday, February 15, the pastor of Plymouth church said:

"Another great proof is that property is a trust. Henry George himself is not radical enough to suit me. He says there should be no private property in land. I say there should be no private property at all. And yet I am not a socialist, not even a Christian socialist. My doctrine is easy to understand."

Dr. Abbott is right in saying that Henry George is not radical enough to accept such doctrine, though we think he misuses the word radical in this connection. A radical, properly speaking, is one who goes to the roots of things, and Henry George does go to the root of the existing inequality in the distribution of the products of labor, when he declares that the source of the evil is the power given by law to a few to exact from the many payment for the privilege of access to the opportunities, through which alone wealth can be created.

The equal rights of all men to the use of land being once recognized, Mr. George claims that the producer has a right to the thing that he has produced out of natural materials, to which he has rightful access. Mr. George, however, is a political economist, while Dr. Abbott, in declaring that there should be no private property at all, speaks, we suppose, as a preacher who claims that God not merely gives to the people the earth they inhabit, but the powers that enable them to labor, and that they hold their natural powers, natural opportunities, and the products of both as a trust from their Creator. This is a doctrine that appeals to the individual conscience, and it can not in the nature of things, be enforced by law. There is, therefore, no necessity for any controversy between single tax men, who are seeking to rewrite the laws of the land concerning property, and Dr. Abbott, who is inculcating what he believes to be the lesson of duty to men who have obtained their property honestly.

Will Taxing Coal Lands Increase the Price of Coal?

The Age of Steel, published at St. Louis, says that the decision of the Illinois supreme court declaring that coal beneath the surface in that state is liable to taxation, will relieve the burden of taxation on Illinois farmers, but that "a large proportion of the tax will, of course, come out of the manufacturing interests of St. Louis, Chicago, Joliet and other industrial centers using Illinois coal." How does the Age of Steel figure that out? Are the coal miners of Illinois not now charging these manufacturing centers all that they can get? Would they not charge more now if they would not thereby drive their present customers to other sources of supply? How are they, then, going to obtain more from the manufacturers because they must henceforth pay taxes on their coal lands?

We will venture a prediction for the benefit of our St. Louis contemporary. If the tax imposed on coal lands in Illinois has any traceable effect on the price of coal, it will cause the price to fall rather than to rise. At present there is a great extent of coal land unworked in Illinois. The ability to hold it out of use enables mine owners to limit the supply of coal, to some extent. The tendency of a tax on such land is to make it less profitable to hold it out of use. The higher the tax goes, the greater this tendency. The owners will, therefore, have an inducement to work mines at least enough to enable them to obtain sufficient coal to pay the taxes. This will put more coal on the market and tend toward lowering the price. Let the Age of Steel watch the market and see if it is not mistaken in supposing that taxing coal lands will increase the price of coal.

OF course there are some forms of personal property which can be seen and appraised by the assessors, almost as readily as real estate, though not with so correct an estimate of value. The objection to taxation of chattels is not that none of them can be taxed; it is that so many of them can be and are reached, while so many are not, that the tax is necessarily unequal and unjust. The important question, therefore, is, upon what class does this tax bear most oppressively? If taxes were levied only upon land values, or upon the values of land and buildings, would the smaller property owners, and especially the farmers, pay more or less of the whole taxes than they do now?

JUST as society grows so do the common needs grow, and so grows this value attaching to land—the provided fund from which they can be supplied. Here is a value that may be taken without impairing the rights of property, without taking any thing from the producer, without lessening the natural rewards of industry and thrift. Nay, here is a value that must be taken if we would prevent the most monstrous of all monopolies. What does all this mean? It means that in the creative plan, the natural advance in civilization is an advance to a greater and greater equality instead of to a more and more monstrous inequality.

IN the thickly settled parts of the United States there is enough land to maintain three or four times our present population, lying unused, because its owners are holding it for higher prices, and immigrants are forced past this unused land to seek homes where their labor will be far less productive. —Progress and Poverty.

HEZEKIAH A GOOD KING.

LESSON X, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, JUNE 7.

Text of the Lesson, II Chron. xxix, 1-11. Commit Verses, 10, 11—Golden Text, I Sam. ii, 30—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

[Compiled from Lesson Helper Quarterly by permission of H. S. Hoffman, publisher, Philadelphia.]

1. "Hezekiah began to reign when he was five-and-twenty years old, and he reigned nine-and-twenty years in Jerusalem."

Having in the last lesson stepped back about 100 years to consider the revival in the days of Joash, we now return to about the time of the lesson of two weeks ago, for it was in the beginning of the reign of Hezekiah that the ten tribes were carried into captivity (II Kings, xviii, 10). He was the last but one of the good kings of Judah. His father Ahaz was a wicked king, and his son, Manasseh was the worst of all (xxviii, 19, 22; xxxiii, 9,10).

"And his mother's name was Abijah, the daughter of Zechariah."

2. "And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, according to all that David, his father, had done."

3. "He, in the first year of his reign, in the first month, opened the doors of the house of the Lord, and repaired them."

What a grand beginning he makes, and how promptly! He does not allow a month to pass after he becomes king without attending to the house of the Lord. Ahaz, his father, had destroyed the vessels, shut up the doors, and made altars in every corner of Jerusalem (xxviii, 24). Hezekiah now seeks to undo his father's sin, and he loses no time about it.

4. "And he brought in the priests and the Levites, and gathered them together into the east street."

There was a time when the head of each family acted as the priest of the household, offering sacrifice unto the Lord (Job i, 5; Gen. viii, 20; xii, 7, 8). But since the building of the tabernacle at Sinai the house of Aaron and the tribe of Levi were set apart to stand between the people and God and to offer sacrifice.

5. "And said unto them, Hear me, ye Levites; sanctify now yourselves, and sanctify the house of the Lord God of your fathers, and carry forth the filthiness out of the holy place."

It took them sixteen days to cleanse the temple on this occasion (vs. 15-17), but it takes much longer than that to cleanse some believers from the filthiness of flesh and spirit which clings so closely.

6. "For our fathers have trespassed, and done evil in the eyes of the Lord our God, and have forsaken him, and have turned away their faces from the habitation of the Lord, and turned their backs."

So, also, said Jeremiah a little later in their history (Jer. ii, 13, 17), and so said Moses ere the nation was yet forty years old (Deut. ix, 8, 24). Their history might be called a continued forsaking of the Lord who redeemed them.

7. "Also they have shut up the doors of the porch, and put out the lamps, and have not burned incense, nor offered burnt offerings in the holy place, unto the God of Israel."

8. "Wherefore the wrath of the Lord was upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he hath delivered them to trouble, to astonishment, and to hissing, as ye see with your eyes."

In Lev. xxvi and Deut. xxviii it was clearly foretold that the wrath of the Lord would thus come upon them if they were disobedient, and Moses added, "I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life that both thou and thy seed may live (Deut. xxx, 19). As God by His servant foretold so it came to pass.

9. "For, lo, our fathers have fallen by the sword; and our sons and our daughters and our wives are in captivity for this."

One hundred and twenty thousand fell in one day, and 200,000 women, sons and daughters were carried captive because they had forsaken the Lord God of their fathers (chap. xxviii, 6, 8). This also had been plainly foretold (Deut. xxviii, 25, 32), and so it came to pass. Think for a moment at the more than 100,000 who in heathendom are dying every day, without a knowledge of God, besides all in Christendom who have heard, but do not believe.

10. "Now it is in mine heart to make a covenant with the Lord God of Israel that his fierce wrath may turn away from us."

So did Asa, and at a later period Nehemiah (chap. xv, 12; Neh. x, 29), and each obtained blessing from the Lord. See the encouragement to act thus in II Chron. vii, 14. David found comfort in the unchangeableness and fullness of God's covenant with him, and God's faithfulness should ever be our resting place (II Sam. xxiii, 5; Ps. lxxxix, 1, 2; I Cor. i, 9; x, 13). Yet let us do as Hezekiah did, and enter into a covenant with the Lord to present our bodies a living sacrifice, with all we are and have, that, like the lad's loaves in the hands of Jesus, we may be blessed, broken, multiplied and made to feed hungry souls with the bread of life, that so the Gospel may be preached in all the world for a witness, the body of Christ hastened to completion and the kingdom come. Let us covenant to be wholly His for His service.

11. "My sons, be not now negligent."

Cursed be he that doeth the work of the Lord negligently (Jer, xlviii, 10, margin). Whatever we do in His service should be done most thoroughly as unto Him, and if we live as in His sight how can we be negligent or deceitful?

"For the Lord hath chosen you to stand before him."

Not before men, to please them or rely on them, but before God, in humble and whole hearted reliance upon Him. He said to Abram: "I am God Almighty. Walk thou before me and be thou perfect" (upright or sincere). Gen. xvii, 1, and margin. Elijah in great fearlessness said to Ahab, "The Lord God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand." And Gabriel said to Zacharias, "I am Gabriel, that stand in the presence of God" (I Kings xvii, 1; Luke i, 19). Thus consciously to stand before God is the great secret of strength for fearless service.

"To serve him, and that ye should minister unto him."

While serving people and ministering unto them, in a sense, yet we are as priests of God ministering unto Him, for whatever is done unto the least of His, He counts as done to Himself (Matt. xxv, 40). But our motive must always be to please Him, and not those little ones to whom we minister, except in so far as pleasing them, we please Him first. If, on the other hand, we live to please people, we cannot be servants of Christ (Gal. i, 10; Rom. xv, 3; John viii, 29).

"And burn incense."

Incense being, as we said in verse 7, a symbol of prayer, we are here reminded of such words as these, "Pray without ceasing;" "praying always with all prayer and supplication in the spirit, and watching thereunto;" "in everything, by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God" (I Thess. v, 17; Eph. vi, 18; Phil. iv, 6).

MARSHALL'S HOOF CURE

cures sand and quarter cracks, split hoofs, sore and contracted feet, corns and all hoof troubles. Stops cracking, shelling and scaling hoofs. Softens and toughens brittle hoofs. It is better than soaking with oil, meal, etc. Should be used on all horses standing on hard floors or driven on hard roads. It also cures scratches, tetter, galls of all kinds, bruises, etc.

TOLEDO, O., April 6, 1891. I had a horse in my stables that had hoofs so brittle that it was impossible to keep a shoe on his feet. I have used one can of Marshall's Hoof Cure on his hoofs and the horse has been shod for four weeks and the shoes stay on all right. I consider it the best hoof cure I have ever used.

DR. BRADFIELD'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS

COVERING THE GRAVES OF OUR HERO DEAD WITH FLOWERS.

Celebration of Memorial Day with Music and Parade—Reviving the Memories of Those Mighty Days of War with Song and Story.

If any citizen of Tecumseh were inclined to the belief that the celebration of Memorial Day was losing its interest among us, the events of last Saturday would certainly disabuse him.

The gentle May breezes, laden with the perfume of thousands of flowers, the fine parade of our old battle-scarred veterans and young military tyros, the solemn dirges of the band, the voices of a hundred school children lifted in patriotic song, all recited in unison our veneration for the dead and our regard for the great cause for which they gave their lives.

The dark, dismal clouds which hovered over the earth in the early morning hours rather dampened the enthusiasm of the soldier boys, for they betokened a stormy day, but with the approach of noon they broke away and Old Sol dispensed his light and warmth most liberally during the remainder of the day. At noon our streets resembled a dull Saturday; at one o'clock people were pouring into town from all points of the compass; at two o'clock a crowd had gathered which would have done justice to a fourth of July.

Promptly at that hour, Fred Rosacrans, acting as marshal, gathered the fragments in line to form the parade.

First came the City Band, with a full complement of sixteen pieces.

Next Co. C., with nearly fifty men in the ranks.

Then the G. A. R. Post, with over fifty veterans in line.

The S. of V. Camp followed, with a good representation.

Then came the boys' equestrian club, numbering about twenty.

And lastly citizens in carriages. There were over one hundred carriages in the line of march, and an equal number must have been scattered about the village, besides many that went to the cemetery ahead of the procession.

Upon arriving at the cemetery the members of the Post separated into squads and proceeded to decorate the soldiers' graves with the wreaths and bouquets which had been wrought by fair hands in profusion during the forenoon hours. The Co. C boys then paid the same floral tribute to the deceased members of their Company.

The crowd and military organizations then gathered about the G. A. R. lot, near the vault, to listen to the literary and musical feast in store for them.

Dr. Geo. Howell, who acted as President of the Day, called the assemblage to order and the Band opened the exercises with a dirge entitled, "Our Fallen Comrades."

A chorus of school children, numbering at least one hundred and led by Miss Dora Grayson, sang that grand old song, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." The singers throughout the crowd lent their voices, forming a grand chorus. The noble words, "Sweet land of Liberty; Of Thee I sing," echoed and re-echoed through the cemetery evergreens and floated in dying cadences down Union street into the very heart of the village. Never was that patriotic song given in Tecumseh with more thrilling effect.

Comrade Lemon Barnes followed in prayer.

The children sang another chorus, entitled, "The Ark of Freedom," which was most impressively rendered.

Then came the principal address of the day by Rev. Frank Arnold, who held the crowd for thirty minutes with a fine address. Our limited space will not permit its publication in full, and no synopsis would do it justice.

Commander Camburn and Chaplain Barnes then recited the G. A. R. memorial service from the ritual of the order. The service itself is a beautiful one and it was very impressively rendered.

Co. C then filed down to the brow of the hill, west of the vault, and fired the usual military salute in honor of the dead.

The vocal chorus then gave that grand old song, "The Star Spangled Banner, Oh, long may it wave, o'er the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave!" As a hundred voices pealed forth the soul-inspiring words, the large gathering was held as though entranced. Even the leaves of the trees seemed to catch the inspiration and fluttered their approval and delight.

The Band rendered another funeral march and the exercises closed with the benediction by Comrade Barnes.

The old City Band was at its best. Co. C never appeared to better advantage than on the afternoon's parade. Capt. Hayden has good reason to feel proud of his command. Beers Post turned out finely and the old vets never kept step to the music with a better zest. In fact the whole program from first to last was an unqualified success

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the state board of health by sixty-eight observers in different parts of the state for the week ended May 23 indicated that diphtheria, puerperal fever and erysipelas increased, and membranous croup, cholera infantum, typhoid fever, dysentery, inflammation of the brain, cholera morbus and pneumonia decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twenty-two places, scarlet fever at thirty, typhoid fever at six and measles at forty-three places.

Both Were Drowned.

The 9-year-old son of W. O. Fuller, of Bay City, while playing on the logs in the boom of Peters' mill, fell in and was drowned. The body was recovered at West Bay City. Joseph Sheron, aged 9, plunged into the river near the Michigan Central bridge to swim and did not return to the surface. It is supposed that he struck his head against a sunken log, as the water was but four feet deep. The body was recovered.

Homeopaths Elect Officers.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the State Homeopathic Medical society held at Grand Rapids elected the following officers:

President, J. C. Wood, of Ann Arbor; vice presidents, H. C. Brigham, of Grand Rapids, and A. B. Cornell, of Kalamazoo; general secretary, Harold Wilson, of Detroit; corresponding secretary, W. A. Polglase, of Detroit; treasurer, H. M. Warren, of Jonesville; member of the board of control, W. M. Bailey, of Detroit.

A Big Celery Crop.

There are in the limits of Kalamazoo township 3,000 acres under cultivation for celery plants, and much money is interested therein. A celery buyer who lately visited the district says the outlook is splendid for a big crop, and that not less than 4,500,000 dozen will be sent out of Kalamazoo, from which the producers and workers will realize something like a million.

Drugs and Liquors Ablaze.

Fire broke out in J. E. Davis & Co.'s wholesale drug house at Detroit, and before the flames were extinguished the Davis building was in ruins, involving a loss of $150,000. Fechheimer's liquor store was damaged $30,000, the Gebhardt Paper Company $12,000 and the Campau building $25,000.

Must Use Wool Twine.

Many wool growers in the state have for several years past been in the habit of tying their fleeces with binding twine. Eastern wool buyers have recently issued a circular to their state purchasers notifying them that fleeces must be tied with wool twine or stand a discount of two cents.

Isaac P. Dumond, 79 years old, and Mrs. Rosie Rogers, 70 years old, of Flint, have been licensed to marry by the county clerk of Genesee.

Samuel Rose, the oldest resident of Newaygo county, died of dropsy. He leaves a family and large property in pine woods and the like.

Col. John Montgomery, who served in the Blackhawk war and was an ex-member of the legislature, died at Eaton Rapids, aged 87 years.

The Marquette prison will build $11,000 worth of new workshops.

The fish commission has planted 1,250,000 wall-eyed pike in Gourdneck and West lakes, near Kalamazoo.

The lumber camp of Newell Avery, located in Gladwin county, was burned with a loss of $3,000; no insurance.

The Ishpeming Press announces that it will hereafter publish no fish stories unless the story is accompanied by sample to prove the truth of the tale.

The temperance ladies of Manistee have completed a $5,000 home for girls who need reformation. The grounds belonging to the home cover twenty acres.

News has reached Sault Ste. Marie of the burning of $30,000 worth of pine logs at Deer park, an isolated point 60 miles from there. The logs were owned by C. H. Bradley & Son, of Bay City.

Two youngsters named O'Leary were put in jail at Houghton to await the results of a thrashing they gave one of their companions named Berg, aged about 14 years, who was not expected to live as his skull was cracked.

MICHIGAN LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.

LANSING, Mich., May 27.—The senate yesterday passed the Beson bill for reapportioning the representative districts. Gov. Winans vetoed the bill making an appropriation of $30,000 to aid in entertaining the National G. A. R. encampment in August.

LANSING, Mich., May 28.—The senate yesterday substituted the name of St. Joseph as the designation by which the consolidated cities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor shall be known. The bill is made a special order for next Tuesday.

LANSING, Mich., May 29.—The senate yesterday by an adverse committee report killed the bill prohibiting the importation of Pinkerton men to do police duty in Michigan.

LANSING, Mich., May 30.—The senate yesterday passed the house bill appropriating $69,520 for the normal school at Ypsilanti. Adjourned to Monday.

HOUSE.

LANSING, Mich., May 27.—The house yesterday passed a bill appropriating $25,000 for the erection of a cottage for males at the criminal insane asylum.

LANSING, Mich., May 28.—The house yesterday passed a bill submitting to the people the question of calling a convention to revise the state constitution.

LANSING, Mich., May 29.—In the house yesterday the committee on ways and means reported favorably the bill appropriating $125,000 for an exhibit at the world's fair. A substitute for the free pass bill was reported which includes all state, legislative and judicial officers, and makes it a felony for them to accept free transportation.

LANSING, Mich., May 30.—Representative Diekma's kindergarten bill passed the house yesterday. It allows school boards at their option to introduce kindergartens in the district schools. Adjourned to Monday.

TRYING TO CORNER WHEAT.

C. E. Pillsbury Buying Heavily, and Some One May Get Squeezed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 27.—Those who are on the inside in chamber of commerce circles in Minneapolis see the hand of C. E. Pillsbury deep in the wheat pit. The fact is that by the time Mr. Pillsbury's July contract wheat is in he will have possession of more than all of the dealers. Tuesday he bought three-fourths of all the wheat offered on the board, and he is buying every day. It is figured that there is about 9,400,000 bushels of wheat in Minneapolis. Out of this amount there is about 6,000,000 contract grade and No. 1 northern. These two latter classes are the wheat Mr. Pillsbury has been so extensively buying. There are many men who have contracted for July delivery to Mr. Pillsbury who are not able or will not be able to come up to the scratch, and they will be obliged to buy contract wheat of Mr. Pillsbury himself to deliver to Mr. Pillsbury. Those who are opposed to Mr. Pillsbury say that he is trying to get all this wheat in a corner where he can put it at any figure he may desire.

FATALLY WHIPPED IN SCHOOL.

Miss Jennie Webb Tried for Causing the Death of One of Her Pupils.

PONTIAC, Mich., May 28.—Last June Miss Jennie Webb, a school-teacher, whipped Frank Cook, one of her pupils, with a strap. The boy went home, his legs and body marked with great welts by the strap. He was shortly after taken with paralysis and died. The doctors said the whipping caused his death. The coroner's jury found that Miss Webb was to blame and the police magistrate held her for trial. The case has been on trial a week in the circuit court before Judge J. B. Moore and was concluded Wednesday. The sympathy of the audience was with Miss Webb, who has changed under the trial from a bright-faced young woman to a prematurely old one. This evidently had its effect on the jury, for they returned a verdict of assault and battery after three hours in the jury room. Miss Webb, who has rich relatives, was held on bail for sentence, but the limit is $100 fine and three months' imprisonment.

TO RAISE REINDEER.

The Government to Use the Fleet-Footed Animals as Beasts of Burden.

MADISON, Wis., May 29.—The government has asked Capt. C. A. Curtis, of this city, a retired army officer, to go to St. Lawrence island, in the Behring sea, to take charge of a station about to be established there for a year. The interior department desires to establish a station on this island and begin the breeding of reindeer there to be used instead of dogs for hauling. It is the intention of the government to import reindeer from Siberia to the island, and a number of Siberians will be engaged to teach the natives how to raise and care for the animals. A reindeer park will be established, and as soon as the animals are obtained in sufficient numbers some of them will be taken to Alaska and distributed among the people in that country. St. Lawrence island is about 36 miles from the coast of Asia, and 50 from Alaska, in the Behring sea.

RIOT IN A CIRCUS.

Fully a Hundred Shots Fired and Several People Fatally Injured.

MAHANOY CITY, Pa., May 28.—This city was the scene of a terrible riot Tuesday evening caused by the employes of Wallace's circus firing into a part of the audience that remained in the show after the performance was over and fatally wounding Patrick Quinn, from Shenandoah, and several others. It appears the crowd did not move fast enough to please the employes, who were anxious to get the canvas down, and they made an attempt to hustle them out. Blows were struck and a fierce fight took place. Another squad of circus men with guns loaded came to the rescue of those engaged and commenced firing into the crowd with the above result. Fully 100 shots were fired by the circus men from guns loaded with shot.

Will Be a Big Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 1.—Arrangements for the international convention of the Christian Endeavor societies, to be held in the Twin cities July 9 to 12, are about completed. The convention will be held in the exposition Building, which is being remodeled for the occasion. Fifteen thousand delegates are expected.

Three Drowned.

PLATTSBURG, Mo., June 1.—A. E. Meinmoyer and two daughters, Rosa and Ella, of this place, were drowned Sunday while driving across a swollen creek.

Footprints of the World's History.

It is a relief to pick up a new book that is at once thrilling, romantic, wholesome, pure, and true. Such a work is "Footprints of the World's History," the latest and greatest work of the two celebrated historians, John Clark Ridpath and Wm. S. Bryan. These distinguished gentlemen, having won their laurels by independent writings, have co-operated on this work, and produced a gem "of the purest ray serene." It is not a dry, uninteresting statement of the plain facts, but rather each of the most important events of history has been taken up and described by a master of language, who holds the reader entranced as he wends his way along the path of history, following carefully in the footprints of progress.

We are delighted with this superb volume. Perfect in thought, superb in style, and magnificent in execution. The bindings are as fine as are also the many illustrations and colored plates. The Publishers have rightly concluded that such a gem should have a rich setting.

It is a valuable addition to literature. It is a book for the old as well as the young; the married as well as the single; the gay as well as the grave. Everybody will read it with equal eagerness and profit. It is sold only through agents, and the Publishers' advertisement appears in another column.

Vote of Thanks.

HEADQUARTERS BEERS POST,
No. 140, G. A. R.
TECUMSEH, MICH., June 1, 1891.

It is hereby ordered that a vote of thanks be tendered to all citizens who contributed flowers or money, or took any part in our recent Decoration exercises. By order of the Post.

DEAFNESS CAN'T BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the musous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that we cannot cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE, with its varied and excellent contents, is a library in itself.

It was indeed a happy thought to print an entire novel in each number.

Not a short novelette, but a long story such as you are used to get in book form and pay from one dollar to one dollar and a half for.

Not only that, but with each number you get an abundance of other contributions, which gives you a good magazine besides the novel.

The ringing blows which have been struck on the gateway of popular favor, have resounded throughout the entire land, and to-day Lippincott's Magazine stands in the front rank of monthly publications, and is the most widely-read-and-talked of publication of its kind in the world. For full descriptive circulars, address LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE, Philadelphia

Local and Miscellaneous

Beautiful June days.

A. D. Hall is at Albion this week.

Bert Corey is at home for about six weeks.

The last rains will do the crops a world of good.

Remember the Union Picnic on Saturday, June 13th.

Where was Benjamin when the incandescent lights went out?

The Lenawee Baptist Association is in session this week at Dundee.

Miss Nettie Viers, of Defiance, Ohio, is the guest of Miss Ollie Blymyer.

Miss Mamie Osborn was home from the Normal last Saturday and Sunday.

Jim Aten is clerking for a few days in D. L. Whitenack & Co's hardware store.

Mrs. C. V. Hicks of Oscoda is visiting friends and relatives in Tecumseh for a few days.

Jim O'Riley, who is clerking in a Chicago dry goods store, is at home for a few days.

Eugene Clarkson of Detroit spent a couple of days last week at the old home in Macon.

A number of Tecumseh Masons attended the Decoration services at Manchester last Sunday.

The Farmers' Social Club will hold its annual picnic at Sand Lake on Saturday, June 20th.

W. F. Muir, of Clinton, was in town Tuesday. He is spending a portion of his time now at Eaton Rapids.

James Updike has moved into the village, occupying the Cupples house, at the corner of Chicago and Adrian streets.

J. W. Crane of Chicago was visiting at Geo. Griswold's the first of the week. His wife will remain a few weeks longer before returning home.

D. C. LeBaron and wife of Toledo were here to attend Decoration. His wife will remain a few days to visit friends before returning home.

Henry Wilson's strawberry crop is coming on finely and he expects a larger crop than he has ever before gathered. He wants pickers and lots of them at once.

The lemonade season has opened at Mrs. VanAntwerp's. They know how to mix a good lemonade at that stand and business will prosper there, now the warm weather has fairly set in.

We are glad to state the fact that Mrs. C. M. Tillon, who has been quite ill for the past three weeks, is on the gain with fair prospects for a speedy and full recovery. It will be four weeks next Friday since she was taken sick.

The fire boys were called out about three o'clock yesterday morning, the cause of the alarm being the burning of Morris Hyde's barn. The origin of the fire is a mystery. The promptness of the fire department saved the house on the west from destruction.

Mrs. Hayden's cottage at Sand Lake has been christened "Oak Hill Lodge". The cottage has been prepared for occupancy and some of the family will remain there during the coming warm months. For beauty of location and convenience of arrangement it is not surpassed by any cottage about the lake.

Prof. L. H. Dewey of Washington and his wife were in town Sunday, visiting at H. C. Conkling's. They will spend a few days at his father's home in Cambridge, F. A. Dewey's, and then the Professor will proceed to Arizona and California to gather specimens for the botanical Department at Washington, where he is now employed. His old friends hereabouts will gladly note how he is climbing the ladder of fame.

Hon. J. D. Shull came home from Lansing to help the G. A. R. boys celebrate Memorial day.

The old members of Co. F. 26th Inf. will not forget their annual meeting at Britton on Saturday the 13th.

The shops about town were closed last Saturday to enable the workmen to take part in Decoration exercises.

About a dozen members of the Baptist church attended the Lenawee Association held at Dundee this week.

Col. Bowen of the First Reg. and his wife were in Tecumseh last Saturday and witnessed the Decoration ceremonies.

Martin A. Zimmerman rejoices in an addition to his family. A Beautiful little girl arrived at his home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Brown, of Toledo, will spend next Sunday in Tecumseh, and a few days thereafter, the guests of A. M. Hewitt.

Let every rider of a wheel attend the meeting at the council rooms, at 7:30 this evening, and aid in completing the organization of a Bicycle Club.

The graduating class of Tecumseh High School this year contains fifteen members. The Commencement exercises will take place on Thursday, June 25th.

Ex-Sheriff Fessenden of Mt. Pleasant was in town last Saturday. He had been on a trip to Washington and stopped over one day here on his return home.

The Creamery has received a large number of new patrons during the past month, and business will be lively at that institution during the remainder of the summer.

The incandescent lights on the street suddenly went out Tuesday evening, but the stoppage was of short duration. They were running again all right in fifteen minutes.

Would it not be a good plan for the several clubs, that compose the Union Picnic association, to procure badges for their members, to be worn on the day of the picnic?

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Lester of Detroit were visiting friends here last Saturday and Sunday. He returned on Monday, but his wife will remain here three or four weeks.

John Vedder has hired out for one year to run his father's dray. This will be a good arrangement, as Mr. Vedder can then be able to secure a few months rest, which he sorely needs.

Dr. Lewis Meeker, wife and son, of Brooklyn N. Y. were in town two days the fore part of the week, the guests of Dr. D. D. Meeker. His professional duties at home rendered his stay here very brief.

The ladies of the Order of the Eastern Star are requested to meet at the residence of Mrs. J. F. Hicks on Saturday June 6th at two o'clock p. m. to arrange flowers for use at the Masonic Decoration on the Sunday following.

Co. F. of the 26th. Inf. will hold their annual reunion at Britton on Saturday of next week, June 13th. It is a pity that it falls on the same day of the Union Picnic, but both dates have been fixed for some time, and neither can be changed now.

Yesterday afternoon occurred the funeral of Richard VanDuzer, who died June 1st. at 5:30 P. M., aged 42 years. This family has passed through a severe ordeal during the past three weeks. Mr. VanDuzer was a kind hearted, hard working man, forty-two years of age, and when Heck's mill burned he was deprived of his natural mode of supporting a wife and seven children. Two of the children were taken sick, the youngest improved and the son is still in a critical condition. The father was obliged to give up. Inflammation of the lungs prostrated this family and after ten days suffering the father died. Faint hopes of the boy's recovery are entertained this morning. This unfortunate case is worthy of the deepest sympathy of our community. The funeral services were held at the Baptist church, Rev. J. S. Joslin officiating, and were attended by many friends. Mr. VanDuzer had engaged to work for Root & Boyd, and was to have begun work June 1st. the very day of his death.

Sunday evening last the Presbyterian church was well filled to hear a lecture on the suciect of Mormons, by the Rev. S. E. Wishard, who has spent some time among these queer people. He opened his talk with a scrap of history, showing that Mormonism, or the Latter Day Saints, was founded on falsehood. The Mormon bible, that Joseph Smith claimed to have received from an angel, was nothing more than a book a Presbyterian minister had written to pass away his time, and was stolen by Smith. He traced the movements of the Mormons from New York to Utah, telling of the many misdeeds, murders and robbery of the leaders. For many years the Mormons had their own way in their new home at Salt Lake—marrying as many wives as their fancy dictated—but when the Edmunds bill was passed in Congress a few years ago things changed, and many of those who formerly believed in the faith have left the church. But few people have any conception of the lives the women live in Utah. The women keep the men and make the living for the family. Many missionaries are now scattered through Utah and much good is being done. Did space permit we would be pleased to publish an extended notice of this interesting lecture.

Our new Jeweler, Ed. Kirchgessner, has a new card this week.

Wm. C. Heck is spending the present week at South Bend with his sons.

James Wilson and wife of Owosso were visiting old Tecumseh friends yesterday.

L. M. Pittman and wife of Detroit were the guests of Lon Tribou's family last Sunday.

Dr. Snyder is doing some good work in Tecumseh taking subscriptions for the Standard.

John Heck and wife and Miss Best leave this week for an extended visit at Springfield, Mo., and in that vicinity.

Uncle Charley Spafford of Manitou was down to help celebrate Decoration with his old comrades of Beers Post.

In the merry-go-round of business Jas Lowry never gets left. He swings out a new card in this week's HERALD.

Special Towel sale this week—prices 15 and 25 cents each. Sale commences Friday morning. Come and see them.
ANDERSON & Co.

John Trann has been in Springfield, Ill. for the past few weeks where he has a position for the Standard Oil Co and his wife left home for that city last Monday.

All persons wishing to assist the sufferers by the late fire in Muskegon, will please send clothes and bedding to M. P. Brown's, where a box is being packed this week.

First and Second Lieutenants Osborn and McClure have resigned their positions in Co. C, to take immediate effect. A special election has been ordered to fill the vacancies thus created.

A special communication of Masonic Blue Lodge will be held to-morrow (Friday) evening, for work in the third degree. A large delegation of visiting brethren is expected from Adrian.

Although we have hardly let our fire go out yet, we notice Slayton filling bins for next winter, and if your bin is ready its a good time to have it filled, as prices are liable to advance at any time.

The Master Masons of Tecumseh jurisdiction are requested to meet at the lodge room on Sunday, June 7th, at 2:15 o'clock P. M., to proceed to the cemetery to decorate the graves of departed Master Masons.

Mr. and Mrs. Zack Cook of Raisin are visiting their daughter at Rockville Center, Queens County, N. Y. It is a small village on Long Island, but a short ride from Brooklyn. They expect to remain during the month of June.

The concert by the pupils of the Tecumseh schools will be given Friday, June 12th at the Opera House, and will consist of duets, part songs, choruses and one scene from the 'Flower Queen.' Admission 15 and 10cts. Reserved seats 20cts.

Yesterday while P. S. McKinnon was doing some sawing at Brewer's foundry a small board was caught in the saw and was thrown against his face, cutting it quite badly. The injury is not a serious one but it will be a disagreeable reminder for a few days.

The repairs on the Lilley House are still progressing. The hotel office will soon be removed into the corner room of the block which will be another great improvement. If Landlord Patterson keeps on, it will be difficult to tell where this thing is going to stop.

A reception was tendered to Rev. S. E. Wishard, at the parlors of the Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening, at which time a large number of his old acquaintances had the pleasure of shaking him by the hand. There was a large gathering present, refreshments were served and the evening passed away very pleasantly.

Next Tuesday, June 9th, will be Flower Mission Day. The W. C. T. U. rooms will be open early on that morning and a committee of ladies present to receive contributions of flowers to be made into bouquets for the sick and shut in ones in our own village. It is hoped the friends will contribute generously as the work is growing greater each year.

The funeral services of Mrs. A. D. Lawrence were held at the residence Friday afternoon and the house was filled with sympathizing friends of the family. Rev. W. H. Babbitt offered a few remarks filled with consolation and hope and the remains of the loved one were conveyed to their final resting place. They were all mourners there that day.

Adamson Bros. have now got fairly settled in their new store and they hold a business levee next Saturday in the shape of a formal opening. They have an elegant store filled with the choisest goods in their line. Life is too short, however, to particularize. Go there next Saturday and see for yourselves, and do not neglect to read their new advertisement in the HERALD.

The steam Merry-Go-Round was securely planted last Monday in the lot East of the Central School Building and has been doing a lively business ever since. It is the most complete affair of that character that has ever visited Tecumseh. If you have not already taken a "turn round" upon it, don't fail to do so, for you can't get dizzy headed any easier. The proprietor will finish the week here and deserves a liberal patronage from this time until Saturday night.

A SUDDEN CALL.

A Tragic Occurrence in the Presbyterian Assembly.

While Making An Address on the Briggs Case Judge Breckinridge Falls to the Floor and Expires—The Heresy Debate.

SILENCED BY DEATH.

DETROIT, Mich., May 29.—The proceedings against Dr. Charles Augustus Briggs, of Union seminary, in the Presbyterian general assembly were tragically and solemnly interrupted Thursday afternoon. At 2:30 o'clock the Presbyterian general assembly reconvened and resumed the discussion of the resolution disapproving of Dr. Briggs' appointment to the chair of biblical theology, which had consumed all the morning hours. Judge S. M. Breckinridge, of St. Louis, one of the elders of the committee on theological seminaries, took the platform in defense of the report submitted Wednesday night by Dr. Patton, the chairman, and in support of the resolution of disapproval. The speaker was the picture of vigorous old age. His hair and beard were frosted with time, but his figure was erect and his speech, firm and decided in the beginning, gave no indication of the approach of death. Yet within fifteen minutes from the time he stepped upon the platform in the glory of a splendid manhood, in the fullest possession of uncommon mental attributes and apparently of physical powers far greater than men of his age usually enjoy, his lifeless form was carried from the audience-room of the Fort Street church.

He made a strong address in behalf of the committee's report. His voice was clear at the outset, but became husky and broken after a time. Then, in evident haste to finish, he grouped his principal arguments and advanced them without elaboration and in short, emphatic sentences. Finally he was seen to waver and reached for the desk of Rev. Alexander G. Russell, the temporary clerk, for support. He said: "Now, gentlemen, I feel that I have discharged my duty and wish to be excused from further speech. My voice troubles—I have—I have done my duty. I—"

His voice died away, and turning half round, as if to leave the stage, he fell to the floor. His failure of speech was attributed by the great audience to emotion created by the important subject under discussion. At once a dozen willing men seated upon or near the stage sprang forward to save him. Hundreds in the audience rushed forward moved by the same desire. The quick, decisive voice of Clerk W. H. Roberts averted a crush: "Stand back! Stand back! Let him have air!" The men slowly settled back in their seats; the women wept silently. The aisle was cleared and tender hands bore the stricken man to the room in the rear of the pulpit.

Dr. Yemans, of Detroit, and Dr. Cornelius Shepard, of New Brunswick, responded to the moderator's request for medical attention. Every means known to medical science for producing artificial respiration and winning life back were vainly applied. The heart ceased to beat before the prostrate man had been lifted. "Heart failure" was the cause assigned for the death.

Meanwhile the members of the assembly who had not seen the set features of their fellow-commissioner as the body was carried out believed or hoped that the illness was but temporary, not mortal. Dr. Hays, of Kansas City, arose in the silence that fell upon the people and suggested that a prayer be offered. Dr. Hays himself was designated by Moderator Green and with every head bowed and with the words echoing in every soul the invocation went upward. This finished, a delegate arose to move an amendment to the pending question.

"Let us first hear from Judge Breckinridge. I do not suppose—" began Dr. Hays. At this juncture a messenger hastily stepped upon the platform and whispered to Dr. Roberts. The stated clerk turned to the assembly and said in a low and suppressed but penetrating voice: "Judge Breckinridge is dead." There was a solemn hush.

It was the climax of a day which will be historic in the annals of the Presbyterian church. There was the wail of women and the sobbing of men. The two divisions of the house but a few minutes before arrayed against each other on what they considered essential points of doctrine, unwilling to concede to the other, melted and mingled in a common grief. Death had disarmed them. Moderator Green in a faltering, grief-broken accent, offered prayer. It was then suggested by Dr. George P. Hays, down whose cheeks the tears coursed as he spoke, that after the moderator had appointed a committee to draft suitable minutes and resolutions to spread on the record, that further business be foregone and the assembly adjourn.

While the committee was in consultation different friends of the late Judge Breckinridge paid warm tributes to his character and worth as a man and a Christian. After a half hour taken up with eulogies, prayers and the singing of hymns the committee reported that Gen. Alger had offered his private car to convey the remains to St. Louis, and that it was deemed advisable to leave on the sad journey at once.

[Judge Samuel M. Breckinridge was one of the most prominent figures of the St. Louis bar. For thirteen years he had been president of the University club, one of the most influential social organizations in the city. He belonged to the famous Breckinridge family, of Kentucky, was a cousin of John C. Breckinridge and a nephew of Robert J. Breckinridge. Born in Baltimore, Md., November 3, 1828, he attended Union college, New York, and Princeton college, graduated from the law school of Lexington, Ky., and came to St. Louis in 1850. In 1854 and 1855 he represented this city in the legislature, and in 1859 was made state circuit judge. He was a member of several Presbyterian assemblies and was a leader in church circles.]

MAN'S INHUMANITY.

The Brutal Treatment Inflicted Upon Unfortunate Jews in Russia.

BERLIN, May 29.—The Hebrew relief committee here has secured a long railway tunnel at Charlottenburg in which to shelter Russian Jews en route to Hamburg for embarkment. Boxes of clothing and necessaries, enormous boilers of tea and coffee and supplies of bread and brandy are in readiness to relieve the misery of the crowds of fugitives that daily pour out of the railway trains. Many heart-rending scenes are described and tales are told of extreme suffering. Many of the fugitives had to leave on a day's notice and were compelled to abandon everything but what they stood in, while others, often octogenarians who are hardly able to walk, are seen staggering under sacks containing all their worldly possessions. In many cases the fugitives are of the poorest classes, with numerous scantily-dressed children tagging at their mothers' skirts, and crying for bread. All are shy and suspicious, remembering their ill treatment at Russian railway stations, and fear fresh torments and privations if they enter the waiting rooms. A doctor attends the children who are ill from the effects of the journey. The fugitives describe how the streets in which they lived would be suddenly cordoned with the police searching for Jews, who would fly to the synagogues for safety; how the doors of the synagogue would be wrenched off and troops of armed men would tie their hands and feet and plunder everything in the place, and how on arriving at the frontier the police would extort fresh bribes to allow them to cross.

HEIRS TO $1,000,000.

Decision in the Celebrated Myra Clark Gaines Will Case.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Surrogate Abbott in Brooklyn handed down his decision Thursday morning in the celebrated Myra Clark Gaines will contest, in which over $1,000,000 is involved. The surrogate declared that the will of January 8, 1885, made in New Orleans on the day before Mrs. Gaines died, and which named Marie P. Evans as sole executrix, is a forgery. He declares that the will made in January, 1885, which names William A. Wilder and James T. Christman as executors, is legal and admissable to probate.

[Myra Clark Gaines, wife of Maj. Gen. Edmund Pendleton Gaines, was born in New Orleans in 1805. She became famous chiefly through the remarkable lawsuit in which she was involved. Her father, Daniel Clark, born in Sligo, Ireland, in 1766, emigrated to New Orleans. In 1799 he inherited his uncle's property in that place. He became United States consul before the acquisition of the state and represented the territory of Louisiana in congress from 1806 to 1808. He died in New Orleans August 16, 1813. Under the provisions of a will dated May 20, 1811, his estate passed to his mother, Mary Clark, who had followed him to the United States, and then lived in Germantown, Pa. The testament appointed Messrs. Relf and Chew executors. Mr. Clark had, it was supposed, been a bachelor. It was known, however, that he had contracted a liasion with Mme. Zulime des Granges, a very beautiful young French woman, during the absence of her supposed husband in Europe. Two daughters were the result of this connection, one of whom was Myra Clark, afterward Mrs. Gaines. She claimed property in New Orleans worth many millions under her mother's will and contested her rights in the courts for over forty years. She died five years ago and her two children continued the fight with the result that her will presented by them is now sustained. The money for which she fought for so hard during her life will go to the Wilder and Christman children, her grandchildren.]

Memorial Day.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Dispatches received here state that Decoration day was observed in nearly every city and town in the country. The feature in this city was a magnificent military and civic parade in which the regular army troops quartered at Fort Sheridan and various regiments of state militia participated. At Philadelphia President Harrison reviewed a parade of old veterans and civic societies, and at Riverside park, New York, Hon. John S. Wise, of Virginia, delivered an address at the tomb of Gen. Grant.

Will Meet in Chicago in 1893.

ROME, June 1.—The preliminary conference of the international peace congress was opened in Milan Saturday. A large number of delegates from Italian municipal councils were present. Deputies Maffi and Pandolfipareto were chosen as president and vice president respectively. An invitation from the Boston Peace society to hold an international congress in Chicago during the Columbian fair in that city was accepted.

Dead for Several Days.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., May 29.—A special from Climax says that the dead body of Mrs. Adeline Hawyer was found on the floor of her residence, with the hands and neck wound with cord. It is believed that she had been dead for several days and an investigation is in progress.

Arkansas' World's Fair Convention.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 28. Gov. Eagle has issued a proclamation calling a state world's fair convention to meet in this city August 5. The representation will be the same as that of the house of representatives, with the addition of six delegates from the state at large.

Receivers Appointed.

TRENTON, N. J., May 29.—O. O. Bowman has been appointed receiver of the Star rubber works. The liabilities are over $600,000 and assets less than $400,000. Frank A. Magowan has been appointed receiver for the Hamilton Rubber Company. Liabilities, $100,000.

Train Wreckers at Work.

CENTRALIA, Ill., June 1.—A passenger train on the Illinois Central road was thrown from the track near this city by train wreckers, and Engineer Quirk was killed and Fireman Todd fatally injured.

Tried to Steal Barnum's Body.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 1.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to steal the body of P. T. Barnum from its grave near this city. It has been decided to exhume the remains and cremate them.

AN AWFUL BLAST.

Frightful Accident in a Tunnel on Kelso Mountain, Col.

Many Pounds of Dynamite Explode—The Charge Goes Off Prematurely and Four Miners Are Literally Torn to Fragments.

UNFORTUNATE MINERS.

GREENCASTLE, Col., June 1.—A terrible accident is reported at the east end of the Atlantic-Pacific tunnel on Kelso mountain, about 8 miles from Silver Plume, by which four men lost their lives. The names of the dead men are Harry Taylor, William Goughlin, J. Richardson and John Mullholland.

They were employed at the breast of the tunnel in loading poles. The tunnel is very long and is worked by power drills, so they carried with them about seventy-five pounds of dynamite or giant powder to complete the loading. From the breast of the tunnel is a drift on one of the lodes, in which Moritz Fariton was working. It was customary for the men in the shaft to come back and warn Fariton of a coming blast, but a sudden and unusual explosion threw him off his feet, stunning him badly. After he recovered he started to the mouth of the tunnel, wondering why the shift had not notified him as usual. On getting to the engine-room he told the engineer that the men had set off the blast without telling him and that he was hurt, and wanted to know why they were so careless, asking where they were. The engineer said they had not come out. A search party was organized and found all four men named had been literally blown to fragments by a premature explosion of nearly 100 pounds of dynamite. The accident was about 3,500 feet from the mouth of the tunnel. The force of the explosion tore a great hole in the wall of the tunnel and a great quantity of rock blocked the way of the rescuing party for a time. A majority of the stock of the Atlantic-Pacific tunnel is owned by "Brick" Pomeroy.

ANOTHER EXPLOSION.

FRANKFORT, Ind., May 30.—Frankfort was the scene of a terrible disaster Thursday afternoon. The large boiler at P. E. Kramer's sawmill exploded with appalling results. Frank Hall, the engineer, was instantly killed, and William Davis, Eric Koontz, Benjamin Keys and Van Swarengen were fatally injured. Of the thirteen men employed in the mill scarcely one escaped without more or less injury.

DEATH OF DR. BARKER.

Sudden Demise of the Eminent New York Physician—Biographical Sketch.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Dr. Fordyce Barker, one of the most eminent physicians in the United States, died here Saturday afternoon, aged 73 years. Apoplexy was the cause. He was unconscious for a number of hours before death. Two days before his death Dr. Barker was out attending patients and during his short illness many people who were under his care came to his office. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at St. Thomas' Episcopal church, of which Dr. Barker had been a member forty years.

D.; Lima, O.; Madison, Wis.; Rockford, Ill.; Rock Island, Ill.; Sioux City, Ia.; Sioux Falls, S. D.; Sheboygan, Wis.; South Bend, Ind.; Saginaw, Mich., and Taunton, Mass.

A Brakeman's Bad Mistake.

MUNCIE, Ind., June 1.—Sunday morning at Goldsmith, a small station west of Muncie, a Lake Erie & Western freight brakeman caused a terrific explosion and nearly lost his life by foolishly removing the top of an oil tank car and placing his lantern in to see if it was empty. The gas at once ignited, burning the man's eyes out and badly damaging the car. The brakeman was blown from the train into a wheat field 50 feet distant.

Will Be a Big Convention.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 1.—Arrangements for the international convention of the Christian Endeavor societies, to be held in the Twin Cities July 9 to 12, are about completed. The convention will be held in the exposition building, which is being remodeled for the occasion. Fifteen thousand delegates are expected.

Hundreds Killed.

MARSEILLES, June 1.—A steamer that has arrived here from the New Hebrides islands, in the south Pacific, brings advices to the effect that a state of anarchy prevails there. Numerous conflicts have occurred, in which 600 natives were killed. In each case the bodies of the dead were eaten by the victors.

Ran Down by a Train.

LEBANON, Ind., May 29.—While Martin Spillman and wife were driving across the railroad track near here Wednesday evening they were struck by the eastbound train on the "Big Four" road and fatally injured.

Another Shoe Firm Goes Down.

Vetoed Dr. Briggs' Appointment.

DETROIT, Mich., June 1.—The Presbyterian general assembly in session in this city vetoed the appointment of Dr. Charles A. Briggs as professor in the theological seminary.

A LITTLE GIRL'S EXPERIENCE IN A LIGHTHOUSE.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the Gov. Lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich. and are blessed with a daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with Measles, followed with a with a dreadful Cough and turning into a Fever. Doctors at home and at Detroit treated her, but in vain, she grew worse rapidly, until she was a mere "handful of bones".—Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery and after the use of two and a half bottles, was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold, yet you may get a trial bottle free at J. J. Orr's drug store.

After all, the best way to know the real merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla, is to try it yourself. Be sure to get Hood's.

The Eloquent Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago, Does Suffering Humanity a Great Service by Telling His Experience with a Great Family Medicine. Read:

"An almost fatal attack of La Grippe last winter left me with nasal Catarrh and such susceptibility to bronchial irritation that the slightest exposure could develop it, and a very little effort in public speaking would result in a distressing hoarseness so that I had serious fears of permanent disability. "Besides, I suffered with dyspeptic troubles—notably what is popularly known as 'heartburn,' from which I found it difficult to obtain relief. "I was induced by a friend to try KING'S ROYAL GERMETUER, and it gives me great pleasure to say that its effect has been as magical as 'Koch's lymph' is reputed to be, which is also a 'germ destroyer,' though taken in a different way. "Catarrh, bronchial irritation, and dyspepsia have all disappeared before one bottle of the GERMETUER has been used. "One of my sons, who has long been a sufferer from Catarrh, has received like signal relief from his old enemy. P. S. HENSON. "Chicago, Dec. 10, 1890."

GERMETUER cures by killing the disease germ and thus removing the cause. It is a specific for Catarrh, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Lung, Blood, Liver, Kidney, and Bowel Trouble. IT IS WOMAN'S BEST FRIEND, regulating all irregularities. It builds up from the first dose. For sale by druggists, or will be sent anywhere C. O. A NATIONAL EVENT.

The holding of the World's Fair in an city scarcely fifty years old will be a event, but whether it will really benefit this nation as much as the discovery of the Restorative Nervine by Dr. Franklin Miles is doubtful. This is just what the American people need to cure their excessive nervousness, dyspepsia, headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, neuralgia, nervous debility, dulness, confusion of mind, etc. It acts like a charm. Trial bottles and fine book on Nervous and heart Diseases, with unequal testimonials, free at Baker and Hall's. It is warranted to contain no opium, morphine or dangerous drugs.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent;
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault. Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill.

THE DOMINIE'S NEW PIPE.

A Story with a Moral.

Within his chair the dominie
Sat at his open cottage door;
His neighbor's baby on his knee,
Another on the grassy floor.
And as he puff'd his brand new pipe
He looked like peace's prototype.

Of carven stone that wondrous bowl—
Cupids, from latest Dutch designs;
Upon its top was shaped a scroll
On which appeared these loving lines:
"Old Amsterdam sends o'er the sea
This tribute of respect to thee."

It was a quiet eve in June,
With crimson clouds and golden sky;
And to her southern throne the moon
Timidly mounted, pale and shy.
Alas, that peace should reign above,
And earth decline the rule of love!

The governor, with angry brow,
Paced up and down the garden walk;
Some pilfering brave had filched his cow,
And war was his revengeful talk.
"I'll put a price," he fiercely said,
"On every savage rascal's head!"

"Oh, shame!" replied the godly man,
"Must human blood be shed for this?
Believe me, 'twere the wiser plan
So stern a project to dismiss.
Forgive them, sir, and they will learn
To give your kindness kind return."

Bold words! And now he puff'd so fast
That soon the trees were veiled in smoke;
The great man's eyes were downward cast,
'Twas full a minute ere he spoke.
At last he said: "You're right; the thief
Has got a tough old piece of beef!"

The governor walked down the lane,
Musing on—everything but "cow;"
The parson filled his pipe again,
And told his neighbor's chatty vrow
How he had saved a brother race
By words of charity and grace.

Next morning some stalwart burghers brought
The robber of the brindled beast;
The gov'nor led them to the fort,
And when their angry threats had ceased
He said: "For Christian acts I'm ripe;
Has anybody got a pipe?"

Up stepped the parson: "Sir, this deed
Will surely your renown increase;
Perhaps you'll gain a friend in need
By this same pipe of love and peace.
This bowl awaiteth your command;
The best pipe in Nieuw Nederland."

The gov'nor took a whiff or two,
Then passed it to that tawny buck,
Who did the part he had to do
With many a wondering, grateful look:
And then—a form no brave omits—
He smashed that precious pipe to bits.

"You dog!" the dominie exclaimed,
"Your heathen blood for this shall pay!
Be war against his tribe proclaimed;
Nieuw Amsterdam, arm! Arm, I say!"
The gov'nor thundered: "Silent be!
Who touches him lays hands on me!"

Then to the holy man he said:
"Henceforth your counsel you may keep,
The seeds of precept oft are spread
By those who ne'er example reap;
Your sense of wrong is mighty fine—
The pipe was yours, the cow was mine!"

A WOMAN CRUSOE.

Strange Adventures of an English Sailor's Widow.

She Escapes from a Doomed Ship and Lives for Nearly Four Years Alone on an Uninhabited Island in the Java Sea.

On the 26th of October, A. D., 1871, the trading schooner Little King sailed out of the port of Singapore, bound for the Kinderoon islands to the north, and only one of her crew was ever again met with, says the Toronto (Ont.) Truth. For five years before the schooner had belonged to and been commanded by Capt. Ezra Williams, a Canadian from Halifax. He traded between Singapore and Sumatra, Java, Borneo and the smaller islands of the Java sea, and in May, 1871, died at Singapore of fever. He had been married for three years to an English woman, whose maiden name was Danforth, who had been a domestic in an English family in Singapore. She had accompanied him on all his voyages, and had secured much experience and information. As she could not readily dispose of the schooner she determined to continue in the business, acting as her own supercargo.

Mrs. Williams secured an Englishman named Parker as captain, another named Hope as mate, and with three Malays before the mast and a Chinese cook, and with about fourteen hundred pounds in specie in the cabin, she sailed away on her first voyage, and it was four years later before she was again heard of. The purpose of this narrative is to chronicle her adventures in the interim, as I had them from her own lips.

While it was a bit queer to start on a voyage with a woman virtually in command of the craft, Mrs. Williams had nothing to fear from the crew. The officers were good navigators and the men willing, and all were anxious for a profitable voyage. She had no complaints to make until the islands had been reached. The group lies between the Malay peninsula and the island of Borneo, about one hundred miles off the coast of the former, and from two hundred and fifty to three hundred miles from Borneo. There are nineteen islands in the group, covering a length of one hundred and twenty miles by about forty broad.

There are only seven or eight which are inhabited, and the time of which I write the people were a lawless set, and a share of them out-and-out pirates. The products were dried fish, sea shells, cocoanuts, dye stuffs, various herbs and roots for medicinal purposes, and several sorts of spices. The schooner had been there once before and made a profitable trip of it. She had clothing, powder, shoes, axes, and a great variety of notions, and where none of these were wanted she paid cash.

On this trip the schooner worked to northward and made her stop at the island of Quewang, being the third one from the northermost island of the group. She met with a cordial reception, and at once began bartering for and receiving cargo. She was anchored in a sheltered bay, within five hundred feet of the beach, and had been there five days before anything occurred to arouse Mrs. Williams' suspicions that all was not right. She then observed that the entire crew were drinking deeply of a native liquor which the natives were supplying in a liberal manner, and that some of the fellows were becoming impudently familiar. When the captain was spoken to he laughed at her idea of trouble and promised better things, but the drinking continued.

On the afternoon of the seventh day several women came off in the canoes. One of them who could speak English pretty freely was presented with some ornaments by Mrs. Williams, and in turn she hinted to her that it was the intention of the natives to capture and loot the schooner that night. They had discovered that there was a large sum of money on board, and they had found the crew an easy one to handle. The native woman hadn't time nor opportunity to say much, but no sooner had the crowd of natives left the schooner at dusk, as was their custom, than Mrs. Williams set out to sound the alarm.

Imagine her feelings when she discovered that every single man on board, from captain to cook, was so much under the influence of liquor as to be unable to comprehend her words. She doused them with sea water and pounded them with belaying pins, but all to no purpose. The entire lot were stupidly drunk, just as the natives had planned for.

It was a perilous situation for the woman to be placed in. If the natives captured the schooner they would murder every one of the crew as a natural sequence, and the first step toward capturing her had already been taken. The step she took showed sound judgment. The schooner's yawl was down, having been in almost hourly use. The native village was about forty rods back from the beach, and as the schooner swung to the ebb tide she presented her breadside to the village. When the yawl was pulled around to the port side she was out of sight. Mrs. Williams' first act was to step the mast; her next to supply the craft with provisions and water. There was an unusual number of lights burning in the village, showing that something was on foot, but she had no fear of an attack until a later hour. The natives would wait until certain that all the people were helpless.

Mrs. Williams had determined to slip away from the doomed craft in the yawl, although she had no experience in the management of a small boat. After water and provisions she brought up all her money which was in boxes she could handle. Not a penny of it was left behind. There was a rifle, revolver and double-barreled shotgun belonging to her husband. These she took, together with powder, shot and fixed ammunition. Then she gathered up all her bedding and clothing, took three or four spare blankets, two suits of clothes belonging to the officers, and when these were in the boat she took pots, pans, dishes and cutlery, bundled up a lot of carpenter's tools, secured two axes, a lot of small rope, several pieces of canvas, and in brief loaded the yawl with whatever was portable and handy, including the clock, compass, quadrant, sextant and a lamp and four gallons of oil. She worked for upward of two hours getting these things into a boat, and the last articles taken aboard were meat, flour, beans, tea and provisions from the lazarette.

It was about ten o'clock when Mrs. Williams took her seat in the yawl and cast off from the schooner, and the tide at once drifted her out of the bay and to the north. The only thing of consequence she had forgotten was a chart of the Java sea which she could have put her hand on at a minute's notice, and it was the want of this which made a Crusoe of her for several years. As the yawl went out to sea after its own fashion, Mrs. Williams lost the points of the compass at once. Indeed, had she kept them in mind it would have been no benefit just then, as she had not studied the chart and could not have told which way to steer to reach another group or the land.

She heard nothing whatever from the natives, but several years later it was ascertained that they did not board the schooner until midnight. The men, all of whom were still drunk and asleep, were stripped and tossed overboard to drown, and then the absence of the woman and her money was discovered. Five or six native crafts were at once sent in pursuit, while the people who remained looted the schooner of everything of value to them, and then towed her out to deep water and scuttled her to hide the evidence of their crime.

After drifting three or four miles out to sea the yawl got a light breeze, and after a few trials the woman learned how to manage the sail and lay a course. She had no idea which way she was heading, but ran off before the breeze, and kept going all night and until afternoon next day. She must have passed the Upmong in the early morning, but so far to the westward she could not see it. The wind hauling at midforenoon altered her course by several points, and the northernmost island of the group, named Poillo, was thus brought in line. The island is seven miles long by three in width at its widest part, well wooded and watered. The woman landed on the east side at the mouth of a creek which forms a snug little harbor. She was convinced that this was one of the islands of the Kinderoon group, but she did not know that it was the most northerly one. By consulting the compass she got the cardinal points, but not having studied the chart she could not say in what direction any other land lay. She had seen the sails of two traders that morning, but as they were native craft she had every wish to avoid them. The boats which were sent in pursuit of her must have taken another course, as she saw nothing of them.

When Mrs. Williams landed on the island she had no idea of stopping there for more than a day or two, or until she could decide on some plan. She had scarcely gone ashore when a gale came up which lasted about thirty hours, during which the yawl was so damaged that she must undergo repairs. She unloaded her goods on the shore, covered them from the weather, and then set out to explore the island, pretty well satisfied that it was inhabited, and hoping, if it was, that her money might secure assistance. Before night she was satisfied that she was all alone, and she made a shelter out of blankets, and slept the night away as peacefully as if in her cabin on the schooner. Next day she changed her apparel for a man's suit and began the erection of a hut. In a grove about two hundred feet from the beach she erected a shelter ten by twenty feet, which withstood the storms of almost four years. While the sides consisted of canvas and poles, the roof was thatched with a long grass, which she found on the island in abundance.

It took the woman about a week to construct her hut and move her stores into it, and this had scarcely been done when her boat, owing to carelessness on her part, was carried off by the sea, and she now realized that she was a prisoner until such time as the crew of some trading vessel might land and discover her. After her house was completed she made a more thorough exploration of her island home. There were parrots and other birds, snakes of a harmless variety, Borneo rats and a drove of about three hundred Java pigs, which are about the size of the American peccary, but are wild instead of fierce.

The woman had clothing to last her five or six years, but the provisions she had brought from the schooner would not supply her needs more than a few months. While hoping and expecting to be taken off almost any day, she wisely prepared for a long stay. She had fish hooks and lines in her outfit, and with fish from the sea, meat from the woods and bananas and wild fruits from the groves, she had a variety and in plenty. Six months after she landed a native craft put in about a mile from her hut, but creeping through the woods she saw that all were Malays, and so savage in appearance that she did not dare make herself known. Seven months after a second craft sent men ashore to fill two water casks, but she was also afraid of these. She lived very quietly from that time until nearly two years after her landing, having remarkably good health all that time, but naturally lonely and cast down at times.

One afternoon, as she was in the forest about half a mile from home, having her shotgun with her, a Borneo sailor suddenly confronted her. He was entirely alone, and whether he had been marooned or cast away she never learned. As she was dressed in a man's suit he naturally took her for a man, but his first move was a hostile one. He advanced upon the woman, with a club in his hand and uttering shouts of menace, and to save her own life she was compelled to shoot him.

Now and then, all through her stay, trading vessels were sighted in the offing, with now and then a craft known to be manned by Englishmen, but the signals made to the latter by means of smoke were never heeded. Her main hope was that the loss of the schooner would in some way reach her friends at Singapore and that a searching party might be sent out to her rescue.

One day, when she had been on the island four years, lacking about fifty days, the British survey ship Sahio, then engaged in resurveying the group, dropped anchor off the mouth of the creek, and sent a party ashore to explore the interior. I had the honor not only to head the party, but to be the first to see and speak to Mrs. Williams. We found her in excellent health, although tanned and roughened by exposure to the weather. When she had donned her own proper apparel and had time to tidy up no one could find fault with her appearance.

After a few days we sailed for Singapore, where Mrs. Williams was safely landed.

HOW MAN MADE HIS ENTRY.

An Indian Version of the Creation of the World and the Origin of the Race.

There are few stories of a legendary nature that are not related in several different forms. A correspondent who has read the Indian legend of the creation sends the following excellent version of it:

When the Great Spirit created the world He first made three men, all of the same color. Then He led them to a pool of water and bade them jump in and bathe. One of them obeying at once leaped in advance of his fellows and came out clean and white.

The others hesitated, but one soon followed the first. When he went in the water had become somewhat stained and he came out copper-colored.

Then the third man went in. By that time the water of the pool had become black, and he was consequently black when he had bathed.

Thus it happens that there are white men, red men and black men in the world.

Then the Great Spirit laid down three packages before the three men, which contained their future fate. Out of pity for the black man He permitted him to have his first choice of the parcels.

The black man, without hesitation, took the largest of the parcels; the red man, whose turn was next, took the next largest parcel, and the white man got the remaining one, which was very small.

Then the men opened their packages. That of the black man was found to contain shovels and other implements of labor, the red man's contained bows and arrows and the white man's small parcel consisted of pens, ink and tools for light work.

From that time on each man made use of the tools he had chosen.—Chicago News.

Several Clinton Masons went to Manchester Sunday to attend Masonic Decoration.

Mrs. Daniel O'Reilly and her sister, from Newark, N. J., were in Lansing the first of the week.

Mrs. Wm. Rogers is in Tecumseh this week with her daughter, Mrs. E. S. Tate, who is quite sick.

Mrs. Ed. White, of Hanover, who has been visiting here for some time, returned home last week.

A large number of people from here attended Memorial exercises at Tecumseh Saturday afternoon.

Frank Downs, who has been studying dentistry in Chicago, returned home last week to remain until September.

Mrs. Will Katner went to Manchester Wednesday to meet Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clark, of Marshalltown, Ia., who will spend a few days here.

Rev. Abram Reeves went to Jackson Monday to meet his granddaughter, Miss Eva Elliott, from Grand Rapids, who will remain at the rectory for some time.

The Methodist people, always making improvements, are now building an addition to their parsonage. Some changes are to be made about the interior of the house at a later date.

Frank Scoville, of South Bend, came here last Saturday and remained until Tuesday. Mrs. Scoville, who has been here about two months, will return home the last of this week.

We believe that a great majority of Clinton people are pleased to learn that the school board have tendered an invitation to Prof. Daniels to remain with us another year, which he has accepted. All the other teachers are to remain also, with the exception of Miss Blanche Mills, who has resigned.

Mr. William Platt died Sunday, about 7 p. m., at his home in this village. He has been ill for many months with dropsy, but has been able to ride out until within a few days. Saturday he seemed much better, but early Sunday morning he began to grow worse and was a great sufferer until death came to his relief. Mr. Platt has been a resident of this place only a few months, coming from Ridgeway here. He leaves a wife and two daughters, who have the sympathy of many friends in their all. [illegible] day, at 2 p. m., at the M. E. Church.

We regret to chronicle the fact that some weeks ago two of our prominent and hitherto highly esteemed business men were caught in the act of obtaining the lacteal fluid from one of their neighbor's cows. The deed was more atrocious from the fact that innocent persons were accused, while, as is often the case, the guilty ones, with the secret of their iniquity locked in their own breasts, still basked in the smiles of the injured neighbor. The most deplorable part of the matter is, however, that such an example should be set before the young sons of both the culprits. As this is the first offense of the kind, and out of regard for their families, their names will be suppressed; but should the nefarious act be repeated they will probably be punished to the full extent of the law.

Notwithstanding the rain Friday and early Saturday morning, Decoration Day proved to be very pleasant. It was thought best to hold the exercises at the hall, on account of the uncertain state of the weather, and at 10 o'clock the auditorium was comfortably filled. The members of the G. A. R. and old soldiers occupied the front chairs, and the pastors of the different churches and the choir had seats upon the stage. The program was a short one and well carried out. The choir gave two very pretty and appropriate selections—"When We Marched with Sherman's Army to the Sea"—being especially enjoyed. After the exercises the procession was formed, headed by the Tecumseh Band, and marched to the cemetery, where the graves were decorated with beautiful flowers. The people then gathered at the entrance gate, a prayer was offered, a few words were read, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" was sung, and the exercises of the day were over.

To Young Mothers,

who are for the first time to undergo woman's severest trial, we offer you not the stupor caused by chloroform, with risk of death for yourself or your dearly-loved and longed-for offspring, but "Mother's Friend," a remedy which will if used as directed, invariable alleviate the pains, horrors and risks of labor, and often entirely do away with them. Sold by John J. Orr.

Notice.

Sec. 301. Payment for boxes must be quarterly.—Postmasters must rent the boxes and drawers in their post offices for one quarter (three months) only, the money to be paid in advance. The Department will insist upon a strict compliance with this regulation. Boxes remaining unpaid for ten days from the expiration of a quarter will be declared vacated.

Sec. 302. Box to be restricted to use of one family, etc.—A person renting a post office box is entitled to have the letters of his family put into it. Each box must be restricted to the use of one family, firm, or corporation.

OBITUARY.

From the last number of the Michigan Christian Advocate we gather a few facts with reference to the late Rev. Francis B. Bangs. He was one of the Pioneers of Methodism in Michigan and was related to the Bangs families who have lived for many years in the vicinity of Tecumseh. He was located at Tecumseh in 1845-6, and always kept up his acquaintance here after that date. He had many friends here among the older inhabitants who will sincerely mourn his departure.

With the death of Rev. F. B. Bangs, which occurred at Eaton Rapids, Mich., May 20, 1891, that name goes out of the Methodist ministerial rolls. There is no other Brother Bangs in any of our annual conferences. But the name is historic and will never perish. It is one of the synonyms of American Methodist pioneer history.

Nathan and Heman Bangs, had a brother Joseph, who married Huldah Tillman, both born in Connecticut and both locally distinguished for piety and usefulness. Joseph was led to Christ by his brother Nathan, and though his father was an Episcopalian, Joseph also became a Methodist, was for twenty-five years a local preacher, and for many years a deacon and elder in the Methodist Episcopal church. Joseph and Huldah Bangs were the parents of Francis Burrett Bangs, whose death we now mourn. Francis B. was born at Stanford, Deleware county, New York, March 23, 1819; came to Michigan with his parents in the fall of 1828, settling at Tecumseh. A quarterly meeting was held in his father's house soon afterwards, when all the Methodists in Lenawee county were present, seven in number, viz: Joseph and Huldah Bangs, their son Isaac and wife, their son Alanson's wife, and a Brother Wheeler and wife. Francis B. was not yet converted, but his father's house was the home of the itinerant.

Until fifteen years of age Francis attended the district school, then one term in a select school, and then two terms in a branch of the State University. At sixteen he experienced religion at a quarterly meeting held in a school house at Sharon, Washtenaw county. "I went," he once said, "a wild youth, thoughtless as I ever had been on the subject of religion, but Saturday night found me a penitent at the altar, and Sunday night happy in the consciousness of a Saviour's pardon."

"The last illness of Bro. Bangs was of only eight days' duration, during a part of which time he suffered much pain. But the last two or three days were comparatively free from bodily sufferings, and he enjoyed great peace and comfort of soul. He said to me: 'My God is a present deliverer.' I asked him about the condition of his mind, and he answered; 'Clear as a bell.' He did in perfect composure and faith—in the real experience of the gospel which he had preached so long. "Why should a man cling to this earth, he exclaimed when all his treasures are on the other side?" His only anxiety was for the devoted wife whom he must leave alone. Bro. Bangs' death-bed, serene and peaceful, was a fitting close to his steady, even, reliable, spotless career."

OBITUARY.

Died, at Tecumseh, Mich., on Wednesday, May 27th, 1891, Mrs. Florence E. Lawrene, wife of Mr. Albert D. Lawrence.

Miss Florence E. Sanford was born at Coldwater Branch Co., Mich., Sept. 17, 1852. On the 2d day of March, 1871, she was married to Mr. Albert D. Lawrence. With brief occasional absences in pursuit of fimer health for Mrs. Lawrence, they have been residents of Tecumseh since this marriage, and have been identified closely with all the interests, social, business and religious, of our pleasant village. In the year 1874 Mrs. Lawrene united with the Presbyterian church in profession of her faith, and she continued to be a member of this church until she received her summons to join the church above. She was fond of her church, her husband, her home, her friends, and keenly enjoyed the blessings with which a kind Providence had favored her. Her wish was to live and her struggle for health was a most resolute and courageous one. In this struggle her husband lovingly joined. Despite all effort, however, she was shut up, two years ago, in her home and ever since has been getting weaker, until at last the sleep which God gives his worn and weary children came to her and she entered into rest. When it became fully apparent to her that God's will was that she should die, she bowed submissively to that will and found comfort in those inspired promises which have been the help and strength of so many in similar trying circumstances. Trusting in Him who died for her and who gives His people victory over their "last enemy," waited upon to the closing moment with all the devotion that love calls forth, she passed peacefully away. W. H. B.

Resolutions of Respect.

Tribute to Mrs. O. B. Finch, as adopted by the Farmers' Social Club, May 4th.

How true it is that Death loves a shining mark and most sadly has it been verified to us, as a society, in removing from us our loved sister, Mrs. O. B. Finch. While we will miss her valued counsels, the ever willing labor of her hands, the cheering inspiration of her presence, we humbly bow to the Divine will, acknowledging that our great loss is her eternal gain. While our tears mingle with those of the home circle and the strongest sympathy of our hearts is extended to the bereaved husband and children, we realize that it is only the arm of Him who has said He would never leave His children comfortless that is strong enough to support in such an hour, and that support will never fail, but remain strong and sure till we are permitted to meet in the "Sweet bye and bye."

We wait, but day by day our steps are nearing
The silent river she so lately crossed;
And we will go to her to find her waiting
Upon the other shore;—she is not lost.

Not there, as here, shall loving hearts
be severed;
Not there, as here, shall drop the burning tear;
Love, life and home,—sweet home
beyond the river;—
Loved friend, sweet sister, we will meet
you there.

Mrs. A. P. Coddington,
Mrs. O. P. Remington,
Mrs. Geo. Griswold. } Com.

A Dangerous Period.

As the season moves swiftly toward the boundary lines that lie between winter and spring, it frequently happens that the human system, which has borne the strain of winter, shows signs of relaxation. In all ages this period has been noted as a dangerous one, especially to those who have weak constitutions. A course of the great blood purifier and tonic, S.S.S., will enable the most delicate to face the season's changes with impunity. It is a medicine that not only strengthens the weak and the delicate, but is an additional safeguard for those who consider themselves strong.

ESTATE OF ALMIRA MORSE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss

At a session of the Probate Court, for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 2nd day of June, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one.

Present Richard B. Robbins, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Almira Morse, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Frederick R. Wood and J. W. Patterson, executors of the last will and testament, and upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, and specific legacies under said will (excepting those required to be held in trust by said executors) have been fully paid, and that they are now ready to render their first administration account, and praying that said account may be allowed, and that the funds now on hand (except said legacies to be held in trust,) be ordered paid to the parties entitled thereto, and for such other order and decree as to this Court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 29th day of June, 1891, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.
